

SATURDAY'S GAME

S. A. A. C. Will Certainly Have a Husky Team

The Spokane Amateur Athletic team which comes to Moscow Saturday, has probably the bunch of amateur athletes in the Island Empire. The team is well equipped and is developing good speed under the able coaching of T. G. ... an expert eastern coach. The club will have Jay Fancy at quarterback. Fancy was a star player at the S. H. S. and has forgotten nothing of the game. They will be exceptionally strong at tackles. Dr. ... a 220 pounder, who has played in many a game for Multnomah. ... will play right tackle while D. ... a former star of the University of Wisconsin will play the center position. At one end will be ... and Jack Finnegan, the greatest end Georgetown ever developed. Finnegan is a long, speedy man and has a thorough knowledge of the game. The other end will be handled by Tetro, a Spokane local player.

Cisco Bullivant will play quarter. Bullivant is one of the best amateur wrestlers in the northwest and will make an excellent quarter. He is new at the game, but enjoys it, and with his combination of speed, headwork and wonderful endurance, should make an excellent man to lead the team.

One halfback position will be played by Newmeyer, captain and star player of the team. Newmeyer earned his reputation as a football player while in attendance at the University of Minnesota. Since leaving college he has been playing with the Seattle Athletic club, the champions of the northwest. The other back field men are not yet picked but suffice it to say that the S. A. A. C. will have a trio of heavy fast backs.

The S. A. A. C. is starting after the championship of the northwest and they do not intend to lose a single game without a fierce contest. They are particularly anxious to beat Idaho, since they were the intercollegiate champions of 1905. The article of football, that will be played next Saturday will be as good as any during the season. Idaho's team is showing great improvement and will be in good condition to play the "all star" club.

The management has issued season tickets for the home games. There will be three games at home: S. A. A. C., Oct. 13; Coeur d'Alene High School, Oct. 20, and the University of Oregon, Oct. 26. Fifty cents admission will be charged for the S. A. A. C. game; thirty five cents for the C. H. S. game; and one dollar for the Oregon. The three tickets will be sold for one dollar and fifty cents and each ticket will entitle the holder thereof to a seat in the bleachers. Bleachers to comfortably seat one thousand people will be erected this week and everyone will be able to see the whole contest. Secure your tickets this week from the student agents or from the University book store. The rate is for this week only.

Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A. held its meeting Sunday at the dormitory. Mrs. Young has kindly given the use of the library to the girls for their meetings. The hour of meeting has been changed from 4 o'clock to 8 o'clock.

GIRLS DORMITORY AT THE UNIVERSITY

RIDENBAUGH HALL IS TAKING A MOST IMPORTANT PART IN THE EDUCATION OF THE YOUNG WOMEN OF IDAHO

The girls dormitory was built in 1902 and dedicated to the young women of the state. It was named Ridenbaugh Hall in honor of Mrs. W. H. Ridenbaugh.

The building is a three-story brick; the lower floor comprises a recreation room (now used for the domestic science department), a reception hall, dining room, kitchen and pantries; on the second floor is the main reception hall with a parlor and library on either side. The remainder of the floor and all of the third floor is taken up with the students' rooms. There are fourteen suites; the rest are single rooms.

The rear was rented and fixed up for the use of students. In the cottage and dormitory together there are now forty young ladies. They come not only from Idaho but from Washington and Oregon as well and some even from the eastern states.

The dining-room is open to all members of the University; its management is under the care of the household manager. Regular boarders pay $3.00 per week for board.

The Hall is under the immediate supervision of the Preceptress. The rules are few; the discipline is equal to that of any well-regulated family, and is mostly in the hands of the students who are asking for admission. The rooms which are now used for domestic science are badly needed for the students and the work of this department is very crowded.

It is interesting to note the development of the importance of domestic science. We point with pride to the fact that Idaho was the first University in the northwest to introduce such a course into its curriculum. But now we think that that was a very meager beginning, for today we are offering a four-year course in domestic economy with a

RIDENBAUGH HALL

Today the Hall is taking a most important part in the lives of our young women. At first some looked upon life in the dormitory as a hardship and feared strict rules and a curtailment of their individual liberties but experience has shown that this is not the case. When the dormitory was opened in 1902 to the reception of students, only three young ladies availed themselves of the opportunity; in 1903 there were nine occupants; in 1904, twenty-seven; in 1905, thirty-three; this year the building was taxed beyond its capacity and a small cottage in girls. They take an interest in the Hall equal to that which they would take in their own home. They are old enough and know enough not to require strict rules and to take a just pride in the well-being of themselves and all concerned. The Hall is closed to callers at 10:00 p. m. and lights are turned out at 10:30. A pleasant feature is the kindly feeling existing among the girls. They are one and all equal, there is no prejudice, no cliques, and every girl is made to feel that every one else has an especial interest in her. Already the size of the dormitory

B. S. degree. The work has grown in importance until Idaho must prepare her own teachers, so great has become the demand for them among the secondary schools of the state. It has become imperative, if the interests of the department are not to suffer, that the next state legislature give us a domestic science building.

With these surroundings for our young ladies, the fathers and mothers can send their daughters here and feel that while they are receiving the benefit of higher education they are not losing the important influence of the home.

Senior Picnic a Grand Success.

That the Senior picnic was a decided success, is the unanimous verdict of all who attended it.

The crowd left the campus about half past two and reached its destination, Monterey, about five o'clock. Under the able direction of Dr. Moore and Miss Maynard fruit enough was found along the way to keep all from starving until supper time.

Songs of all kinds were sung and several pictures of the crowd around the camp fire were taken.

A most important part of the picnic, the supper, could not have been better.

All the guests of the class are fervently hoping that that they will be fortunate enough to be asked to the next Senior affair.

Baseball Captain Elected.

The last year's baseball team met Saturday and elected a captain. The honor fell to Geo. H. Wyman, '07, who has played on the team for two years. Dr. Axtel, principal of the preparatory department, will coach in this branch of athletics. He got much of his baseball experience at the University of Chicago and is thoroughly capable of the duties to which he has been called.

"Webb" Meet.

The Websterian Society's regular Saturday night session was taken up with an interesting debate on the advantages and disadvantages of the free elective system. Lukens and Holman upheld the system and Morrow and Mudgett opposed it. Myers, Hunting and Mason were judges and decided in favor of the negative.

Cross Country Run

Interest being in a new sport at the West.

J. R. Bender, director of athletics at W. S. C., has written a very interesting letter to Coach Griffith concerning a cross country run between W. S. C. and the U. of I. He says in part: "But what I would like to suggest and have you think over would be a cross country run for this fall—say to take place on Thanksgiving evening or some such date. You no doubt know that such is the custom at the conference schools, at least has been for the last 8 years. If possible I would like to create an interest in such an event and make it an annual Inter-Collegiate affair, probably between ourselves, but better I think, to invite all neighboring colleges with whom you no doubt are better acquainted. I expect to have some men out next week, later part, for their own good, and hope you can send out some and that we can arrange a meet. The run either to or from Moscow here or from here to Moscow. Kindly give this your consideration and let me hear soon. It will give both teams a little over a month for training. It will make an exciting Inter-Collegiate affair, I think.

Reception at M. E. Church Attended by Many Varsity Students.

At the Methodist church Friday night, two hundred and fifty students and town people were gathered. The occasion being the annual reception by the Epworth League to the students and faculty of the University.

The receiving line was in the front part of the church. After getting acquainted there, those present seated themselves in the main auditorium and a short program was rendered. This was followed by games and a general good time in the League hall, below. Punch was served. The evening went by rapidly and in all points the reception was a success.

Watch Idaho Grow.

Definite figures as to registration have not yet been announced, by Mr. Jenkins but it has been found that the number of students is much greater than at this time last year. Few of the upper class men have failed to return to school and the number of new students is extraordinarily large. One result of the increased attendance that pleases the Executive Committee of the A. S. U. I. is that it means a full treasury and therefore a quicker payment of the debts contracted in debate and track last spring.

All Prep. Games.

The preparatory students gave a dance in the Club House last Saturday. About 75 persons were present. The hall was decorated with the Prep. colors, gold, silver and blue. The letters, "U. I. Prep." were arranged on the wall so as to give a beautiful and striking appearance. Music was furnished by the University orchestra. A most enjoyable evening was had by all those who were present.

 Resolved that all railroads in the United States should be owned and operated by the government. Ida-meaning their opponents might attack to the term, "government,"

 and wrote asking them to define it.
 Montana replied that the federal government was meant, the word federal having been omitted through mistake. This removes even the shadow of any ambiguity which might arise as to the definition of the terms of the question, which

As It Happened

It was almost three o'clock. I had just come from school and was hurrying around getting the horses hitched to the buggy, for an important thing had happened. One of my brothers had married and was going to give his wedding dinner at six.

You will wonder why that should excite me, but it did, for I wanted to be at that reception in style, and my partner lived ten miles away. I was determined to have her there just to show that brother of mine that he wasn't so much smarter than I, after all. After tying the horses, I dressed in my very best Sunday suit and started out with a light heart.

We, Jane and I, were in time for dinner and, after in-veins, keeping time with the sweet strains of music. I had lost all idea of time and lived in the fire of perpetual youth. Suddenly the lights were turned low, and the music ceased.

"What is wrong?" I asked.

"The dance is out, of course," Jane replied, laughing at my bewildered look.

I glanced at my watch. It was twelve o'clock. I got Jane's coat and, bidding all good night, we started upon our ten-mile drive.

The night was lovely. The kind old Queen had once more thrown her silver mantle over the earth. Every bush and tree sighed and shook its boughs, making a changeable dress of light and shadow as they nodded and bowed in stately fashion.

heels. He gave a quick jump. Then they were both off at a full run. When the horse lunged, the buggy tongue dropped. One horse was now pulling the carriage so that it cut curves and figures which must have greatly resembled those cut by Mr. Pickwick on skates.

Jane had pluck, however, for contrary to the rule of girls she did not utter one shriek but clung to my arm, making little, gasping noises such as one makes when a bucket of ice water is poured down his back.

I braced my feet against the dash-board and pulled and sawed with all the strength I dared place upon the lines, every minute expecting the tongue to catch in the ground and to be sent up as if taking the pole-vault.

We had gone perhaps two hundred yards in this manner when, looking down, I thought the tugs were all unhitched and that I was pulling the buggy with the lines. Not wishing to prolong the interesting ride I dropped them. We did not stop as I expected. There was still over into the bushes. Jane suddenly took a notion to leave her seat, too, and with a little cry she tumbled in a heap at the bottom of the box. I hurriedly scrambled to my feet and lifted her to the ground. She was now crying and trembling.

"Are you hurt, Jane?" I asked.

She shook her head. After we had recovered a little from our fright we slowly walked back home.

When we got into the light we took an inventory of our injuries. I escaped with a lump in the middle of my forehead where I had tackled a willow, while she had a lump on the side of her head where she hit it against the box.

I went to see her the next Sunday. Her father took me into his room and told me in a firm voice that I must learn to drive before I could take his girl out again.

It is needless to say that I have been practicing ever since.

roducing her to the guests, we sat down to a very good meal. It did not seem possible that the bridegroom could be any happier than I was, for it was the first time I had eaten at the same table with Jane. To be sure I felt a little embarrassed and, as a result, spilled my tea and smeared my coat sleeves with cake frosting.

After the dinner was over, we went to a dance given in honor of the occasion. I was in a heaven of delight. My blood coursed through my Everything went smoothly for a time. Jane started some old song, and with merry hearts we went our way. All pleasures end, however, for the world like old Shylock, demands its pay; and our note for borrowed pleasure was almost due, but, unlike Antonio, we had no fair Portia to plead our cause.

I was making the horses go at their best gait to show Jane what a driver I was, when suddenly something broke, and the single tree dropped upon the off horse's one tug hitched. I did not know what to do and, wanting a little sympathy in the hour of danger, I silently reached over and took Jane's hand.

The buggy was now jumping and turning like a playful lamb, running first on one side of the road and then on the other. With every lurch I expected to be pitched out. We were nearing a turn in the road. Immediately in front of us was a large bunch of willows. I knew we would stop there and, bracing my feet, I held to Jane to prevent one being hurled out. It happened as I expected. The horses turned with the road, but the buggy went full force into the brush. The frail tug was broken, and the horses swiftly vanished from sight. I was not very much interested in their proceedings, however, for in spite of my well braced feet, my hat lifted, I arose politely when the buggy stopped, and fell
