COACH GROGAN ENCOURAGED

The Arrival of a Few New Men Make the Outlook Brighter for a Good Team.

The enthusiastic work of Coach Grogan and the arrival of more material has greatly strengthened the hopes of Idaho's students for a successful season on the gridiron. Coach Grogan is putting in his hardest licks trying to develop a quarter and a punter. The position of quarter is now a very doubtful one. Perkins, Smith, Curtis and Denning are each trying hard for the place, but none of them seems to be sure of his job. Smith has been out only twice, but looks like the making of a good man. Perkins has had considerable high school work and should rapidly develop into collegiate material. Curtis and Denning are pretty well known because of their work in the prep athletics. The making of a kicker is going to be one of the hardest problems. Hillman, the Blair college star, is doing hard and consistent work in this line, as is also Thornton, last year's half back.

Montgomery has donned a uniform and is now out for hard work. He has been trying his kicking leg for the past week. Lundstrum also can boot the ball some. From these men the coach hopes to develop a good punter.

The back field is not yet as formidable looking as the coaches wish. Hillman, Montgomery, Thornton and Lundstrum are working hard, but more men trying for these positions would make things more gratifying. A new man, Dorsett, from Murray, looks like a possibility in the back field, but he will need a great deal of coaching and hard training before he can secure a position.

The arrival of Armstrong and Thornton, last year's right end and fullback, has greatly strengthened the looks of the squad. This gives us five of last year's team. Captain Stokesbury, guard; Thornton, fullback; Lundstrum, halfback; Jewell, center, and Armstrong, right. These men, with last year's subs, Cook, Williams, Hays, Cooper and Montgomery, make a fairly good machine for a strong team.

The second squad, under Assistant Coach Nissen, has some very promising material, and after a few more nights of scrimmage we may find some of these men on the first team line-up. Stein, Carr, Bashor, Buffington and McDaniels are showing up well in the back field. Bennett, Gray, Besse and McInturf are working hard in the line. Farmer and Watts, at end, are giving the first team men quite a bit of trouble.

A training table, the first to be used at Idaho, is accommodating about thirty men at present, but will later be cut down to twenty. The training is at Ridenbaugh Hall, and under the direct supervision of the coach.

Athletic Notes.

A call from the physical culture director, Dr. Kanaga, resulted in the formation of a cross country club. About twenty men attended the meeting, and after a brief talk by Dr. Kanaga, on the purpose and benefits of such a club, the organization was perfected and Strohecker elected captain. The boys have been training faithfully and their work should be encouraged by the student body.

The formation of a tennis club is receiving considerable attention by lovers of that sport, and it is hoped that a club may be formed. This is one branch of athletics which has never been seriously considered at Idaho, but one which should be given more attention. For those who take an interest in tennis it would be well to see Prof. Axtell.

The new athletic field fence will have a tendency to stop the practice of allowing people to obtain grand stand seats on the railroad track.

The erection of a few more yards of bleachers would be welcomed by the student body.

Junior Class Meeting.

On Friday afternoon, October 1st, the Juniors held their first class meeting of the year for the purpose of electing class officers for the semester. The successful candidates were as follows: President, James Gwinn; vice president, George Rember; treasurer, Joseph Adams; secretary, Minnie Kiefer; member of the Athletic Board, Fritz Lundstrum.

Sophomore Class Meeting.

In a quiet meeting last Wednesday the officers for the Sophomore Class were chosen as follows: President, Clinton Bessee; vice president, Chas. Kee; treasurer, Chas. Johnson; secretary, Charlotte Tuttle; sergeant-at-arms, Paul Durie; member of the Athletic Board, Louis Jessup.

New Beta Sigma Banner.

The Beta Sigma girls recently received a new banner for their hall. It covers the whole side of the room, and the colors, purple and white, show to great advantage, making it an ornament well worth having.

Miss Carrie Horton spent the weekend with her parents at Garfield.

STUDENT'S ENTERTAINMENT COURSE.

University Student's Offer A Lecture Course of Six Attractions.

P. S. Savidge and W. E. Chambers will have charge of a student's entertainment course this year which will take the place of the one heretofore conducted under the auspices of the M. E. church.

These men are well known and should have the support of every student.

In the first place they offer six numbers instead of five. Senator Robt. La Follette has been here before and every one who heard him then will want to hear him again. His lecture comes first and it alone will be well worth the price of a season ticket.

Congressman Adam Bede of Minnesota is a man with a reputation and should give us a good entertainment; and so also should Edward P. Elliott who comes to us highly recommended.

"Four Musical Artists," is another number that has been in Moscow before. It was last year the best entertainment of its kind given here. It also is worth the price of a season ticket.

The Chicago Choir Boys always command a good audience and have never failed to give satisfaction. They will be a drawing card to all who love music.

Last of all Laurand, the magician, will give us something to wonder and speculate about for a year at least.

These six attractions are offered to the citizens of Moscow for $2.50, and to the students of the university for $2.00. It is easily the best course that has ever been here.

The first two numbers will be held in the M. E. Church, and the other four in the new Crystal Theatre which will seat six hundred people.

Tickets for citizens of Moscow will be on sale at Hodgins' drug store, and students' tickets can be bought from P. S. Savidge, W. E. Chambers or Harry H. Daus.

Civil Engineers Receive Gift.

Professor R. S. McCaffery who has come to Idaho University this fall to fill the chair of Metallurgy has made the very valuable gift to the library of the civil engineering department of eleven well bound volumes of the Transactions of the American Society of Civil Engineers, for the years 1897-1902 inclusive. Two of these volumes are out of print. As the department set of these Transactions was recently started this gift is especially welcome.

Don't forget to have a health certificate from Dr. Kanaga.

DEBATE

With Very Little New Material Our Reputatyn is Endangered.

This year Idaho will have only two debates, the triangular league debates. And it is perhaps good that the other debates have been abolished, for there has never been a time in Idaho's history when she has had so few debaters in her student body. This year the teams will consist of practically new men. All of our veteran debaters, the men who have represented the University in debate 5 or 6 times, have gone. This year we have only three men who have participated in a college debate. The prospects for a successful year in debate are not very promising.

Idaho has already chosen a subject to submit for the triangular debates. It is "Federal Charter for Interstate Commerce Corporations. Oregon's and Washington's subjects are already due. This year Idaho debates Washington at Moscow, and Oregon at Eugene. Washington debates Oregon at Seattle.

Prof. Hulme has decided to institute a new method of choosing the debate teams this year. There will be two try outs instead of one as heretofore. The first will occur some time before the Christmas holidays. Eight men will be chosen at this try out. The Ridenbaugh prize of $25.00 will be awarded at this trial. Later on the Borah debate will take place. For this debate the eight men chosen at the earlier try out will be divided into two teams of four men each. This debate was instituted by Senator Borah. Each year Senator Borah gives $50 to be spent for debate books. The names of the winning team are placed in the books each year. At this debate the six men to represent the University in the Triangular Debates will be chosen and the Dewey and Vollmer debate prizes of $25 each will be awarded. Professor Hulme thinks this method of choosing the teams will be much more satisfactory than the old way.

VASSAR GIRLS TAKE TUMBLE

Collapse of Grandstand at Fireworks Display.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 2—One hundred Vassar girls, who were applauding the big fire works display in connection with the Hudson-Fulton celebration here tonight, were piled in a mass when two sections of the grandstand from which they were watching the spectacle collapsed. Eight of the students were seriously injured and nearly all the other occupants of the collapsed section were cut and bruised. Two of the students suffered broken legs, three had arms broken and others were internally injured. None is thought to be fatally hurt. All were taken to the college infirmary. Spokesman.

THE IDAHO DYE WORKS

MOSCOW, IDAHO

We have been in Moscow one year this month and have made good, for our business has increased 150 per cent in the last six months. Moscow is 25 years old; in the last 16 years there has been 21 Cleaning, Dyeing and Pressing Places opened up and none of them has ever lasted 12 months.

But there doesn't seem to be any likelihood of our leaving for want of business, for our business is increasing each month.

THE IDAHO DYE WORKS does all kinds of Dying, French Dry-Cleaning, Up-to-Date Pressing, and repairs everything. We clean 4-tear Velvet, Silk Curtains, Sofa Pillows, Ribbons, Neck Ties, Silk or Kid Gloves, Block and Re-trim Hats—in fact everything that men, women and children wear, except shoes.

If it is made of cloth, send it to the Idaho Dye Works. They can improve its looks.

STANFORD COMMITTEE DROP ROWING

Cardinal Students Sound Death Knell of Intercollegiate Regatta—Finances the Cause

The death knell has sounded for intercollegiate boating. In spite of the enthusiastic support given the sport by the students of this University a week ago, when a continuation of boating was voted by an overwhelming majority, the action of the Stanford Executive Committee has definitely put an end to authorized intercollegiate rowing by voting to strike out the sport from the athletic agreement of the two universities. The action was taken at the last meeting of the committee, held this week, and in spite of the attitude of the students there, will without doubt be carried out by the Agreement Committee.

The reasons advanced by the Stanford Committee for this drastic action may all be summed up under the one heading—finances. Along with the notice of their decision in the matter, the committee presents figures showing the expense and disbursements of their athletic department. In these they endeavor to show that they cannot afford to continue rowing, even upon the most limited basis, and must, therefore drop it entirely.

Captain Huston of the Cardinal crew has announced that his men will not abandon rowing, even in the face of such discouraging circumstances. When the Executive Committee decided to drop the sport, it also passed resolutions to the effect that a crew privately financed by the crew members would not be recognized as competing under the auspices of the University, and that the members of such a crew would not receive any emblem or letter in recognition of their efforts. This makes an intercollegiate race out of the question, and presents to the rowing adherents here an unlooked-for situation.

When seen last evening, Graduate Manager Merritt stated that he could not tell what action the California Executive committee would take. It seems to be out of the question to consider holding a regatta with a crew not officially recognized at home, and the logical outcome is apparently that the Associated Students will turn back to the Boat club all the equipment obtained from them when the crew was originally taken into the fold, together with the additional equipment and improvements which have been made. Interclass regattas can be held under the managership of the Boat club, as in former years, and in this way interest in the sport can be prevented from dying out.

Captain Ashley was seen and stated that the news was a distinct surprise to him, inasmuch as the members of the Cardinal committee with whom he had talked seemed to be heartily in favor of continuing the sport. He said that he did not care to make any statement concerning the intentions of the boating men here until he had talked the matter over with the Stanford captain.

Battalion Notes.

RIFLE CLUB ORGANIZED

Last Thursday afternoon the members of the University rifle club met and elected the following officers: President, Louie Jessup; captain, Ernest Ellis; secretary, Oscar Carlson; treasurer, E. N. Martin.

Target practice will begin immediately on the outdoor range, and will continue until the weather becomes too inclement, when an outdoor range will be provided. It is the intention of the club to remodel the basement of the annex and provide a 50-foot range, similar to those in use at W. S. C. and other colleges. The principal feature of this kind of range is the darkened room with electric lights immediately over the target. It was on such a range that the W. S. C. rifle club last year won the National collegiate championship in target shooting with a score of 946 out of a possible 1000. With these advantages our team will be able to compete with the best collegiate marksmen for the national championship this year, and it is urged that every member of the rifle club take every advantage of the range, as it will be available for members of the club at any time during the winter.

The non-commissioned officers of the battalion will be selected within a few days, by competition, as follows: Four sergeants from sophomore class, five sergeants and four corporals from the fresman class, and the remaining corporals from the fourth year preparatory.

Chief Musician E. J. Carey will have complete charge of the band this year, both in instruction and discipline.

Cadet Corporal R. D. Armstrong has been appointed cadet quartermaster sergeant and ordnance sergeant.

Cadet Corporal W. W. Casey has been appointed cadet chief trumpeter.

THE GOLD BRICK

Sol Findle looked glum that morning. Why should he not look glum? And yet why should he? The meadow lark outside his window was not at fault, for he was trying to cheer the whole world with his message of April. The grass was just getting green enough to make one want to lounge about the Campus. The air had begun to have that sweet, refreshing odor that makes us stop, throw back our heads, and raise our chests. To be brief, there had been just one spring day at the University of Idaho, and this was the beginning of the second. Every one welcomes them; warm, radiant sun, mild breeze, hazy mountains, greening campus, budding trees.

Sol had been trying to study his Chemistry lesson, but he had given up. His chair was now propped back on its hind legs and he had his hands pushed far down into his trousers pockets, his mouth down at the corners, and his broad, square forehead wrinkled perpendicularly. His eyes stared far off thru space at the top of the highest mountain. Chemistry is awfully monotonous stuff, anyway, in the spring, and especially to a person in Sol's state of mind.

Presently a large, supple form quietly filled the doorway, then tip-toed across, where it stopped and regarded the silent man in the chair. Suddenly the eyes of the latter turned, and Sol, on seeing his visitor, gave a little exclamation of surprise.

"Why, hello Jack, I didn't know you were here."

Jack Dapple was a good looking chap. He was gracefully built, with broad shoulders, deep, full chest, and long, well-muscled legs. The straight, black hair, brushed tight over the temples added depth to the eyes, which marked the pleasing, irresolute mouth and jaw. Jack and Sol were from the same high school. Jack had lived in the little town, Sol in the country. The friendship they had formed in their high school days was still firm, although Jack had become popular during his Freshman year, and Sol was yet the same country boy with his poor clothes and his ungainly appearance.

When Jack entered the room Sol was thinking, as every fellow in training spends most of his time doing, about the coming track season. Sol was not a good track man, but everybody told him he would make a good one if he would just keep on training. That season he had not so far made a very promising showing, and it was no wonder he was looking the least bit glum.

"Howdy, Sol," said Jack, "must be dreamin' about 'er."

"Not much; nothing doing in that line."

"Why ain't you out enjoying this beautiful weather?" and Jack walked to the window.

"Say, it is lovely, ain't it? Fine weather for training," as he yawned and stretched his long arms. "Have a chair, Jack, you look kind o' sober; I'd be the happiest man on earth if I were in your position."

"Oh, I am happy all right, Sol, but I'm kind o' on the fence just now. Those Washington fellows have even sent a man down here to get me, and—"

"Offered you something better yet?"

"Yep, they promise to pay all my living expenses for the remainder of the course—on the sly, you know." A pause.

"And are you going now?"

"Don't know; looks pretty good to me. That's what I came over for, Sol. What'd you do?"

In the pause that followed this question Sol arose and walked over to the window. His companion fell into a rocking chair, contemplating the square, bony shoulders, the slightly bowed legs with their knotty joints, and the poor, out of style clothes of this country boy. Finally the latter, drawing a long, low warble, turned and faced Jack:

"That's mighty good, ain't it?"

Jack's face lit up as he nodded his head slowly. Then Sol, his eyes on the floor, took a step toward his visitor and said:

"Say, Jack, do you remember a year ago last fall when we first come here, you and I?" We were both kind o' hay-seedy then, and you wasn't much better fixed than me. We felt pretty little those days; nothing but Freshies in the class of nineteen seven. We roomed together all winter, and when spring come the fellows all got after us to go out for track. You remember how awkward we both were? How Mr. Phillips worked with us? You begun to come out o' the kinks and could stretch out pretty good. Then in the try-out you got second in the quarter and everyone begun to boost you. But in the first meet you were so up in the air that you didn't get off your mark for a couple of seconds and didn't do a thing. No one blamed you. I remember how they cheered you as you came in last.

"For the second meet they took you clear over to Seattle and you got excited that time. Spiked Ed and made him lose the race. You begun to come to yourself in the next meet and took second in the quarter at fifty-one four, and third in the half at two-twelve. Then came the triangular meet and you made your mark. Fifty and three-fifths, wasn't it? How I wished I could be carried off like you were! How good those yells sounded to me when I knew that the whole U. of I. was worshipping you. Ever since that you've been a hero and a prince. They took you into the Frat last fall the first thing, and the fellows have helped you dress better and live better."

Sol was getting warm with his subject now.
