IDAHO TAKES WHITMAN'S PELT

IN A HEADY GAME PINK'S WARRIORS SCORE HEAVILY ON MISSIONARIES.

Wins Inland Empire Championship by Making a 29 to 3 Score.

The University of Idaho football team completely swamped the Whitman college eleven on a muddy field here last Saturday thus winning the Inland Empire championship. The game belonged to Idaho from the very start, at no time in the game did Whitman have even a chance. Idaho's defence was invincible and it was the third quarter before Whitman succeeded in carrying the ball for a gain. At that time Niles succeeded in advancing the ball four yards through the Idaho line, but the losing process commenced again and Niles was forced to punt. Whitman was soon playing to keep down the score rather than to win, and they were greatly assisted by the muddy field and Niles' boot.

In spite of the bad weather an enthusiastic crowd was present to cheer the Idaho team as it appeared on the field at 2:25, only a few minutes before the whistle was blown. Lockhart kicked off for Idaho, and Whitman fumbled an Idaho man falling upon the ball on Whitman's 30-yard line. From here the ball was taken by line plunges to Whitman's 10 yard line. But owing to the muddy condition of the field Idaho was unable to advance the ball farther and on the fourth down Lockhart tried for a place kick but failed.

Idaho soon had the ball again and after a few line plunges and a 25 yard run by Lockhart a forward pass was attempted which resulted in the ball being thrown out of bounds going to Whitman on the 20 yard line. The later failed to gain and Niles punted for 40 yards. A series of line bucks, a long gain by Lockhart, and the Idaho Spread, which netted 6 yards, a place kick by Lockhart from the 30 yard line gave Idaho her first score.

For the rest of the quarter Idaho made constant gains in offensive work and carried Whitman back for repeated loses while at defense, but were unable to score again before the quarter ended.

The change of goals in the second quarter gave Idaho the dry end on the field to work in. The ball was soon carried into dangerous territory for Whitman Niles attempted to punt from their 11 yard line but the ball slipped off his toe and did not carry far. Johnson picked up the pig skin while on the bounce and ran 25 yards for a touchdown. Lockhart missed goal. Whitman was unable to carry the ball and was forced to punt. A few line plays then two forward passes, Phillips to Johnson for 15 yards, and Phillips to Samms for 20 yards, and Idaho had her second touchdown. Idaho kicked out, but the ball was fumbled and the half ended with the score 15 to 0.

In the first part of the second half Niles succeeded in penetrating the Idaho line for the first time, making a gain of 4 yards through tackle, but he was unable to repeat the performance and attempted to punt. It was blocked by Favre and picked up by Samms who with the aid of an excellent interfer-

NEW ENGLISH CLUB PLAY IS NOW UNDER HEADWAY.

Dr. Moore Says This is to be the Most Artistic Production Ever Given By the Club.

On Friday afternoon, those who were fortunate enough to convince the judges of their histrionic ability at the time of the English club "tryout," met in room 205 to become acquainted with the parts assigned them in the morality, "Everyman." Dr. Moore, the head of the English department, explained the nature of the play and set forth some ideas of acting the different roles. "We mean to make this the most artistic production ever given by the English club. No play requires greater care in the acting, in the costuming and in the stage setting. We shall not attempt to suggest the pageant wagon on which the morality was originally performed. We shall, on the contrary, follow after the English actor-manager, Ben Greet, who rejected historical accuracy in order the better to create the necessary illusion in mind. We shall be satisfied with little short of perfection in the acting. This play of Everyman is particularly dependent upon fine acting. Its great vogue in this country is due in large measure to the wonderful conception and portrayal of the part of Everyman by the talented actress, Edith Wynne Matthison. Every part, however, demands the closest study. The allegory is unrelieved by humor; there is very little action; everything depends on the actor's forgetfulness of self, and ability to feel his lines."

Dr. Moore complimented the members of the cast upon the first reading of their lines, which promises well for the artistic success of the performance. She was especially enthusiastic over ince went 65 yards for a touchdown. Ross and Jardine had been substituted for Lockhart and Knudson and they appeared to go through the Whitman line at will until the ball was carried over the goal line for another touchdown by Ross. Johnson kicked goal, and the scoring was ended for Idaho.

The third quarter opened with most of the Idaho second team in the lineup. The main feature of the last quarter was the brilliant runs made by Ross, and the spectacular drop kick of Baker from the 35 yard line, which gave Whitman its only score. The game ended with the score 29 to 3.

Johnson was easily the star of the game. Whitman again and again tried

NORTHWEST FOOTBALL SCORE

Idaho now Second in Standing But Predicted Would be Third.

Portland, Ore., Nov. 17.—North west conference standings:

Won—	Won	Lost	Pct.
Washington	3	0	1000
Idaho	2	1	.666
Oregon Aggies	2	1	.666
Oregon	1	1	.500
Washington State	1	2	.333
Whitman	0	4	.000

With only the Thanksgiving day games on the schedule, Washington appears to be assured of winning the 1913 Northwest Conference football championship. The Purple and Gold has only to battle the Washington Staters and that game should be easy for the champions according to all northwest critics.

As runners up, Oregon Agricultural college and the University of Oregon appear as most likely and logical candidates. The Aggies and Idaho at present rank second, with two wins and but one loss apiece, but Thanksgiving day should find the Aggies safely anchored in second place, for it is predicted they will easily defeat Idaho.

That will tie Oregon and Idaho at the 500 mark, but Oregon defeated Idaho 27 to 0 some weeks back and that alone is sufficient to station the team in the first division.

Whitman College has had a particularly disastrous season, succumbing to Washington, Washington State, Idaho and the Oregon Aggies by large scores. Hahn lost a major portion of his bulky material last fall and it will take him several seasons probably to work back up the ladder as a contender.

Washington State college, with a good bunch of material and a good coach, likewise has been unfortunate. The Pullmanites appear to have a stronger eleven than Idaho, but the two ancient rivals met so early in the fall that Idaho was able to slip over a 3 to 0 victory. Aside from that reverse, Bender's team has behaved with credit to its coach and its institution.

Oregon's remaining game is the annual Turkey day clash with the Multnomah club.

A Hero.

During last Thursday's hurricane many interesting and diverting occurrences took place. One of these, especially a feature that is very worthy of mention was the gallant display by one of our noble and kind hearted seniors, Mr. Howard Mason. As a puff of wind more violent than the other puffs bore a fair damsel's lid spinning thru the air chivalrous Howard rushed to the rescue. The wind blew and the hat flew but Howard continued relentlessly. At last after a windy chase thru bushes, grass and mud the hat was stopped somewhere between the campus and the R. R. tracks. The maiden received her own with blushes and Howard departed on his homeward way rejoicing that he had served a fellow mortal.

the deep rich voices of several of the men, Miss Soulen, the president of the English club, has been assigned the very difficult role of Everyman. This part requires continuous presence on the stage, and almost continuous participation in the dialogue. More than this, a perfect understanding of the character or spirit of the piece, a musical, flexible voice, and a fine stage presence are essential. That the judges discovered these qualities united in one person may be accounted very fortunate. Miss Fox, Miss Dorothy Taylor and Miss Lewis have proved in previous college plays that the choice of them for the parts of Kindred, Good Deeds, and Angel is not a mistaken one. Miss Cornelson, who will appear as Knowledge, has not had college experience, but reads her lines with fine intelligence and sympathy. Mr. Leth, Mr. Nisbet and Mr. David are upper classmen who will be expected to do excellent work, while Mr. McDowell, Mr. Knudson, Mr. Goodman, Mr. Lyon, and Mr. Kelly are preparing to surprise a Moscow audience by their interpretation, rich tones of voice and careful acting. The work starts off well, and will gain in interest as the deeper meanings of the play appear. There can be no doubt that the presentation of this old Morality will be a memorable event in college history.

Will Tell of His Experiences and Impressions of Oxford Life.

We were very much pleased to hear from one of our Rhodes scholars this week. Mr. L. S. Gerlough, who received his appointment as Rhodes scholar in 1910 writes that he would like very much to be allowed the privilege of writing to the students here through the Argonaut. In part he says: "Foster came to Oxford last week and has settled down in Lincoln college. His coming makes me think that I must leave Oxford at the end of this year. But before I leave I think it is my duty to publish in the Argonaut, if you can spare me the space, some of my experiences. I hope that future Rhodes scholars may profit by them and I hope I may make them interesting to your readers. Americans will

CREDIT WHERE DUE.

Last week's Argonaut was edited by Associate Editor J. M. Pond. It seems that in the rush of editing and perhaps to modesty on his part no credit was taken for putting out last week's very commendable paper. We feel that credit should be given wherever it is due. Surely Mr. Pond deserves his share.

WHITMAN FULL OF GRIT.

Those who watched Saturday's game could not but comment on the splendid courage and grit which the Whitman team displayed. Never for an instant did they cease to fight. Idaho claims to have a fighting bunch of fellows. But they would do well to take notice of the spirit displayed by the missionaries. Whitman came here in a more or less weakened condition due to injuries and losses of men in the Washington and W. S. C. games. Yet to put up the fight she did is worthy of notice.

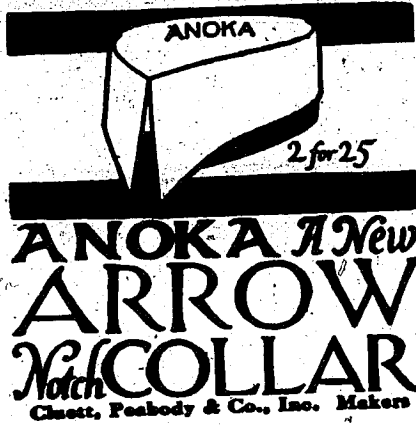

THE LIBRARY CLOCK.

Every student is anxiously awaiting the advent of that promised clock for our knowledge parlör. It is an admitted fact that we need this clock and need it very badly. But patience, the clock will come in due course of time. Much red string may be in the way of getting the timepiece installed. Just think what an appropriate Christmas present this symbol of father time would be. To get it by Christmas it might be wise to start unraveling that skein of red yarn now. But please, we want a clock.

OUR WORST CAMPUS EVIL.

It has become an altogether too familiar sight to see a Freshman or a Short-Ag step from the administration building, pull out a pill or a jimmy pipe and fog away as if his life depended upon it. It is a beautiful sight and one to be heartily commended. What is more heavenly or ethereal than tobacco smoke especially on the campus? The profs love the Freshman who can smoke the most coffin tacks per twenty-four hours far more than they do one who is strictly temperate, especially on the campus.

Smoking is such a manly art, especially on the campus, that it should be encouraged. Class rooms should be fitted up so that the devotees of old Nico could smoke at leisure while the Prof. drones away at his lecture. We might just as well bring about these changes now as to wait, for it will not be long before the insolent frosh will take it into his own hands to blow smoke into the very eyebrows of his superiors. Even now he smokes on the campus. The Ad. building is no longer sacred.

At any time in the day white clouds of ethereal vapor can be seen eddying and circling about the doorways and floating placidly away across the campus.

Dear boys, the co-eds love you dearly when they know that you are brave enough to defy campus traditions, senior regulations and all other social or moral laws, and smoke while your Alma Mater stands helplessly by and weeps. Yes, every mother's son of us love you. Like fun we do!

THE FACULTY FOOT.

This is a pretty big subject to write about but we are going to tackle it anyhow. The question in hand is one concerning pep and some phases of it which are underground and which cannot be accounted for by one who is not on the inside. What may be said here does not apply to all of the faculty. Some of whom are very peppery and would not be even hinted at here. The freshmen faculty members are, most of them, of the right shade of enthusiastic color and have the spirit we like to see.

But there are certain fixtures about the campus that are distinctly of the yellow hue. Some of these curl up and snarl at the word pep. To others of another type the smile becomes more extensive. It is a known fact that each of the several afore alluded at celebrities have big feet. These big feet in union make the faculty foot. This foot has squashed the life out of Idaho pep for years. It thinks this to be the right policy and of course it intends to continue it forever. The Pullman pep developed before the faculty foot woke up and had time to fall in the right place. As a result real live pep was born. It won the Pullman game. As soon as the game was over the foot began its underground work. Every move on the part of the student body was carefully watched. To be watched meant to be squashed. Several announced rallies for the Whitman game came to a premature end because under dark of night the foot was abroad smashing, crushing and demolishing every thing that hinted or suggested rally. Even in assembly the ominous tread of the foot could be heard. Those who came to cheer crawled away in fear. No one dared to show any pep or enthusiasm yet everybody wondered "what's the matter with the pep; why does it die so suddenly?" Yet if the faculty foot could be interviewed wholly and separately an answer might be found.

As long as this menace remains with us we cannot hope to develop any permanent pep. To us it seems that the foot has put in its underground work long enough. It is high time for it to come out into the open. A trip to Paradise might do it good.

N. B. This is Idaho's big year for pep and we can have no underground system working against it.

How It Looks Now.

After a few weeks some freshmen begin to realize that the certificate of admission, the furniture for the room and the money to pay bills are not all that they need on entering college. The college boy needs principles and opinions that are worth sticking to, and that he will stick to through thick and thin; a steadfast purpose that will pull him past every misleading by-path; a zeal for work that is not less than his zeal for manly sport; and an appreciation of what the college stands for, and what he is there for.—Ex.

Arranged by President Ph.
Soulen.

Professor Ph. Soulen, head of the department of education at the university and president of the State Teachers' association, is busy arranging the program for the annual meeting of the association which is to be held at Boise on December 29, 30 and 31. He has secured Dr. William T. Foster, president of Reed college in Portland, as one of the principal speakers and several members of the university faculty have been scheduled for addresses. These are Dean J. G. Eldridge, Dr. M. F. Angell and Miss Jessie M. Hoover. Professor Soulen will also be on the program.

An effort is being made to secure reduced rates on all of the railroads and an attempt will be made to have every teacher in the state who can possibly attend the meeting be present during the entire session. "The matter of attendance on the part of the teachers," said Professor Soulen, "will be taken up with the school boards throughout the state in the very near future and they will be urged to cooperate with the association in an effort to augment the attendance at the Boise meeting."

"The school boards will be asked," stated Professor Soulen, "to assist their teachers financially if need be and we shall be in a position to insure them that money spent in this direction will ultimately prove an exceptionally good investment, since there is no movement on foot at the present time that can possibly do more toward raising the standards of the schools of the state than the work that is being done by this association."

IDAHO PEP NOT YET DEAD

A Good Rally, Though it Lacked in Size, Showed Much Enthusiasm.

The Idaho Spirit was brought to a boiling point at the Rally Friday evening. Only a small portion of the students were present but their added zeal made up for the lack in numbers.

Gus Larson acted as chairman and called on all the faculty's football celebrities who were present. Quarterback Wilson imbued the audience with laughing spirit by his funny stories and dialectic brogues. He then related a story about "Red Griffith" who seems to have impressed Wilson as a streak of lightning zig zagging across a football field. Dear Ayers, a celebrity from the days of real sport, was then called. He made some emphatic declaration about loyalty and told us of what the Silver and the Gold were symbolic.

Wm. Morgan then delighted the crowd and boosted the Idaho Spirit by giving us an account of the only real sport he could see in "the good old days" and reminded us of our great opportunities today. For we have in our football games a chance to see a prize fight, assault and battery and own right murder, all at a football game! Mr. Morgan encouraged the students and the team to give their best for the state of Idaho.

Bill Lee followed Mr. Morgan's talk with considerable keenness. With his usual vindictiveness Bill demanded that we "Win the Game."

"Pink" Griffith's quiet talk reached the heart of every one present. He frankly told the crowd and the football men that they were over confident, that Whitman was a real true fighter and that Idaho could only win by making a better, cleaner fight than Whitman could.

Captain Favre also asked the students for their active support on the sidelines. He stated that if the team received the support of the crowd present we would win the game.

The students disbanded in high spirits and confident that Idaho's team would show "cubist speed" and merit the praise of Idaho's best.

Miss Amy Kelly of the home economics extension department; Professor E. J. Iddings, head of the department of animal husbandry; Professor E. V. Ellington of the department of dairying and Professor F. L. Kennard, head of the department of agronomy, left yesterday afternoon on a week's trip with the north Idaho movable school of agriculture at Coeur d'Alene, St. Maries and Bonners Ferry.

AT ASSEMBLY.

Prof. Nicholson Speaks Fluently on The Dread Ravages of the "White Scourge."

Messrs. Gerlough, Humphries, Bufington and Stone, the Theta Mu quartette, sang at assembly last week before Prof. Nicholson began his talk on tuberculosis.

Prof. Nicholson addressed the students and faculty on Tuberculosis. He first explained that there was a great difference between tuberculosis in theory and tuberculosis in practice. By a clever story he showed that the subject was half an inch out of the regular walk of life, although consumption is the most universal and devastating disease known to the human race. After recounting the terrible losses of life from the great plagues of history and the Black Death, Professor Nicholson said: "These diseases can never cause such damage in the future as they have in the past, because we have learned to conquer them through a knowledge of sanitary conditions. There is no parasite disease today which will not disappear as an active agent from the world. It will be conquered and deprived of its terror for the human race as have, in a measure, smallpox, measles and scarlet fever, by anti-toxins and vaccines."

Prof. Nicholson caused considerable merriment by alluding to the methods used by our ancestors to ward off diphtheria. As children, our grandfathers were compelled to wear a flannel cloth about their necks to keep the diphtheria germ from the throat. Else they carried garlic in their clothes to keep the neighbors' children from coming near enough to infect them.

The speaker stated that much progress has been made against disease; still we know too little about it. The great white scourge kills 150,000 German, 50,000 English and 150,000 American people every year. In Paris alone this scourge claims 12,000 victims each twelve-month. This is three times as many deaths as from all other diseases combined. The United States census for 1910 shows that over 10 per cent of the deaths were due to this dread disease. "We stand appalled at such losses as that of the Titanic or the loss of life in the civil war, but consider the losses caused by this insidious enemy as a sort of providential affair. We do not realize that more people are lost every year in the United States through tuberculosis than were killed and wounded in the entire civil war. Nor do we realize that today 9,000 Americans are doomed to die before this year closes. We do not realize these facts until we are affected by the loss of a dear friend or relative. Then only do we appreciate the significance of these facts.

The speaker continued by giving statistics to show that this scourge claims its victims in the prime of life. The largest per cent of the victims die between the ages of 30 and 48. Just after a man is prepared to enter into the duties of citizenship, ready to assume the responsibilities of a home, a profession, he is stricken down by this dread hand. He reminded us of the fate of Keats, Chopin, and Stevenson.

What does this disease cost? The loss to society of these 150,000 men is economically estimated at $330,000,000 annually. It costs life insurance companies $800,000 every year.

Prof. Nicholson explained that this disease attacks every gland, every tissue in the body, knees, heart, lungs, liver, kidneys and in fact every organ. The cause of the disease has been attributed to a variety of agencies but scientists now find that the real cause is a microscopic germ which can be easily detected by laboratory methods. When this germ is found in its early stages half the battle is won, for the disease can be successfully fought.

We now know that the germ does not grow outside the body though it may live in the dust and dirt for 20 years. It cannot grow in direct sunlight nor in boiling water. But freezing does not destroy it. Knowledge of the disease and hygienic, sanitary living is the only remedy known. Unsanitary conditions, scarlet fever, bad colds, alcoholism, and most indoor occupations are conducive to the spread of the disease. Such conditions tire the body and prepare a favorable seed bed for the disease to germinate.

ASSOCIATED FORESTERS CONVENE

Dr. Shattuck Addresses Members on Problems of Clearing Stump Land.

On last Monday evening Dr. C. H. Shattuck addressed the associated foresters of the university on the subject of clearing logged off land, dealing especially with the problem of removing stumps. Beginning with the statement that the stump has always been a stumbling block to civilization, he took up the various methods used for its removal from the pioneer's days to the present time. The different means of man power, machine power, explosives and fire were handled in turn and their advantages pointed out. Dr. Shattuck then explained a course of experiments which the department of forestry had made, in cooperation with the Potlatch Lumber company, to determine the actual cost of clearing the land as left by the lumber men. This land was cleared and the stumps removed by means of dynamite. A careful record was kept of the diameter, species, and condition of every stump together with the amount of powder and labor used for its removal. The cost of the experiment was figured in detail and the exact cost per acre of clearing the log-off land determined. The cost was also determined per diameter foot of the stumps which Dr. Shattuck says is the true method of accounting clearing costs.

A series of lantern slides were then thrown on the screen to show the newest method of clearing land, which the department of forestry is now experimenting with. By this method the stump is made to pay for its own removal. A fire is started in the stump, and by means of a condenser and a hood over the stump the fumes of the burning wood are caught and the valuable creosote, wood tar, resin oil and various other products are obtained. This method has not as yet been fully perfected, but appears extremely feasible, and a great boon to the poor settler who can not afford to use explosives to clear his land of stumps.

In closing, Dr. Shattuck said that until it is proved that stumps can be removed cheaply and well, the eastern man will shun north Idaho's cut-over lands, and will try his luck in the treeless irrigated sections of the southern part of the state.

AT ASSEMBLY LAST WEEK

Dr. Steinman Gives Timely Sermon to Student Body.

The student assembly was mildly surprised last Wednesday when Dr. Steinman launched into a clear cut sermon. Mr. Steinman was somewhat handicapped by the lack of the Sabbathal environment. Yet he held his audience closely by his clear, striking statements and illustrations. Dr. Steinman stated that he received his inspiration of the address from a previous assembly address in which New American ideals were mentioned, among them the "Religion of Service."

"This new religion, the religion of service," said Dr. Steinman, "is 2000 years old. It is the same as that preached by the master and obeyed by the Pharisees. The Pharisees like later Christians, obeyed the letter and not the spirit of the commandments. Today we have no use for the ascetic who withdrew to the cloister to escape the service of mankind. The new religion has no place for the selfish, for life is a measure to be filled—filled by service to overflowing. The purpose of the new religion is to live for our fellow men, fill the world with joy and cheer, give strength to the weak and light to the unseeing. We can do the little things of life so well that they become an honor and a monument to our names. We know of the Greek who was commanded in jest to work as a scavenger and who performed his task so well that thereafter to hold that office was a high honor. We know that Cervantes and Bunyan gave the world their immortal works from their prison workshops.

Our ideal should be to make our little acts and not our limitations loom up so beautiful and grand that the passers-by will say, 'what beauty and fragrance' and not 'what a limitation.' Our selfishness keeps happiness from others. We can serve by changing our attitude, especially the grudging attitude, with which we regard our daily work. Too many work with their mind on the clock. How much higher it would be to accept our work in the spirit of that maker of violins who said, 'If my hands should slack, I should slight God.'

Mr. Steinman then contrasted the life of Alexander the Great who at the age of 33 had conquered the known world, with that of Christ, who at 33 had served the world and who, worn, haggard and stoned, was crucified for his labors. But ringing down the ages we hear of the conquest of Christ, and hear the loving reverence for the Man Who conquered the world by service, while the name of Alexander the Great is ignominy in itself.

Our attitude toward religious questions should not be indifferent or one which says, 'I don't understand.' For all creeds unite on one common ground and agree that the religion of service is the best life and the only one worth living. Join in this common ground and enter the religion of service.

Mr. Humphrey's opening solo was much appreciated.

AGRICULTURAL CLUB MEETS

"The Idaho Agriculturalist" Launched—New Paper to Replace Country Life and News Letter.

Monday night the Ags met for another real important business meeting. The question of the new Agricultural College paper was taken up. Chairman A. L. Johnson of the investigating committee reported its findings

The committee's report was that it had been found advisable to discontinue the publication of the Idaho Country Life as such and to merge this publication and that of the Idaho News Letter into one paper. The new paper is to be an eight-page sheet with three 10½-inch columns per page. The material it shall contain shall be such as was published in the Country Life and News Letter, in fact all agricultural news of importance. The paper is to be edited and managed by students of the Agricultural Club. A faculty committee at present consisting of Professors Vincent, Nicholson and Hamilton will see to the collecting of news material to supply the News Letter feature of the paper. Furthermore an advisory committee from the Ag. Club consisting of A. L. Johnson, E. E. Hawley and Ralph Kelly were chosen to stand back of the paper and help it over its rough places.

The club chose as its official name "The Idaho Agriculturalist" for the new publication and elected Archie Hawley as its new editor. The paper is to be less pretentious but more effective than the old publication. It will be published bi-weekly.

A committee consisting of O. W. Johnson, Joe McCroskey and R. R. Miller were appointed to make arrangements for an "Ag. Informal" to be given sometime in the near future. It was further proposed to hold a competitive stock judging contest in the spring, sometime early in March. The cattle to be judged will be furnished by the university from the "U." heard. The men making the Lewis and Portland team will act as officials for this contest. Prizes for first, second and third best student judges will be given.

W. S. C. DEBATE TEAM CHOSEN

New System of Trying Out Proves Decidedly Successful.

W. J. Koppen, Enoch Torpen, R. H. Davis, H. C. Christopher, Ralph Sundquist, and Lyman Passmore are the six men chosen to represent W. S. C. in debate against Idaho and O. A. C. The try-out occurred Monday afternoon in the room of the Washington Literary society. Coach Thornton, Professor A. W. Taylor, and Professor F. O. Kreager were the judges. Thirteen men tried out. Koppen, Torpen, and Davis had all won their debate "W's" previous to this year. Christopher and Sundquist are old class debaters. Passmore was the dark horse, having never been active in collegiate forensic circles heretofore.

Only four of these six men will win their letters in this debate, there being but two men on each of the two teams. The two who will serve as alternates will be selected in about two weeks.

The new method of conducting try-outs was initiated Monday. The plan is as follows: During the five days immediately preceding the try-out three cardinal points on each side of the question are conspicuously posted in the Library and in the Administration Building; when the candidate is ready to speak, one of these points is assigned to him by lot; the judges then question him briefly concerning his point, after which he presents his argument on that point.

The new method is a radical change from the old, where the contestants knew on what they were to speak weeks before the try-out, and were then pitted against each other in individual debates. The new plan was evolved chiefly to insure extemporaneous speaking, and in this respect it was quite successful Monday.—W. S. C. Evergreen.
