COURSE TAKES DEFINITE FORM

Engineering School Makes Detailed Provisions for Instructing 100 Men for Army

STRICT MILITARY DISCIPLINE

Classes Will Be Under Control of Officers—Saturday Afternoon Freed for Athletics

The contract between the University and the United States War Department, by which the university agrees to take 100 men for military, mechanical, and special instruction, has been signed by the government and the work of preparing for the arrival of the soldiers is progressing rapidly.

The contract provides for the sending of 100 men here June 15, for special training. The university is to receive $1.60 per day for the board, lodging, and instruction of each man. The men will take their meals at Ridenbaugh Hall and will sleep in the gymnasium. Cots and bedding are to be furnished by the government.

Laboratory Work

The men will be divided into groups, each one taking up a certain line of work. Forty will be trained as wireless operators, 20 as general mechanics, 20 as auto mechanics, 10 as carpenters and 10 as blacksmiths. The lecture feature of the course will be confined to a half hour lecture a day. The rest of the time will be spent in practical work in the lines they are taking. The school is to be a purely vocational one. The men will receive a rough preliminary training in the different branches so as to be directly useful to the government in their callings as workmen. Their period of instruction will be from 8:30 to 12:30 and from 1:30 to 4:30. After 3:30 the men will drill. The approval of the War Department Committee on Education and Special Training, which has direct charge of this work, has been obtained to shorten the time of instruction to a half day on Saturdays. Those in charge of the men will make plans with this arrangement in mind. If agreeable to the officer in charge of the men, arrangements will be made for baseball games or other athletic sports on Saturday afternoon.

Strict Military Control

The men are at all times under the disciplinary control of their military officers. A commissioned officer is in responsible command of each detachment. The class divisions are placed in command of sergeants and corporals detailed for the purpose. These officers march their classes to the class rooms and shops, take the roll before entering the room, and report the class to the instructor, ready for work. After classes are dismissed by the instructor, the officers conduct them in column formation to the next class. No roll of attendance is kept by the school authorities; this is handled entirely by the army officers. Grades obtained in class are reported weekly by the instructors to the officers in charge of the course, who report back to headquarters also weekly.

To Use New Shop

Much of the work will be done in the new shop building which furnishes fine quarters. Lewis Court will probably be used by the auto mechanics, and a part of the mines building by the wireless operators. The general mechanics will use the laboratories and also the machine shop. The carpenters will use the carpenter shop and the blacksmiths probably the forges in the heating plant if there is a sufficient number. The men will receive individual instruction most of the time. The maximum number of men to an instructor, of whom there will be about seven, will be twenty. Of course in several cases it will be less than this. A motor truck instructor will not have any more than six men with him.

Each group of men will receive a certain kind of instruction. The general mechanics will have the broadest course. They will spend their time in carpentering, blacksmithing, pipe fitting, and sheet metal work. The carpenters will have work in putting up and repairing barracks, and in constructing concrete forms and bridges. The auto mechanics will be taught how to operate auto trucks

COURSE ON CAUSES OF WAR FEATURES HISTORY SCHEDULE

A new and important history course will be given by Dean E. M. Hulme next year. It will be called Modern European History and will deal with the history of Europe in the nineteenth century. While covering a period of over a hundred years, especial stress will be laid on the causes of the present war. In the second semester it will take up the war itself, its history, the questions to come up for settlement at the conclusion.

A special sliding scale system of credits will be offered with the course. Students who have time merely to attend the lectures twice a week will receive one hour of credit; those who read four hours in the library in addition, two hours; with more credits for those who wish to go into the subject more intensively. By providing the one hour straight lecture course for students whose programs are filled with prescribed work, it is believed that a large number of engineering, agriculture, and pre-medical men can be enrolled. The course will be open to all but freshmen.

WAR POSTERS TO BE EXHIBITED

Miss Sweet's Collection of Famous Artists' War Productions to Be Shown During Commencement Week

Miss Belle Sweet, University Librarian, has begun a most interesting and valuable collection of war posters of every description for the university. Thus far she has gathered about 80 different posters, among which are several from Great Britain and Canada. Many others from foreign nations will have reached her by fall. The present collection will be shown during commencement week, on the library stacks, and to the public is extended the invitation of viewing them then. If sufficient interest is shown, a similar exhibit will be held in the fall when the foreign posters have arrived.

Lots of "Pep"

To date there has been a remarkable improvement in the posters at the beginning of the war. The first posters were uninteresting, lifeless affairs, saying "Enlist Now." They were made by a few artists who had no "pep" or "get-up" whatsoever. The first recruiting by posters was carried on after several survivors of the Lusitania returned showing a small collection of the British and French posters, live, effective, to the point, full of "pep." Then, a call was issued thru the war office to enlist their services as a patriotic duty, to the recruiting for the army and navy. The first most effective poster accepted was James Montgomery Flagg's Uncle Sam pointing a stern finger, saying: "Uncle Sam Wants You. Enlist Now!" Quite different it was from the wild-eyed female staring from the store windows screaming for the First Liberty Loan—"You buy a bond lest I perish!" More threatening than a call to a patriotic desire to aid in financing the war.

PRODUCTIONS REJUVENATED AT ENGLISH CLUB MEETING

The last meeting of the English club was replete with cleverness, humor and pathos. After a short business meeting, a delightful little comedy, "Rosalie," was read by Camille McDaniels, Jennie Johanson, and Ted Hege. Refreshments were served, and the conversation was interrupted at various intervals by Stan McLaughlin, who read original compositions by the members of the club. Several articles by the Seniors, written when they were in the blissful Freshman period, "took" better with the general audience than they did with the authors themselves—in fact, as the paper goes to press, we are informed that some of the seniors have not recovered from the reappearance, like family skeletons, of their rejuvenated productions.

Another surprise was the distribution of the first number of "The Scrap Book," the official publication and year book of the society. It consisted of twenty pages of original composition, and contained some very interesting material. The club plans to publish a much more pretentious volume next year.

FORTY-FIVE TO RECEIVE DEGREES AT COMMENCEMENT CEREMONIES

Class of '18 Riddled by Enlistments—Festivities Begin Saturday with Senior Breakfast—Open Reception Monday Night—"Midsummer" Tuesday in Amphitheatre

There will be forty-five members of the graduating class of 1918. This number is small in comparison with former years but considering that most of the senior men are in the service the total seems more reasonable.

The commencement exercises will begin Saturday, June the fifth, with the Senior Breakfast, which will be given at the President's home. Baccalaureate Sunday is June the second. The sermon will be preached by Norman Coleman in the auditorium at 11:00. Norman Coleman is well known as the Educational Director of Army Cantonments, Western Division, and his address promises to be interesting and helpful. At 4:00 P. M. a vesper concert will be given by some of Miss Fuller's pupils in the university auditorium.

Senior Day is Monday, June the third, and a good program is planned. Alumni Day is Tuesday and on this day the Alumni will entertain the seniors at a picnic lunch. Tuesday evening one of the biggest events of commencement week will take place. The senior play, "Midsummer Night's Dream," will be presented on the university campus. In former years the seniors gave no play so the one this year will be of twofold interest, since it is starting a custom and is also being presented out doors. The cast is excellent and the fact that it is an open air production should draw many spectators.

Wednesday, June the fifth, is Commencement Day. The address will be delivered by William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette. He is famous for having written, "The Court of Boyville," "In Our Town," etc., and the University is indeed fortunate to have secured such a gifted and renowned man for the chief event of commencement week. After the address the seniors will receive their diplomas, the reward of their four years of work and pleasure spent at Idaho. Of course, several of the graduates attended other schools part of the time, but for the most part their whole university career has been lived at Idaho. It has not yet been decided who will have the highest honors since all the grades are not yet turned in but the results will be announced commencement night.

PREDICTS MANY STUDENTS

Professor Lewis finishes his commencement addresses next week with the one at Mullan. He predicts a large enrollment for Idaho next October, judging from the number of students the different high schools he has been to this year expect to send here and from many inquiries he has received from the southern part of the state.

Ridenbaugh hall entertained at dinner Wednesday night Dr. and Mrs. Miller, Dr. Moore, Miss Brashear, and Mr. and Mrs. Rosenberg.

NOTICE

No formal invitations will be sent out for the reception given by President and Mrs. Lindley Monday night at Ridenbaugh Hall. A general invitation is extended thru this announcement to the Seniors, Faculty, and friends of the university.

NO RHODES APPOINTMENTS

No further election to Rhodes scholarships will take place for the present, probably not until after the war, according to the annual statement of the Rhodes Trust, which has in charge the scholarship system. However, this will not interfere with the annual qualifying examination, which will be given on October 1st and 2nd, 1918.

The war has seriously affected the operation of the scholarship plan. Only eight Rhodes men are now in residence at Oxford, two of which are Americans. One of these has returned from a year's ambulance work on the French front, and the other has been rejected by the army on physical grounds.

SEVEN IDAHOANS USE A. U. U. HOTEL

Former Students Register at Paris Establishment of American University Union in Europe

Seven University of Idaho men over-seas service have made use of the Idaho membership in the American University Union in Europe by registering at the A. U. U. hotel in Paris. This list includes Ray Agee '18, R. B. Foster '13, Ira A. Hawley '15, Marvin Monroe '16, Lester W. Ramsey '18, Benson G. Scott '16, and Theodore A. Swanson '13.

The membership fee of one hundred dollars was subscribed last fall by members of the faculty. It entitles all former Idaho students, whether generals or privates, to the use of the A. U. U. hotel in Paris. As the institution is one with which the students themselves are primarily concerned, the annual dues will probably be paid next fall by the student body.

Some indication of the value of American University Union to college men in the service may be gained from the following letter written by a Stanford student:

"But I do like to average a bath a week," the volunteer owned to the recruiting sergeant in a London office. "Then," advised the man of experience, "take fifty-two baths the week before you leave and help out your average."

It is to "help out the average," not for baths only but for the decencies of living and the necessities of companionship, and to help it out at a price within the reach of soldiers, that the American University Union in Europe has been established.

The Union has its headquarters in Paris, where, in what was once the Royal Palace Hotel, a hundred bedrooms, a dining room, smoking and reading rooms are provided for American college men and their friends. Since, sooner or later, every American in war service finds himself in Paris, there is no lack of occupants. On the tenth night after the building was opened for its present use, all the bedrooms were taken, and arrangement for the accommodation of extra guests had to be made with an adjacent hotel. Since that time, the place has been almost constantly filled to its capacity, and the demands upon it show no signs of decreasing.

On the material side, the first claim of the Union to its popularity lies in the fact that it is cheap—as cheapness goes in Paris in these war days. For $3 a day, the college man on leave from the front can secure his three meals and a room with running water and as much heat as the coal situation at the particular time of his coming will allow. If he stays by the week instead of by the day, the charge is still more moderate and in either case he is free from extra demands. Tips are strictly forbidden, and bills are written in plain English.

Offers Place for Comradeship

But though it means much to the American recruit—usually a stranger in Paris—to find himself comfortably housed at moderate price and to get food with a home flavor at a place where he can read the menu and be understood by the waiter, it means

QUOTA RAISED TO FORTY MEN

Twenty-Four More Cadets Assigned to Month Training Camp at Presidio—June 3rd

WILL MEAN IMPROVEMENT

Lieutenant Felker Sees Great Work in Military Department Next Year With Forty Trained Instructors

Forty men are going from Idaho to attend the R. O. T. C. camp at the Presidio instead of the sixteen first authorized. The contracts are all signed and the men will leave this week. Sergeant Abendroth leaves Tuesday to report the first of June and have the pork and beans prepared for the opening day. All cadets must report at 8 a. m., Monday, June 3rd.

The telegram authorizing Lieutenant Felker to appoint 24 additional men to attend the training camp, was received Thursday. The other colleges in the west could not get enough men to fill their allotment, while at Idaho many more than the sixteen first-appointed were so anxious to have a month of army life that the government raised the quota. By Friday at 11 the list was filled out and students were still applying.

When these young men return next year they will be a great factor in building up the military department of the university. Those unable to go for private reasons, will be given every credit for work done, and will not be discriminated against in making promotions for the next year.

"Idaho Spirit" Again

Lieutenant Felker thinks that this platoon ought to make a very creditable showing among the other college men as all are well trained and full of interest as is shown by the fact that over half the battalion was extremely anxious to go. In summing up the general spirit of the year, Lieutenant Felker said:

"Personally, I want to thank every member of the battalion for the interest shown in their work the last year. If they have received as much benefit as I have, we are all better off. If there is any credit due it is due wholly to Idaho Spirit."

The following men will attend the camp:

GEM ON SALE MONDAY

If no further slip-ups occur the 1919 Gem of the Mountains will be put on sale Monday, June 3rd. The first shipments of books will arrive Friday and Saturday of this week, and if the business staff can spare enough time from cramming the annuals will be pushed over the counter on Saturday.

Some radical changes appear in the book due to the necessity for retrenchment on expenses brot about by the war. The book, however, will be larger than that of last year, and the engraving is better than has appeared in an Idaho annual in years. The press work and binding is of fine quality.

No "line" on the contents of the book is available, but the staff is promising several surprises.

The price of the annual this year is three dollars.

HIGH PAY FOR SHIPBUILDERS

Mr. Rosenberg has been appointed to co-operate with the United States Bureau of Labor in securing men to work in the war industries during the summer. At present the demand is heaviest for men to work in the shipyards at Portland. The government guarantees to give employment to men who have signed the card, copies of which are with Mr. Rosenberg. The wages are 45 cents an hour for an eight hour day. The pay increases as the men become more efficient.

SEE YOU NEXT FALL!
 With this issue the Argonaut ceases publication until the fall semester.

Editor of the Argonaut:
 I am relying on your sense of justice and your public spirit to place the following open letter to the students, alumni, and faculty of the University of Idaho, in your columns.

The recent violent opposition to the so-called "suffrage movement," which has agitated the student body, and the harvest of misunderstanding reached therefrom, calls, I think, for some sort of clear statement of the motives and aims of the insurgents. Because of my deep interest in the matter and because I shall not be here next year to see it thru, I have taken upon myself the task of making the statement. I have canvassed, with some care, the sentiments of the women of the institution and feel that I can speak with some degree of authority for them. I shall not let personal animosity cloud the issue. What little there may have been has entirely cooled. Nor do I propose to make any answer to the "Old Idaho Spirit," tho its flimsy arguments might easily be made to resemble a sieve. The haste and perturbation with which it was written is sufficient excuse. Neither shall I comment upon the event of the election. The women of Idaho are not such tin-horn sports that they cannot accept a fair defeat. But I do wish to point out in passing that it certainly was not a woman student who sent in the item which appeared in the Spokesman-Review of May 19. Let those who accuse us of desiring "publicity" and are afraid that Idaho may become notorious thru the actions of its women reflect on this point.

I purpose then, to state with as much clearness and fairness as I am capable of, the position of the women of the institution and their demands.

This movement, contrary to the general belief, is not a "suffrage movement." The women students of the University of Idaho obtain a vote in the A. S. U. I. by payment of the fee. Nor does it have its roots in the feminist propaganda, which, by the way, is not identical with the suffrage question.

This movement is a student movement entirely. It is a protest against purely local injustices and has for its aims the improvement of certain conditions that concern the students of Idaho alone. Let us see the matter clearly, putting aside anger and prejudice.

Most people, I believe, think that the sole desire of the insurgents is for participation in athletics. This is, not the chief aim, but only a phase of the main issue, altho an important phase. Almost no person who pretends to be modern in his ideas, will deny the right and the need of athletics for girls as well as for men. And Miss Stephens has been most capably filling that need by the organization of various teams among the Freshmen and Sophomores at the regular class periods. But how many of the men would care for athletics that were class work and for which they received grades and credits? Where would be the joy, the zest and the glory of the thing?

If girls athletics are right and necessary, why should they be denied recognition and the stimulus of applause and interest? Why should not the girl athlete receive an insinuation? Why should not courts be kept up for them and the use of the gymnasium granted them? I refrain from discussing the question of inter-collegiate contests for girls as I know many leading physical directors are opposed to them.

At most of the leading institutions of the east and middle west, athletics for girls have long been established. But at Idaho we find that, with the exception of a tennis tournament, made possible by the gift of Mrs. Hays, and class work for Freshmen and Sophomores and the use of the gymnasium for two one-hour periods in the middle of the afternoon, when few are free to come, there is absolutely no provision for athletics for girls. Even this little oasis in the desert has had to be yielded up to the needs of visiting high school teams or to the men's teams. As for the tennis courts, we can only say that no matter what may have been their initial cost, and no matter how many barrels of salt may have been used, they have not been this year nor in years past, put in condition early enough nor kept in the proper condition to be of much use.

It seems to us that there is as keen a disgrace in the thought that Idaho, our own university, is a "back number," in any respect as there is in the loss of a game to a rival.

That which seemed most to shock our opponents was the nomination of women for the athletic board. I shall quote from the Constitution of the A. S. U. I:

"Article VII, Section 1. The Athletic Board shall consist of seven members of the A. S. U. I. elected as hereinbefore provided, and the graduate manager. The graduate manager shall have no vote."

There is nothing here about sex or I's. The requisites for membership in the A. S. U. I. are registration in any department of the university and payment of the dues. Women students are therefore eligible to serve on the athletic board.

As to the duties of the said board, which we are told are limited to the awarding of I's and the giving of the Athletic Board. Allow me to quote again from Article VII, Section 5: "The board shall, upon nomination of the graduate manager, elect all assistant managers of athletics, nominate coaches and trainers and shall have general control and supervision of all athletic activities of the University. (The black face are my own)

Does it not seem entirely logical and proper that girls desiring more athletics should seek representation on the board controlling athletics?

But you say the board has "degenerated." If this is so, why not inject some new life? Or if it is best for Idaho that her athletic board should be a club for I men, why not expand the membership and make all I men members ex-officio and de facto?

But as for the girls serving, had they been elected, it is safe to predict that they would have resigned as soon as the women of the institution had obtained the things they desired of the A. S. U. I. The nominations were as it were, the brick thru the plate glass window, calling attention to our grievances. We are terribly sorry if the brick hit the gentleman within and hurt his feelings. But we can't stop with one brick.

The financial question is also an important phase. The A. S. U. I. funds are distributed as follows: Athletics sixty-six per cent; Argonaut, twelve per cent; Debate, ten per cent; Glee Club, nine per cent; Miscellaneous fund, three per cent. All members receive the Argonaut and are admitted free to athletic events on the home grounds. In athletics the women students have no chance to participate and the $3.30 which each contributes every semester, must go down in their accounts as "spent for amusement". Leaving out of consideration the matter of school spirit, which no one who has seen the girls at the Pullman Rally, can accuse them of lacking, most of us feel the price is excessive for the quantity and quality of amusement furnished. From the glee club fund the women students get no return. I fail to find in the A. S. U. I. by-laws any provision admitting members to concerts. In the debate benefits, by the merit and effort of one pioneer, we have at last participated. Apparently the miscellaneous fund might yield us some support for our activities but I have yet to hear of its doing so.

Many feel that the best and only solution of the whole problem is a separate association to which the women would pay their fees and which would supervise all the women's activities, both athletic and the Treble Clef club, and anything else we might wish to undertake. This would of course mean that the women students would not be admitted free to games and would receive the Argonaut only on payment of the subscription price.

But we have no desire to segregate ourselves from the university nor to withdraw our financial support from athletics, and the other student activities. Nothing but ill could result from such a course.

What, then, is it that we want? Simply a just and equal treatment in the A. S. U. I., more use of our money, the recognition of the right of every woman to hold any office in the A. S. U. I. for which she personally is fitted. If it is thought best we would favor a separate athletic board for girls athletics. But chiefly we wish to be recognized as bona fide A. S. U. I. members and as real students of Idaho and not as charming and pleasant but useless members of a young ladies seminary or finishing school, situated next door.

The whole question resolves itself into one of attitude, of conscious injustices rather than material deprivations and injuries. The early Victorian attitude of the men particularly incomprehensible when one considers that the state of Idaho has settled the equal suffrage question before most of the present students of Idaho were born.

Our movement is, we feel, essentially patriotic. When we are daily being told how the war is more and more putting on women the burden of social service and leadership, it would seem our duty to prepare by taking responsibilities in college. And it is democratic for it involves not only the rights of the women students, but of every single member of the A. S. U. I. If Idaho spirit is dead it is because all the active work was usurped by a few and the majority had nothing to do but listen to a mumbled reading of uncomprehensible and unexplained amendments to the constitution. We have read with pleasure the promises of the president-elect for next year's business. But we warn him that unless he takes every single member into his plans, they will fail.

But the men of the University of Idaho are not back members, nor are they related to genus Africanus. They are able to get in the vanguard of progress and march forward with the women to the real bigger and better Idaho.

The women of Idaho want a square deal. Not a man to woman deal—not even a man to man deal, but the sort of a deal one Idaho student should expect from another. Will they get it?

Sincerely yours,
 JEANNETTE ORR.

and how to keep them in order and make needed repairs. The men taking up wireless operating and blacksmithing will receive instruction in those lines only.

More Coming
 The course is to be eight weeks long, when the first contingent will leave and the second come in. Whether the camp will continue thru the school year has not been decided. The plan of the government is to carry on this scheme of vocational training for enlisted men for at least a year.

The instruction of the men will be entirely under the Engineering College. All of the instructors have not been engaged as yet. Professor Wooley and another instructor will have a great deal to do with the auto mechanics. Professor Coates, instructor in mechanical engineering, and Professor Morden, the present shop instructor, will be among the instructors. Professor Eller, assistant in electrical engineering, and another instructor, will have charge of the wireless operators.

The work of instruction will be under the supervision of Dean Angell. The Executive Committee consists of President Lindley, chairman, Deans Angell, Little and French, Professor Wooley and Mr. Jenkins.

TO THE UNKNOWN STUDENT

I know two hundred students, called my friends.
 Still, I know not one, nor do they know me.
 Not one who feels the throb of silent thought,
 Not one who feels the ache of loneliness
 Which grips my soul and leaves an aching void
 Where happiness should dwell and be content.
 A hundred men to greet me with a smile;
 Yet none has tarried even for a moment
 To catch the sparkling glint of hidden gold
 Which may lie deep below my wretched
 Manners and unschooled words. Perhaps each day
 I pass a hundred happy girls, but who
 Of these, who smile and greet me as we meet,
 Does know beneath this rough exterior
 A human soul and human heart cries out
 For their companionship; for a few brief
 Hours of friendship, ungarished with the form
 And mocking pride of conventions
 Rules of Artificial conduct, its false and sham,
 An hour of fleeting repartee,
 gamb'ling
 Child-like from place to place, of confidence
 And mutual trust, of secrets and harmless
 Gossip. Yet they pass me by, while my heart
 Grows heavy in its loneliness —, but still,
 I know two hundred students called my friends.

time and their money to designing effective war posters are Charles Livingston Bull, Sidney H. Rieserberg, H. Heuterdahl, Herbert Paus, Leyendecker Brothers, Harry Bresles, Babcock, Sesser and Haskell Coffin, who is the artist of Joan of Arc of the War Saving Stamps poster. It might be well and interesting too, to take note of the progress in effectiveness of their posters to see what our nation can do in comparison with Great Britain and the clever French posters.

First Posters Wanted
 It would be appreciated if any extra prints of the First Liberty Loan campaign posters and those early in the war were given for this collection.

Written on an inspiration received from one of the English posters that will be shown at the university commencement week:
 As I stroll thru the streets where Britannia calls
 To her sons in a pageant of print,
 And conveys to the laggard, on hoardings and walls,
 A more or less delicate hint
 A poster I see which appeals by its force,
 For it voices the popular view:
 "You're proud of your pals in the army, of course,
 But what do your pals think of you?"

That's a blow that should beat the hot metal to shape,
 For it rings on the anvil of truth,
 And it leaves not a loop-hole of decent escape
 For the laggard who's false to his youth.
 The pride of his manhood it taps at its source,
 And it leaves him but one thing to do:
 "You're proud of your pals in the army, of course,
 But what will your pals think of you?"

WILKIE COLLINS WEDS
 Last year's English students and the many friends of Wilkie Nelson Collins will be pleased to know that he was married in New York City, May 5. No other information could be had as to the bride or other details.

RITCHIE GOING THROUGH THE PACES—MORE WORK TO DO THAN POSSIBLE

Aviation Baracks, Berkeley, Calif., May, 18, 1918.
 First Lieut. Luther Felker, First Sergeant Abendroth.
 Dear friends:
 "Well, I'm in the army now, I'm not behind the plow"—as the fellows sing. And today I could stand and watch the new squadron line up and hear the older men call out: "Every one an aviator" at them as they did at me last Saturday. It's sure a great life. Time is worth a million dollars a minute. We go to meals and class in formation. Discipline is strict—we march at attention all the time. We have a good deal of drill the first three weeks. Everyone has to command a platoon the second week. We certainly have one crack drill sergeant here. Everything must be done with so much snap. Our cadence at quick time is 130 to 135 per minute.
 I was vaccinated last Tuesday and got my first shot of typhoid serum today. Several fellows fainted, others were sick very soon afterwards.

I laughed until my sides hurt at several of the other fellows drag around and go to bed and in two hours I was in bed. I was glad I laughed while I felt like it. I felt like I had a severe attack of the lagrippe for about two hours then it was all over. My arm hurts a little yet, that is all.

Great emphasis is layed on the military subjects, all of them. We also study wireless, engines, machine guns, airplanes and theory of flight. We have 40 minutes of calisthenics every morning and gym work or track or baseball or boxing about twice a week. We stand retreat every evening and inspection every Friday. It seems every thing must be done in just a little less time than is possible to do it. I like it tho, there is so much enthusiasm and pep. I hope I can stick it thru. What military work I've had will be a great help to me.

I have both of you to thank for it. Good luck and good-bye,
 WM. M. RITCHEY.

Miss Jean Orr entertained the senior girls at a picnic supper in Crow's lane Sunday evening. Later they serenaded the faculty and the houses.

COMPLETE LIST OF IDAHO MEN IN THE SERVICE

The University has done "her bit" in more ways than one. One of these is in the way of number of its men in the service. Miss Stephenson has compiled a catalogue of men in the service, which contains the names of 322. Of these 322, four are of the faculty. Twenty have been commissioned first lieutenants, 32 second lieutenants, 13 captains and three majors. The casualty list includes four—Lieut. Dudley A. Loomis, Phelps Collins, Lloyd A. Ellington, and Howard W. Holaday. Eight men were in the American expeditionary force which went over with General Pershing. The S. P. A. are represented by fourteen men. Their addresses are not known. The list posted near the bulletin board is not authentic as there have been many changes in the addresses of the men.

Following is a list of the men:

Dean Eldridge Writes Again

Six or Seven Thousand Miles East of Home.

This is such a picturesque old town. If it would ever warm up again it would make residing here in fuel-less times more agreeable. As a matter of fact the war does not change the heat and light question so much here. No other people are so lavish in these—and many other—respects as Americans anyway. American things are so much better, certainly the sweet things. They never have used more than a fraction (isn't it one-seventh) of the sugar we do and now have so very little they have to use saccharine, that chemical stuff.

This morning just as I was starting out for a real bath I met five bright-faced boys whom I guessed to be "Eclairiers" or French boy scouts. Thursday is the free day from school, not Saturday, and when I asked them what they were up to, they said they were going to do their good turn, and when I inquired what it was to be, they said they were going to gather some wood for an old lady, I believe.

This afternoon I watched our men at work. I don't know how much I am allowed to tell but I can at least speak of the great traveling cranes. I walked and walked over the works. It may not be so poetical as up at the front, where many are anxious—or think they are—to go, but their work is highly useful and necessary. I only wish we could do more to liven up their dull existence, as indeed we shall surely do as soon as we get our moving picture machine.

Last night I strolled thru the mess-hall and our Y part, and found 112 engaged in writing letters, even tho' our trunkful of writing paper had given out.

The thermometer dropped to seven degrees centigrade this morning and is only ten degrees now.

Pay day, long heralded, came at last for most of the companies and we had a corresponding rush. Of course a good natured crowd, but the changing of their 100- and 50-franc notes is always a problem. I had been hoarding for just this occasion and so got by pretty well. We also took in some thousands of francs to send home to folks or banks. That is one of the best services, I believe.

Saturday night.

Colder than ever but I have my overcoat on. Usual Saturday night rush and still flush from pay day. Moe says he will almost be reconciled when they are not so flush. You may be interested to know that today's business amounted to 2126 francs and that where the largest possible item is 2 1-2 francs, which is for a good bath towel. Many transactions will be 10 centimes for a box of matches or 30 centimes for a package of gum, so that total represents much work for Moe, myself, and the one or two soldier boys who help out. Besides this we arranged for and collected some thousands of francs to send home. I think we have a pretty efficient sales force and system. I must sometime describe in some detail what our canteen looks like and how ingeniously it locks up.

Every Sunday is cold and rainy in the afternoon if not all day. At 8:30, as our pianist was late, we had a good informal song service—popular airs and then hymns and a fine practical seven-minute talk by Mr. Shaw on "Going Back"—getting ready to be better men when they go back home. Shall get an engineering library here as soon as possible.

This morning I went as planned to the old Protestant church and enjoyed the service greatly. The organ was especially fine and well played. A Mme. Benigneuse, whose husband is in the army as chaplain now—formerly in the Foyer du Soldat work, lent me a hymn book, or rather shared it, during the Sunday school closing, and had me sit in her pew for church. The building is quite puritanical—white above and brown below, high pulpit, pews with doors, all very plain in contrast to the highly decorated Catholic churches. In the afternoon I went to a delightful chamber concert. As the program does not even have the printer's mark on it, I can send it. All were splendid and it lasted from 4:30 to nearly 7:00—extra numbers by the cellist and a long symphony. I never heard finer playing on the piano than Mlle. Douay's—five years at Paris Conservatory. It was for the benefit of the driven out French and Belgians and cost only one franc. You see they do not shy away from the German composers. It was a beautiful program and a lot of nice looking people were there.

Moe and I humbly sneaked in to the officers' mess one hour late and the boys had very kindly fixed us up quite a supper and we were talking together with a big fellow (waiter) and a nice looking boy (cook); Holloway the waiter (an actor from Australia, by the way) asked me where I came from, and when I said Idaho the cook was almost stunned and said he came from North Idaho too. He turned out to be Ernest Sylvester, brother of Bertha, and George, and Clarence. Then he wanted to know my name and when I said Eldridge, said "What, not Dean Eldridge!" It was very pleasant for both of us.

I don't believe I have told you of the lovely sight I saw the other morning on one of my warming-up hikes. I counted fifteen fishing boats outside the inner harbor and the water was like a mill-pond so that every inch of canvas was spread and some even were using big sweeps to get in with. But the special thing that appealed to me was the colored sails—one sail perhaps white or tan, another red, and a third a greenish-blue; or again one with all pink sails and the next one all white, and some with rectangular patches of the different color. I am crazy to spend a day on a sardine boat some time and I believe I'll make it too, some of these days. Just wait till summer comes.

Monday Night

Moe has left me, tho' still in town, as he began today at the Remount Station, so-called, of cavalry and artillery. Shipload after shipload of horses arrive here and after a rest go on toward the front, and practically nothing was being done for this group of men—just what the chaplain could be, tho' strictly they do not fall under his work at all. Mr. Shaw has been around more today and has begun to help again at the canteen. This remains heavy. Cou should see how many cans of peaches they buy—tons and tons, really.

Home a trifle early, as we closed canteen at 8:30 for the Chaplain's stereopticon lecture on the Philippines—he lived several years in Philippines, Malay Peninsula, etc. Fine pictures but hard to talk there because of noise of men going up and down the stairs. We need an auditorium such as we had at No. 7 and No. 8—in fact at all the regular double G huts. Our movie machine is not yet here—need it! That will have to be in the big mess hall downstairs—not the machine, but the screen and the audience. The mess hall is considerably larger than Yale Commons—has to be. Each company has its own cooks but all serve the same stuff each meal. Our officers' mess is separate and of course has more expensive things, tho' at a given meal sometimes some of the boys' things look better than ours. But they eat with their hats on and just as they file in—no fixed seating. I tell you there is a great scramble when mess-call, is sounded—the 'porky-porky,' I believe they used to call it in the army. When they are lined up waiting outside for twenty minutes in the rain it isn't so pleasant.

Today at last was fine and sunny and I enjoyed my walk home after dinner via a new route, past old fortifications and thru two old gates of masonry that are gates—drawbridge, moat, port-holes, and all. And tonight—nearly full moon, you know,—it was beautiful with the soft light on the boats, and canals, and old buildings, and lighthouses.

Thursday, April 25

My! but it was a dog's own job at the canteen yesterday. Allen and I practically alone all evening and for our solid hours we never caught up with the rush and even at 10:00 I had to drive fellows away from the counter unserved. The day's business amounted to 2401.50 francs; and the largest possible item is 2 1-2 francs, so we must have served well over a thousand boys. Allen's phrase of "fighting with that counter bunch" about expresses it.

It really is an advantage, I believe, to have lived in several different sections of the U. S., for one has a sort of point of contact with "the Middle West, N. Y., New England and certainly the Pacific Northwest, and we have boys, they say, from every state except Rhode Island, tho' I should say the majority come from Pennsylvania and Illinois, probably. Now I must run along to the station. The other night I stopped to see the truck-loads (United States with French guards) of refugees—a whole train-load from the invaded district. And yesterday I sat with twenty or so 'blessees' French soldiers at the movie. Talked with them a little.

J. G. ELDRIDGE.

SEVEN IDAHOANS REGISTER

still more to be among his own kind. It was the chance of companionship that it offered which led to the establishment of the Union; it is the companionship actually furnished which is tending to make it the best known and best liked resort for American college men in Paris. When the newcomer—often fresh from the trenches—enters the building, he finds at the desk a members' register in which are the names of all the men enrolled in the Union, their college and class, their home and European address. Since ninety colleges already hold Union membership, he is an unusually unlucky arrival who cannot at once find somebody whom he desires to see; if he does not make such a find on the register, he has only to go upstairs and linger in that corner of the reading room devoted to the publications of his own particular institution of learning, to be fairly sure of meeting a fellow collegian. New acquaintances are easily made, too. There are lounging rooms, billiard rooms, tennis courts, each providing its share of fellowship and wholesome relaxation. There is an information bureau where the bewildered stranger can be directed to anything from a laundry to grand opera, and a bulletin board which contain—in English—the extra information he has forgotten to ask.

In one thing the Union is entirely distinctive. It is the one American gathering place in Paris where no special privilege is accorded to rank. Even the Y. M. C. A., which has established two excellent hotels has found it expedient to separate the non-commissioned man sharply from his commissioned brother; but inside the walls of the American University Union, officer, private, and civilian are equally welcome. So long as the applicant is an American and a college graduate—he is sure of his reception. Memberships in the Union are secured not by the individual but by the institution. The membership taken out by Yale, for example, entitles every Yale man, past and present, to entrance and to the privileges of the club. In addition to a general membership, several of the larger colleges maintain special bureaus within the club building for the care and entertainment of their own people.

BARBED WIRE

The university will offer a new degree next year—B. S. in Political Engineering. For further particulars see the successful candidates in the A. S. U. I. election.

Judging from the rampage of the Co-eds, "vox populi, etc." will have to be extensively revised. The new edition reads "Vox puellas vox del."

Quite a few students say they won't be back next fall on account of the war, and a whole lot more won't be back on account of exams.

We think the senior play, as the seniors will give it, would more appropriately be termed "A Mid-summer Nightmare."
