BEG PARDON

The Argonaut, gentle reader, has for the past two issues been a frowny rag indeed, and its time of appearance about as uncertain as the date of arrival of a made to measure suit. But please bear with us, and lend us a lenient eye and a sympathetic smile. Most Beloved Peruser of these lines, uncoil we can thoroughly clear our brains of rushing talk and our hair of hay leaves, convince the frosh that they really came to school to work, and that we were in fact only fooling when we were slapping them on the back and calling them the saviors of the Universe, and get down to the old grind again.

LET'S RIDE.

Whether or not the University of Idaho will have a cavalry unit depends largely on the interest shown in the enterprise by the men of the upper classes.

It is the plan of the government to send to the University, in the event of the establishment of the unit, about sixty horses and four mules. For every three animals there will be sent one man, with proportional sergeants, to care for them.

Those enlisting in the unit will be required to put in three hours a week at learning the rudiments of cavalry tactics, but will be required to do no work toward caring for the animals.

The military department announces that so far only a very few have signed up for the work. Before Colonel Chrisman can make the final arrangements for the establishment of the unit, he must have some assurance that there will be enough interest shown in the thing to justify its maintenance.

It won't cost anything to investigate the proposition, men, and it is a ten to one bet that after you have talked it over with the military department, you will get the riding bug as bad as those who have already signed up have it. Think it over.

SENIORS PUT KIBOSH ON CORDUROY TROUSERS

Corduroy trousers will no longer be the official garb of the senior men according to resolutions passed in a meeting of the class Monday evening. It was pointed out that the majority of the class had showed their disapproval of the custom by coming to school this year clad in the conventional worsteds and serges. However, to accommodate those who for financial reasons find it convenient to continue the wearing of cords, it was made optional with the person whether or not he should wear them. No underclassmen will be allowed to wear the sacred trousers, but they will not be regarded as the official insignia of a senior.

Steps were taken toward the adopting of some distinctive dress for the coming year.

LYNN HERSHEY IS NEW SOPHOMORE PRESIDENT

Lynn Hershey, of Kappa Sigma, was elected president of the Sophomore class at a meeting held Monday evening.

Other officers elected were Leo Schroeder, vice president; Doris Tip-ton, treasurer and Bob Cummins, secretary.

HAROLD CORNELISON OF MOSCOW FROSH PRESIDENT

Harold Cornelison of Moscow was elected president of the freshman class at a meeting of that body held Friday afternoon. Other officers of the class will be elected at a later meeting.

Cornelison, who graduated from Moscow High school last spring, was one of the most popular and influential members of his class. His election to his present office is regarded as a tribute to the ability as a leader and organizer that he showed during his high school course.

DR. EUGENE TAYLOR IS NEW MATHEMATICS HEAD

University Secures Able Man From Wisconsin

Thirty-two changes were made in the personnel of the University faculty during the past summer, of whom twelve were replacements of resignations. Among the new members are one dean and several department heads.

Dr. Eugene Taylor, lately assistant professor of mathematics at the University of Wisconsin, has been named head of the University of Idaho's mathematics department. Dr. Taylor received his B. A. and M. A. degrees from DePauw University, and his Ph. D. from Harvard.

"Taylor is always clear," declared the head of the Wisconsin mathematics department in recommending Dr. Taylor, "he is always skilled and clever in the use of his and the student's time, and is able to keep a class going with full stream ahead—with enthusiasm and energy. His students are immensely fond of him, and they always found him courteous and square."

Eight other appointments of new members of the University of Idaho faculty were also announced today. Mr. Charles C. Williamson, a graduate of Ohio State University, has been appointed instructor in veterinary science. Mr. R. E. Conger, a graduate of Purdue University, has been appointed assistant professor of animal husbandry. Pink teas, lawn parties, and back porch cabarets formed an animated background for the strenuous rushing of the past week. On the part of the men social functions were limited to abductions and long car rides, closed conferences and grimly earnest talks, while the co-eds sought to tempt the chosen ones with the gentler tactics hinted at in the opening sentence.

There is promise of the coming year being one of the most active socially in the history of the school. This week will see the "Bury-the-Hatchet," the "Co-Ed Ball," and the Upperclassmen's dances. In the very near future loom the Senior Ruff and the Athletic Ball.

VETERINARY WORK CONCERNS HUMAN HEALTH
New University Veterinarian Points Out Relationship

"A statement in a recent issue of 'Rider and Driver' of New York to the effect that 'a veterinarian has nothing to do with the health of human beings, seems to coincide with the opinion of many people throughout the country,' according to Dr. Charles O. Williamson, instructor in veterinary science in the College of Agriculture of the University of Idaho. "This is caused by the fact," continues Dr. Williamson, "that few know the real scope of a veterinarian's work. With some, he is still a 'hoss doctor' only to be called as a last resort, and in such cases he possibly gets there just in time to take the blame for the animal's death. The veterinarian today aids in conserving the health of human beings in the three following lines of work:

1. Tuberculosis Eradication Work. Are we willing to continue drinking the milk which comes from hundreds of tubercular cattle eliminated from dairy herds each year? Tuberculosis eradication work is carried on by veterinarians almost exclusively and it not only has to do with human health, but it protects the breeders of pure bred herds.
2. Rabies (hydrophobia). This is one of the dreaded diseases of the country and not only causes a great loss in live stock, but also takes its toll from the human race. The veterinarian is the chief factor in the control of this disease.
3. Meat inspection in packing houses. Would you think it safe to eat the flesh of animals condemned in packing houses as being unfit for human consumption? The hygiene and sanitation of these and many other public places would not be what it should without an official inspector on the job.

Many more instances could be mentioned where the veterinarian has much to do with human health, as for example, in the control of anthrax, the manufacture of vaccines and anti-serums, etc.

INFORMATION AND SUGGESTIONS RELATIVE TO RESIDENCE AT LINDELEY HALL.

The cost of board and room in Lindeley Hall cannot be definitely fixed at this time. It is estimated that it will approximate between $30.00 and $35.00 per month. The cost will be kept as low as possible commensurate with proper food and living conditions. The rooms will be assigned on September 1st, preference being given to new students and Freshmen. The remaining rooms will be assigned in the order of application therefore.

Room rent is payable in advance for a period of not less than one-half semester. Board is payable one month in advance. Any unnecessary damage to a room will be charged to the occupant.

Each student will be required to furnish the following material: Four table napkins, 3 pairs sheets 1 1/2 x 2 1/2 yards, 3 pillow slips, 1 countercpane, 1 pillow, blankets or comforters, personal towels.

These articles and also all baggage should be plainly marked with the name of the student. Arrangements should be made to ship baggage, containing bedding, etc., in sufficient time to make sure that it will arrive in Moscow on time.

Francis Jenkins has been appointed Proctor by the State Board of Education, and will have general supervision of the Hall. Every resident of the Hall will be expected to cooperate with the Proctor in maintaining decorum and caring for the building and its equipment.

Y. W. C. A. CONFERENCE HELD AUGUST 27 TO SEPT. 6
Plans Formulated for the Work of Coming Year; Had Pleasant Outing.

The annual Y. W. C. A. conference for college girls was held at Seabeck, Wash., from August 27 to September 6. Representatives from over twenty schools in the Northwest Field, which includes Washington, Idaho, Oregon and Montana, and a staff of prominent leaders constituted the conference.

Bernice Cornelison and Helen Johnston were sent from the University of Idaho, the former in the capacity of president and the latter as undergraduate representative. Among the leaders of the conference were Miss Kate Boyd George, secretary for foreign students in New York; Dr. and Mrs. Packard who are just back from long service in Persia; Miss Charlotte Adams, whose books are well known; Miss Tatham of the Na-

Informational Board and Dr. Beie Allen of India.

The undergraduate representatives of which each school has one, transacted some very important business in formulating some of the plans for the next year's work. It was decided that the new statement of the purpose of the Y. W. C. A. as drawn up at the Cleveland Convention, be adopted. Three undergraduate field representatives were chosen from the Northwest Field, to meet with the Field and Student Committees in Seattle sometime this winter. Those elected were Creigh Cunningham from the University of Washington, Virginia Mason from Willamette University, and Helen Johnston from the University of Idaho.

Miss Alice Brown, the field student secretary, will be here soon to explain the new membership basis, and every girl is urged to come and get a clear understanding of this important change in the policy of the Y. W.

Going to Seabeck is like going to college without having to work. After class hours there are such sports as tennis, rowing, swimming and hiking, and one never knows a dull minute. It is hoped that a larger number of Idaho girls will take advantage of this ideal way of spending a ten day vacation period of inspirational work and play.

"For the past two field seasons, Dr. Laney has been working in the state of Idaho in the Seven Devils and adjacent areas, having been detailed by the U. S. Geological Survey to conduct this research in co-operation with the Idaho bureau of mines and geology. It was from Red Ledge, deep in the Seven Devils country, that we received his telegram of acceptance.

"Dr. Laney has done particularly capable work in the microscopic examination of ores with reference to their method of formation. During the war he devoted all his time to the microscopic testing of alloys used in connection with the manufacture of ordnance.

"We feel particularly fortunate in securing a man of Dr. Laney's caliber. His scholastic training, which includes a Ph. D. degree from Yale, has been unusually thorough and his western experience makes him peculiarly well qualified to deal with the geological problems of Idaho."

A dairy survey in Franklin county has revealed that 1,596 cows in the northern half of the county are available for furnishing milk to a receiving station as soon as one can be established.

ADDRESSES FEATURE FIRST ASSEMBLY

Slip W. S. C. The Pink Raspberry this Year, Says Priest for Alumni

Short inspirational addresses by Commissioner of Education Bryan and Prof. E. M. Hulme, dean of the college of letters and sciences, the reading of a message from the recent president E. H. Lindley, and the conferring of the degree of master of arts on dean of women Permeal J. French were the features of the first general assembly of the college year, held Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock in the auditorium.

In his opening address Commissioner Bryan cautioned the incoming students against allowing the incidents of their college life, such as fraternity and sorority affairs and the various student activities, to overshadow in importance their real purpose in coming to the University.

Continuing he stated that young people, coming to him for advice as to the life work they should undertake, often asked him what lines of endeavor were offering the greatest inducements at the present time.

"In selecting your life work, do not judge by what is offering the greatest inducements at the present time," he said, "but rather consider where any given activity will put you twenty-five years hence."

"Also," he continued, "in choosing a business or a profession, one should take into consideration one's tastes and capabilities. Put yourself where your powers can expand."

In speaking of the search for a president of the University, Dr. Bryan stated that it was hoped that it would soon be possible to announce the appointment of that executive, but that great deliberation in his selection was necessary in order that the right man might be placed in the position.

Dean Hulme spoke, extending a word of welcome from the faculty to the students.

In continuing, the substance of his statements were that the leadership of the world has passed from Europe to America. Therefore, America must have leaders. It is the colleges of the land that will produce the leaders. The present students in the American Universities will be the leaders of the world in the future.

In an inspiring peroration the Dean said, "Europe is like a beggar standing by the wayside and looking to America for aid. Rise to the crisis, and do not betray the trust of your parents and your state in sending you here."

Following Dean Hulme, and speaking for the alumni, A. J. Priest stated that the great wish of that revered group was to see W. S. C. slipped a "large, luscious, pink raspberry" on October fifteenth. Priest deplored the feeling of embryo friendship that has crept in between the two institutions in the past few years. He called for a return of the old feeling extant before the war. He typified this by making the statement that one prominent alumnus had been out of school two years before he discovered that "damn Pullman" was two words.

President Langroise, of the A. S. U. I. offered a word of welcome to the incoming freshman class and pledged the support of the A. S. U. I. to the faculty.

Evelyn M. Butler, acting dean of women, and Dean Messenger, of the school of education, were next introduced to the student body.
