Idaho fights! What better phrase could typify the spirit of the University of Idaho. And surely her teams do fight. The better the opposing team, the harder our men get in and work for their alma mater.

As long as other universities refer to our teams in collegiate athletics as fighting teams, and acknowledge that when playing Idaho they are put to every bit of their strategy to win, Idaho need never worry. We are behind our men and our men are behind the institution.

So it is for us, the students, to now fight along other lines. Scholastic grades are reported as being low for the last six weeks. The usual number of students will leave college at the holiday period, for various reasons. Let us hope that few leave because of their scholastic records. Now is the time to get in and fight. Any grade can be raised from now until the first of the second semester, and now is the time to put in the telling ticks, or the telling laxity which will only mean poorer grades and a poorer knowledge on the part of the student.

ENGINEERS-MUCKERS TALK-FEST FRIDAY

At a meeting of the upper class miners and engineers held at the Beta house Friday evening ways in which the men in the engineering courses of the University could help with general campus improvements were discussed. The gathering was informal and served to bring the men into closer touch with one another. A semi-permanent organization was formed with the intention of holding another meeting later in the year.

MAIDEN DOST DISPLAY RARE JUDGMENT

True, and it has been called to the attention of ye ed. of the Canterbury Crier that there is one maiden on ye campus that dost possess rare judgment and knowledge. The facts as mentioned to ye Ed. are as follows:

This fayr maiden wast going down the streets of the magnificent cyty of Moscow and she was accosted by none other than the hero, a man of no mean appearance and of great favor to the lady. After the customary greetings of the day as is the habit of the campus celebrities the hero dist suggest to the lady, who was none other than Ruby Gates, that they should retire to a place of her choice and partake of the viands of the day. Withe confined joy the lady dist lead our hero straight to the Palace of Sweets.

Here he dist order one hot chicken sandwich and the service wast excellent. And to further show he wast no cheap sport our hero dist purchase fore our lady a box of Canterbury Bon Tay candy and far be it fore ye ed. to fail to mention that ye hero dist increase greatly in the estimation of our lady and her good judgment was assured.

COLLEGIANS APE YOUNGSTERS IN DISPLAY OF VALENTINOS

They're here! The toreadors or peon pants have made their debut on the campus. In fact the five pairs which appeared at the Senior Ruff simply stole the show. But the question now is are they here to stay? Will our halls soon be filled with swaggering Valentinos? The results of a campus questionnaire seems to indicate that this question is going to divide the campus into opposing factions, those who favor the flaring trou and those who do not. Then there are a few who adopt a tolerant "live and let live" attitude.

The first man questioned is connected with the Y. M. C. A. and in an official capacity said:

"A man's got a right to wear any kind of pants he wants, but he ought to know when to quit."

A popular young instructor in the English department, when asked if he would wear them said:

"Should if I had a pair."

Asked further if he would favor A. S. U. I. legislation against them:

"Never legislated against short skirts, why against toreadors?"

The co-eds were equally divided in their opinions and just as decided as the men.

The first three approached chorused:

"I think they are darling, cute, clever."

The next three:

"Horrible, sissy things, I just loathe them!"

Dean French, when approached with the question said: "I consider the wearing of toreadors a nice pastime for high school boys. They probably were introduced at the Senior Ruff to recall the days when they were in high school."

"All they need is another ruffle," was the enigmatic response of a black-eyed, bob-haired co-ed.

One prominent co-ed when asked her opinion said, shaking her head, "And they say that women are foolish."

Others held that if one were to wear the trousers why not the whole outfit move to Mexico or Spain.

One tall, hefty man sadly exclaimed, "They look all right on the little fellows, but can you imagine me?"

One petite co-ed with arge, soulful eyes assumed her best heart expression and said, "Men look so thrilling in them."

The real objection of the majority seemed to be that the high school students had gotten hold of them first and that it would be against the dignity of college men to wear them now.

Very few of the men came right out to say that they favored Valentino cords, although many looked as though it were only timidity that restrained them. One really honest football man said immediately, "I'm all for them."

While another prominent Idaho athlete said: "Heaven forbid!"

So the question remains.

as a speaker on economic questions. For the past year or so he has been very much in demand for his popular observations on the economic status of the United States and the entire world today.

The question is of vital importance in that the debate to be scheduled soon bears upon this question. Many persons have already signified their interest in the coming forum meeting and a large audience is anticipated.

Forum Passes on Measure

At a meeting of the Forum Thursday evening, November 9th, the question of incorporating the class dues in the regular A.S.U.I. fees was taken under the leadership of William C. Carpenter and the forum voted to recommend the measure to the student body.

This measure was deemed especially advisable in view of the fact that it would insure the collection of all class dues and thereby insure each junior class of a good working capital when it came to the publication of the Gem of the Mountains. The failure of about forty per cent of the student body to in any way fulfill their class obligations by paying dues has been a serious handicap and would thereby be eliminated, was the consensus of opinion.

STUDENTS OUGHT TO WORK 12 HRS

To Discharge Obligations, Says Prof. Chenoweth at Non-Fraternity Meet.

"Every individual who attends the University of Idaho is obligated in three ways to spend his time as to be able to spend at least twelve hours a day in class recitation and preparation for these classes," said Professor C. W. Chenoweth Monday evening in a talk on "Extra-curricula activities," at the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Non-Fraternity men of the University.

The meetings were given over primarily to the discussion of the attitude that should be taken in regard to activities outside of the regular class work. In addition to Professor Chenoweth, Robert L. Holbrook spoke briefly concerning students working on the Argonaut, Thomas Speedy on participation in agricultural judging teams.

These talks were supplemented by various other individuals prominent in extra-curricula activities and in discussion of business matters of importance to the group. Doughnuts and coffee were served at the close of the meeting.

Defines Individual's Obligations
 In outlining the stand that should be taken by the students in regard to extra-curricula activities, Professor Chenoweth stressed particularly the fact that college work should by all means come first in the mind of every student. To partially quote: "There are three obligations that fall upon every student matriculated in the University, and it is of prime importance that he discharge these obligations faithfully and well. They are the things of greatest interest to him.

"Every person at the university is, first of all, spending for of the most valuable years of his life at the university and owes it to himself that he gain as much as possible in an academic way from his time while here.

"Again, while at the university he is spending the four most important years of his life from an economic standpoint. He is perhaps at the apex of his life from the standpoint of work and owes it to society that he make use of his stay at college.

"The argument has also been advanced that it costs around $1200 a year to give every student enrolled at the university an education. This amounts to practically $135 per month and represents at the least a very considerable compensation—one that it would be difficult for many to command in private life. Therefore he is indebted to the state and national government to make his university endeavors count.

"I have tried to diagnose the situation and the result has been, I feel, that every student should put in not less than 12 hours a day in actual class work and study. Besides this he should have eight hours sleep every day.

"That leaves him four hours every day for extra-curricula activities. Out of this time he should not neglect his physical side and should spend some time in athletic exercise whether it be in sports or hiking or other recreational exercise.

"And above all he should not neglect the opportunity he has while at college of learning to mingle with people and especially of the opposite sex. It is almost an absolute requisite that one be able to conduct himself with ease in whatever company in which he happens to be, in order to make the most of life after college.

"All these extra-curricula activities should, however, occupy only the four hours a day that are not devoted to college work and sleep and should never encroach upon the 12 hours for work.

"Extra-curricula activities are highly desirable for the average student, providing he does not allow them to become his major occupation while in college. Otherwise they, in many cases, prove detrimental in that the individual does not get what he should out of college."

Robert L. Holbrook outlined briefly what it means in grueling effort to be a member of the Argonaut staff, emphasizing particularly that the fact that one's name appears on the mast head of the college paper indicates an honor which has to be earned by determined and constant work of the most irksome nature.

Thomas Speedy told of the benefits deriving to the man in the agricultural college from participation in the judging teams that represent the University at various shows and exhibitions. He pointed out that although the making of the team demands certain untiring efforts that the results are highly commensurate with the labor involved.

Several other extemporaneous talks were made verifying the statements made previously. Following this meeting was opened to general discussion and many items of interest to the organization were brought up.

It was decided that a banquet, to which the non-sorority girls should be present, should be held sometime before the Yule tide holidays. The president was empowered to appoint a committee of three to report at the next meeting which will be held on Monday, December 5th.

TOM KELLEY RESIGNS AS MISSOURI COACH

Former Idaho Football Mentor Hands in His Resignation.

Thomas Kelly, former University of Idaho athletic director and football coach, has resigned "without explanation" as head football coach at the University of Missouri, according to a United Press dispatch carried in a recent issue of The Evening Capital News of Boise.

Kelly was at Idaho for two years and resigned here last spring to accept the Missouri offer. Under Kelly's administration the Missouri eleven has had fairly good success this season in the Missouri valley conference. The balance of the season for Missouri will be directed by a former Missouri graduate.

Team Returns From Hard 4000 Mile Trip

The Vandals, on their return to Moscow at 8:15 this morning, from Pasadena, completed a gruelling four thousand mile trip which covered a period of thirteen days. The team left Moscow on Thursday, November 9 for Boise, and from there they traveled to Pasadena for the U. S. C. game. This trip covered the hardest part of the Idaho schedule, and it would not be surprising if the long cross-country jaunt may tell on the team in the Gonzaga and Montana games, which will be played with very little rest.

The complete itinerary of the Idaho team from Boise is as follows:

Leave Boise on Union Pacific train No. 24, 4:55 p. m. November 13; arrive at Salt Lake 8:15 a. m., November 14.

Leave Salt Lake on "Los Angeles Limited" 2:50 p. m., November 14; arrive at Pasadena 3:15 p. m., November 15.

Leave Pasadena on "Los Angeles Limited" 10:00 a. m. November 19, arrive Salt Lake 12:35 p. m. November 20.

Leave Salt Lake on Union Pacific train No. 23 at 11:30 p. m., November 20; arrive at Nampa 12:35 p. m. November 21.

TWO GRID CONTESTS ON COAST SCHEDULE

Oregon Aggies Play Washington State—California Bears to Meet Stanford

Only two games will be played Saturday which will effect the standing of the different teams in the Pacific coast conference. These two contests will be between the Oregon Aggies and Washington State college, and the University of California and Stanford. The first will occur at Portland, and the second at Palo Alto.

In the first of these games, the teams appear to be fairly evenly matched. Both were defeated by the University of Oregon. The Pullman crew lost by a score of 14 to 0, while the Aggies were on the small end of a 10 to 0 score. The smallness of the difference of these scores points to a close game Saturday.

In the other contest, between Cal and the Stanford Cardinals, no one feels much in doubt as to the outcome. The only question is how many points the Bears will be able to roll up. Stanford has a strong team this year, but the Cardinals are likely to be outclassed by the Berkeley squad.

The other teams of the Coast conference, with the exception of Idaho's Vandals, will be resting up Saturday, for the Thanksgiving struggles slated for next Thursday.

Line Breakdown Casts University in Blackness

Lights throughout the Inland Empire were off Friday evening when a section of the Washington Water Power company's lines were blown down between Belmont and Spokane. The University buildings, however, were supplied with electric current from the auxiliary plant in the engineering building annex, which was turned on immediately after the lights went out, and enabled the Varsity Players to go on with their scheduled productions.

A new line connecting Moscow, Colfax, Pullman, and Lewiston is now under construction by the power company, and when completed will make a recurrence of Friday night's period of blackness an impossibility.

VOCATIONAL MEN TAKE UP POULTRY RAISING

Four vocational trainees at the University of Idaho are purchasing five-acre tracts of land of J. H. Casey, experienced poultryman, and are planning to start poultry farms. Mr. Casey is also assisting in getting the trainees started in their ventures.

This colony has been platted under the name of "Chickenville" and while the men are on placement training they will be under the supervision of R. P. Banks of Spokane, field representative of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

The men starting out on the program are Arthur B. Johnson, Thomas L. Royce, Benjamin F. Borup, and Elmer R. Murray. More of the men are thinking seriously of entering the same profession and may secure land at Attalia later.

Bureau Helps

The Veterans' Bureau does not assume the responsibility of financing the men on their projects, but are at all times ready to cooperate with them in securing the greatest amount of good from their work. During the past few months several men have taken project training on their own places and have been very successful.
