Can they compare in pulchritude With co-eds of their native land.

But alas, 'tis true, if you but knew how one of them did fall. It happened via Seattle, and they say that isn't all. Our shy and blushing Theodore grew bold and brave instead, but his honest heart will ne'er depart as he himself hath said. Now, Larry Quinn, you all know him, would make no flowery comments. He'd only say the briefest way, "You know my sentiments." And "Giff" my friend did make a speech as only he can do it. He said through all of California state there was no woman who could rate as high as a certain campus date of Idaho. Now "Giff" he knows about women's looks just from experience and not from books, and says down there they can't compare with those he's met here anywhere.

So endeth now this brief debate, how rank the co-eds of our state with beauty of the coastal rate. And though there be a few who find that beauty is but of the mind, they can't deny that here's the place where BEAUTY lies in the face.

The Artist Course

MOVING Broadway to the small town—that is exactly what happens when an artist course is offered to the students of the University of Idaho. Most of us do not realize what a tremendors advantage it is to have the very best things that have been presented in the world of music and drama brought here for our especial benefit. let's not cry, Xmas will soon be here. Moscow, the "Pauper." Very few of us stop to think that we are able to see the productions here in our own auditorium that have drawn record breaking crowds in the largest cities of the eastern

We cannot begin to estimate the benefits that we can derive from our associations with the best things of lifeand that is really just what an artist course is to us. It is a means by which we are able to come in contact with those intrinsic factors that tend to give us culture in the true sense of the word.

The reason that you are urged to purchase tickets to the numbers of the artist course is not because there would be any difficulty in filling the auditorium to its seating capacity but because the course is primarily for students. There are people outside the University who will be only be eating the tender front quarters as one of the strongest and most too glad to come but they must wait until every student of the champion shropshire lamb of progressive of the W. S. C. honorhas a chance to avail of his opportunity. All of the effort is being expended so that we may get something that is for our own personal good. Think it over.

Caps and Gowns

THE action of the senior class, in refusing to abolish caps and gowns, has materially strengthened the foundation upon which Idaho traditions and customs are erected. Traditions are not built in a day; they are formulated through an evolutionary process which embraces years.

The senior class has demonstrated that these traditions cannot be ruthlessly slashed and butchered, that they cannot be established or abandoned by the dictates of a momentary whim.

Instead, the class has recognized them as an integral part of college life, and the real soul of college spirit.

OREGON JUNIORS PROVE NOVEL PHILANTHROPISTS

Class Members Shine Shoes of Fellew Students; Proceeds Go For Poor of Eugene

The novel plan for gathering in the elusive shekels in order to obtain funds for the poor of Eugene. Oregon, was hit upon recently by the juniors of the University of Oregon, who set aside a day to shine shoes for the other classmen, charging ten cents a shine.

The plan was a great success as is evidenced by the fact that about $125 was taken in and a great deal of fun was provided for the other classmen at the same time. Early in the morning of "Shine-Day", industrious Juniors were seen already about their great-hearted work. The halls were cluttered up with bottles, cans, rags and other paraphernalia dear to the heart of a bootblack . EXPLORER TO HUNT FOR THE FORKED-TAIL MONKEY

To Enter Lands Where They Never Heard of World War.

Washington .- Kweichow, where the mysterious non-Chinese tribes of China live and where the famed forked-tail monkey is said to dwell, is to be explored by an expedition sent by the National Geographic society.

Frederick R. Wulsin has been designated to proceed to Peking to organize his staff for the trip into the remotest part of China. The province to be explored is about the size of Missouri and has a population of 8,-000,000. It is as inaccessible as Tibet.

One of the few visitors who has penetrated only the fringe of Kweichow said he saw types resembling by the legislature. the Ghurka, the South Sea islander, the American Indian, the East Indian

About 3,500,000 of the non-Chinese of the province have survived the process of Chinese absorption. Many of the strongholds have never been visited by white men and whole tribes do not know that the World war was

Occasional travelers have reported how some of the tribes thrash grain on the rooftops, as in the Holy Land; flying on fortified castles, and how blunderbusses, broadswords and bags of stones as weapons.

The monkey the expedition will seek is the Rhinopithecus Brelichi, of which the only evidence available now is a skin. There has been speculation, the Geographic society says, regarding the possibility of this species being an animal described in a famous passage of Chinese literature, as follows:

"Its nose is turned upward, and the the forks into its nose. It goes in one dies the rest accompany it to burial. Its activity is so great that it runs its head against the trees; its fur is soft and gray and the face

The bunch studying journalism this year are very interesting-- mostly sophomores and freshmen with high ambitions and distant goals in the newspaper world. Most of them have had some experience, some as reporters, some as cartoonists, but there are a few of them who cannot distinguish a linotype from a copy reader. One has served in the Russian army, another has been a flying instructor in the American service, and a third has had a fling at sugar chemistry in Cuba.

Probably one of the most interesting nights came when each student had to interview some other member of the class in regard to the reasons for his enrolling in the coures. This Interview helped a lot toward the acquaintanceship of the students among themselves. Nearly all are alike in one respect: they all like to write. Some have worked on school magazines and newspapers, some have sent their stories and articles to out-of-town magazines. Nearly all hope to become writers of some reputation. "The Republic has no need for savants," sneered a tool of Robespierre as he sent Lavoisier, founder of modern chemistry, to the guillotine. A century later the French Government collected all the scientific studies of this great citizen of Paris and published them, that the record of his researches might be preserved for all time.

Lavoisier showed the errors of the theory of phlogiston—that hypothetical, material substance which was believed to be an element of all combustible compounds and to produce fire when liberated. He proved fire to be the union of other elements with a gas which he named oxygen.

Lavoisier's work goes on. In the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company the determination of the effects of atmospheric airon lampfilaments, on metals and on delicate instruments is possible because of the discoveries of Lavoisier and his contemporaries.
