The Ag School

All for the fame of the "U."
 Our judging teams have been bringing home cups year after year from competition with the larger schools of the west, in every contest they enter. Our cattle win in competition with the best the whole country over. We have the highest producing dairy herd owned by any state institution. These facts are proof of the ability of our instructors and the earnestness of their students. The practical application and proving of theories is being constantly carried out on the "U" farm. Results of this work is carried to all parts of the state by our extension department.
 Nothing can advertise the university more than these things, and they constitute the most important factor in bringing about a unified support of the "U" because it is maintained largely by an agricultural populace.

Looking Back

Campus Day has come and gone, leaving everyone and everything much better for its being here. More than 750 Idaho men turned out at seven Wednesday morning and, well, the rest is history. These Idaho students, in the main, did their work well and with the right spirit. Their accomplishments will stand testimony to their hard and honest efforts.

To Commander-in-Chief Harold Cornelison a great deal of credit is due for the smooth functioning of the events of the whole day. To his staff of able captains and chairmen goes the credit for the handling of the various projects. To all other organizations and individuals who contributed so materially to the success of the Day the commendation and thanks of The Argonaut, the students, the faculty and the visitors are extended heartily for the noble work and high accomplishment which resulted.

Many of the numbers of the program of Campus Day were done remarkably well. From the military band concert shortly after noon Wednesday down the final strains of the all-college dance at the Blue Bucket, hardly a hitch was noticeable. Conspicuous among the events of the day were the May Fete pageant, "Peer Gynt," given by Mrs. Michael's dancing classes, and the university orchestra concert, directed by Mr. Carl Claus, in which Mr. David Nyvall, Jr., appeared as soloist.

Certainly, it is to be hoped that Mrs. Michael and Mr. Claus feel repaid for their expenditure of time and effort in preparation for their presentations. Both were greatly enjoyed by a multitude of persons, and both, from the popular point of view, at least, were immensely successful.

Vandals

Idaho's baseball Vandals struck a snag yesterday. The whole team was off; and to cap it all, "Lief" Erickson twisted a side muscle early in the game. Idaho lost. But Idaho's Vandals have the stuff; they lost, but they aren't beaten.

And when Idaho students deliberately leave the field in disgust before the game is over because their team is not winning; it doesn't help matters one little bit.

WATER CUTS DEEP WHEN ROSIE FAILS TO HEED PAL'S WARNING

The searing rays of the noonday sun beat down unmercifully on the steep hillsides of Little Marion creek, where my partner Rosy and I were cutting saw logs. Overland Rosie, or Rosie as he was commonly known, was my partner, and a friend in both work and leisure that I valued even more than the canned blackberries and condensed milk that the lumber camp cook dished out on the supper table. He had but a few minutes before gone down the hill to the creek to fill the canteen, and I was waiting for his return.

I sat there drowsing in the glaring sunlight, listening to the crickets shrill their unceasing lullaby, while a lone eagle soared majestically the heavens in constant scrutiny of the heated earth for a sign of some rodent prey. The wind rustled gently the leaves, and from far below, the faint roar of falling water was wafted to me in varying volumes with changes of the wind, making that symphonic fantasia of sound which nature alone can produce.

I roused myself from lethargy with a start. Why didn't Rosy return. He had been gone an hour. I had told save the empty canteen lying on the bank where he had thrown it. A horrible sense of impending disaster hung over me like a thousand swords of Damocles. I took another step; there in a little hollow of the bank where the swirling waters curved to the shore, lay the inert form of Rosy, with his head hanging lifelessly in the misty spray of the swift little stream. I rushed to him and turned him over, to find his throat cut horribly from ear to ear. The swift waters of the little mountain stream had severed life from body with one intense spurt when he had lain down to get a drink and would have cut his head clear off, if the creek hadn't been cutting through the rock bottom so fast that it lowered the water away from his neck.

out at first. Lehrbas, shortstop fanned and Wicks, right fielder, was thrown out at second base by the catcher.

Lou Tesreau, Husky short, started the second inning for Washington with a three base hit deep into the outer gardens. He was caught attempting to make it home by Howerton, with an assist from Lawson at third. Frayne, Washington right fielder was allowed to go to first on a fielder's choice when Tesreau was thrown out at home. Dobson fanned and Becket popped a fly into Landson's hands at first.

Cameron Leads

Cameron led off the second frame for Idaho with a tip into short's hands. Green and Landson both fanned. Walby, first up for Washington in that session hit a high foul which was caught by Howerton. Erickson hit to third and was thrown out at first. Kleffner fanned.

Erickson was still in the box when Langlie went up for Washington. This batter rolled a bouncer to third and was thrown out at first. Erickson twisted his side on the next pitch and Leavers singled, but was caught at second by Kleffner and Landson's double.

The slaughter started in the sixth inning when the Huskies poled three hits, and with the aid of three errors, by Cameron and Lawson, scored four runs. From then on Washington had things pretty much their own way. Without exception the Vandals went down, one-two-three.

The Lineups

The lineups were: Idaho, Howerton, catcher; Erickson, and Fields, pitchers; Bill Landson, first; Sylvester Kleffner, second base; Lawson, third base; Lehrbas, shortstop; Green, right field; Cameron, center field; Wicks, and Vesser, right field.

IDAHO GIRL RUNS FOR SHRINE CIRCUS QUEEN

Louisa Martin Candidate for Lewiston Show

More than 500 tickets to the Calph Temple Shrine Society Circus opening tonight in Lewiston for a three-day run have been sold by Moscow Shriner and Miss Louisa Martin, senior at the university, has been sent to Lewiston as Moscow's candidate for queen of the circus.

No results of the queen contest have been received as yet by Claude Renfrew, president of the local Shrine club. Miss Martin will either be elected queen or maid of honor, as there are only two other Idaho towns competing in the contest, Potlatch and Sandpoint, and a queen and two maids of honor are to be elected.

Indications are that hundreds of Moscow citizens will drive to Lewiston this week-end to attend the Shrine festivities. This is the fifth annual Shrine Society Circus, and it promises to outshine all previous shows.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY RAPIDLY GROWING

Farmers Served Through Local and Outside Experiment Stations

Service is constantly rendered to the people of the state of Idaho by the rapidly growing department of Animal husbandry under the supervision of Professor C. W. Hickman, head of the department, and assistant professors Julius Nordby, an Idaho graduate, and B. L. Taylor of Kansas.

In addition to the regular work in instruction in university courses, these men carry on experiments in several phases of animal industry, and work with the experimental stations for the betterment of agriculture in Idaho. Feeding experiments, in which Idaho crops are used in an effort to determine the most economical and efficient way of feeding livestock for production, growth, and fattening, are being constantly carried on. Reports of these experiments are sent out to the farmers in the state to enable them to make the most profits by using the best agricultural methods. Most of the experiments are carried on with the university stock, but a few are being carried on in localities such as the Sandpoint substation and the Aberdeen substation under the direction of the university department.

Excellent Animals

The excellent sheep, swine, horses and beef cattle which the university now own, are largely due to the efforts of the above named men. In selection, care and breeding. Prizes were won by Idaho last year in both the Pacific International at Portland and the Chicago International, in competition with the best stock from the herds of state institutions, and professional breeders in the United States. Idaho I, shorthorn steer, was grand champion steer at the Chicago International two years ago, and though now the property of the Iowa State Agricultural college, he was named Reserve Grand Champion of the show this year. Such winnings as this are of international interest and fame, and it proves that Idaho has some of the best stock in America.

Silver of Acme, head of the University Percheron stud was obtained from Prince of Wales farms in Canada, after winning first prize as a colt, and as a yearling in the Calgary and Edmonton shows. Sylvia's Best, a purebred shire mare is another prize winner. She was imported from Illinois where she won first prize in her class at the state fair there. She has since won the honor of being grand champion shire mare at the Interstate Fair in Spokane.

AGRONOMIST PRAISES NORTH IDAHO LANDS

Peat Soil Made to Produce Large Crops, McDole Finds in Survey

G. R. McDole assistant professor of agronomy, returned May 7, from Sandpoint where he has been cooperating with the experiment station head their in soil experiments to increase fertility and increase production.

The agricultural resources prosperity of the people of a community are in proportion to the ability of the soil to produce large crops, and without productive soil there can be no agriculture, states Mr. McDole.

North Idaho peat soil has been made to produce large crops in the last few years through the experiments of the soils department where the farmers owning the land have availed themselves of the results of these experiments. Much more can be done when the majority of the farmers realize the value of the work being done, and are willing to accept the findings of the experiments. Soil problems are constantly being worked out for those farmers who desire them, and the university and its experiment sub-stations are completely at the service of the farmers in the state.

STUDY TO CONTROL PLANT DISEASES

Plant Pathology Department Co-operates With Farmers and Federal Government

From a small part of the Botany department six year ago, to a large department occupying the whole top floor of Morrill hall, and having a large student enrollment and doing much extension work service for farmers in the Northwest, is the record of the Plant Pathology department headed by C. W. Hungerford, with C. M. Raeder as his assistant.

Plant disease control methods are arrived at by first experimenting with the disease in the laboratory and in the field greenhouse until some adequate method of control is found. The experiment is then carried into the fields on the university farm. If successful there it is transferred to the experiment stations in different sections of the state, and the control work on the disease duplicated under supervision of the department. If successful there it is advocated as a method of controlling that disease to the farmers in the state. Cooperation with farmers in various sections of the state are carried on with the pathology work. The result of the control methods are tried out at Ashton, Aberdeen, Twin Falls, and Parma in south Idaho, and at Winchester, Lewiston, Juliaetta, Coeur d'Alene, Sandpoint and Moscow in North Idaho. Cooperation with the federal government in plant control is part of the work of the department for which work $3000 of federal money is appropriated.

EUROPEAN TOURS GAIN IN FAVOR

'ROUGHING IT' TRIP IS INNOVATION ANNOUNCED BY EASTERN SYNDICATE; GUESTS WILL WALK

Along with loud stripes, double breasted coats for men, brilliantly colored dresses for women has come the fad of student summer tours; and this latter bids fair to become one of the most gripping of any of the fads thus far originated.

From the comparatively feeble attempts at organization for tours, generally made by some well traveled but temporarily financially embarrassed person, the tour idea has grown in a few years to tremendous proportions. It has gripped the entire student and faculty population. So it seems from the quantity and quality of the literature now flooding the mails.

There are several recognized methods of travel according to this literature. The School of Foreign Travel, which is under the direction of the New York university, has recently issued a pamphlet which contains practically all of the orthodox types of tours, along with the proposed itinerary and probable cost. "New York to New York" if one is interested in French literature of French language, he may sign the dotted line for the "French residential tour." This enables the student, after a visit to the Montmartre, Bois de Boulogne, L'Arc de triomphe, and other places of interest to the tourist to pursue his studies for one month at the University of Grenoble. After this he can go to London and then home. If he is interested in Germany instead of France he is switched to Berlin instead of Paris and he studies at the University of Munich, and after that much the same procedure is followed.

Have you tried OUR RAINBOW SUNDAE?

a 20c combination featuring pineapple. SATISFACTION PLUS BLUE BUCKET FOUNTAIN Remember our regular 35c noon lunch 50c evening dinner an special Sunday dinner, 1 to 8 p. m.

But along with these orthodox tours there comes a new one. Men students may now go on a "roughing it" tour of Europe. This tour, according to the circulars, "gives the student the opportunity to getting first-hand, intimate knowledge of the customs of the people of the countries visited. The hotel accommodations will be in native hotels or inns, simple but clean and comfortable. Much walking will be done."

Whether the prospective tourist be rich or poor, student or professor, he may now find a "canned" tour already mapped out for him, including meals on the steamship, tips to the lackeys and galoshes when it rains.

ANNUAL BARBEQUE OF FOREST BEASTS LEFT MANY SCARS

Big Celebration at Rowland Park Saturday Enjoyed By Great Crowd; Juniors Win Honors

Practically every member of the associated foresters, faculty included, is suffering either from rheumatism sore or dislocated shoulders, black eyes, gunshot, blistered feet or indigestion, as a result of the second annual barbecue, held Saturday afternoon at Rowland's Park.

Transported in twelve cars, ranging in size from "duet-lizzies" to a "twenty-homme" truck, the fern-hoppers deserted their spring-fever infected class rooms for the pine scented coliseum of Mother Nature and for six hectic hours strived to outdo each other in tests of strength, skill daring and gastronomic capacity. Mental tests were discarded for the day.

First place in the opening field event was annexed by the juniors when Phelps swung a horse-shoe lined glove against "Utah" Allgood's right eye and gave the sophomore's white hope a glimpse of the stars in the universe.

Cranston, also a junior, gave his classmates the next two events by winning the 50 and 100 yard dashes, aided by the inability of his competitors to keep from falling over each others' feet.

Baird and Gregory lead Sophomores Baird and Gregory, the Damon and Phyllis of the sophomore woodsmen, led the second year men to victory in the rifle shoot, altho, despite Professor Watson's strict chaperonage, it is rumored that the boys killed one cow and a "crested wicky-bird", which accidentally flew within range of the gold dust twins. The freshmen, nearest competitors in this match, claim that "Spike" Gregory shoved his wooden leg thru the bull's eye of his target before it was erected and then claimed that he had bunched his hits within the black circle.

The next event, a tug-of-war across White Mule Creek, between ten man teams of the underclassmen, resulted in the drowning of the entire sophomore team, which went down to a watery grave without a murmur—due principally to the fact that the sophomores inhaled too much mud to do much talking.

Not satisfied with this wholesale massacre, the rooks next proceeded to take the third year men crossing the Rubicon to their decisive defeat. When the battle smoke had lifted, the second casualty of the day, Ted seely was found stretched on the ground with a dislocated shoulder—which proved the pulling power of the first year men.

Space Swings Mean Axe Space, senior, gave his classmates first honors in the log chopping contest by driving his axe thru a twelve inch yellow pine log in one minute and forty-five seconds, although his sophomore brother was a close second in this event.

Chagrined by their muddy defeat in the tug-of-war, the juniors came back in the log sawing contest when White and Callender smoked the six foot crosscut thru a tough old fir so that the flying sawdust burst into flames as it left the log, requiring the installation of a home made sprinkling system to avoid a general conflagration.

The sophs had their inning in the wrestling meet when Burroughs threw Downer over McLaughlin's new Essex Coach and then won from Bolle thru forfeiture. In the meanwhile some of the lumberjacks had constructed a temporary dam in White Mule Creek, then coaxed a log into its rapidly rising waters and proceeded to stage an informal log rolling contest. Due to lack of experienced entrees, this event degenerated into a mud hen diving contest in which the log invariably remained on top.

Thus ended the field meet in which the class standing was as follows: Juniors first, with 28 points; sophomores second, with 26 points; freshmen third with 19 points and seniors fourth, with 11 points.

At 6:15 p.m. Chef Bolles stentorian invitation to "come and get it" caused a general rush for chow tools and within sixty minutes about forty dollars worth of roast pork, beef, hot dogs, baked potatoes, and beans, topped off with ice cream, had all disappeared and the second annual barbecue was history.

FROSH TRACKMEN LOSE AT PULLMAN

Idaho Star Distance Man Loses Two Events

Spectacular performances in the 380-yard and the mile events, by Williams, flashy W. S. C. freshman, gave Washington State college the victory over Idaho in the annual freshman dual track meet by a 74-3 to 56-1-3 score at Pullman Wednesday afternoon.

Entered in the mile for the first time in his track experience, Williams nosed out Donald Cleaver, crack Idaho frosh runner, at the tape and established a new W. S. C. frosh record of 4 minutes 30.3-second. A few minutes later he again won from Cleaver by a scant rod in the half mile.

Another freshman record was set when W. S. C. won the half mile relay in one minute 33.9 seconds.

Prof. Parkhurst Conducts Useful Experiments and Field Work

Feeding experiments carried on by the poultry department are demonstrating the most economical and profitable feeds for poultry for the farmers of Idaho. A lack of equipment somewhat handicaps the progress of the work, and the lack of personnel makes the work of instruction and experiment harder than it will be next year when new equipment and more instructors will be added.

Professor R. T. Parkhurst, assisted by George Van handle all the work of instruction, experimentation and the answering of inquiries from farmers. The enrollment in the courses has been steadily increasing, and next year thirteen courses in poultry will be offered. The production of the farm poultry is above reproach, and many Idaho farmers are getting their start in poultry by getting eggs and baby chicks from the department. Prizes in local poultry shows and in the Spokane shows have been won by the entries from the university plant.

The rapid increase of the poultry industry in the state is causing some of the growth of the department and it is necessary to increase rapidly during the next year to keep abreast of the state conditions. New experiments are constantly being carried on in all phases of the poultry industry, and the results sent out to the farmers in the state aid the farmers as much as possible.

members of the orchestra are to be praised because of their fine "team-work" which is necessary for a balanced organization.

Mr. Nyvall's piano numbers aroused the audience to most flattering applause. He played Palmgren's "May Night" with fine appreciation for its subtlety. The same excellence of taste and keenness of intelligence characterized Rebikoff's "Le Plaisir de Diable" and Amani's "Orientale." The last selection was Mr. Nyvall's own composition, "The Music Box," this is a charming number which achieves its effect by its extreme simplicity. Mr. Nyvall gives us some very fine interpretations of piano music. He is aware of the nuances required by modern composers. His playing is marked by delicate contrasts of light and shade and by the composer's insight into another composer's ideal.
