He said that although the present population is about 9,000,000, Canada could support a population of about 400,000,000. He discussed the wonderful banking system, stating that at present there are only 17 national banks but branches are found not only in the country but throughout the world. Then in the League of Nations, Canada has two votes. The official language is composed of both English and French, the latter comprising approximately one-half of the population.

Another interesting point he brought out is the fact that unimproved land owned privately is taxed heavier than improved land, and that although the climate is much colder in general than that of the United is longer. According to him the educational system of his country is more ially in colleges.

Stay On the Campus

Spring vacation has been cancelled by the action of the academic council. It was explained that students visiting areas where cerebrospinal meningitis is prevalent might bring the disease back to the Idaho on two lonely abused courts is surely campus. TThis is a logical move, and if it is to be caaried out in its campus. This is a logical move, and if it is to be carried out in its disease on the campus.

To work toward the academic council's idea underlying this movethe students should stay on the campus over weekends and other short recesses whenever there is the barest possibility of contact with carriers of the germs. It is probable that the other cases of spinal meningitis were brought to the campus by students returning from vacations spent off the university grounds, as all three outbreaks were reported after closure purposes. Not a roller is the students return.

A few trips home sacrificed is small cost when it is reasoned that such action may result in elimination of the diease. The life of one student is worth more, surely, than a short visit off the campus, even if while some paltry sum not worth menit be with persons ever so great.

Sportsmanship

Beta Theta Pi has displayed a type of sportsmanship which resembles closely the Idaho spirit. After being defeated by Sigma Alpha Epsilon for the intra-mural basketball championship, the losers invited the champions to dinner. In return the ewinners of the title invited their late opponents to another dinner.

These actions, if an exaggerated example may be used to illustrate a ponit, display true sportsmanship and should set example in spirit to other groups. If the idea were carried out in other situations, a spirit of good fellowship would certainly be expanded from within the group to every group on the campus. And such a feeling would be an unbeatable factor in bringing out the highly theoretical school spirit toward which we are all working.

Congestion at the Courts

Idaho has seven tennis courts to accommodate several hundred ardent net fans. Of these seven, several are grass covered and have been for a few years. Crowding about those courts which are usable, often are scores of potential players who seldom get the opportunity to un-

It seems that this is a situation which calls for a remedy of some sort. Either the A. S. U. I. should move to have the other available courts renovated or the students who wish to play should start some move to have the courts put into shape. A little work by each student, augmented with a few necessary bits of equipment, which should be ourchased from the athletic fund, would solve this problem.

Recognition Tangent ...

David Nyvall, Jr., professor of music, who will tour the United REFLECTIONS AT THE INFIRMARY States this summer, has displayed considerable genius in university musical circles. Now he will go out to see if this genius will impress the general public; and undoubtedly he will find the support of which he is deserving on the Idaho campus.

Professor Nyvall is but a single example. There are many such other persons on the faculty who rank high in their profession. Here, the faculty is rare on the part of the students. A man seldom is a the same as in many other schools, quick recognition of the powers of prophet among his own people. It is not until he reaches out and the world has an opportunity to meet him that he is seen in his true light. But then generally it is too late and value perceiving institutions make exceedingly attractive offers.

, To couliteract these offers, a whole hearted support to manifestations of genius will enhance greatly any offer which might be made by Idaho. And with a restricted budget, financial offers of the sort that must be made to obtain instructors here may be made more desirable with united support of the student body. The knowledge that he is working hand in hand with the student body can be a deciding factor with a big man when the matter of a few dollars is thrown on the other side of the scales. Such support should be given cheerfully when ther is the slightest possibility that the men we have here are receiving financial offers which are much more attractive than Idaho can hope to offer. This applies to several men now members of the faculty.
