Seniors Begin to "Take Inventory"

With but a few weeks of actual work left, seniors are beginning to introspect and retrospect. And also they are looking into the future. Some have definite jobs in view, some are not so definite, and a few are wondering just what four years of college have fitted them for. Mostly they feel that they know very little about things in general. It has taken a great deal of learning to install this meekness. The more they have learned the more they have found there was to be learned.

Now that it is all over but the shouting, not a few are assailed with a growing suspicion that Idaho has offered them many things of which they did not take advantage. They find that they have narrowed their interests and studies without keeping a very clear perspective of what was to come after graduation. They see many things which they have passed by as not worth while; a chance to get acquainted with fields other than their own, opportunities to build more breadth within themselves—failures in general to appreciate their own shortcomings and take advantage of improvement methods the university provided.

Already the golden haze of sentiment is settling over their memories of the four crowded and busy years. But by knowing a little about a great many things they are able to realize more than they otherwise could, the small place their own interests and activities occupy in the scheme of things. The generally accepted picture of the self-satisfied, cock-sure college graduate is lacking.

Much of value could be obtained if seniors would give their views on the things that had profited them most in college. Their suggestions could be of real worth to undergraduates. Likewise their criticisms would be worth considering. The only drawback would be that seniors are the slowest to criticize or give unasked for advice—and if they did, no one would think it worthwhile to profit from it. But one and all, the seniors think college has been the best thing in their lives.

A Welcome—With Reservations

The Argonaut is always glad to welcome new, worthwhile organizations on the campus. And in this instance, the recently organized local chapter of Blue Key is welcomed—with reservations. If it is just another mutual admiration society; if it becomes, as many other organizations have, a dormant society whose sole purpose is to confer the right to wear the fraternity jewelry, then it is not welcomed. But if it carries out its avowed purpose of aiding the university and administration in betterment through real WORK, then indeed is it welcomed.

To all talk about making education more free, more lively, and more profitable by improving the colleges, there should be a permanent preface to the effect that any student bound to get himself an education at an American college or university as things now stand can hardly fail.—New Student.

CAMPUS KATE SAYS:

(By Lucille Eaton) WANTED: A TRAFFIC COP FOR THE PI PHI BACK YARD.

CHARLIE KINCAID HAS ASKED IF THERE WILL BE ANY BRIGHT CRACKS IN ABOUT HIM THIS TIME. SORRY CHARLIE BUT WE CAN'T THINK OF A BRIGHT THING ABOUT YOU.

Gosh I gotta study but howcanya when it's so nice outside and every body's fooling around but I gotta twelve-weeks exam tomorrow and gee I oughta be doin' it now I wonder who that baby is coming this way gosh it can't be yeh but it IS... anywhere you wanta go I don't care no I haven't a thing to do...

BE UP-TO-DATE You're not in style unless you say, to every person you meet on your way to and from the Ad building: "Isn't it (wonderful, grand, lovely, slick, keen or peachy) today?" (It is a good plan to alternate, but be using either "slick" or "peachy" twice on the same person.

"How is your grandfather, Bobby?" "Aw, he's all right." "But I thought he was so sick a month ago that the doctors gave him up." "Yes; but the baseball season has opened now."—Judge.

AND THERE'S A WONDERFUL MOON COMING UP OVER THE CEMETERY TONITE.

Once there was a Youth who was Different. He didn't inhale the weed and the back of his sweat shirt was Absolutely Unadorned with any Monstrosity whatsoever. He wasn't an artist at osculation and if He went to a dance he Danced all the Dances. When a prof Handed out an Assignment, this young man actually did it. He spent some of his time studying, and was once Caught taking a Volume from the library to Read it. He would rather be late for Dale's Econ. 12 than cut across the campus. His fraternity brothers tried to make a man out of him, but failed miserably. He wouldn't play baseball out in front of the house because he was afraid he might bother the junk man when passing. He actually thought he was here to get an education. Two weeks before he graduated everybody had forgotten him. MORAL: BE YOURSELF, BROTHER.

UNPOPULAR OPINION

Blaise Stubblefield

Boys and girls who come to college Seeking futures quite inviting Often get a rabid notion That they're capable of writing; So they spend their time in thinking Over thrilling situations For the dramas and the novels That shall rouse the drowsy nations. But they never get them written; They forget their high ambitions And go out and peddle real estate Or sell to foreign missions. Now, I have a mild suggestion That will save them years of time, And make it more effective I am putting it in rhyme: Let the young deluded author Seeking literary glories Take a turn at English maor And he'll give up writing stories.

A letter from Mr. Charles Apoff, Notes and Queries editor of the American Mercury, contains a circular setting forth the case of The American Mercury, Inc., vs. J. Frank Chase and the New England Watch and Ward Society, of which Mr. Chase is secretary.

The Watch and Ward Society scrutinizes various publications, including books and magazines, and in case it judges any of them to be violations of the law, proceeds to warn large dealers that prosecutions will follow further sales.

When the April Mercury, containing the story "Hatrack", went on sale in Boston, the Watch and Ward Society warned dealers to withdraw that number. One dealer, Felix Caraganes, disregarded the warning and was arrested at Chase's order.

H. L. Mencken, Mercury editor, immediately went to Boston with his attorney, A. G. Hays, and in order to open a test case forced Chase to buy a Mercury from him as he stood on the street corner. Mencken was then arrested at the order of Chase, charged with violating the Massachusetts statute forbidding the sale of obscene literature.

Quote, Justice James P. Parmenter, Municipal Court of the City of Boston: Viewing the matter, then, from every phase including the language used, the nature of the article and its effect on the reader, and the general make-up of the magazine and its distribution, I find that no offense has been committed and therefore dismiss the complaint.

But the Watch and Ward Society has carried the case to the U. S. District Court of Massachusetts and a motion to dismiss has been denied. The question is: May an unofficial organization, such as the Watch and Ward Society, carry out its purpose by threatening prosecution for publications judged illegal by itself alone, thus seriously curtailing the publishers' sales?

The case is interesting, for we shall presently see whether or not a prude like J. Frank Chase can legally put a quietus on the free play of common intelligence—whether or not the Puritanism can throttle the flow of thought.

Unpopular Opinion is dedicated to the roasting of college Bulloney and the Busting of general Bancombe.

EXECUTIVE BOARD WILL NAME CONCESSIONAIRES

Concessions at athletic contests for next year will be awarded by the executive board at its regular meeting next Wednesday, according to Emil Strobeck, A. S. U. I. president. Under the system adopted by the board, applications are filed with the graduate manager before they will be acted upon by the board. Only those persons or organizations recognized by the board will be permitted to vend at athletic contests.

Ada county expects to complete its quota today. Other counties in the south are also completed, although reports are not available.

Locally, good support continues to be given. Many of those who had given before increased their subscriptions. R. C. Beach Co. signed up for $300; the Tribune $100 more; Alexanders, $50; Dr. E. L. White, $50. The entire force at Mason-Ehrman's signed up individually. Many other individual contributions were given, which are not available for publication today but will be announced tomorrow.

At Lapwal, Cuddeback and Peck the local chairmen report good progress, but definite returns are not available.

Crows In a field in sunny Spain stands a stone mortar. Crows hover around it, picking up bits of grain and chaff—cawing. Here Marcheta, in the fresh beauty of her youth, will come to pound maize. For years she will pound maize. The stone will stand up under the blows; not a dent has the muscle of three generations of women made upon it. But the crows will hurl their black gibes upon a woman aging early and bent with toil. Old Marcheta—still in her thirties. The American woman does not pound maize. But she still beats carpet; she still pounds clothes; she still pumps water. She exhausts her strength in tasks which electricity can do better, and in half the time. The high ideals of a community mean little where woman is still doomed to drudgery. But the miracles which electricity already has performed indicate but a fraction of the vast possibilities for better living and the tremendous opportunities which the future developments in electricity will hold for the college man and woman.

WILL PRESENT CANTATA THURS.

High School Glee Club Will Give "The Three Springs"

The cantata, "The Three Springs," by Paul Bliss, which will be presented by the Moscow high school Girls' Glee club next Thursday evening, May 6th, is a story of three little springs that rise high on the mountainside. They travel far from their mountain home and finally, from the tip of an ocean wave, they are drawn up by the sun's warm rays and carried back to their mountain home. This story, sung by the glee club, will be interpreted by three dancers: the white spring, by Georgia Frazier; the blue, by Katherine Collins; the gold by Ruth Green, Miss Ruth White, student at the university, is coaching the dancing. The settings for the different scenes are being arranged by Miss Dorothy Darling, also a student at the university.

In one of the scenes, little Jean Roland, a pupil of Mrs. Wm. Michael, will appear in a butterfly solo dance, assisted by 12 first grade children.

The performance, which promises to be one of interesting varieties, will take place in the university auditorium.

Fashion Hints

"The early bird catches the worm," might be changed to "the early girl catches the knickers." On Sunday morning in the sorority houses it is a case of getting up early and taking your choice. "All's fair in love and war," and possession rather than ownership is the rule. Knickers, trousers, shirts, sweaters, ties, boots, and golf hose, all are in demand. By 11 o'clock, all wardrobes are pretty well picked over.

The girl is dressed according to the time she got up. If her tie, hose, and sweater match, she was probably up by seven bells. If she has on knickers that bag where they should not, tan hose, blue tie, and green sweater, you may be sure that she was one of those unfortunates who dressed from the remnants.

"Well," said one of the girls he left behind him, "I guess I'm pretty well represented today, my tron' have gone to Genesee ridge, my shirt and tie to the Phi Delta picnic, and my boots to Moscow mountain."

It may be that extreme measures will have to be taken. Desired costumes should be hidden securely the night before by young lady picnickers. "Dibs" on particularly popular trousers or boots are many days ahead, and it is to be feared that there will be a shortage of such garments if the back to nature advocates increase.

A method of transporting du Pont explosives when the nation was young

Experience—

In no industry is experience in manufacture more essential than in the production of explosives. Physical control of the product is paramount.

DuPont has made explosives continuously for 123 years—originating or developing nearly every great forward step in explosives manufacture in this country.

Ability derived from long experience has enabled du Pont to serve industrial needs and even to anticipate those needs by originating new methods, new processes and new products.

The most efficient methods of employing modern explosives may be found in the "Blasters' Handbook"—a practical and authoritative work now being used by instructors and students in many of the leading technical institutions throughout the country. It will be sent free upon request.

LARGE AUDIENCES HEARD SINGERS ON TRIP SAYS CURRIE

Glee Club Returns Friday From Four-Day Northern Tour

ACCOUNT OF THE TRIP Sings at Courthouse Dedication in Coeur d'Alene Monday Afternoon

The Idaho Glee club returned Friday, April 30, from what was described by Ray Currie, manager, as a very successful trip. The tour which began Monday, April 26, included Coeur d'Alene, Spokane, Bonners Ferry, and Sandpoint.

Mr. Currie gives an account of the trip as follows: "We left at 7:40 Monday morning in a special car on the Inland Empire railroad for Coeur d'Alene. There we sang at the dedication of the court house in the afternoon. That evening, we gave our regular concert at the Coeur d'Alene high school. The next day we sang at convocations in the Lewis and Clark and North Central high schools in the morning, and then gave our program that night at the Lewis and Clark auditorium. Wednesday, we sang at Bonners Ferry high school in the morning, and put on a concert at the Rex theater that evening to a packed house. Thursday, we sang at Sandpoint high school at a special convocation in the morning and in the evening gave our regular program before a large audience at the high school.

"Echo Song" Well Liked In speaking of the reception accorded the program, he said, "At each place where we sang, we were very well received. Many favorable comments were heard concerning the songs. The number which seemed to appeal most was the 'Echo Song.' Other numbers which received much applause and were encored repeatedly were 'Listen to the Lambs,' by the club, and 'Love Call,' sang by Alice Ross, soprano, and Forest Brigham, tenor. The male quartet composed of Forest Brigham and Howard Knight, tenors, Paul Kitto, baritone, and Norman Luvaas, base, made a great hit, especially when they 'lost their Bow-Wow.' The play 'Kalinka,' starring Leah Timm, Gertrude Fleming, and Edwin Higgins, was especially well received.

Club Gets Chicken Dinner "The dance by the 'Old Fashioned Girls' and the 'Modern Tappers' presented quite a contrast. The whole skit, 'Minuet of the Minute,' was sung by Alice Ross. Old Fashioned girls were Helen Ames, Mary Murphy, Margaret Schley, Eva Jane Wilson, and Milton Ostroff. Flappers were Leah Timm, Bernice Kendall, Susanna Easley, Gertrude Fleming, and Grayce Gooding.

VANDALS WIN AND LOSE WITH W. S. C.

Errors, Slugging and Clever Baseball Features Of Weird Series

Idaho's Vandals got off to an indecisive start in the coast conference last week-end, winning one game from Washington state college 4-3 and losing a comedy of hits and errors, 11-1.

Headly hurling by Erickson and the use of a time-worn diamond trick clinched the Idaho victory in Friday's game at Pullman. The fireworks came in the ninth inning when Idaho broke a 3-3 tie for the winning score. Campbell, Vandal second sacker, drove in Baird with an infield blow when Richards, state first baseman, overthrew second base on an attempted double play.

The Cougars nearly wrecked this lead in their half of the ninth when Exley crashed a two bagger and stole third. Carl Murray, Idaho third sacker, brushed the cobwebs off an old one, however, by touching Exley with a hidden ball, to retire him and save the game.

Washington state pounded two Idaho hurlers for 13 safeties in the Saturday rout, but the Vandals outdid them by making 14 errors. Fields lasted for five innings, allowing seven hits and six runs, and was replaced by Stockdale.

Stockdale made an impressive start, fanning the first two batters, but his infield support cracked and two men scored on five errors. Exley, the chief slugger of the Cougar murderer's row, made two home runs and was robbed of another by a spectacular one-handed catch by Cameron, Idaho center fielder.

ARTESIAN WATER IS TO SUPPLY CITIES

Idaho Bureau of Mines Reports On Artesian Wells

Artesian, or underground water, is gaining in recognition in Idaho as a contamination-free source of municipal supply, according to Dr. Francis A. Thomson, dean of the University of Idaho school of mines and secretary of the bureau of mines and geology.

Evidence of this tendency among Idaho cities is given in the frequent calls made upon the bureau of mines and geology to investigate underground water conditions in various sections of the state. Already the bureau has given material aid by investigating and issuing detailed reports on artesian water supply possibilities at Pocatello, Lewiston, Moscow, and Idaho Falls.

Results of an extended survey of the ground water situation at Idaho Falls by Arthur M. Piper and Virgil R. D. Kirkman, members of the bureau of mines and geology staff, indicate favorable well-drilling conditions for a municipal water supply.
