Pledging

Pledging activities have reached their peak and have subsided again. Out of this activity were selected several hundred men and women pledges. There still are many good students on the campus who have not entered fraternities. Among those who did not become affiliated with a social group are some who did not care for that sort of activity. And, of course, there were some who were not invited to pledge.

Pledging to a fraternity is not the criterion of success in the first weeks of college life. That is desirable, to some; but there are many things greater than that. Fraternity life, necessary as it is, is not everything on the campus. There are so many other things aside from actual scholastic activity which are worthy. Nor does failure to belong to a fraternity close the doors to achievement in student organization. It is not evidence of failure. To some it has opened the way for great achievement.

To those who did not pledge there is a future and failure to be taken should not be meant as an invitation to go back to the home town or some other place, as often is the case. It means only that the right group is not on the campus, that the bunch in which the non fraternity should be identified is not here or, as in some cases, the qualities in a man or woman who have not been recognized. Pledgability exists until graduation time.

In any event, failure to "make" a fraternity should not send a student home. To those that failure is a disappointment it should be a challenge to stick out the old chin and tell the cockeyed world to come on.

The Infirmary

Health conditions on the Idaho campus have taken a brighter outlook this year, than ever before. With the refinishing and cleaning of the infirmary and the appointment of two physicians on the health board, the students can feel safe in knowing that they will be well taken care of. The infirmary is equipped to take care of minor cases of surgery, and aside from the general routine, they will have several rooms for contagious diseases, tuberculosis, and pneumonia.

Professor Rheule, new head of the department of bacteriology, will cooperate with Miss June Andrews in keeping the campus free from bacterial infection. Bacteriological examination of the university water supply is taken weekly, giving the university a feeling that it is free from an outbreak of typhoid fever.

Health captains will soon be appointed in the different house groups, and the making of first aid kits started. Miss Andrews would appreciate suggestions from the houses, as to changes or additions they desire in the first aid kits. A change that is likely will be a substitute of mercuric iodine for iodine, due to the fact that the latter is not so irritating and its properties of killing organism is as great as that of iodine.—M. D. F.

Needed: A New Tradition

The "I" club and freshmen at Idaho have a new job at hand—a job that has been waiting for some one to take it up for several years. And the "I" club and the first year class seem to be the chosen ones. The "I" club is selected because of its position of prominence on the campus, especially in the field of tradition administration. The freshman class has been selected because of its circumstance.

Attendance at freshman football games has been exceedingly listless in the last few years. Often the crowd of rooters on the bleachers is hardly larger than the teams on the field.

To the long list of traditions at Idaho, old and new, should be one which makes freshman attendance at freshman football games compulsory. Rook players of today are varsity men of tomorrow—the men who make the name Vandal heard throughout the northwest and the length of the coast. They are deserving of support, not only from their own classmates, but from the student body as a whole. But freshmen should be prevailed upon to go out and root for every contest. It would mean the birth of a spirit, which, carried throughout four years, would multiply a hundred-fold.

THE COFFEE HOUSE

By Edwin Rule

After seeking 'round the compass,
 After searching thru the atlas,
 I have found what I have wanted.
 Found a nest to love and cherish;
 Found a place, however garish,
 That's the token, so it's wanted,
 Of success.

'Tis an attic, close and musty.
 Walls are bare and bleak and dusty;
 But it's long what I have wanted.
 Shifting shadows, snaky, slender,
 Shuffle 'gainst a non-offender.
 Yes, I know the place is haunted—
 By success.

Other men in other ages
 Flew from garret to front pages;
 I have found what I have wanted.
 Found a place of neat seclusion
 With no danger of intrusion.
 This is basic, so it's wanted,
 For success.

Now that the Dempsey-Tunney blood-letting contest is over, it occurs to us that very few of the Idaho people were giving it much attention anyway. Most of us have entered on a good, stiff, nine-months fracas of our own.

One advantage the academic contender has over the pugilist is that the former can do his training during the bout. If it's not a knockout at the end of the first six or twelve weeks, the student stands a fair chance of getting the final decision.

Of course, the student has only one opponent. That is his own self. If he can whip, coerce, or condition and train that elusive phantom of himself, that which some students never really find until late in their college life, he can be certain of conquering that which is merely objective.

Every instructor is in the student's own corner, not in that of the opposition. And that counsel which comes between rounds—in the hall, on the campus, in the coffee-house (not the column)—is to be most cherished.

The coils are still close enough at Idaho so that the spark of acquaintance and friendship easily crosses them.

Secretary Mellon has assured President Coolidge that Europe can pay. Whether at present this is an economic truth or not, it may well be sound psychology. The will to do a difficult thing often creates the capacity for doing. The franc should cease to blush.

Senator Borah, of whom much was expected, was a disappointment to no one. Many who heard the Senator for the first time came away visibly impressed by the stamp of a clean-cut, vigorous, and forceful personality which expressed itself with the conviction and eloquence of a Phillips.

Let us hope that no one describes the Senator as "dynamic". To be dynamic in these days is to be common. As Stephen Leacock remarks in substance about this word, everything in the United States is dynamic. "Do you know Mr. Zowie? I tell you, he's a wizard, a regular dynamo." If you want to be a success in life, cultivate a dynamic personality, etc.

But a dynamo suggests certain, very rapid revolutions. Our friends across the southern boundary are probably dynamoes. When they cease to be dynamic, we may come to know them better. All this leads us to an observation about the red-blooded fellows we meet every day. A professor friend has reminded us of the physiological fact that blood is less red after it passes thru the brain.

According to the rule that emphasis in a sentence may be achieved best at the beginning or end, the announcement in Wednesday's assembly, respecting house averages was perfectly good rhetoric. However, the greater emphasis seems to have concentrated on the end.

BULLETIN BOARD

The regular meeting of the Y.M.C.A. is to be held in the U hut at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening, according to Neil Jones, vice president. Arrangements are being made for a speaker to address the meeting.

BURY THE HATCHET DANCE
 Approximately 200 couples attended the annual Bury the Hatchet dance held at the Blue Bucket Inn Saturday night. The dance, traditional on the Idaho campus marking the end of hostilities between the two classes, was an all college affair this year.

ERB WORKING TO REPEAT SUCCESS

Situation Here Similar To That at Nevada When Erb Put Out Winner

Will Charley Erb repeat with the Idaho Vandals the notable coaching success he had at Nevada university and Woodland (Calif) high school.

That question is becoming more and more the topic of the hour as the opening game of the season next Saturday draws closer and as Erb continues to drive his men at high speed on MacLean field.

Football interest on the campus has reached a record pre-season height. The situation at Idaho is somewhat similar to the one Erb faced at Nevada two years ago: new coach, new system, comparatively inexperienced material, exceedingly tough schedule. His material, however, unquestionably is considerably stronger here than it was at Nevada and this fact, with Erb's Nevada record in mind, is giving the Vandal supporters a basis for pleasant speculations.

The new mentor's record as a player is more brilliant than his coaching career thus far. He was all-Pacific-coast quarterback three times and all-American once during his football career at the University of California and he was the guiding genius of the famous Golden Bear wonder team of 1923. Except for one tie contest, the Bears won every game they played while Erb was a member of the team. After graduating from the university, Erb coaching the Woodland high school team, which won eight of 10 games that year. He also tutored the Woodland American Legion team, the latter winning the state championship.

In 1925 he became head coach at the University of Nevada and he produced a fast, fighting and altogether creditable team the first year despite a hard schedule and a limited supply of material. His team gave the Vandals a memorable scare at Boise that fall and R. L. Mathews, then Idaho coach, said of it after the contest: "It's the best coached team we've met this year."

Big English University for Mount of Olives

Jerusalem.—A $250,000 English university is to be built within the next two years on the slope of the Mount of Olives. The nucleus is the present English college in Jerusalem, also known as the Anglican Bishops' mission. The enlarged scope of the institution will be modeled after the American university at Beirut.

The Meraat el Shurk, the anti-Zionist Arab newspaper, welcomes the proposed English university at Jerusalem, declaring that it will counteract the influence of the Hebrew university and will tend to revive Arab learning and Arab nationalism.

Keen Policewoman
London.—Commandant Mary Allen, co-founder of the women's police service, has become known as Europe's "flying cop," since she is one of the most traveled police officials in the world. When possible, she makes her trips by airplane. She thinks nothing of flying to Paris, Berlin or other points in one day, on some important case in which a woman is involved, and back to London the next. The setting up of a women's international police commission was due primarily to efforts of Commandant Allen.

GERMAN STUDENT SEES PROSPERITY FOR IDAHO FARMS

Felix von Bethman Hollweg Arrived Wednesday to See Ag School

HAS HOME IN BERLIN

Is Son of Former Chancellor; Acquainted With Exiled Kaiser

Felix von Bethmann Hollweg, son of the former German chancellor, and last survivor of his family, came to confer with members of the University of Idaho agricultural school on matters of diversified farming, and left Thursday for other agricultural regions of the northwest.

He spent Wednesday in going over the university farms and tracts and pronounced them to be some of the finest he had seen. He observed the tracts with a view of picking up information to aid in his 5,000 acre tract near Berlin. On his farm he produces oats, potatoes, rye, and lumber. He also maintains a brick factory on his farm.

Although he knew the kaiser, and his older brother was a classmate of the crown prince, the young man seems unusually democratic and smiles frequently when he talks. He is 25 years of age and is nearly six feet four inches in height.

He told the plan of the Germans to build Germany to its former condition again and told of the mortgage plan which was put on all farm land. "I pay each year and will pay for the next 30 years more than $1500 as interest on the mortgage on my property, which I never got. Farm land isn't worth anything, one buys buildings and the land is thrown in."

Mr. Hollweg spent the first part of the week at Spokane and then at Washington State college. He has been studying brick production methods as well as agriculture and visited several northwestern plants on his tour. He has traveled quietly.

His passport expires in November, but he plans to have it extended until the first of the year. He will continue his trip to the coast and will return in time to see congress in session during December before he returns to his native land he said.

WILL HOLD PEP RALLY WEDNESDAY

Students Will See Vandal Grid Team in Action

Idaho students will have an opportunity this fall to see their team in action prior to the opening game of the season, and then to follow the development of the eleven by attending practice once a week.

On the occasion of the first big pep rally of the year, to be held at MacLean field, Coach Charley Erb will hold the first open practice, and the Vandals will perform before the student body, faculty, and other interested fans. Thereafter open practice will be held on Wednesday afternoons throughout the season. The remainder of the time spectators will be barred, except those having special permission.

Open practice is a new thing to present students of the university. During the last few years the Vandals have performed publicly only during actual games. Secret work is now common throughout the country and virtually every college in the northwest conference is working "behind fences" but most of them observe the Wednesday afternoon visitors' day plan.

The first pep rally is in preparation for the opening game against Montana State college here Saturday.

FINAL GLEE CLUB TRYOUT WEDNESDAY

Need for at Least 15 New Voices Assured by Prof. Bangs, Director

Final tryouts for the university glee club will be held Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at List hall. Fifteen places are left vacant this year due to graduation, according to Prof. E. O. Bangs, head of the department of music at the university.

Tenor voices above all will be needed for the club, while in the women's section there are but few vacancies. All types of voices will be given trial and all selections will be given on a merit basis, the professor said.

Several tryouts have been held to the present time although no announcements have been made by the director.

SENIORS TO CHOOSE OFFICERS THURSDAY

Last Year Men and Women to Outline Semester's Plans

The senior class will hold an election of officers for the first semester Thursday evening, September 30 at 7:30 o'clock in room 311 of the Administration building. It has been announced.

Plans for the coming semester will be discussed. Richard Dresser, president of the junior class last semester has not returned to school and a temporary chairman will probably be appointed.
