

VANDALS VS. COUGARS

The Vandals and the Cougars from across the state line clash this afternoon in the 1926 version of the football rivalry which has waged unceasingly for more than 30 years.

Today is the day of days at Idaho. It will see one of the bitterest football struggles within the memory of the fans who will watch the clash this afternoon.

The team will trot on the field in perfect physical condition. But better than that, it will carry with it a great fighting spirit—greater perhaps than any that any team has felt in many years.

Reports have been circulated telling of a strange malady among Washington State players and coaching staff. It resembles ptomaine poisoning, physicians say.

The university student body and the citizens of Moscow are imbued with the spirit of the times. They have absorbed that electric spark which was generated shortly before the game with the Oregon Aggies.

Idaho must win today. It cannot do otherwise, when every thing is favorable to victory. But, should there be defeat instead of victory, the loss can be minimized with the knowledge that Idaho has won, even though the score card shows defeat.

Vandal Spirit Reaches Its Highest Peak as Yearly Clash Nears

A determined squad of Idaho Vandals await the attack of the horde of Washington State Cougars on MacLean field at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

With a week of practice since the Aggie game, Coach Charles Erb and his "Tornado in Idaho red" are resting easily before they blow onto the field to deliver the greatest football offensive of the year.

Every first string player, with the possible exception of Leonard Beall, rangy end, is in perfect physical condition, Beall is nursing an injured hand, but it is believed this will not slow him materially this afternoon.

Either "Red" Jacoby, who has developed into a triple threat field general under Charlie Erb's tutelage, probably will plan and carry through the attack.

FRANK POWERS

THREAT BACKFIELD MAN, who probably will start at half today. He will call signals, however, if "Red" Jacoby is taken from the game.

COACH CHARLES ERB

FORMER MEMBER of Smith's wonder team, who has coached the Vandals to meet Hollingberry's Cougars this afternoon. Erb reported to Idaho this spring, and this is his first production.

IDAHO YEARLINGS DEFEATED 9 TO 7

W. S. C. Frosh Score Touchdown in Last Quarter To Win

Putting over a touchdown in the last few minutes of play the Washington State college yearlings upset the dope bucket by defeating the baby Vandals 9 to 7 at Pullman Friday afternoon.

The Vandals did not look like the team that defeated the Cheney normal aggregation here last Saturday. After the first half the yearlings played loose ball and were unable to make consistent gains through the Cougar line.

Idaho Gains Lead After outplaying the W. S. C. eleven during the first half, which ended, 7 to 0 for Idaho, the yearlings were outdone by Washington in nearly all parts of the game.

Fraternities and Sororities Vie for Prizes for Decorated Houses

This weekend marks one of the biggest events of the year at Idaho—both on the social calendar and the football schedule, with approximately 10,000 visitors here for Homecoming day.

The annual clash between Idaho and Washington State here this afternoon at 2 o'clock is the center of attraction for the students, as well as returning graduates and other visitors.

Various programs of entertainment were followed out by the group houses last night and numerous entertainments are scheduled for tonight.

Competition in the stunt contest between Idaho and Washington State this year promises to be strong and the stunts will be judged between halves at the game this afternoon.

Group houses have entered into the spirit of decorating the buildings so as to convey "welcome" to the visitors, according to the committee in charge.

TRAFFIC RULES ARE ANNOUNCED

Private Cars Not To Be Allowed on Campus Saturday

A crowd of ten thousand people is expected to attend the Homecoming game here Saturday. A large per cent of this number, it is believed, will come in cars and special traffic regulations on and about the campus are announced.

Control of traffic has been placed in the hands of the university cadet corps and they will be assisted by the city police.

Private cars are not to be allowed on the campus the day of the game, according to the regulations. (Continued on page five)

HOMECOMING GAME IS TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL CLASSIC

Idaho Has Won Ten of Contests to Washington's Sixteen

TEAM IS DETERMINED

"Red" Jacoby probably Will Start at Quarter; Powers In Reserve

Thirty-two years ago Idaho played her first football game against Washington State college and since that time the Vandals and the Cougars have battled 27 times, with Idaho winning 10 games and W. S. C. 16, and one tie score of 4 to 4 in 1908.

With the coming of the annual grid clash between the two bitter rival teams, school spirit and enthusiasm on this campus has always reached its highest peak for the whole year. According to old timers, this year has been marked thus far by greater spirit and pep than ever before.

Halls and classrooms have recently become scenes of pep rallies. It is rather strange for one to go to class and have the instructor lead the students in "Come Fellows Now and Join the Chorus", or to hear Idaho yells resounding throughout the administration building halls, but it is being done.

To say that the game with W. S. C. last year was close and exciting is weak. A score of 7 to 6 in favor of the Vandals tells the story better than words. This year's game is expected to be a close one. (Continued on page five)

DARWIN BURGHER

A CONTRIBUTION from last year's freshman squad, who probably will start at half today, Burgher is a plunging driving threat who should be a great yardage gainer today.

IDAHO LIVESTOCK WINS AT SHOW IN PORTLAND

University Entries Take Four Grand Championships at Exhibition

SECURE MANY FIRSTS

Two Head of Percheron Thoroughbreds Were Purchased at Sale

University of Idaho livestock, shown at the Pacific International Livestock exhibition at Portland this week, made heavy winnings again this year, according to incomplete reports received here Friday. Idaho stock won four grand championships and several first places at the show, the report states.

For the first time Idaho broke into the grand championship class for hogs, winning grand champion single fat barrow, of all ages and breeds. Idaho also had the winning pen of three barrows. The single grand champion barrow was a Berkshire and the pen was Duroc-Jerseys. In addition, the fat hogs sent from Idaho won practically every first in classes in which they were entered, the report states.

Grand Champion Wethers
The grand champion fat wether in sheep was awarded to the Idaho entry, which was a Southdown lamb. Out of thirteen Pacific International shows, the grand champion wether for ten times has been owned by the University of Idaho.

A number of first places and a grand championship was won by fat steers entered by the university. In the final lineup for grand champion award there was an Idaho Shorthorn, a Hereford shown by the Baldwin estate of California, and an Aberdeen Angus, owned by Congdon and Battles of Yakima. These were the breed champions after all prizes were awarded in their respective classes, and herd champions came together for final award of the grand championship. Three judges were to place the grand champion, but because of the evenly matched entries, each judge picked a different steer. A new judge was selected, who awarded the championship to the Yakima steer.

Stallion Wins
The Shire stallion, owned by the university, took grand championship in his breed, and the two-year-old mare bred by the university was first in her class as a two-year-old and junior champion.

Two head of Percheron thoroughbreds were purchased by the university at the sale following the show. One is a three-year-old mare that was grand champion of the show, and the other is a young stallion, winner of his class.

No report was received regarding the placing of a number of sheep and dairy cattle entered in the show. At the show the university stock competed with entries from other agricultural colleges and privately owned herds in the northwest and also from the middle west.

STAFF IS WORKING ON YEAR BOOK

Two New Features Are To Be Added To Idaho Annual

To make it a true gem, symbolic of student life on the Idaho campus, a book of color, originality, and progressiveness, is the aim of the Gem of the Mountains staff which has already commenced work on the 1926-27 Idaho year book.

The cover of the annual will be selected from a large variation of samples sent to Leland Chapman, editor, by designers who are reputed to be the best in the west. In addition to the sections that have made up the annual in previous years, the staff members are contemplating two new sections that will add to the attraction and size of the book. The snapshot division will be revised and built up so that it will be one of the major features of the publication. Individual students of the architectural department will plan and draw the designs to be used throughout the annual.

"The quality of the new features will not be made known to the student body until the date of completion, and it is thought that the publication to whom the book is to be dedicated will be withheld until that date," said Leland Chapman, editor.

With the aid of an efficient staff, the cooperation of the student body, and with plenty of time in which to work on the construction of the publication, it is expected that the 1926-27 Gem of the Mountains will be a volume that everyone will be proud of, were the sentiments expressed by Leland Chapman, and George Young, associate editor.

Clair Reem, business manager, and Leon Weeks, assistant, have started gathering advertisements, and state that so far they have been successful in their endeavors.

A sheet steel bungalow has been designed which affords both exterior and interior protection against fire. With a photo-electric cell and electrical "eyes," a small glass instrument is able to measure and weigh the stars.

Frosh Take Strong Measures to Guard Against Vandalism

Strenuous measures were adopted by the Idaho frosh this week in an endeavor to keep the campus free from red paint. Spirit on the campus began to reach its peak Monday and work was started at once by the frosh to build the biggest fire ever seen here—but they forgot to place their guards that night and most of the trash collected went up in smoke. The following night several red 'W's were found on the campus and then the frosh called on their reserves to guard the campus and fire.

All roads leading to the campus were barred and no car was allowed to enter the campus until the guards ascertained whether or not there was paint in them. Guards were stationed at intervals along the streets and on the "U" tank.

Flood lights, mounted on the bleachers for the use of Erb's squads during practice, were utilized by the frosh and the campus was constantly being swept by these lights.

A glance out across the campus, with many small fires burning and men pacing back and forth in the dark, presented a military aspect.

FRENCH TALKS ON NAVAL ARMAMENT

Idaho Congressman Addresses Students on Problems of Defense

"The problem of keeping abreast of the times with a modern navy, which is gaged to draw a line as to national defense, and yet avoid competition of other nations, is the problem which is facing the United States in regard to its naval affairs at the present time," Representative Burton L. French told the University of Idaho assembly Wednesday morning.

"Can countries of the world, the United States in particular, control a sufficient navy for the common defense of the country, and yet eliminate the element of competition? This was one of the problems which came before the limitation of armament conference in 1921, and is not settled by any means at the present time."

"At what point to draw the line is a phase of the problem which is causing the most trouble for nations, and it is here that America can well afford to take the lead, and it can do it and still keep abreast of marine progress of the time."

One Day's Example
Representative French took for an example, that if the forces of law of the country were to be made momentarily halted for a period of 24 hours and that all crimes committed during this period would not be punishable, what would the ordinary citizen do. Speculation as to whether the citizens would abide by the laws would be rife, with many expressing their opinions that they would barricade themselves in their homes during the period.

"One of the duties of the congress is to keep in close touch with foreign affairs and the navy, with a view to perceiving the cloud on the horizon, and to contrasting our navy with that of other countries. America must keep abreast of the times in her navy and yet have a sufficient defense."

Representative French was originally scheduled to address the assembly a week ago on Navy Day, but "electioneering" in many parts of the Panhandle district kept him from Moscow. He was introduced to the assembly by President A. H. Upham.

More than 1,000 residents of Rytton, England, were driven from their homes in the middle of the night by dense masses of fleas, which disappeared the next day.

Blue Bucket Out Thursday; Articles by Coach Erb and Mix

This number is the first one issued under the new organization. The present plan of organization is like that of literary magazines of other leading colleges and universities.

Appointments to the Blue Bucket are: Sarah Trousdale, Arthur Ensign, Hal Bowen, Lucille Anderson, Helen Veasy, Pauline Mitchell, Eva Anderson, Helen Buckingham, Victor Panek, Helen Kerr, Alice Kennedy, Theiborne Moore, Max Landon, and Kenneth Barclay.

SALE OF ANNUAL BEGAN TUESDAY

Spurs to Solicit Subscriptions for Gem of the Mountains

The subscription drive for the Gem of the Mountains, annual year book, was launched Tuesday evening through the Spurs. The Gem this year promises to be Idaho's best year book, according to Leland Chapman, editor.

In the past the Intercollegiate Knights have handled the subscription drive but this year the Spurs have taken it upon themselves to canvass the houses and dormitories for subscriptions. Representatives in the organization from each of the sororities will handle their own houses while the fraternities will be apportioned among the members.
