Both debates will probably be on a no-de cision basis, but an audience vote may be taken. After the speeches there will be a 20-minute open forum discussion in which the speakers will answer any questions asked by the audience. According to Professor Davidson, this promises to be the most interesting feature of the debate, because the question is one that vitally interests citizens of Idaho.

Immediately after this debate work will start on the Idaho-Washington State college-Whitman triangular debate that will be held on January 13. The women's team will debate Washington State college and Whitman on the question of a national marriage and divorce law on January 15. The frosh team will meet the Washington State college frosh and Lewiston State normal teams on January 21, the win ners to enter in a debate to be held in Spokane.

With three debates scheduled with Washington State college in the two weeks immediately following the Christmas vacation, Idaho debaters will have a full program for the time immediately after school starts again.

MUCH INTEREST IN RELIGIOUS WORK

"Service Sheet," by "Y" Secretary, Shows Many Students Give Help

Many students are interested and more are active in religious affairs, according to a "service sheet" that has been compiled by Bob Davidson, general Y. M. C. A. secretary. The sheets were distributed throughout the various group houses on the campus. One hundred fifty have been re turned and have been turned over to the representatives of the various denominations.

The interests of students vary from visiting the sick to singing Christmas carols and assisting foreign students in English, says the report. The church has the greatest appeal with a large number of students singing in the choir, teaching Sunday school classes and attending young people's groups. Committee work on the cam-pus has a wide appeal and club work among the boys and girls down town draws the interest of many. Still others are interested in forums, pag-eants, and gospel teams.

"Hell Week"

There is developing on campuses of colleges throughout the United States a quiet rebellion against the so-called "Hell week" observed by Greek letter societies and other organizations in shaping their pledges for membership. The move has been furthered by the collegiate press of the nation, and now seems to hold repulsiveness. It has brought forth the charge that such physical manifestations are but relics of days when ancients tortured young men to test them for physical prowess.

Along with this outcry against fraternity tradition is closely linked one which opposes "brutal bullying of freshmen by sophomore groups and upperclassmen at large." It is argued by proponents of this latter move that freshmen are men, and have a right to be treated as such; furthermore that public hazing spectacles, brutal, asinine, and humiliating treatment of first year victims is mighty poor business.

The move has gained such headway at Cornell that next year freshmen and sophomores will have to go without their annual mudslinging fiesta. The student council has abolished the spring mud rush. The Cornell Alumni News comments on the action as follows: "Maybe the upperclassmen, who control the council, are getting blase and little-gentlemanly; maybe the mad rush was a silly performance, anyway." All over the nation college papers have condemned the so-called tradition, the center of which is maltreatment of first year men, both in fraternities and on the campus.

This seems to be a move which has taken several years to get into action and which, now, is seizing ancient traditions by the briskets and relegating them to the trash heap, where, no doubt they belong. It is a move which has accomplished the general enlightenment of college students on things not confined specifically to scholastic activity in the colleges. And it is probably a move which eventually will spell the abolishment of the much talked about "Hell week" unique with fraternities.

"Hell week" is the carrying over from ancient civilization a practice which seems without justification, when viewed in terms of today. Since modern man is attempting to shift his accent from scalping to science, it is hard to see why such a practice is allowed on modern day campuses. Assumption of the position by the frosh does little to develop in him the principles of fraternalism; but on the other hand, leaves with him a memory which is far stronger than the ritual of formal initiation. Ask him in later years what he remembers most; and almost without exception the former neophyte will say that "Hell week" stands out predominantly in his mind. If this is true, then, it seems that the impress iveness and subsequent value in initiation into a fraternty is lost. From that phase of the week which relies upon strong application of "the big stick" for impressiveness, it is inconceivable that any person would admit that he was benefited. And, without the benefit in a material or spiritual way, nothing but tradition can be used as an excuse for the practice. And tradition also leads to fossilization in some instances.

It is extremely gratifying that "Hell week" has gone so far as it has on the Idaho campus. Most fraternities have fallen in line with the more enlightened colleges of the nation and have abolished all but "inside" demonstrations. In many groups here, even the "inside" practice is growing obsolete. As a result of this, groups of neophytes parading on the campus in moonlight, going through all sorts of terrifying antics, such as diving headlong through rows of bushes, blindfolded and racing across the campus, notwithstanding the fact that trees and other objects often are in the path, and similar practices, have almost disappeared.

This is all good; and all the powers that control such things should rejoice in the fact that they have at least started the trend in the right 10 18 18 19 direction.

Northwestern Bars Women to Protect Men

EVANSTON, Ill.,- (By New Student Service)—Women are storming some co-educational institutions, to the dismay of college authorities. Northwestern university has taken steps to defend itself against feminine encroachment. A new law has been passed, according to Dean, Raymond A. Kent, providing that there must be 450 men for every 350 women. The action was taken, he said, "in order to increase the professional atmosphere of Northwestern, and to protect the men." Oberlin college has taken steps to attract more men to the campus.

The University of Minnesota need not worry about the necessity for con-ducting a "More and Better Men" contest for some time, according to the registrar's office. There are about twice as many men at Minnesota as women this year.

Thou Shalt Not Smoke, Eleventh Commandment H. Hartley's decision is needed on the H. Hartley's decision is needed on the entire building program. The proj-For Women at U.S.C.

"Thou shalt not smoke!" is the eleventh commandment recently put into effect at the University of Southern California, by an edict of Rufus von Kleinsmid, president, who has decreed that there shall be no smoking either in the halls of sorority houses or in any other house approved as a student residence for women by the committee on student welfare or at, any student function under the auspices of the University.

Furthermore, the student welfare committee has voted that it will cooperate with the president, although the new regulation is the strictest in any college in the United States, and sorority girls there are indignant.

Realizing, however, that the ruling is sever, President von Kleinsmid has confer with members of the faculty and, if the ordinance is deemed unfair, it may be repealed. Leniency will not be tolerated if the law is put into effect, for the president has decreed that any woman caught smoking after the rule has been finally decided just will be immediately suspended.-Minnesota Daily.
