Beta Theta Pi virtually clinched the championship of "B" league by the victory over Sigma Nu Tuesday evening in the first game of intramural basketball played since the schedule was suspended on account of the high school tournament. As the tilt had many bearings on the first place position play was close and hard fought. Many times during both halves the scores of both teams were within one and two points of each other and several times the count was tied. The consistent accurate passing of Beta Theta Pi won the contest in the last quarter and her quintet was six points in the lead at the final gun, the score being 22-16. Brimhall, Beta, was high point gatherer with eight tallies. Dielh, Sigma center, was the outstanding performer for his squad, accounting for four points.

DRAMA READING WINS AUDIENCE

Sarah Truax Albert Reads "The Silver Cord" in Masterful Way

"The Silver Cord" the play read by Sarah Truax Albert Tuesday night in the University auditorium is a recent success on Broadway.

The theme of the play is that the mother is a human vampire. She has trained her sons to believe that she is the center of their universe and has allowed them no chance to develop any individuality. One son is strong enough, with the help of his wife, to break away, but the other succumbs to his training and remains with his mother.

The title of the play is taken from the last chapter of Ecclesiastes. "Or even the silver cord be loosened or the golden bowl be broken, or the pitcher be broken at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern," the silver cord is the bond between the mother and her sons.

Mrs. Albert did not attempt to dramatize the play. She merely set it down to read it to her audience. Only in two instances did she attempt to interpret the action: when Hester became hysterical, and near the end of the play when the mother is losing her hold on her son, David. This showed the audience that she was capable of interpreting all the parts of the play.

The quality of her voice was remarkable, having been often compared to Jane Cowles, the great American interpreter of Shakespearean feminine roles.

Mrs. Albert read the play exactly as it is being produced on Broadway, and any cutting would certainly have weakened the force of the play.

Undoubtedly, Mrs. Albert's success was greatly due to her personality. A dramatic interpretation was not necessary to portray each part vividly. By an informal reading she held a grip on her audience for three hours.

LEWIS NAMED HEAD LAFAYETTE COLLEGE

EASTON, Pa., (IP)—Dr. William Mather Lewis, president of George Washington University, has accepted the position of president of Lafayette college here to succeed Dr. John Henry MacCracken, whose resignation took effect on October 1, 1926. Dean Donald B. Prentice has been acting as president this year. Doctor Lewis will take up his new duties next September.

Lawyers Redeem Lost Honor; Ag Scoffs Hushed at Smoker

On Friday, January 14, the Ags issued a challenge. The Lawyers accepted, and bet on the result. For once the lawyers paid and paid, and paid.

Wednesday evening, March 16, shamed-faced lawyers could be seen sidling towards the U-hut. At the same time hordes of "Ags" proudly strode up to the door and trampled in as if they owned the building. What a party it was. Brain entertaining brawl! The lawyers had come forth from their murky, smoke laden dens to pay their debt to the future sons of nature.

The lawyers wrestled and the Ags scoffed the wily efforts of the bookworm. The lawyers boxed and the Ags laughed at the hitting of the tongue lashers. The lawyers enacted a play, "The Trial of Miss Amie Sample" and the Ags paid tribute to brain. The lawyers produced ice cream, cake and smokes and the Ags thawed out and the brain versus brawn feud was over once more.

PLAN BUILDING OF MORMON SEMINARY

District President Confers Here; Select Site On University Avenue

Plans for erection of a Mormon church-seminary near the University of Idaho campus took a step forward Thursday when President W. R. Sloan of Portland was in conference with J. Sessions, Samuel Wesley Williams, who graduated from Ohio Wesleyan in 1852, has just passed his 99th birthday.

General plans for the building are still indefinite," Mr. Sessions said, "although the original plan called for completion of the seminary before start of the school year next fall. The building will offer church opportunities for members of the sect both in Moscow and on the campus, and will, in addition, provide a social center."

Exact features of the building are as yet undecided, although it is understood that approximately $75,000 will be spent on the combined church and seminary. No architect has been employed to the present time, Mr. Sessions said, although it plans under preparation at the present time and approved by church authorities, work will begin immediately.

First action toward the project was purchase of the A. S. Lyon property at 429 University avenue, a corner lot which extends eastward for more than 800 feet and contains more than 10 acres of ground. Price of the purchase, made last month, was not made public by officials of the church. It is understood that the church plans to use part of the acreage for recreational purposes.

Approximately 100 Latter Day Saint members are in Moscow or are attending the university, Mr. Sessions declares. The majority are university students.

AQUATIC MEET IS SCHEDULED TONIGHT

Little Interest Has Been Shown for Intramural Events, Says Porter

The intramural swimming meet which was postponed from March 4, will be held Friday night at 7:30 o'clock in the natatorium. According to Horace Porter, who is in charge of arrangements for the event, little interest has been shown by many of the group swimmers.

Very few swimmers have made evident their intention to enter the various events in the aquatic program. It is however expected that representatives of the various fraternities will be present Friday night and make the meet a real contest. Although a cup will not be presented to the winning team, points will be given toward the trophy to be presented to the fraternity or group house having the greatest number of victories in intramural activities. Another meet similar to the one to be held Friday night will take place some time in May so it is well worth while of swimmers to continue practice.

The meet is to begin at 7:30 o'clock sharp Friday night, all contestants are urged to be at the natatorium at that time" says Horace Porter. All spectators will be admitted free.

READER PRESENTS BROADWAY PARTS

Sarah Truax Albert, Noted Actress, Gives Assembly Program

Selections from a general synopsis of "Broadway," the first and biggest New York stage success during the past year and which had its premier run in September, were given to students of the university Wednesday morning at general assembly by Sarah Truax Albert, reader and actress of national fame.

The play deals with the rivalry between two New York bootleggers, and the scene is laid in the back-room of a night club cabaret. Mrs. Albert read selections from the opening act, which depicted the atmosphere of the cabaret and the surroundings under which the law-breaking went on.

Following reading of the play, Mrs. Albert gave a monologue, "A Society Woman at a Prize Fight." She was introduced by President A. H. Upham.

Mrs. Albert is spending several weeks in the Spokane district and made her third visit to the University of Idaho campus. She read Sidney Howard's "The Silver Cord" before a large audience at the university auditorium Tuesday evening.

FOUR TO ATTEND SPUR SESSIONS

Organization Will Hold National Convention at Seattle

Helen Taylor, Norma Geddes, Marilvina Goldsmith, and Florence Schnoke will attend the national Spur convention to be held at Seattle, April 1 to 3. This is the first convention to be held by this organization. Problems common to a new organization will be worked out and definite policies established.

Spur organization was started at the University of Montana and has expanded to most of the northwestern universities. Idaho chapter was installed in 1924. The newest chapter to be located was installed at Oregon Agricultural college during February.

EDUCATION GROUP PLEDGES TWO MORE

Lola Gamble and Helen Anderson Taken By Pi Lambda Theta

Pi Lambda Theta, honorary education sorority, announces the pledging of Lola Gamble, Moscow, and Helen Mabel Anderson, Moscow. These two pledges will be initiated into the organization at the same time of initiation of the pledges announced last week.

Both of these people have had teaching experience and high scholarship. Miss Anderson is also a member of the Spanish club. Miss Gamble has produced plays which have been presented during the summer session under the direction of the dramatic department. She is also active in debating.

A $50,000 clubhouse for the use of both men and women is planned at the University of Denver. The club is to be financed under the supervision of students with the aid of the alumni.

Frosh and 'I' Men Go Round and Round Over Cap Question

The seventeenth of March has come—and more power to St. Patrick and the "I" men!

At 8 o'clock Thursday morning, the campus was already dotted with green. Duffal frosh, no longer able to hide their identity, were seen flaunting their green caps, which they must wear from March 17 to campus day which comes in May.

"I" men were "on the job" at the campus steps to remind frosh of their status on the campus. Shout of "Hey, sonny, where's your cap?" followed by the sound of paddles diligently applied, were common.

A typical sight of the day was a misguided member of the class of '40, without his class insignia, desperately reaching for the cap. At first it appeared that he was out for track, but when two husky "I" men, armed with the symbols of their office, loomed on the horizon the reason for his haste was apparent.

IDAHO RANKS LOW IN STUDENT FEES, SURVEY DISCLOSES

Probably Charges Less Per Student Than Any West University

OREGON IS HIGHEST

Costs Students Here Average of $30.12 Per School Year

Idaho collects less per student for educational purposes than any of the seven institutions of university rank in the west with the exception of University of Washington, according to a survey made by Dr. Arnold Bennett, president of the University of Oregon and printed in the Oregon Voter. A note by the editor remarks regarding the Washington charges that these "must be underestimated," as they are less than one-third of those charged for the years of 1923-24.

Fees per student enrollment at Idaho for last year were $30.12, as compared with the University of Oregon, which collected $83.10, the highest amount of any institution represented in the survey. University of California ranks second from the top, with a total collection $63.67 per student. Other universities collected as follows: University of Nevada, $41.33; University of Arizona, $41.78; State universities, average, $17.71.

That Idaho's cost per student is lower than in many other institutions of university rank is substantiated by a report of the federal bureau of education. Of 72 institutions, all but 9 required students to pay in registration or tuition fees amounting from $10 to $250 per year. Only seven out of the 72 schools did not charge any registration fee and one of the seven thus classified.

WILL ADDRESS ENGLISH CLUB

Jean Gros, of the Marlonettes, Will Talk at Meeting

Jean Gros, of the Marlonettes, will grant a special audience to the English club Monday afternoon, March 23. The reception will be held immediately following the afternoon performance.

According to Dr. George Morey Miller, Mr. Gros is an entertaining speaker. He has been trained on the legitimate stage, and has taken part in the spoken drama. His career began with the advent of Sarah Bernhardt in France. His father managed Miss Bernhardt's tour, and it was at this time that Jean Gros first appeared in her company. Later he came to America as a member of the supporting cast.

His interest in puppets has been a life-long. It is expected that he will speak on "The Growth of Puppetry," or "Reminiscences of Sarah Bernhardt."

DEBATE-MANAGER FAVORS DECISION

Becher, in English Journal Article, Believes Audience Should Judge

In an article written by Edmund T. Becher, student debate manager here published in the March edition of the English Journal, the author gives a well-rounded argument on why the audience should decide in matters of forensic competition.

Mr. Becher is a veteran debater at the university, and is managing the debating teams for this year. He has debated when decisions were given by picked judges; he has competed in non-decisional debates, and he has experienced the value of audience-decision debates.

In his article published in the English Journal, he argues that even if there is prejudice shown by the audience, the decision is more valuable to the debater because of it. He learns to talk to the entire audience and learns to try and convince the audience instead of the judges. Mr. Becher maintains that this method of debating better prepares the speaker for the situations he will meet in later life. He also says in his article that to have debates judged by one or three critics is an artificial process, and by having an audience decision tends to create an interest among all those present.

BOARD TO MAKE STUDY CHANGES

Dr. A. H. Upham Will Leave Here Sunday

President A. H. Upham will leave Sunday for Pocatello, where he will attend a meeting of the state board of education and university regents at the southern branch. Proposed curricula changes will be considered.

Governor H. C. Baldrige will attend the meeting. It is expected that the site for the proposed $90,000 administration building at Albion Normal school will be selected by the board of education at this time.

GETS "STRAIGHT A" GRADES

Frances Gallett, Boise, a freshman was given A grades exclusively for the first semester. Her name was omitted from the list published recently through a typographical error.

It is considered unusual that a freshman is given these grades, and only one other "rook" was included in the list prepared by Ella Olesen, registrar.

"Solo Day" Big Event In Life of Senior at Practice House

There are solos and solos, violla, soprano, tenor, and piano, but one of the most eventful of solos is the "solo day" at the university home ec. practice house, when one lone senior plays solitaire at the household routine.

The breakfast, as a rule goes smoothly enough. The waffles are hot and tender, the coffee is perfect. The luncheon is worthy of four years' study of the household arts. The salad is cool, crisp and clean, the sandwiches melt in the mouth.

Now begins the real test. Earnestly the senior starts to prepare the dinner. Worried conjectures revolve in her brain as to the whereabouts of the ice man, and the refusal of the rolls to rise. At length these difficulties untangle satisfactorily. Then, wholly unexpectedly, 6 o'clock arrives.

The guests appear. The slightly worried hostess greets them with a trifle abashed. In the kitchen all the food requires attention at once. There seems to be hundreds of details to attend to.

At last, preparations completed, the hostess finds herself at the table discussing intelligently on the weather and secretly wondering if the roast is just right, and if the plates are the correct temperature.

One more solo is practically at an end.

NINE MATCHES ON TEAMS' SCHEDULE

Nine matches remain on the schedule for the men's rifle team this spring, according to Lieutenant Chas. H. Hart, coach of the team. Seven of these matches are to be shot off by March 19. Two more will be fired during April.

The teams that Idaho is shooting against this week are very widely scattered. They are located in all parts of the United States from Rhode Island to California.

Two teams from the University of Idaho, will shoot in the William Randolph Hearst Trophy match. This match will be a competition between all colleges and universities. It will be shot from April 11 to 16. A return match will be shot with the Washington State college squad sometime during the middle of April. So far this year, the University of Idaho rifle team has taken one match from Washington State, by a score of 1169 to 1145. Washington State college won the other by 16 points.

The team placed seventh in the Ninth Corps Area match recently run off. Last year Idaho placed fifth.

WOMEN DEBATERS WORK FOR MEET

Preparing for Triangular With Universities of Oregon and Washington

The women's debate squad is preparing for the triangular debate with the University of Washington and Oregon, to be held April 15.

Coach H. Carter Davidson has arranged for individual conferences with members of the squad for the coming week. The teams, consisting of two members each, will be chosen soon.

The question to be discussed is: "Resolved, that a national bureau of education should be established with a secretary in the president's cabinet."

The squad has been divided into two sections, one half taking the affirmative of the issue, and the other the negative. Each member for her tryout will present a 20-minute speech on either side of the question.

Twenty minutes will be given each speaker and 10 minutes for rebuttal and questions for each side.

The Idaho negative team will meet the University of Oregon at Eugene. The University of Washington will come here. The Idaho-Oregon debate will be a decision contest; the Idaho-Washington a non-decision.

THREE COMEDIES ON ONE-ACT PLAY PROGRAM TONIGHT

Fourth Group of Series Scores Hit With Audience Thursday Night

ARE LIVELY SKITS

Medieval Thriller Included on Bill; Presentation This Evening Ends Season

The fourth group of one-act plays to be done this year by university classes in play production under John H. Cushman, were given Thursday evening in the auditorium. Three lively comedies and a medieval thriller making up the program.

The first play was "Apartments to Let," a comedy wherein two sisters employ somewhat dubious means of renting their apartments. This play was well done by Eldora Davis, Gaymaine Gimple, Violet Spurgeon and Smith Miller.

A spoof play, "Q," taken from Stephen Leacock's "Senseless Novels" was the second of the group. It is a hilarious take-off on alleged spirit manifestations and was briskly played by Wayne Snook, Louise Lamelle, Dean Newhouse and Ryle Lewis.

"The Word Made Flesh," a sinister play based on the lives of medieval wandering miracle players, made up with appropriate costumes and set design the color play of the evening. Unusual characterizations were done by Frank Egbers, Arthur Ensign, James Dunn and Carl Platt, with Maitland Hubbard, Robert St. Clair and Burdette Belknap in minor parts.

The last play in the group was "Fisherman's Luck," a farce take-off on the kind of church bazaar in which the congregation get rid of surplus belongings by way of the fish-pond or grab-bag. This play required a large cast including Estelle Pickrel, Irene Auger, Thelma Smith, Dan McGrath, Lillian Woodworth, Pauline Brown, Robert Brown, Claire Gale and Henry Walker.

This group of plays is given under the patronage of the American Association of University Women at Idaho, the proceeds to be turned into a scholarship fund for loans to under-graduate women.

The plays will be repeated Friday evening with Elo, Matthews, Miriam Howerton, Louise McKinney and Burdette Belknap appearing in "Apartments to Let." The other casts will remain unchanged.

WINTER IN SUMMER

IT SEEMS that the ground hog whose appearance February 2 predicted six weeks more of winter is laughing at those who believe in such omens. The allotted six weeks have elapsed and still Christmas weather prevails. But it is a weird joke to play. Spring plenties have been planned and are waiting; football, baseball and basketball candidates are getting restless and all of us are wondering why there must be winter in the middle of summer.

One locally famous weather prophet can join with Mr. Ground Hog in giving us the laugh if the heretofore mythical and somewhat ridiculed "fimbul winter" were with us now.

AMERICANIZING BRITONS

A NEW York man has made provision to meet Cecil Rhodes, donor of the scholarships which bear his name, with a scholarship for English students in America. This news is extremely gratifying and comes at a time when there is a wide appeal for a better relationship with Great Britain. A group of men have been working recently to create a chair of American history in an English university. This, too, is welcome news.

Although by heritage Americans should be close to England, diversified interests and beliefs have drawn the two great countries wide apart. It is so that an Englishman, so alike an American in everything but acquired characteristics, is almost "a foreigner." His language, although fundamentally the same as the Yankees, is almost indistinguishable at times. His dress, although modeled along the same conservative lines as that of the American, also is different. It is easy for even a casual observer to distinguish between an Englishman and a Yank, often by just appearances.

This shouldn't be. Despite the fact that we withdrew from Great Britain nearly two hundred years ago, we still are pretty much English and the Englishman, truly, is pretty much American. But there is a difference, founded mainly upon lack of understanding on both sides. If anything can be done to give one a knowledge of the other's country, thereby creating a tie, both great nations will profit by it.

AIR EDUCATION

NOW comes the "university of the air." Radio scientists are predicting education by radio as a thing common as the "University Afloat" is now becoming. Under the prediction of men who have been working for several years with radio, the general public of radio fans will find it possible to become educated in several lines without moving from their easy chairs.

It is claimed that the American public has obtained considerable development in musical appreciation by radio and that the same principle can be applied to other forms of education.

This would be a boon for the college student. "Eight o'clocks," with attendant dilemma of "hitting the the deck" in the middle of the night, would hold little of their present horror if they didn't mean getting out of bed. The radio student could hook up his set and hear his lecture while in bed; and after the class was "dismissed" he could roll over and sleep until the next class.

Some genius has perfected a method of transcribing radio conversation on to dictograph records. The new college student may find this useful. Not only would such a step eliminate note taking, but it would make a perfect substitute for seminars, "bones" and nerve-wracking "bull-fests" before quizzes. The dictograph could be started during the radio lecture and the record filed away. Then, before finals, it could be brought out again for a review. Wouldn't it be great?

These scientists should continue with their work. They have a lot of support among college students.

NIGHT TIME
The sun sinks in crimson glory;
Slowly deepening shadows creep
As night with velvet fingers
Soothes a weary world to sleep.
The whip-poor-will in sorrow
Calls across the silent glen;
The mocking bird sings sweetly
Far beyond the marshy fen.
The golden queen of night time,
Rides her ancient path on high;
The leaflets whisper softly
As the night winds rustle by.
The streamlets murmur gently
As they gurgle through the vale;
The glow-worm lights the gloaming,
Flitting 'cross the misty dale.
With daytime cares forgotten,
Peace and Rest may reign supreme;
And man though old and broken,
Gains sweet happiness in dream;
And blithely on the greensward
Dancing, sings the fairy fay,
Till the golden flush of morning
Heralds dawn—another day.

WASHINGTON HAS DATING BUREAU

Clients Must Give Height, Complexion and Bridge Playing Ability

Terrors of the blind date system and the inefficiency of present methods of dating will be eliminated hereafter at the University of Washington, announcement having just been made of the establishment of a "dating bureau" there. Campus Romeos and Julietts will no longer have difficulty in finding someone with whom to go out at any particular time.

Clients of the new bureau must submit an index of their accomplishments and qualifications, such as height, complexion, ability to dance and play bridge. By using these indexes, clients may secure dates to fit the occasion as well as their personal tastes. Sponsors of the bureau state that gentlemen who "prefer blondes" will be satisfied, and the danger of asking a girl who can't dance to a ball, or a man who doesn't play cards to a bridge party will be rendered very slight.

MR. HOWARD PICKETT, NATIONALLY KNOWN ROOT BEER KING SENDS GREETINGS TO OLD COLLEGE FRIENDS:

Wenatchee, Washington Business Men's Hotel March 12, 1927

Dear friends and schoolmates: I had never dreamed that I would be the success that I am. One year ago this summer I owned and operated a small Root Beer stand at Poodunk, Ore. I netted from this stand the small profit of $1.33 1/2 per day. Then I read Horatio Alger's book, "Sink or Swim" which inspired me with the thought of something to drink, and my mind naturally turned to root beer.

Today "Pickett's Root Beer Barrels" are found on the fashionable streets of every town in the north west—from Dayton, Wash. to Arco, Idaho, from Kootenai to Oakley. My profits run up into the hundreds of dollars per day and I am a living example of "Poor and Plucky."

Friends, visit me at my stands this summer. You will all receive a hearty welcome and a glass of root beer free. Just drive your cars to the barrels. A wire stand will be attached to the door of your car and behold! ten seconds later you will have been served on this convenient affair, with foaming steins of "Pickett's Best."

With best wishes, and hoping to see your money this summer, I remain, MR. HOWARD PICKETT, B.A., S.D. (bachelor of arts in soft drinks)

P. S.—In case you haven't a door on your car, try our bar.

P. S. 2—I operate 18 stands, but will only be available at one stand at a time.

TRADITIONS AT IDAHO

This is the tenth of a series of articles detailing Idaho traditions. Additional ones will appear in The Argonaut from time to time.—The Editor.

In an edition of The Argonaut printed October 9, 1907, there is an editorial that probably had something to do in promoting the custom which developed into the present tradition of junior and senior men wearing corduroy trousers. The article is entitled, "Tradition in Pants," and is interesting from a historical standpoint, and from the style in which it is constructed. The author attempts humor—logical, considering the subject—that is suggestive of the exuberant spirit the students of old were reputed to have in trying to give the youthful institution of 15 years a collegiate atmosphere.

The editor stressed the need of having some way to distinguish upperclassmen from underclassmen, aside from that of educational achievement, and looked to custom of other colleges for a solution. In several of the larger universities at the time, upperclassmen were accustomed to wearing corduroys, so the editor of The Argonaut decided it was time they were "starting" such a tradition at Idaho.

An excerpt of his article reads, "Chicago never had any traditions up to a few years ago, but John D. got in and bought some at market price. Further in his write-up he continued, 'Imagine the feeling of one of our worthy seniors walking around in his dignity and corduroys, with the leather cuffs shining brightly. If you can, his unsettled state of feeling when he runs up against a freshman, or something worse, wearing the same style.'"

The writer concluded by summarizing his article in the form of five resolutions. He said, "Let's adopt a tradition right now which shall extend and include the lost generation."

1. Corduroys are to be found only on juniors and seniors.
2. Seniors wear corduroys with the illuminating cuffs.
3. Juniors wear corduroys without radiating cuffs.
4. Underclassmen can wear worsteds, heavy blues, calicoes, overalls, blacks, white browns, bagged or unbagged, without or with suspenders, short, long or heavy, in fact can put on anything he has, but corduroys has, but corduroys.

5. Any infringement upon these rules will mean not only the breaking of traditions, but will also mean the breaking of one's neck, and a notice that complete dismissal from all college activities. Let the seniors start the thing at once; the juniors will fall in line, and the non-corduroy men will surely eliminate."

The article indicates a tendency toward change in the habits of students, and time finds us further involved in changes. No one would write an editorial today advocating that seniors should wear corduroys with illuminated cuffs, and the editor of today would not suggest "Let's adopt a tradition," for traditions are not adopted, they are the result of accepted customs that are the outgrowth of some successful functioning. It is interesting to look into the history that forms the basis for our traditions, to test the stability of the tradition, and to note the change and progress in all things that are simultaneous with the growth of the university.

WEATHERMAN HITS TRACK ASPIRANTS

Practice Shows Men Erratic; Varsity Tryouts April 2

With the weather conditions remaining as they have been for the past week, Vandal trackmen are somewhat handicapped. During practice many erratic showings have appeared, but only a few have been displayed consistently.

April 2 Coach George Philbrook plans to have the first competitive varsity tryouts. With two weeks remaining before the distance aspirants will have a reasonable time to get into condition for their grueling trials. Sprinters, jumpers, time runners, pole vaulters, and the weight men will emphasize the technique of form during the interval.

April 9, the intramural track meet will be held. The event this year will have some keen competition as lettermen will be entered. Coach Philbrook expects to get a line on the contestants and possible new recruits.

The final varsity tryouts will take place on MacLean field, April 16. From results of this meet the coach expects to be able to pick his squad for the Spokane quadrangular meet April 23.

Although no definite forecast can be given out at this early date, Coach Philbrook expects the Vandals to come through this meet with a larger number of points than were garnered by the Idaho thinly clad last season.

COUGAR GRIDSTERS START PRACTICE

Spring Football Will Begin Despite Rain and Snow

WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE, Pullman—Delayed six days by snow and wet weather, spring football practice will positively begin at Washington State college Monday afternoon, March 21. This is the assurance of Orin E. (Babe) Hollingbery, who is now on his way from San Francisco following receipt of a wire from Athletic Director J. Fred Bohler.

Four weeks practice are slated for the Cougars under Hollingbery's supervision, although the withdrawals of regulars from college at the end of the first semester may cause the Friscan to change his mind, it has been intimated. Instead of four first-string men, eight will not be on hand when the first tryouts are called.

Joe Koenig, Captain Fritz Kramer, Bill Smith and "Ox" Hansen will be lost; via the sheepskin route, while Johnny Parkhill, end, Harry Spield, tackle, Rosy Hein, fullback and Dan Moran, half and full, dropped school at the close of the first semester to go to work.

SNOW FIGHT STOPS TORONTO CLASSES

Students of Engineering School and Medicine College Have Battle

TORONTO, Ont., (IP)—What started as a friendly exchange of snow balls between students of the engineering school and the college of medicine at the University of Toronto, ended in a furious snow battle which disrupted class attendance and resulted in numerous broken windows in university buildings. One icy mistle went through a window pane and broke up a class, the members of which left the building to join in the fight.

STRYCHNINE SPEECH CAUSES WIDE FURORE

Condemns Use of Stimulant in Athletic Contests

Coach Jeff Cravath of the University of California is reported to have said in a speech made before a high school team that a certain well-known coach gave his players strychnine between halves of football games as a stimulant. He is said to have made the statement that the strychnine acts as a powerful stimulant that seldom fails to give the players a second half punch sufficient to secure a victory.

YALE GRADUATES TO HOLD BANQUET

Thirty Thousand in Two Hundred Cities Have Been Invited

Thirty thousand Yale graduates have been invited to a "round the world dinner," to be held April 20 in 200 cities throughout the world. The banquet is planned by the Yale endowment committee as the opening event of the general campaign to raise $20,000 additional funds for promoting distinction in teaching and study.

It is believed that the dinner will set a record for alumni attendance at simultaneous meetings in widely separated places which has never hitherto been approached by any university. Seven thousand men will be invited to attend the sections of the banquet to be held in New York City alone.

PUPPETS TO GIVE TWO DRAMAS HERE

Company Will Present Shakespearean Play and "Huckleberry Finn"

With probably the greatest touring repertoire of any puppet production company, Jean Gross and his French Marionettes will invade the university campus for a two-performance appearance on March 23, under the auspices of the public events committee of the university.

"Huckleberry Finn," a play based on the story by Mark Twain, and "A Midsummer Night's Dream," from the play by William Shakespeare, are the two presentations to be given at Moscow. The first will be given at the afternoon and the second in the evening.

Gross' company carries a cast of 70 little wooden characters which required months of intricate labor to make. One hundred forty pair of arms and legs were necessary, attached to the wooden and cloth bodies by 230 movable joints.

With all these parts facing them, artists have made clothes, put the bodies together and produced 70 dolls, which, guided by almost invisible fishing, have been given almost human qualities by the operators.

The puppeteer operators, although giving all their talent to the Marionettes, remain behind the stage and are not seen while the audience is lost in the play before them.

Gross himself has made a study of puppeteering in Italy, France, and Germany, where art has reached its zenith.

NORTHWESTERN U. TO EXTEND INTO LAKE

Will Have to Build Breakers to Combat Current

Extension of the Northwestern University campus a half-mile into what is now Lake Michigan, is suggested in a plan for the enlargement of the college grounds recently submitted to the authorities. Special breakers would have to be constructed to check the strong current which has been eating away the shore. Transportation of millions of cubic yards of earth would be necessary, and the land would be filled in by block units.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Trowbridge, former Idaho students now teaching in the wilds of Alaska, are enjoying many unique and interesting experiences, according to a recent letter received by Miss Kathrine Jensen of the home economics department. Mrs. Trowbridge will be remembered as Thelma Farnsworth of the class of 1925.

An extract from the letter follows: "No doubt you are thinking of us being all snowed in and almost freezing to death, but here we are in Alaska without one bit of snow and with very little ice. There is no travel with dogs at all and I am not at all sure that I shall be able to post this letter."

"We were reappointed here at Tokiak and have been very happy here. It takes a certain length of time to become really acquainted with the natives and their ways, so different from ours. Once they learn that they can trust a white person they are very easy to deal with and to teach. We have an enrollment of 15 this year. At first I didn't care much for the children but now I like their funny little round faces even if their smiles are rather wooden."

"It has been very interesting teaching the native women to sew better clothes and to cook their food in different ways. When we first came many of the older people especially were eating much of their food raw or with very little cooking. Now nearly every one of them cooks and has a little stove in his hut. Carl has night classes in the shop where they make the stoves along with many other things to make their igloos more liveable."
