CREATE STOP STREETS

THE ARGONAUT in its last issue pointed out the danger of traffic conditions on streets adjacent to the campus, a danger that is borne out by several accidents every year. Fortunately, none of the accidents have resulted seriously, but the next one could easily end fatally.

Warnings to automobile drivers by police and university authorities receive little attention. Last year the city installed danger signs at most of the intersections, but careless drivers seemingly disregard them as if they were not there. The Argonaut believes that the only remedy is to create stop streets at the two most dangerous intersections, Elm street and Idaho avenue and Elm street and University avenue.

Most of the automobile traffic to the campus follows Elm street, and the obstructed view caused by the fraternity and sorority houses on both corners creates a hazard for automobile drivers. At both corners there are usually a number of pedestrians, cutting across diagonally on their way to and from classes. The log in Elm street at University avenue and the hills at both places add to the complications.

If a stop street were created, it would probably be best to give the right of way to cars going east or west on Idaho and University avenues. Under such a plan, cars coming north and south on Elm street would be forced to stop before entering the intersections.

SMOKING IN BUILDINGS

SMOKING in university buildings has long been prohibited, but complaints from the janitors show that the rule is being violated. The rule was adopted originally on account of the fire hazard, and it is regrettable that a few students should open the whole student body to censure from the president's office.

Several of the older buildings are nothing but fire traps, and the fire risk is great enough without adding to it by the every present danger of "live" cigarette butts. At some universities smoking on the campus is prohibited. With the leniency that Idaho students enjoy, it is hard to understand how a few are too lazy to even walk out of doors when they want to smoke.

The matter is deserving of the utmost stringency from the student government if possible, otherwise from the university authorities.

SELLING "I" SWEATERS

MEMBERS of the "I" club have again raised the question of awarding official "I" sweaters to men winning letters in major sports. Under the present plan Idaho athletes can receive only one sweater a year even though they may win as high as three letters during that period.

The matter was discussed at the last meeting of the ASUI executive board and the "I" club's contention that sweaters should be awarded for every letter earned did not meet with very much favor. The principal objection was that in the past sweaters have been sold, resulting in men wearing them who were not entitled to do so.

If the "I" men could assure the executive board that the sweaters would not get into unauthorized hands, the "I" men's contention would deserve consideration. Certainly one sweater for three successive periods of grueling training and work in major sports seems a trival award to the man who wins three letters in one year.

W. A. A. PLANS BANQUET

The Woman's Athletic Association will hold a banquet at the Blue Bucket Inn on Tuesday, March 18, for all its members. The charge will be 75 cents a plate. All W. A. A. members who wish to attend this banquet have been asked to sign their names on the W. A. A. bulletin board at once.

"I" TANK LARRY

The "I" men are at it again—but why bring such things up!

Crowds clustered about the main entrance—"I" men grouped closely—wicked looking paddles in hip pockets—hatless junior approaching—sudden reaching for ankles—THINK WHAT A CIGARETTE WOULD HAVE MEANT THERE!

Now that military is again on the campus, we predict a great rise in the volume of sales of Climax Chewing tobacco.

MEN ABOUT TOWN

Obadiah McRatrap, a student here, is nationally known as the famous discoverer of the north end of the Mason-Dixon line. His sore feet remedies, especially prepared for Moscow mountain picnickers, have been heralded throughout the land. Witness a letter he received recently.

Because of too many arborvitae dates, I developed two bunions big enough to sink a ship. I tried numerous cures, but to no avail. Finally I read of your wonderful remedy. After one application, the bunions were gone.

Yours truly, Sophie Glutz.

P. S.—By the way, have you anything to bring back the two toes that went with the bunions?

COLLEGE BOY DIES AT SEVENTY-EIGHT

William Cullen Bryant Kemp Was Freshman at Columbia in 1868; Five Degrees.

NEW YORK, N. Y. (By New Student Service.)—William Cullen Bryant Kemp, perpetual student of Columbia university, is dead. At the age of 78 this scholar who spent over 30 years at the feet of the professors becomes an alumnus of a world that was, for him, mainly a campus. After his freshman year, 1868, there was an interlude in his education, during which he acceded to his father's wishes and went into business, but on his father's death he returned to his beloved studies.

He reaped the degrees of LL.B., B.A., M.A., LL.M. and B.S. If he had taken the trouble to write a thesis, he might have added a Ph.D. to this list. His last registration was for the winter session of 1922, and but for "unpleasant newspaper notoriety" he would have registered for the spring session of that year.

Idaho's "Hello Spirit" Noted in Northwest; Began Spontaneously

By Elsie Warm.

"Everybody just said hello without thinking anything about it, until strangers who came to the campus and noticed the friendly spirit had mentioned it several times, and then the students grew conscious of it themselves and called it a tradition," said Miss Belle Sweet, university librarian, when questioned concerning the "hello" tradition.

"I don't know whether that is the exact way in which it came about," she said; "but nothing much was said concerning the tradition until the last few years after it had been remarked by outsiders and called to the attention of the students." The "hello" spirit was already in existence when Miss Permeal J. French came to the University of Idaho in 1908. It seems that for many years the enrollment of the school was small enough to enable all individual students to be well acquainted with each other and with members of the faculty. This condition lasted long enough for students and alumni to become conscious of the democratic spirit that naturally evolved, and the value of having a cheery "hello" for everyone could not be denied.

Since the university has been growing and the student body increasing in numbers, however, and more difficulty in following such a tradition is encountered. During the

WINGED HELMET YEARBOOK NAMED

First Issue of Identity Publication to be Off Press in Latter Part of April; Copy Going In.

"From Under the Helmet" is the name which has been given to the new literary publication fostered by Winged Helmet and the English club, it was decided at a recent Winged Helmet luncheon.

The publication is the first of its kind to be published on the campus. Since the Blue Bucket has changed its policy, a new publication seems to be the only means of showing recognition for student literary work, officers declare. Great care is being taken in selecting the material which shall go into the book in order that it will warrant additional issues in the future. It will be a bound volume and the contents will consist of short stories, plays and poems. Copy is being sent to The Bailey Printing company of Lewiston, which has the contract and plans are now to place the book on sale late in April.

SOCIETY

Co-eds may press their formal and men may get out their tuxes because the weekend will be devoted entirely to formal dances. The annual Sigma Chi formal cabaret dance which will be held this evening at the Blue Bucket Inn will start the social ball rolling for the week. It is believed that it will be the most elaborate affair scheduled on the campus for some time.

Saturday evening, Alpha Tau Omega will entertain with a formal dance at the chapter house which will be decorated in the futuristic mode. Phi Delta's day mottos will prevail in the Lindley Hall-Rama hall formal dance which will be held at the L. D. S. formal rooms on the same evening.

The senior mixer held at the Blue Bucket Inn Tuesday evening, the English club luncheon for Jean Gros, puppeteer, Thursday, and the Gros Marionette performance Thursday evening, were mid-week diversions.

TUESDAY ASSEMBLY TO BE 'DIFFERENT'

Miss Maud Scheerer to Present Broadway Stage Success Monday

"The Trial of Mary Dugan," one of the outstanding Broadway successes of the past season, is the play which Miss Maud Scheerer, New York dramatic artist, will present before the Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock, according to I. W. Jones, assistant president. Miss Scheerer will be on the campus four days.

Her first program, to be given Monday evening at 8 o'clock, will consist of three modern comedy successes. Tuesday evening, Miss Scheerer will take up the more serious drama. Wednesday evening, Robert Sherwood's "The Road to Rome," the story of Hannibal's march against the Romans, will be given. This play is a brilliant satire upon Roman life in the first century B. C., but is equally applicable to modern life and manners. "The Road to Rome" is considered by many to contain more good lines than any other single modern piece. Miss Scheerer's last performance will be given Thursday evening.

At some time during her stay here, probably Wednesday afternoon, Miss Scheerer will meet with Prof. John F. Cuchman's play production classes to discuss drama and voice technique. No admission will be charged for the performances here, and everyone who may care to do so is urged to attend, said Mr. Jones. Miss Scheerer comes here from the University of Minnesota, where she is just completing a week's engagement.

Backstage Efficiency Puts Life and Pep Into Puppet Dolls

Backstage of a marionette show is truly a land where dolls live, work and rest like ordinary individuals, a visit behind scenes of Jean Gros' marionette show revealed. Above the stage, which consists of two tables set one foot apart, and above view from the audience is a little bridge which accommodates six or eight persons, all hidden from the view of the audience.

The men and women, dressed in long saten trousers and smocks, walk across this structure manipulating with skillful fingers the little frames to which the "strings of life" are attached. To the back stage observer it is interesting to watch these people moving back and forth guiding with accuracy the marionettes and at the same time talking, laughing and crying for the miniature actors.

Rows of dolls costumed as kings, queens, heroines, clowns, magicians and footmen hang on big hooks around the back of the stage. To the heads, toes, knees, wrists, shoulders, neck, and other joints of each is fastened the string which controls their movement. Trunks are piled against the walls from under whose slightly open covers peep reds, greens, blues, silvers and yellows of costumes to be used in other plays.

As soon as each puppet has made its last appearance in the performance the stage hands remove them from their hooks and tuck them in huge cretonne bags for safe keeping. The bags are labeled "footman," "Toto," or "Dorothy," according to the characters they portray.

And through all this paraphernalia people are hurrying to and from. "Got the light ready?" "Help me untie the knot in this string." "There! Now, up with the curtain!"

The latest educational idea is that culture should not be more than 99 per cent physical.
