Laugh Heard 'Round The World

IDAHO is not the only campus troubled with farcial class elections. A propos of appointments to the twelve offices of the four Idaho classes made a week or so ago by the combine politicians the following editorial from the Daily Nebraskan is reprinted. The situation at Nebraska must be almost as deplorable as it is here. There is no use taking it seriously. It is a huge joke. Let the handful pull their wires. They enjoy it and the majority is perfectly satisfied.

There is no use trying to clean the Augean stables if nobody wants the job done. As long as the horses are still in their stalls nothing can be done. Nothing to do but laugh at the joke being pulled on Idaho students.

Finals For Seniors

SEMESTER examinations are barely over. Their bad taste still lingers. There is an atmosphere of relief that the dread monsters have been met once more and momentarily repulsed by a small margin. Seniors who expect to take part in the graduation ceremony next June have a most sane desire that they be spared from the unnecessary task of another bout with final quizzes. Time was—not so long ago—when graduating students were exempt from final tests if they had a "B" average in the course. Such a plan might well be reverted to again.

It is a foregone conclusion that a student doing "B" work will not flunk a course at the end of a semester by taking a distinct flop in the final. Even if such a student did make a very low grade on the quiz it is extremely unlikely that an instructor would give him a flunk. "B" mentalities, unless entirely bluff, indicate to professors an interest in the course not to be counteracted by a slip on a survey examination.

The last month a senior spends in college is perhaps the busiest time of his educational career. If he has worked hard to keep his grades up to a "B" standard he has spent many, many hours in scholastic effort and needs a few days to check up on a thousand and one other interests that demand time before he may don the cap and gown. If his grades are low, he should of course, continue with the regular routine and take the examinations.

Allowing senior to be exempt from last semester finals if their grades in the particular course reach a "B" would encourage better scholarship in the class. No student like examinations, least of all the seniors who have been battered and scarred by at least seven weeks of the semi-annual pestilence.

Final exams to a senior with a "B" average mean just two weeks of unnecessary work. He won't flunk—that's a cinch. The diploma will be his in a few days. Quizzes are a burden of traditional red-tape. Seniors deserve consideration on the home stretch.

Unexpected Encouragement

THE groundhog, coming out of his hole at rare intervals, is considered sluggish. The minor class officer at the University of Nebraska, however, goes the groundhog one better and remains dormant throughout his existence. If he emerged for any reason it would mean something far more important and significant to Nebraska students than the arrival or postponement of sunny springtime.

Some time ago the student council weighed the question of eliminating minor class officials. Today these student representatives will decide the fate of the vice presidents, secretaries and treasurers.

One lonely argument presents itself furtively in favor of the useless minor class officers. The election of such students, shyly argue the advocates of continuance, provides the university with certain representative individuals, who, despite the fact that they have no opportunity to accomplish anything, are suitable examples of popular Nebraskans.

Even this point in favor of the minor officials has dropped out of sight with current developments. The elections, called by class presidents, are consistently attended by a dozen or so members of the respective classes. Persons elected by such a group in "mass" meeting can no longer be called representative or popular.

For months the Student council has had this problem under consideration and, to all appearances, it is unable to find any useful duty or raison d'etat for the minor officials. Why not discard the parasites and leave the groundhog a clearer field?

Collegiate Paradise

ACCORDING to a report made recently by Dr. J. C. Austin of Colgate university, the students of the University of Vienna have many customs which would appear very strange in this country. Duelling is an essential qualification of a fraternity man. The students, he claims, are scarred and bandaged as a result of their duelling contests, and honor is given the men who receive long, ugly scars.

The typical student never studies at the University, but spends his time loafing in the various buffets and drinking places. Those who do attend classes are forever eating; in the classrooms, and when walking through the corridors, they eat, and usually the brief cases which they carry contain only sandwiches.

Compulsory attendance at class is unheard of. A class for which 200 had registered was put in a room seating only 110. This did not crowd them since the average attendance was only 60, and the number present sometimes dropped to 25.

Although the professors meet their classes in swallow-tail coats, the students are very slovenly. Even those with money apparently have no concern about their appearance.

The American people have developed a university complex and send their children to college because it is the thing to do, and not because they acquire a good education. In the opinion of John D. Hicks, dean of the college of arts at the University of Nebraska. What can the children be expected to come to college for if this is the attitude of their parents? What the country needs is a new definition of education and colleges to fulfill its requirements. Then students would be going to college for an education and the educators would feel that they were accomplishing their end.

Despite the attack of Mr. "Gordon Ginn" on the Literary section of The Argonaut the department will continue to function as before, perhaps even more often and with less appeal to the masses. As was suggested when the section was started, its purpose was not to entertain every Tom, Dick, Harry, and Jane on the campus. As long as there is someone interested enough to admit that he cannot understand the items printed the average intelligence. Gordon Ginn, of course, is not a funny-paper enthusiast. He enjoys real literature and is widely read. One could tell that by his comments. Thanks for the compliment Mr. Ginn. We are encouraged.

Sleeper Sam

Howdy Folks—There have been fads and rages for various things on this campus for quite a spell, which is a good enough thing in its way. But I'm quite doubtful of this last fad—you know this heavy-sugged fashion everybody and the fads are going in for roller skating. Roller skating has grown very popular, so very popular that both sexes have skated for hours on end. Our advice is to get some instructors.

SOCIETY

Now that pledges know their grades and those houses having "rough week" are nearly finished with that ordeal, freshmen are beginning to display their bright new pins with much pride, and initiation dances hold a prominent place on the social calendar for the next several weeks, beginning with the Tau Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Chi and Delta Delta Delta dances this week end.

Sorority rushing ended a busy week of formal dinners and fire-sides at the different girls' houses, the new pledges moving from the dormitories Saturday.

Delta Chi upperclassmen entertained at a semi-formal dinner dance at the Moscow hotel on Friday night. The Beta Theta Pi formal dinner dance at the chapter house on Saturday night was another prominent affair of the week end. Hearts galore were strung up at the informal "Affaire de Coeur" held by Alpha Tau Omega. Pi Beta Phi also held an informal house dance last week end.

Dan Cupid will probably be over-worked next Friday, for two formal, the Phi Gamma Delta upperclassmen's dinner dance and the Daleth Teth Gimel dance, are chartered for that evening besides the Hays hall, Tau Kappa Epsilon and Sigma Tau dances.

Saturday evening the A. S. U. I. Executive Board dinner promises an enviable good time to those who "rate." Gamma Phi Beta and Delta Delta Delta are having informal dances that night also.

New Spring Version of the LITTLE TAILORED SUIT

INTERESTING details definitely stamp the 1930 Suit Mode. Little jackets are not too little to merit careful attention from couturiers. They're rendered distinctive through novel cut, trimming and length. Woolens of a light weight are favored; twills, tweeds, jerseys, coverts and the new broadcloth-like sharkskin fabric. Skirts, of course, complement their jackets—using restrained fullness—made with yoke tops so that the extremely smart tuck-in blouse may be worn with them.

TWO TEAMS BOW TO IDAHO FROSH

Lewiston and Lewis and Clark High Schools "Easy-Meat" for Yearlings

A rejuvenated Frosh basketball team swamped Lewiston high five 40 to 19 Friday in Memorial gym. Coach "Red" Jacoby used all of his reserves, giving every man a chance to display his talent. The Vandal yearlings were never in danger through-out the game.

The game was fast and well played, the Frosh showing clever floor work. Sharver, substitute guard was high point man for the Frosh and Goodwin proved the most valuable for the Lewiston quintet by counting up 8 tallies.

Summary
 Wicks F Rudd
 Nelson F Inman
 Parks C Brett

 Substitutions for Idaho: Taylor, Wilson, Fikken, Lacey, Sharver, Taft, Auchett, Aldon, Trevell, Justice, Tarbox, Woodie; for Lewis and Clark: Hanson, Garaghty, Howley, Shuster, Garresh. Buck Hunter was referee.

In a slow, uneventful game Saturday, the Frosh defeated Lewis and Clark high school, Spokane, 31 to 17. Coach Jacoby's proteges seemed to have a reversal from the night before. Their shots were inaccurate and their floor work slower. Wicks counted 9 for the frosh. Tedlie was high point man for Lewis and Clark with five.

The Frosh leave Thursday for Spokane for a return game with the Gonzaga Bulldogs and Lewis and Clark. Arrangements are tentative as yet, both sets of games are to approval by academic council. There is also a possibility of getting a game with North Central for Saturday.

FROSH AND SOPH WOMEN LEADING

Interest in women's interclass basketball has been especially keen this year, according to Bernice Schwedfield, junior captain. The series is now well under way, four games having been played.

The Frosh won from the sophomores, who in turn have been victorious over both the juniors and seniors. The juniors defeated the seniors in a heated contest, the final score turning the tables on introductory section arranged by Warren McDaniel. All work on this section is in hand lettering and is done in green and black colors. This is in keeping with the color scheme of the rest of the book.

The division pages are being done in three colors on green stock and are related in a central scheme. Dale Goss, art editor, reports that three of these pages have been completed. All art work on sub-division pages is in the hands of Dean Donaldson, recently of the University of Florida, and Miss Agnes Randall. These pages consist of silhouettes in black, offering an unusual effect. Six sub-division pages are complete.

The color scheme, of black and green is carried out in a central theme throughout the entire book. All division and sub-division pages, borders, and opening pages are inter-related in this central idea. The cover of the book, made by the David J. Molloy Co. has been selected to coordinate with the interior. According to Janssen all preliminary preparation on the book will be in by March 1 and he expects the annual to be on the campus by May 25.

Activity Blanks for Seniors. Activity blanks for seniors have been printed under the direction of Freda White and Lillie Gallagher, class editors, and are being distributed over the campus. One senior in each group house and hall has been supplied with blanks and will distribute them to the seniors in his house. The blanks are to be filled out as soon as possible and turned into those in charge or at the Gem office. Those seniors living in town will be able to secure blanks at the A.S.U.I. office or Gem office.

SOCIAL POSITION DEPENDED ON SALT

"Are you above the salt?" This simple query does not represent the conversation of a madman, but was a common phrase of Anglo-Saxon days, according to Florence Harrison, dean of the college of home economics at Washington State.

"In Queen Elizabeth's time the salt cellar elicited the guest of honor for the place of distinction. It was more than a condiment container; it was symbolic in itself. Highly ornamental and barbaric in its splendor, the salt cellar marked the exact degree of the guests at the table. Persons of distinction sat above the salt, between it and the head of the table. Those who sat below the salt were dependents and inferior guests. Man in those days judged each other not by their clothes or money, but by their places at the dining table."

There will be a Home Economics Club meeting Thursday night at 7:30 at the Alpha Chi Omega house.

LESSONS in the NEW

Psychology

Commencing Monday, February 17th, Dr. Frank B. Robinson will conduct evening classes in the study of the New Psychology. One lesson will be given to each of the following subjects:—

THE MIND IN ITS ENTIRETY—THE SUBCONSCIOUS MIND—THE SUBJECTIVE MIND—THE UNIVERSAL MIND—DRAWING UPON THE SUBCONSCIOUS—SUCCESS OR THE LAW OF PROSPERITY—THE PRISONERS OF THE SUBJECTIVE MIND OR PSYCHOANALYSIS—HEALTH and HEALING—THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH—LOVE and HAPPINESS.

These lessons are intensely interesting as the discoveries of the New Psychology go right to the very heart of being.

The price of this course of instruction is $15.00. The balance of $10.00 may be paid as the lessons. Five dollars must accompany the application and are given. Should any student of this course on completion not find it worth more than its cost, such student may request and will receive the entire tuition fee back again.

Parker's new streamlined Duofold Pens (and Pencils to match) set lower in the pocket than others because the clip starts at the top—not halfway down the cap. This smart, balanced shape feels "at home" in the hand—and writes with our famous 47th improvement—Pressureless Touch.
