"Let Him Who is Without Sin Cast The First Stone"

UNCOMPLIMENTARY echoes of the recent political furry on the Idaho campus are coming in from colleges in the northwest. The Oregon Daily Emerald takes an insinuating crack at Vandal politics in the editorial reprinted below. Frankly, The Argonaut doesn't like it a little bit. What we particularly dislike is the statement regarding lack of discontent.

The source of information is not mentioned. Putting two and two together it is to be supposed that the Oregon basketball players who recently paid an athletic visit to Moscow got an earful of current political comment and hustled it back to Eugene, with all its "horrible examples".

Maybe Oregon politics aren't conducted in glass houses. Maybe the campus under the sign of the Webfoot is one of the rare exceptions to the general collegiate political condition. If so, the comments from Oregon are to be taken in the sense of fatherly advice. If not we can only say that the pot is calling the kettle black.

The Oregon Emerald suggests no remedy for the "horrible example." One side of the affair is apparently all that has been heard at Eugene.

It is to be hoped that the Oregon spring elections are held before Idaho goes to the polls again. From the splendid example of straight and narrow politics practiced on the Oregon campus, we are to believe, Idaho will glean a lasting and valuable impression and follow in the footsteps of an unsullied duck.

The Oregon editorial follows:

The spice of life—politics, of course—is receiving so much attention nowadays we thought it timely to point to the horrible example of a neighboring campus which has let its elections become completely pickled.

A little university nestled among fir-covered hills is the paragon referred to. There the Alpha party, powerful combine, parcels out the offices among the houses and halls voting "regularly." Election of class officers is by standing vote, and such a careful check is kept that the house of an "irregular" voter never again gets a chance at an office. The election recently by the frosh of a vice-president not on the Alpha ticket caused consternation among those few to whom politics are still interesting.

No free discussion on that campus—or apparently desire for it. No mushroom publications, no vagabonding, or auditing, of classes, apparently. Moreover, no discontent with the existing order is voiced. "What can you do about it?" shrugged one co-ed there. "And why do anything?" supplemented another. "The house is sitting pretty as it is."

Meanwhile the Omega's are grooming their candidate for May Queen, it being their turn this year to win the honor. Her election, two months off, was safely pickled two years ago with the formation of the combine, the Alpha party.

Love Internationally Booted

TRUE love is dead. Doubtful? Here is indubitable evidence picked up at random from the public press:

FRANCE—Love is nothing more than a contagious disease, says a French professor. He advises people to shun it as they would smallpox.

MEXICO—Because of atrocious treatment by their wives, men of Vera Cruz have formed a Syndicate for the protection of Oppressed Husbands.

GERMANY—Love is a lot of sentimental bosh manufactured by drunken poets and insane lyricists. Back to sanity. Away with love, urges a German scientist.

RUSSIA—Family dissension is becoming increasingly dominant in Russian family life, says Dr. Liebovitch, of the Moscow Institute of Criminology. In 1929 there were 150,000 fist fights between husbands and wives which were sufficiently violent to attract police attention.

ENGLAND—Mrs. Bertrand Russell, wife of the radical pacifist, denounces marriage. "It is nothing but abject submission to tyranny," she asserts.

UNITED STATES—Eastern husband condemns giving high school girls rifle practice on the grounds that "the husband is the only common target of the modern woman."

H. L. Mencken declares that marriages are being more and more based on financial and social standings and less and less on romance—Oregon Emerald.

COLLEGE enrollments are increasing each year but there are fewer and fewer students. This statement, heard often these days, has a certain element of alarming truth, but in its general sense it means only that the conception of a student has not changed with the advance of the times. Vocational training has displaced, to a large extent, the original purpose of colleges. The field of liberal arts has less followers because it has no immediate monetary value. The college for the gentleman is giving way to advanced education for every Tom, Dick and Harry who wants a way to make more money. Education for education's sake is particularly scarce in small western universities. If a student doesn't plan to turn his four years of work into dollars and cents upon graduation there is something wrong with his mind, the rest of the class thinks.

The chief trouble seems to be that our idea of opportunity is a chance for financial gain and nothing else. If education is to be measured in dollars the sense is left out.

INTRAMURAL debate among fraternities and sororities of the University of California at Los Angeles has a recognized place among campus activities, says a news item. So has eating three meals a day. Why pick out U. C. L. A. for the publicity grapes. Idaho has been having intramural debate for several years. It is a firmly established activity with cups awarded to winning groups. California may have the weather and all that but she can't get away with such "hokum" as the above item indicates.

THEFT of the staff file of the Southern Daily Trojan has caused the editor of the paper to blow-up about the widespread lack of honesty among college students. The person who stole the papers picked out a victim who may make things hot for him. We hope the rotter is caught and dealt with harshly. The effect on other campi would be remarkable.

Wabash college chapel is to be demolished to make room for two tennis courts. The old order makes way for the new. Back hand lobs to the baseline will have more immediate affect than the four syllable drives at the back paw.

One-third of the senior women enrolled in the University of Oklahoma school of home economics are either engaged or married. Either the men are using their heads or the women are taking the course as a catching bluff. The way to a man's heart is still through his stomach.

Intelligibility dropped anchor on the hopes of Idaho's swimming team to have a match with W. S. C. Several of the men were all wet on their scholarship.

Spring football practice opened Monday at Washington State, with the arrival of "Babe" Hollingbery, Cougar grid mentor, from the Sunnysouth where he has spent this winter.

Immediately upon his arrival "Babe" will call out the ex-frosh gridsters and will give them a two-week period of workouts before calling out the veterans. The entire squad will spend four weeks in shaping-up process. Tackling dummies and other grid equipment have already been installed in the new field house and practices will be held indoors until weather conditions permit outside work.

SOCIETY

The world over the pre-Lenten season is characterized by a rush of social events, followed by a sharp decline in activities for the 40 days until Easter. No such movement is found on this campus. Although most of the houses will have honored their initiates before Ash Wednesday, a long and furious siege of formal dances will take place.

Last Friday many men called for their fair dates in all their finery, for the Military ball and Sigma Nu formal dinner dance, were scheduled that evening.

Officers' uniforms made an impressive spectacle of the grand march at the beginning of the Military ball. Decorations were carried out to create a true military atmosphere amidst the colors of Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity. An outstanding feature of the evening was the pledging to Scabbard and Blade.

Colored tapers, a lighted fraternity pin, and red and white carnations added to the delightfulness of the Sigma Nu formal dinner dance, which was held at the Blue Bucket inn.

Reports from the Spinster skip on Saturday afternoon show that the gentler sex can fill the man's shoes when occasion arises, for all the little necessities of a successful date were furnished by the Miss.

Other affairs of the week-end were the Kappa Sigma initiation dance, the Sigma Alpha Epsilon informal dance, and Beta Chi initiation dance.

Next week end Kappa Alpha Theta and Kappa Kappa Gamma are planning their formal dances. Lambda Chi Alpha, Alpha Phi and the Phi Delta Theta underclassmen will hold informal dances.

SUMMER SCHOOL DATES ARE FIXED

Opening Will be June 10, Announces Dean Messenger; Will End August 10

The 1930 summer school at the University of Idaho will open June 10, announces Dean J. F. Messenger of the school of education, director of the summer school, closing August 10.

Special attention will be given this year to advanced work, especially in education, Dean Messenger indicates. Last year 177 of the 240 students enrolled were working toward their master's degrees, making the summer school practically a graduate division of the university.

Three distinguished educators have been secured for the summer school to supplement the regular staff of the university.

Faculty Members They are Dr. Ross L. Finney, University of Minnesota; author of several books on education; Dean J. H. Doffin of Whittier college, California, also a writer of note; and Dean J. W. Harris of the College of the Pacific, a well known administrator.

Summer school courses will be offered in art, botany, economics, education, English, history, home economics, mathematics, musical science, sociology, psychology, and Spanish. Seventeen subjects will be offered in education.

Master's degrees can be earned in many departments of the university in four six-weeks summer terms, or less if part of the work is completed by correspondence, according to Dean Messenger.

INJURY TO KEEP McMILLIN BENCHED

Chances For Vandal Forwards to Take Scoring Honors Dullied by Wrenched Knee.

Just when followers of the Idaho basketball team were conjecturing on chances of the Vandal's two flashy forwards and scoring aces, Harold Stowell and Frank McMillin, placing first and second in the individual scoring column of the Pacific coast conference, comes announcement that McMillin will be out of the Idaho lineup for the last two games of the season.

McMillin twisted his knee after playing a few minutes in Saturday's game with the University of Washington and Coach Rich Fox believes that the Pocatello star, leading conference scorer last season and all-Coast forward, will not recover in time for Idaho's two windup games with Washington State, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Stowell Retains Lead. Stowell, pace-setter for the conference point getters this season, has a chance to swell his total against the Cougars this week and clinch first place. McMillin was tagging McLarney, W. S. C., by a few tallies and tied with McLarney and Hilliker for third place when he received the knee injury last Saturday.

McMillin is the second player Coach Rich Fox has lost in 10 days. Wes Shurtliff, also of Pocatello, wrenched his knee in the Oregon State college game, February 15, and will not play again until the 1930-31 season.

Blonds Star Clear Of Stanford Campus Survey Discloses

Brunettes prefer Stanford. At least that is true if Roble is any criterion. According to systematic research made by the Dally, brown hair is most common among the young ladies but there are plenty of blondes to satisfy the gentlemen's preference. Height ranges from four feet ten inches to five feet ten inches. Ages run from sixteen to over forty.

By far the overwhelming majority are from California, but Washington comes second, and there are fair representatives from twenty other states, China and Alaska.

Fourteen Helens Helen seems to be the most popular name as fourteen bear it, but there are twelve Elizabeths, ten Margarets, nine Elizabeths, and nine Marys. There are three Browns, three Bakers, and three Joneses, but only two Smiths. Of the three pairs of sisters, only one pair are both freshmen. More girls have last names beginning with B than with any other letter, but S is a close second.

COLLEGE DIGEST

The Pan-Hellenic association at the University of Nebraska is greatly disturbed over the question of whether social news of women's groups shall appear in the Nebraska, student daily.

The Minnesota theater in Minneapolis last week presented as a "special added attraction" Bronko A. "Bronk" Nagurski, Minnesota's famous all-American athlete, on the stage. Nagurski's basketball team played a short game with another team during every performance.

The University of Oregon has started a Braille library for the use of blind students. There are at present only eight blind students enrolled, but it is believed that this number will be increased as the Braille library is enlarged.

At a recent intercollegiate boxing meet held at Western Maryland college, formal evening dress was decreed as the accepted attire. It was an attempt to "tone up" the occasion with an atmosphere of dignity and sportsmanship.

Returns from a questionnaire submitted to Washington State college students show that 54 per cent of the men and only 17 per cent of the women earn all of their expenses by working during the school year and through the summer vacation.

This spring, for the first time in its history, the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas (Bryan), is to have an "engineer's day."

Two women's groups on the Oregon campus recently broadcast musical "travelogues" over station KORE. Oregon's broadcasting station. The entertainments were part of a campus-wide competition.

A $100,000 expansion program has just been announced for the bookstore, owned by the students of the University of Washington. Sixty thousand dollars of this amount will be used to purchase a new site for the bookstore.

A new secret society has been founded by the red-haired women at the University of Washington. "T. N. T. is the name, 'Watch Out Dynamite', the public motto. Exclusive is the keynote, and Titians

At several eastern colleges' intramural competition, is greatly stressed. Amherst, Williams, Hamilton, and Rensselaer are good examples. President Pease of Amherst said, "I believe that intramural athletics may eventually displace intercollegiate athletics."

As a solution for the college athletic problem, Dr. F. M. Padelford, dean of the faculties at the University of Washington, offers a program of general physical education through intramural contests, with the gradual submergence of intercollegiate competition.

PRESIDENT'S GROUP OPENS INVESTIGATION

Prove Feasibility of Student Membership on Academic Council.

Appointment of a committee to investigate the feasibility of student representation on the academic council to serve when special student problems are involved, was one of the major accomplishments at the business meeting of the Group Presidents' council Monday.

Another committee was named at the same time to probe the feasibility of re-establishing the B rule, which applies to graduating seniors. The rule, in effect here until last year, released graduating seniors from final examinations if they maintained a B average in the course during the final semester.

This Week's Schedule. Friday—Oregon vs Washington at Seattle; Idaho vs Washington State at Pullman.

Saturday—Oregon vs University of Washington at Seattle. Idaho vs Washington State college at Moscow.

With the flag in the southern division of the Pacific coast conference already clinched by Southern California, interest is swinging to Seattle where Oregon will meet the Huskies this Friday and Saturday in a series that will determine the northern winner. By taking one game the Huskies will get the championship, but if Oregon should upset the dope and take both tilts a play-off would be in order to decide the title.

The Huskies are favorites by virtue of their two easy wins over the Vandals last week in Seattle, Idaho, after dropping five out of her last six starts, now has a firm hold on the northern division cellar and even two victories over the Cougars this week would not keep Idaho from finishing last. Idaho's chances in the coming series with Washington State went glimmering when Frank McMillin, forward, twisted a knee in the game with Washington Saturday. Coach Fox expects McMillin to be in shape for W. S. C. though Mac will undoubtedly not be in top shape if he does get into the lineup.

Ping-pong players at Minnesota are having a championship tournament. Cougars Going Strong. Jack Friel's Cougar quintet has been playing some fast basketball the last two weeks and Idaho will have to show improvement to keep from dropping another pair of ball games. The contests will not affect conference standings unless Oregon drops two to Washington and the Cougars beat Idaho twice. The Oregon-Washington and Idaho-W. S. C. series will complete play in the conference race, Oregon State, the only other northern team has already finished her conference season with seven victories and nine defeats for a percentage of .438. Unless Oregon gives the dope bucket a big kick and takes both games from Washington, the Huskies will meet Southern California in Los Angeles March 6, 7, and 8 for the title.
