Too Smart for God

No one expects Idaho students to walk about the campus chatting of religious doctrines, heresies, creeds, or theological points of contention. It is distressing, however, to find that the great majority lack the first sign of proper manners in church. Denomination has nothing to do with the matter. The God of Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Christian, Baptist, Lutheran, and Nazarene, receives the same rude treatment from the heathen horde that gives church a "break" once a year. Fraternities and sororities attend in bodies on certain occasions such as the recent Mother's Day. A few in each group have enough courtesy to stand when a hymn is being sung and kneel when a prayer is being said, but the hot polli plant being sung and kneel when a prayer is being said, but the hot polli plant themselves in a pew on entrance to the church and sit, and sit, and sit without more sign of wanting to keep in step with the congregation than the occasional crossing and recrossing of legs. Church to them is in the same class with an entertainment. Perhaps we should be thankful they don't bring peanuts to munch along with their gum. They sing sitting down, they pray sitting down and look on with mild curiosity while the service is paraded before them.

Not many of the offenders think they are much better than God, but they certainly don't show it. They take pride in their bad manners—lack of respect, think they—shows that they are away from their own church.

No one of them would sit on a davenport or talk to a lady standing up, stab bread across the table with a meat fork, or dip doughnuts in his coffee cup, but blunders of far greater importance are made with the greatest unconcern.

Fraternity and sorority emblems receive solemn salaams and humble obedience. But God wasn't a Greek. Sitting and gum chewing is good enough for Him.

Crying Individuals Cough Up

FORTUNATELY for thirteen seniors who refused to allow general deposit money to be used in paying for the class section in the Gem of the Mountains, it has recently been decided that the whole class will have to pay the fifty-cent levy. Other classes are required to do the same. No student may escape the payment if his class does not have sufficient funds to meet the obligation of the yearbook. The A.S.U. is recognized as a department of the university and no student may check out without meeting the financial requirements of all departments. Funds for the Gem are thereby assured and disagreeable publicity for certain seniors who attempted to dodge the little bill can be avoided.

The Argonaut had a list of names ready to print when word of the change was received. Printing of the story was then unnecessary.

The entire class should share the Gem bill. The late decision is being received with much approval by class officers. Justice is being done.

No Gold in The Bucket

COLLEGE humor-publications no longer enjoy the popularity they did a few years ago. Every week or so reports come in of another quarterly or monthly being discontinued indefinitely. At several places where the magazines were not junked they were the subject of discussion, much of which was against their being retained. The fad is waning as all fads wane. College humor publications are largely a matter of tradition and "keeping up with the Joneses." One or two colleges started them and the rest of the student world fell in line. For a time they were representative college humor publications. Recently they have entered the same field with professional humor periodicals and have copied the style of the common newsstand youthful-humor stuff. Collegians are distressed by the fact that these professional sheets distort college life and thought, but they do their best to copy the worst examples of false representations. A college humor publication has to print the newest, hottest, wildest tid-bits of the moment to be a financial success. Literary copy doesn't take well. A few hundred campuses will glance through a serious short story by a contemporary student while thousands will tramp over each other to read a bit of late dirt or a sexy wise crack.

A year or two ago the Washington State college "Cougar's Paw" was stricken from the list of student publications.

Only last week the Minnesota board of publications decided that "Ski-U-Mph" will be given another year's grace.

Idaho's Blue Bucket is in similar difficulties—not from a moral point of view, but on financial standing. Several types of humor have been attempted in the three issues this year. The right note does not seem to have been struck. No matter how tame or how wild the Bucket is there is no mad demand for the copies. The editors have put out creditable issues that compare favorably with any other college publication of its size and nature. Still, there are a hundred or so copies of nearly every number left over.

The last issue for the year will come out within a few days. If it gets over, well and good. If it puts the A.S.U. further in the hole, action will probably be taken to decrease the number of issues or remove it altogether.

If the campus wants the Bucket to continue, give it a little help. It can't run on laughs and spring weather.

A "Poor Paupers" dance is being instituted as an annual event at the University of Minnesota. An affair like that would be popular in the west providing, of course, that there were enough room mates to furnish clothes to those attending.

That Hottness Club being started in the mid-west won't do any good. The women who join couldn't get dates anyway. No self-respecting co-ed with common sense and average good looks is going to swear off dating, smoking, car-riding, smoking, etc. Members won't have a chance to be anything but holy regardless of whether the club is formed or not.

Educators are the driest people in the country, the Literary Digest prohibition poll revealed. It really shouldn't take the liquor question to bring out that common fact.

The University of Iowa has a Chaperones' club. What a night it would be for a date when the group got together for election of officers.

Mothers of Idaho baseball players can rest fairly assured their sons won't grow up to be hit and run drivers.

Coeds of Baylor university are forsaking their beauty naps and getting up at 6:15 to go swimming. Perhaps their looks can afford it but we know of some western college women who should sleep in 'til noon every day and never get into a bathing suit.

Sleeper Sam

O-Hell-O—We were just talking over this picnic situation with the Sigma Alpha Epsilons. One of the boys had a gloomy look in his eyes. So to cheer the lad up we started to give him a sales talk on what type of co-ed or gal was the proper one to take. Imagine our consternation when he told us he had a hot-looking import coming. In fact she had just telegraphed him of her intention of coming, but what gripped him to the core was the fact that she had put a stop at the end of each sentence—and so soon, that's all right friends; we told him!

OH, YEH, THIS PICNIC SITUATION REMINDS US THAT SIR WALTER RALEIGH WASN'T THE ONLY MAN TO LAY DOWN HIS COAT FOR A LADY.

ARBORETUM ALONZO SAYS: "All collector claiming that certain co-eds are hot numbers should always base their opinions on facts."

Elsie Warm told us (very confidentially) that this guy Rudy Valle presses clothes for a living.

DOGGERAL VERSE

Here is a foto of an Idaho student composing a poem after the stimulus of one of Prof. Coepe's classes in Rom. Frose and Poetry. Not the doggy look on his face, but that he is writing a poem about a dog (seen on our fair campus). Pipe de pome:

A little black dog called Yvette Was bell of the Moscow set She hadn't a foe in the street Mele dogdom was prone at her feet. But tragedy stalked in the lane. Her story is ancient to tell Oh! she loved (the pathos and pain) Not wisely, alas, but to well.

A SLOP'S FABLES
2000 years ago A. Slop said: "One can never tell whether a co-ed is a musical term in light letters or not unless one goes picnicing with her."

STUDENT OPINION

Dear Editor:
I suppose you were right in your editorial regarding the individual. It would be very hard for one to be happy without the regard, the friendship, the love of his fellows. Perhaps it is not so much what we do as it is whom we are with—perhaps it is not the fact that we go but the fact that some one goes with us that counts and gives us pleasure. It is quite possible that many of us do not see situations from the same point of view. Our experiences have been different. Who can say that individual was not right when he looks at it the way he did? Perhaps it is because of men like the individual that we have our most cherished private rights reserved. The leaders are not always right. The individual sees it and has the courage to endure the slights and even enmity of those whom he opposes, and their followers. Perhaps the individual has few friends; perhaps he has lost many of the pleasures of life that he might have saved. I am sorry. I wish we all might be able to see better.

Don't you suppose we would be more friendly if we could look into each other's hearts and understand each other better? Maybe the individual has sacrificed and suffered a great deal for the things he believes are right. The things or principles for which he stands may not be right, but if they are right we are indebted to him. Here I am almost preaching a sermon, when I need to be preached to and prayed for, in order that I may always do the best that I know how. We will not condemn our brothers when we make so many mistakes. They both may be looking into the future and planning great achievements. And posterity may rear monuments of gratitude to both the Editor and the individual. It is said, "Ye shall know them by their fruits." Yours truly,
CARLOS ALLEN.

"College students are drinking less but are making more noise about it," is the opinion of Dean Thomas Clark of the University of Illinois.—Oregon Emerald.

VANDAL TRACKMEN LEAVING THURSDAY FOR BEAVER CAMP

Anderson Sending Squad of 16 Men Into O. S. C. Stronghold

IDAHO'S HOPES RISE

Dave Wiks, Star Miller Will Be Back in Harness; Trackmen Look Good

Undaunted by the 91-to-39 defeat administered by Washington State college last Saturday, the Vandal cinderpath squad, 16 strong, will depart Thursday for Corvallis, Ore., where Coach Otto Anderson's men meet the Beavers in a dual contest.

Although doped as favorites, Oregon State should encounter difficulty in subduing the Vandals. Idaho's hopes, too, have been bolstered following the announcement by Coach Anderson that Dave Wiks, stellar miler would in all probability be entered in the meet.

The Vandals are expected to excel the Beavers on the track with such a formidable array of talent as Sig Jossis; June Hanford and George Hjort in the sprints. Wiks, and Charles Heath in the distance and middle-distance runs, and Lemp; Mason, Alvord and Jones in the hurdles. This combination should offer Oregon State much opposition for track supremacy.

Idaho's vaunted strength as the cinders however, will be more than offset by Oregon State's marked superiority in the field events, critics predict. Especially in the jumps, shot put and javelin are the Beavers powerful.

Sprinters Recover.

Jossis and Hanford, sprinters, who received ankle injuries in Saturday's fray, are both expected to be in condition before the team embarks for Corvallis, Thursday.

Coach Anderson has announced the following contestants to represent Idaho against Oregon State: Hanford and Jossis in the 100 and 220; Belsler and Hjort in the 440 dash; Wiks in the half mile and mile; Heath in the mile and two mile; Robert in the two mile; Lemp and Mason in the high hurdles; Mason, Alvord and Jones in the low hurdles; Jones and Stowell in the high jump; Hanford, Jossis and Hjort in the broad jump; Eaton in the pole-vault; Burgher and Kershnik in the discus and shot put; and Robertson in the javelin.

The relay team will be picked from Hjort, Hanford, Jossis, Belsler and Stowell.

IDAHO'S PRE-MEDS. KNOW THEIR STUFF

Stanford University Faculty Member Praises Ability of Idaho Students.

Praise for the fine type of students which come from the pre-medical divisions of the University of Idaho is contained in a letter from Maude Landis, superintendent of nurses at the Stanford University Medical school, California, to J. G. Eldridge, dean of the university faculty. Miss Landis' communication to Dean Eldridge indicates that the pre-nursing which students receive at Idaho before continuing advanced studies at other institutions is of the high quality that enables them to continue their progress smoothly. Since Idaho has no medical school it is the aim of the university, explains Dean Eldridge, to maintain pre-medical and pre-nursing courses which rank among the strongest in the country. Graduates from these courses which rank among the strongest in the country. Graduates from these courses at Idaho are welcomed in all leading medical institutions.

GRADUATE GETS ENORMOUS JOB

Walker F. Young, '08, Will Supervise Building of Boulder Dam Project.

Appointment of a University of Idaho graduate, Walker F. Young, '08, to take charge of the grand Boulder dam construction program was announced yesterday in news dispatches from Washington, D. C. The selection of Young from a field of hundreds of prominent engineers is regarded as a high compliment to the Idaho school of engineering, where Young received his preliminary training. Young has been construction engineer for the Kittitas division of the Yakima reclamation project for the past year, with his headquarters at Seattle. During his work in the Yakima project he has supervised the expenditure of nine million dollars provided for the irrigation of the 72,000 acre project. The dispatch says Young expects to leave for Las Vegas, Nev., within a few days to take over his new task.

MUSIC INSTRUCTOR GOING TO MIAMI

Agnes E. Crawford, instructor in music, has tendered her resignation and will go from Idaho to Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, where she will be instructor in music in the school of fine arts. Miss Crawford joined the Idaho faculty two years ago.

Six former Idaho faculty members are now on the faculty of the Miami University. President Upham went from Moscow to take up the duties of president of his alma mater. Dean Dale and Prof. Gusting from Idaho's business school, Theodore Kratt, music and Talbot Jennings, English, have gone from Idaho to the Ohio school.

Publicity Leads To Rift; Dissenters Vacate Old Home

By Cecil Hagen
Two years of peaceful activity ended in sudden dissention for one group on the campus Saturday, all because of a story that appeared in the Friday issue of the Argonaut. The story caused consternation within the group, so much consternation in fact that more than half of the membership just up and moved out.

The group in which the split occurred is the honey bee colony that has lived within the east wall of the Alpha Chi Omega house. During the time the bees and the Alpha Chis pursued their separate ways, each ignoring the other. Few students on the campus knew of the existence of the bees, and the bees were willing to remain unnoticed.

Saturday noon a queen bee, leader of the dissenters, left the hive in the side of the Alpha Chi house, and flew to the vines covering the fence next to the Annex. Thousands of bees followed her and in a few minutes had formed a solid mass of bees around their queen.

Bart Moss, Alpha Chi husher, athletic manager and bee man, then appeared on the scene. He found a cracker box, sawed a notch in one side to serve as a front door. Braving stings, he picked handfuls of bees from the queen until he found the queen. Holding her by the wings, he placed her within the improvised hive, and again the dissenter bees followed.

Now the second group of bees has organized a separate chapter, and its membership is active bringing in loads of honey, running competition to the mother chapter 25 feet away. Bart Moss, the hero of this story, knows his bees. Not once was he stung, not even when bees practically covered his bare arms. He has had several summers experienced working in large apiaries in Payette, his home town.

Moss is a junior, majoring in entomology. He intends to specialize in bee keeping.

HAWAIIAN TRIP HANGING FIRE

Idaho Officials Expected to Take Favorable Action on Invitation.

No new developments on the much-discussed trip of the Idaho football team to Hawaii to play two post-season grid contests next fall, had been revealed up to press time of The Argonaut. Officials of the University of Hawaii have been dicker with the Idaho athletic staff for some time and a definite announcement on the matter is expected soon. As soon as Hawaii university tenders Idaho an official invitation for games on Christmas day and New Year's day, the university faculty and athletic department hear are expected to take favorable action on the matter. Idaho university has been preferred on the itinerary of the University of Hawaii to other teams in the western part of the country and it is very likely that the Vandals will make the ocean hop at the end of the regular fall grid campaign.

Dr. Edwin John Named Associate Professor Here, Effective August 1

With the appointment of Dr. Edwin G. Jahn as associate professor of forestry, the University of Idaho school of forestry will greatly expand its research work in the chemical and mechanical utilization of wood, announces F. G. Miller, dean.

Dr. Jahn received both his bachelor and master's degree from the New York State college of forestry and his doctorate degree was earned at McGill university. He is at present studying in Sweden under an industrial fellowship granted by the American-Scandinavian foundation. His major work has been in the field of cellulose chemistry and his minor in plant anatomy and wood technology, an admirable preparation for the work he will take up here. He will assume his duties August 1.

Research in this field of wood utilization is not a new activity in the Idaho school of forestry, but the coming of Dr. Jahn will make it possible to place new emphasis upon a phase of research which the school has been carrying on almost from the time it was established. The distillation of stumpwood and logging waste and studies of the use of oil for ore flotation are examples of the earlier day investigations of this sort.

"The occasion for expansion of research in this particular is a conviction prevailing in the lumber industry that a closer utilization of the standing tree must be secured if the industry is to prosper and that this can be done through the discovery of new uses of wood constituents", explains Dean Miller. "In fact wood is now used for the manufacture of a large number of commodities not thought of a few years ago."

place will be the goal of the production, according to Gerald Grimm, chairman in charge.

"A Toast to Idaho" will be the title of the annual song of the senior class. Ruth Newhouse, chairman of the affair, and Dorothy Frederickson claim the origin of selection and will present solos with the co-operation of a large chorus. The sophomore class will be a take-off on the psychology department when they present a skit taking place in the psychology lecture class on a Saturday morning. Walter Gillespie is chairman and composer of the act. About ten students will take part in the production.

Following the sophomore stunt, and promising to be one of the features of the evening will be the junior song entitled, "Come, Join the Gold and Silver Crew". Ray Kelley, chairman of the song and Charles McConnell, committeeman, and his minor in plant anatomy have charge of the production and claim that other class performances will have to be exceptionally good in order to outclass them.

The seventh scheduled event on the general program will be the freshman stunt which deals with a high school star athlete who witnesses his first day at college. Harold Snow is chairman of the affair. The last event on the evening's annual event will be the sophomore song entitled, "Here's to Idaho". Sidney Walden is the leader of the committee promoting the song and has been assisted by Marguerite McMahan, Malcolm Renfrew, and Lois Thompson.

The entire program will probably take not longer than an hour and a half, reported Walden and class rivalry promises to be at its peak in the last A.S.U. I. function of the year.

The wedding took place in the Episcopal church, with only a few friends attending. The Rev. H. H. Mitchell performed the ceremony.
