The Smoke Clears

ANOTHER "rush week" has gone by the boards, so far as Idaho fraternities are concerned.

And as the end is reached, a gigantic sigh can be heard over the campus. Now we can settle down to work, after first catching up on the "steep hours" we missed because we had to stay up nights clearing out some fast ones to pull on our competitors.

The newly-affiliated pledges can thank their lucky stars rush week isn't a "rush month".

Co-ed Opportunities

FRESHMAN women glancing through the list of honorary organizations of their university handbooks should be imbued with a desire to have their names placed on the rolls of at least one of these worthy groups.

Over twenty different organizations of the university are open to ambitious women. With the selection of a course should come the choice of an honorary toward which she should strive untiringly. Many of the groups have long been organized, while others have only recently been established. Whether old or new they have all been created through the efforts of student women of this university.

Home Economics students have an excellent national honorary toward which to work, for Phi Upsilon Omicron girls have established a reputation of ability both professionally and scholastically. Pi Lambda Theta, national honorary fraternity for women students in the school of Education, Alpha Gamma Delta, national honorary fraternity for women students studying pre-nursing, Phi Chi Theta, national honorary fraternity for women studying business, Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary debating fraternity, Sigma Alpha Iota, national honorary fraternity for women studying music, and Theta Sigma, a local honorary fraternity for women professionally interested in Journalism, are all groups of outstanding women. Women who have built up organizations based upon scholarship, personality, leadership, and ability.

The department of English fosters an organization for students interested in literature and composition. Two freshman girls are selected each spring from each of the group houses on the campus for Spur, sophomore Women's service organization. As a climax for three successful years in college activities and organization comes the selection on Campus day each year of eight junior women for Mortar Board. Mortar Board is a national honor society for senior women, and to become a member is the highest honor a woman can receive at Idaho.—L. S.

UNIQUE COLLECTION GIVEN UNIVERSITY

Horseshoes large and small, hand forged for the most exacting equine foot, constitute an unusual collection donated to the University of Idaho college of Agriculture by Charles Staley, a leading craftsman in Spokane back in the days when horseless carriages were a novelty. Twenty years ago W. L. Carlyle, then dean of the college of agriculture, saw the exhibit at the Spokane Apple show, and wrote to Mr. Staley about obtaining it for the University of Idaho. At that time Mr. Staley declined to part with it because of its advertising value in his business. Recently Mr. Staley found Dean Carlyle's letter written in 1910, and wrote to him that he was donating the exhibit to the university.

Mr. Staley closed his shop in Spokane in 1920. He is still shoeing horses, at present for the Winton Lumber company at Gibbs, Idaho. Mr. Carlyle resigned in 1910 and is now superintendent of the Prince of Wales ranch in Alberta.

FUNERAL HELD FOR FORMER STUDENT

Viola White, Killed in Automobile Accident, Sept. 8, Was Member of Local Sorority.

The funeral of Viola McDowell White, Portland, who died there in an automobile accident September 8, was held in the Presbyterian church Wednesday morning. Mrs. White was graduated from Idaho in 1926 with a B. S. degree. She was a charter member of Omega Alpha, local sorority. At the time of her death she was finishing her fourth year in medical school. The zoology department here, of which Mrs. White was at one time a fellow, had charge of the arrangements.

The women's "I" club will hold its first meeting of the year shortly before the first football game, the exact date to be announced later, according to Shirley Cunningham, president.

The last meeting of the organization was held last May with initiation ceremonies. Those initiated were Florence Ruderger, Hazel Spillman, Prudence Baby, Charlotte L. Fever, and Mildred Axtell. Election of officers followed the initiation.

CALLAND'S ELEVEN SLATED TO DEFEAT MONTANA STATERS

Coch Calland Predicts Victory Over Bobcat Team by a Close Margin

Idaho Will Feature Real Speed in Year's First Game

That the Idaho Vandals will have a fair chance to defeat the Montana State Bobcats by a close score was the word released yesterday from Coach Leo Calland's office. The two teams will meet on McLean field Saturday, September 27. The Idaho mentor is confident that his boys can beat the Staters in what he believes will be a hard fought opening contest. When the Vandals go onto the field a week from Saturday, however, there will not be a man on the squad who tips the scales at 200 pounds. Consequently, Calland will depend for a win on the speed and versatility of his backfield, coupled with lots of light on the part of the linemen.

Turnout is Large. This year's Vandal aggregation is the largest ever put for football at Idaho. It is also the lightest in weight. Fowles, end from last year's frosh squad, suffered the first injuries of the season, but he will be ready for action in the opener.

Montana State college lost only two games out of eight last season, one of them to Idaho. The Vandals defeated them by a score of 39-0. This year's Bobcat squad is almost the same as that of last year, with Coach S. R. Dyche as mentor. The Staters are captained by Worthington, end.

Coch Calland has been using the following in signal practice: Two Teams Chosen.

CALLS MANAGERS MEETING

Coch Calland yesterday said all group houses should elect intramural sports managers for the year in time to have them present at a meeting at his office in the new Memorial gymnasium, room 204 at 7:30, Monday night.

PLANS FOR HULME FIGHT DISCUSSED

Batterson Chosen to Head Bon-Fire Committee for Home-Coming Rally.

Bert Bronson, freshman class president, Thursday evening called the first meeting of the year and discussed with the 300 students present the program of the year and the two immediate problems, the Hulme fight and the home-coming bon-fire.

A committee was appointed with George Batterson of Moscow, at the head. Its duties will be to see the merchants of the town and to find out what rubbish and inflammable material can be collected for the big fire.

The organized houses on the campus were asked to look over their athletic material and to choose men to represent the class in the Hulme fight which comes off Saturday. The fight is an organized battle between frosh and sophomores held for the purpose of preventing hazing on the campus.

If freshmen win the fight they may discard the green "dink" at the Thanksgiving holidays. If not, they wear the green until the Christmas vacation.

BOARD TO MEET 24. The first meeting of the A.S.U. executive board will be held Tuesday night at 7:30 in the offices in the Memorial gymnasium. The purpose will be a preliminary organization for the work in the coming year. Meetings will be held regularly every Tuesday.

SOCIETY

LILLIE GALLAGHER, Editor.

WITH the greater part of the rushing by fraternities completed with the completion of registration, society now turns with intense interest to the sorority rush parties and the magnet on which they are centered, the freshman girls.

The general teas on Tuesday afternoon saw new girls leave the halls of residence and parade in groups past, admiring throngs of boys, to chat and nibble delicious morsels at each sorority house. Formal rushing began yesterday with the Delta Gamma luncheon, Kappa Kappa Gamma formal dinner, and the Pi Beta Phi fireside. Rush parties today are the luncheon of Gamma Phi Beta, dinner of Alpha Phi, and Kappa Alpha Theta fireside. Tomorrow Alpha Chi Omega will entertain rushes at a breakfast. Delta Delta Delta will have a luncheon and Kappa Kappa Gamma, a fireside. The schedule of luncheons, dinners, and firesides, continues for another week.

The faculty-freshman reception and mixer at the Memorial gymnasium on Tuesday evening was a well attended and thoroughly enjoyable affair.

Freshman-sophomore class enmity, which began after the posting of the edicts on Tuesday night, and will be carried on tomorrow at the annual Hulme fight, will come to an end tomorrow evening at the customary Bury the Hatchet dance.

FROSH CO-EDS FETED AT SORORITY TEAS

Fraternity Men to Witness Two "Big Parades" During Rushing

A new group of freshmen women experienced a fore-runner of the "big parade", on Tuesday when they were detailed in groups for a survey of the sorority houses of the Idaho campus. The occasion was a general tea, and approximately 225 women were the guests of the various houses on that day.

Through the decision of Dean French and the Idaho Pan-Hellenic organization, it was arranged that all Freshmen women should leave the halls in groups, going through the houses one by one, each sorority house arranged to escort the groups to the next house.

An arrangement of this type has been customary until it was discontinued last year. It is evident that the various men's houses enjoyed the novelty of the situation. The resemblance to the "big parade" of pledging day was marked. This year the Idaho fraternity men will be forced to make use of their lawns for two afternoons instead of one.

The genuine "big parade" is scheduled to take place on Saturday, September 27.

STENOGR. UNDERGO TESTS ON MONDAY

Miss Ellen Reiersen, instructor in typewriting, will conduct a test for all students who have applied for stenographic work in various university departments. The examination will be conducted in the typewriting rooms in the Engineering building Monday afternoon at 4 p. m.

MORTAR BOARD MAKES YEAR'S ACTIVITY PLANS
Members of Mortar Board are beginning the '30-'31 term by wearing their attractive new sweaters. They also had a breakfast at the Blue Bucket Sunday morning where they made plans to become active in business as soon as the university classes are completely organized. During registration members of this organization gave out information to the bewildered freshmen. The officers for the coming term are: Catherine York, president; Dorothy Rouse, vice president; Betty Wilson, secretary; Vera Bryant, treasurer; and Elsie Warm, chapter editor.

New Inland Ocean Panics Argonaut; Cub Scoops Editor

Did it rain? Boy—and how! Just as the energetic members of the Argonaut staff were preparing the first edition of the year in the Memorial gymnasium a week ago, one of the reporters began writing an extensive report on the grand canyon of the Memorial gymnasium. When the copy was presented to the editor for approval, he rejected it with a scowl and asked the young writer where he got it. Upon looking out of the window, however, a marvelous scene presented itself. There, rushing down from the roof of Lewis court was a swift, wide river, fully a yard wide and two feet deep, and forming a moderate sized lake near the gymnasium. Faster came the rain and soon the river grew to such proportions that suggestions of converting the tables and chairs into rafts ceased to be a joke, and staff members began to write letters so that those who found them after the gymnasium was submerged would know they drowned happy. But the rain soon stopped and with it went our river.

CALLAND STRESSES SPORTSMANSHIP TO VANDAL GRIDSTERS

Sixty Answer First Call for Varsity Berths; Seven Lettermen Back

MATERIAL PROMISING Gains With Montana State Test Strength of Gem Staters

Monday morning the gong sounded which released over sixty fighting Vandals onto Maclean field for the first workout of the 1930 season. Leo Calland, who is starting his second year at the helm of Idaho's football, issued suits to the men and gave them a short talk stressing the principles of sportsmanship and determination. In afternoon the first actual workout took place with passing, punting and blocking exercises playing the leading roles. Six lettermen reported to Calland and his staff for this initial turnout and are counted on as forming the nucleus for the varsity this year. The rest of this week, the men have continued this sort of practice with some "miniature scrimmages" thrown in. The program also has consisted of two workouts a day which will continue until Saturday when the first heavy scrimmage is set to take place. Plans also include scrimmages several days next week in which the men will put to use all they learned last spring in the tough battles for first string positions.

The Montana State Bobcats will be playing their fifth straight game in consecutive years at Moscow when they meet Idaho here September 27. In 1928 they surprised everyone by slipping over a touchdown in the last five minutes of play to conquer the Vandals 15 to 13. That is one reason why the coaches are already doing no small amount of worrying.

Backfield Rated Strong Three backfield letter men, back in the fold to supply the brunt of the offensive play which will again be Idaho's strongest bid for power. Pedersen, "The Galloping Swede", will be in action again. Captain Berg, in his old halfback post, will, in addition to his smashing game and interference running add a good punting foot. Fred Wilkie, as full, looks huskier than ever and is all set to hold down his last year's post. In addition to Berg, Idaho will have Booker, Tyrrell, and Davis of last season's Fresh and reserves to handle the kicking assignments.

Corkery, Bessler and Carlson the other three returning lettermen will find plenty of opposition from the younger men on the squad. All three are big and fast with plenty of experience and are counted on to steady the line at critical moments during the season. Corkery and Bessler will be working for their second letters while "Horsey" Carlson will be after his third award and a blanket.

STUDENT OPINION TO INFLUENCE ANNUAL

O'Leary Announces Meeting For Business Staff Aspirants on Thursday

A questionnaire giving students the opportunity to express their ideas as to what the perfect college annual should be will be published in the next issue of the Argonaut, said Wayne Blair last night.

One question will deal with the presentation of senior pictures in cap and gown or in formal attire. The latest trend in the larger college yearbooks of the Pacific coast is toward having senior pictures in formal garb rather than in the more customary, but less becoming caps and gowns. Junior pictures would be in informal dress, but would be distinguished from the sophomore and freshman sections by a richer and more distinctive mounting.

Seek Student Advice This questionnaire is an attempt to determine at first hand the desires of the campus on this and other points.

Sales of the Gem for 1931 in the registration line were satisfactory, according to Clive Johnson, circulation manager, who reports a healthy increase over those of last year at the same time. Those students who did not have an opportunity to reserve their Gems may do so by going to room 201 in the Memorial gymnasium, or by calling Clive Johnson at the A. T. O. house.

A meeting of all old business staff members, and those who are interested in working on the business side of the Gem will be held in room 201 Administration building at 4 o'clock next Thursday, said Kenneth O'Leary. Work will be started on the business side of the Gem at once, and all new aspirants for positions on the 1931 Idaho yearbook will be given a chance to try out.

ATWATER KENT TEST THURSDAY

Local District Contest Will be Held in University Auditorium

The local district tryouts for the National Radio Audition sponsored by Atwater Kent Radios will be held next Thursday in the University auditorium. The contestants sing behind a screen, thus the best voices and not popular personalities will be presented.

The successful contestants of this audition will go to Boise for the state finals where they will sing over the radio. A vote is taken of the radio audience to determine the most popular voice. The judge's opinion in this stage of the contest counts 40 percent, and the radio audience's choice 60 percent.

The music department is sponsoring the local district tryouts according to Prof. Carlton Cummings. "The contestant's part is to forget votes and to prepare to sing better than ever", he concluded.

FORESTRY HONORS GO TO IDAHO GRAD

Word has been received at the University of Idaho that Arthur Buckingham of Moscow, a graduate of the School of Forestry in the class of 1930, ranked first among the competitors in the country at large in the junior range examiner examination recently conducted by the United States civil service commission. This is the third successive year that a University of Idaho School of Forestry graduate has taken first place in this particular examination. Mr. Buckingham has accepted an appointment on the Challis national forest in Idaho at an initial salary of $2000 per year. Dean F. G. Miller of the forestry school reports.

DR. NEALE INDUCTED INTO IDAHO OFFICE

In the midst of rapid and constant change in our national life, new improvements of industry, new social standards, advertised "short cuts" toward attainment of character and mastery of difficult professions. "It is gratifying to think of the universities as standing for that method of personal development and education which has stood the test of all the ages of the world's history," the speaker said. This recognizes, among other things, he continued, the following: Gradual Process

That any worth while mental or physical development must be gradual process and in the last analysis must come from your own mental and physical efforts; that all modern life is an outgrowth of past activities and that progress must rest on foundations laid in the past; that control of mere techniques of work is insufficient because methods and instruments of the future may be far different from those of today; to the end that there must be a development of power to think and adjust personalities to new situations; that a broad vision of the world, from the point of view of both the past, present activities and future possibilities, is desirable; that social relationships are important in the work of the world and that social understanding in its broadest sense should constitute a part of higher education of every type.

"When we view university education in this light we are impressed fully as much with its stability and permanence as we are with the necessity for its adaption to changes in modern industrial, social and political life," Dr. Neale emphasized. "The university becomes a testing ground for new procedures and a conservator of the good in past practices, as well as a creator of new ways of thought and action."

Emphasize Culture "If I interpret present trends in vocational education aright, they are in the direction of greater emphasis on the cultural values and the philosophic background of human life; and if I interpret trends in cultural education properly, they are in the direction of the development of a type of culture firmly rooted in the past achievements of the human race, but adapted to the needs of modern life.

"If these trends are followed through, as I believe they will be, it seems to me that our universities will make enormous contributions to a civilization and a culture which will give new meaning to the great progress that we have made along material and industrial lines.

"To me the great growth of state universities has been one of the most stimulating and inspiring developments of this century. They represent the desire of a great democracy for higher education which will provide the best possible educational opportunities for young men and women of the state which will furnish to the state expert service, the trained and enlightened leadership and the effective fellowship that will enable it to develop itself along all desirable lines. I confess I am much less concerned with the limitation of the student body to those of a particular type of scholastic or academic ability than I am with the possibility of extending the educational service which a state university may render to an ever-widening percentage of the population. This, as I see it, does not mean lowering the standards of scholarship to the level of mediocrity, but rather providing for the maximum achievement of each student according to his ability in those fields in which a university may enter with profit to the state."

Favors Activities The new president declared he was sympathetic with student activities, that is to encourage and work for those activities which add to the pleasure, intellectual profit and lasting enjoyment of university life. There is little question, he continued, but that they are overdone by many students, and their proper organization and utilization becomes an individual problem and one for the entire university. But he said he believed in the right sort of student activity because I think they contribute zest to university life and furnish a background for scholarship which is none the less sound because it is developed in an enjoyable and interesting atmosphere."

Governor Baldrige expressed the confidence of Idaho in the university, urged that the students take full advantage of the opportunities the state extended to them and pledged the support of Idaho toward the new university executive. He was introduced by Commissioner W. D. Vincent.

Carlton Cummings sang two vocal solos and Carl Claus played a violin solo. Faculty members, the board and guests were in academic procession.
