More For The Money

At frequent intervals the University of Idaho is host to a specialist in some field or other of the world's activity. The past two years have been noteworthy, too, because of the fact that these visitors have been more numerous than before, and often of greater distinction than ever before. But while that may be the case, it seems that full advantage of these opportunities is not being taken. Speakers are made use of to as full an extent as should be the case. Often they make but one appearance before the students and faculty and after that they are entertained by the reception committee without a chance being given for a more intimate acquaintance or discussion than can be obtained from a public address. That is an unfortunate and unnecessary situation. It is unfair both to students and members of the faculty. It is not getting our money's worth.

Whenever a speaker comes to the university upon the invitation of the public events committee, arrangements should be understood to include a meeting of some kind at which at least members of the faculty interested in the speaker's field should be present. Not only should each faculty group make known its desire to meet such speakers, but the committee in charge should definitely provide for such a meeting. Thus, when a geologist comes, members of the mines faculty should be allowed to meet him. When an educator comes, the education faculty should meet with him. When an economist comes, plans should be made for the faculty of the business school to meet with him. It would be even better should an opportunity also be given for students in the various fields to meet with the speakers having similar interests.

So far, only one department, the English department, has carried out such a policy and of much value has been the operation of that plan. It is hoped that in the future every department be given the same opportunity, that the committee in charge will make it a point not to fill up the speaker's time with other things and that departments, themselves will make it a matter of custom to arrange particular meetings with any man or woman who comes as an important figure to the University of Idaho.

A Sorry Retrogression

"No speaker will be allowed to speak on the campus at an open assembly if he intends to attack the state of national government, specific individuals, or the University itself. The University emphatically does not want so-called 'Red' speeches on the campus."

It is hard to believe that the above ultimatum could issue from the lips of a present-day college president, commonly looked upon as the very standard-bearer of liberal thinking in its fight to educate a narrow-minded world.

Yet only last week President M. Lyle Spencer laid down that dogmatic decree at the University of Washington, considered a leader of education in the Northwest. At least, until now it has been so regarded. Whether it can hold its standing after this distinct backward step remains to be seen.

Dr. Spencer's statement was inspired by an address of Sherwood Eddy, well-known traveler and author of socialistic beliefs, delivered to the students of Washington last week. Mr. Eddy had been heard with enthusiasm by faculty and students of both Stanford and California. He is a Yale graduate and holds a degree from Princeton.

It is gratifying to note that Dr. Spencer's action has aroused a storm of controversy at Washington and throughout the Northwest. The student newspaper has flayed the ultimatum of its own administration with commendable courage. The Seattle press has hinted that the interesting talk of Mr. Eddy has sent Washington University leaders "trumping for cover."

The Daily is not condemning or approving either socialism or capitalism. Nor is it attempting to solve the problems of the University of Washington. It is, however, viewing with genuine regret the attempt of a college president at a fellow Pacific Coast institution to coddle his students in an incubator with apparently sincerity in believing them too weak mentally and morally to hear all and decide for themselves.—Stanford Daily.

Motorists Endanger Pedestrians

Now that the ice has melted from the streets, cars are speeding up. The drivers forget that several intersections on and near the campus still have just as many pedestrians crossing them, and are still just as dangerous.

Yesterday morning a student nearly missed his eight o'clock and many more of them when a driver bore down upon him at the Sixth and Deakin streets intersection. A bit of agile broad-jumping enabled him to proceed on his way without the aid of an ambulance.

Posted in front of all grade schools and high schools are signs warning motorists to "Drive Slowly—School Ahead," but rarely are any seen in front of colleges. This does not mean, however, that any institution of higher learning would be disgraced with "Go Slow" admonitions posted along its streets. In fact, under the circumstances, we think the idea should be encouraged at Idaho. The pedestrian must be considered, even if he is a college student.

TEACHERS STUDY CHILD WELFARE

Esther McGinnis is Field Worker for Home Economics Club.

Child development was studied by high school home economics teachers from Troy, Potlatch, Lapwai, Orofino, and Moscow at a round table conference held in the university home economics department Monday. Dr. Esther McGinnis, former Idaho faculty member, who is now field worker for the American Home Economics association was in charge of the meetings. The discussion also attended by junior and senior majors in home economics, was concerned with the teaching of child development.

In the afternoon the members of the extension staff and the home economics faculty and number of Moscow women disussed the changes in present family life and the needs for education and preparations in meeting its demands.

After a formal banquet given by Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary, which she helped to found, Dr. McGinnis spoke to the evening school class in child development, recently organized for Moscow women on the subject of changing the behavior of the young child.

SMITHS PREDOMINATE

P. I. P. A.—If you are going to Columbia for graduate work, and you have a friend called "Smitty," and you want him from your dormitory window, don't be surprised if 10 dozen "Smittys" come running at your back.

There are no less than 148 Smiths attending the university this year, as compared with 91 in 1928, and 58 in 1927.

STUDENT OPINION

To the Editor:

For years we have panned W. S. C. and other schools for un-sportsmanlike conduct at football and basketball games. We used to point with pride to the courteous manner in which Idaho students treated visiting teams and officials in contrast to their frequent receptions elsewhere. While Idaho hasn't always been noted for victorious teams, it has been respected for its sportsmanship.

Now we are descending to that level of cheapness from which those whom we have blamed in the past have successfully risen. The booring and razzing at the first Idaho - Washington basketball game Monday night was as complete proof of the disappearance of the old Idaho spirit as can be found. Hec Edmundson, the old Vandal star who is now the Washington coach, was given a "sweet" reception by the present generation of sophisticates who have forgotten the Idaho code of gentlemanly conduct which those of former years labored so hard to build up. He admitted he had never known an Idaho student body to display such a Cougarish attitude before. And Hec was not the only one abashed.

And where, pray, was the "I" club, when the roar broke loose? Six years ago, the "I" men would have sifted through the crowd in nothing flat when such a performance was begun, and the disciples of razz would have the rudiments of good behavior engraved upon their anatomy with paddles.

But now—where was the "I" club Monday night. Oh, oh—they were too busy holding hands with their pals in the special section reserved for athletic handholders only. Which reminds us of another gripe—Why have dates at athletic contests anyway? Plain and fancy handholding and first-class organized cheering do not go together. With the men on one side of the gym the women on the other, and the "I" men with oak paddles instead of lily white hands in their horny paws, the old Vandal cheers would sound like something. One can't yell in unison, and be explaining what the game is all about to the girl friend at the same time.

And don't come back at us with the song and dance that if we had a winning team, you'd yell much better; because Idaho students have raised the roof over many fighting, if not winning, teams in past years. To hear the present prattle, one would gather that you had never had to stand by a loser before. Well, children, we have supported many a loser in our day. What's the matter? Can't you take it anymore?

This was the declaration of Turkish debaters, speaking at the University of Arizona. They explained that their statement was based on observation at 20 American universities.

A Line of Tripe or Two

Well this looks like a white spring. It's tough on those prosperous collegians that bought new spring outfits last week.

It's too bad that water wings aren't being shown this season.

PHILOSOPHY OF AN A GSTUDENT
Love is bitter medicine, take it as you may.

But most of us have failed to taste it, so we really shouldn't say. It makes you do strange things. I'm told, and as actions surely judge us, I bet that even Cupid fails in his efforts to budge us. But if his darts should find me out, and pierce me quite through. Then I'd say, "To hell with a farmer's life and run away with you."

Gertrude, who has been getting tired of the entertainment her Scotch Phi Gam hands out, is delighted to know that "lame duck" sessions will be abolished.

If you're accused of ditching dates, are you written down in a little book as a such and such or two.

And if you are, is there any hope of ever coming through. With an explanation that will remove those things they've said of you?

THIS SPRING IS GOING TO BE LOVELY JUST LIKE LAST SPRING WAS. THIS SPRING IS SURE TO COME BECAUSE EVERY SPRING DOES.

"Dr. G. M. Miller Enlarges Volume" said Argonaut headline. Now the lawyers can take Old English Literature and Code Pleadings the same period—without opening the transom.

Did you ever go to get a date and sit and sit and have to wait. And your collar wits and your brow gets damp, and your face is shining like a lamp. And you curse and fret beneath your breath at the girl for whom you're gasping. And you wish that she was gone.

to hell and the boilers you were firing. Then suddenly there she is, in a dress that is most exquisite. And then your ire is going, like the end of a mother-in-law's visit. And you say with a groan—it is true "I would wait forever for you."

The gigolo leads an easy life. Though he hasn't many pals. His only task is "keeping Kissable with old gals."

THE CO-ED'S LAMENT
Many men have loved me, Handsome men and true, Tall, dark and romantic, Men with eyes of blue. But I cast them all aside, For I could not be true; Then I had the hellish luck To fall in love with you.

LAWYER'S LULLABY
I THOUGHT I WAS AN ATHLETE, I ONLY HAD THAT KIND OF FEET.

"Sure, they Taste Better"

"I'm sort of restless... always on the lookout for something that hits the old taste spot... and clicks! But I've noticed that I never get tired of Chesterfields. They always taste better to me.

"That can't be an accident. It stands to reason... a cigarette that always tastes better... has got to be made better. You know what I mean... purer materials... more up-to-date ways of working. I'm willing to bet that's why my last Chesterfield of the day is as mild and satisfying as the first!"

CHOOSE IDAHO COEDS TO MODEL FASHIONS FOR LOCAL FIRMS

Department Stores Furnish Ensembles For Display at Mortar Board Tea

The fashions which Mortar Board will present at their Fashion Tea to be given next Saturday from 2 to 5 p. m. at Hays hall will be shown according to the succession of the honor of the day. The costumes will be correct and perfect in accessories and all details. Dresses for all occasions, of every hour of the day, coats of several types and various suits will be modeled. The backgrounds and decorations have been designed and constructed by Wayne Snook of Davids.

The models who have been chosen are: Virginia Lee Maquire, Beth Loomis, Elaine Cash, Mary Herrick, Doris Norell, Betty Merriam, Peggy Newhouse, Ione Walters, Marjory MacVean, Martha-lene Tanner, Catherine O'Neil, Eileen Hale, Dorothy Torgerson, Grave Raphael.

Program Arranged. The committees have been chosen and a musical program is being arranged.

The merchandise displayed by these models is furnished through the courtesy of the seven Moscow read-to-wear stores. They are Davids' Inc., The Parisian, J. C. Penny Co., Creighton's, The Fashion Shop, The Jo-Ann Shop, and Brier's. Hats will be by Torsen's Millinery and Peggy's Hat Shop.

Provides Background. In regard to the Fashion Tea, Dean Fernal of the Jo-Ann shop said that it gives the girls an opportunity to see the correct dress in a more favorable background than they would otherwise see it. Miss French went on to say, "One value of the tea is the fact that it is a means of assisting Mortar Board to carry on their projects, as they have no regular source of revenue. It also brings to the girls on the campus an opportunity to see the latest, most beautiful and most conservative styles of dress. From that standpoint, it has an educational value."

Ardith Mellinger is in general charge of the tea. Assisting her is Bess Louise Hogg, chairman of the reservations committee, and Joan Harris, chairman of the entertainment committee. The Spurs are assisting with the serving and with the reception of the guests.

Everyone Invited. "All are invited to attend," states Miss Mellinger, "but we would like to have the reservations in on time. We are asking that the reservations and the checks for the amounts be in to Bess Louise Hogg Hays hall by Friday night. The earlier the reservations are in the better it will be for accommodations are limited and the tables are going very rapidly."

The tables are two dollars or fifty cents per person. Reservations can be had for an individual, two people, or any group up to eight persons. In many of the group houses and in the halls, groups are planning to attend together. It is suggested that the town girls might also do this.

Other features besides the modeling will be musical numbers and refreshments," Miss Mellinger continued. "We are inviting all to bring their own cards and stay afterwards to play bridge."

The guests are asked to enter through the side door at Hays hall. The arrangements are well underway and the tea promises to be very successful.

FADS AND FABRICS

Wool crepe and novelty wool crepe frocks are featuring very tiny jackets, emphasizing the daytime interpretation of the high waist line note in Spring fashions. Belts and sashes do not need to be that high but are often just above the hips.

Several examples of this mode, especially in brilliant blue are displayed at the Jo Ann Shop.

Capes are revived—both cape-sleeves and even full capes, bordered with fur and used for wraps in afternoons or for shopping.

WOMEN TRY HAND AT FREE THROWS

Every Woman is Eligible to Try Hand at Breaking Record

The free throw tournament holds the center of interest for this week in women's sports. The tournament consists of each girl throwing 25 shots, out of which the successful ones are recorded. Last year the highest number of successful shots was 17 out of the 25 shots.

Every woman in the university is eligible to try her luck at breaking the previous record. Scores will be taken Thursday and Friday from 4 to 5:30 p. m. One practice period, either Tuesday or Wednesday from 4 to 5 must be attended in order to gain points in W. A. A. The points received are as follows:

Those placing in the highest one-third, 25 points; in the middle one-third, 15 points; in the lowest one-third, 10 points.

Wise Co-ed's Mum About Introducing February 29 Idea

Light dawned Monday morning at approximately the same time as it did Sunday morning, and the idea of evening crashed in the ordinary procedure. Yet it was one in four years, one of those golden opportunities for the co-eds. For it was February 29, the "extra day." Little did the conquering male realize, as he trekked from class to class, the tremendous risks he encountered. At any moment he might have been confronted with a bold, possibly desperate, co-ed, imploring him to break away from the frivolities of college life, and take unto himself the tender responsibilities of holy wedlock, or possibly deadlock—but she wisely omitted this possibility.

However, it seems a trifle unfair that the stronger sex gets the breaks in this project, as they do in all the rest. They can take any amount of time—years, if necessary—to decide upon whom to lavish their ardent wooing. When the biological urge overcomes them, all they need to do is to select a beautiful and dumb, or perhaps just dumb, female and hand her the traditional song and dance about two being able to live as cheaply as one. Statistics prove that nine times out of twelve, it's all over but paying the preacher. And that isn't predominantly in, important anyway, according to college standards. They could just get absent minded and either tell him to charge it or come around in a couple of years when they're better situated financially. And anyway, isn't the fact that he has joined together what no man may put asunder a pretty important one? That's quite an accomplishment.

But consider the strange quest of the struggling "fem." She must make every minute count—grasp hastily and repent at leisure, but then maybe that's mutual too. But from all appearances the girls were afraid to take the big plunge, and so—light dawned and evening crashed—in the same old way.

VACANCY IS FILLED

Doris Norell, alto, has been selected for the Vandalers to take the place of Elinor Lucas, 35, who has left school, announced Prof. Carleton Cummings, head of the music department.

Wednesday the same team were scheduled to debate Willamette. Several hours before the debate Mildred Peterson was placed under quarantine for mumps. Mary Ax-toll was asked to fill her place. The judges named it a non-decision debate.

Montana Takes Spirited Contest. Wednesday night the men's affirmative team debated the University of Montana. The debate Wednesday night was one of the best on the campus. The audience became very enthusiastic during the course of the debate," states Mr. A. E. Whitehead, debate instructor. Montana was judged as the winners of the debate. Joe Filseth and Harry Angney made up the Idaho team.

PI LAMBDA THETAS PRESENT PROGRAM

Pi Lambda Theta gave an interesting program Monday afternoon in the auditorium at 4 o'clock for women who are registered in the school of education. Miss Katherine Jensen, head of the home economics department gave a short informal talk on child development and parental education. It also included musical and dance numbers by OLuies Morley, Helen Settler, and Grace Nichols gave a short edjwish skit.

BUSINESS HONORARY DISCUSSES FIRESIDE

Plans Made for Visit of Inspecting Officer.

Pi Chi Theta, national honorary for women in the school of business administration held a short business meeting Thursday in Engineering 301 at 5 o'clock. Pledging new members was discussed. Miss Ida Belle Tremayne, national inspecting officer, who will visit the local chapter the week-end of March 5. Founders day will be observed Sunday, March 6, with a buffet supper followed by a fireside at the Delta Delta house.

The CINEMANIAC

FORBIDDEN—the story of the search for happiness, features the well-liked emotional actress, Barbara Stanwyck. The play was written especially for her and succeeds in bringing out her marvelous versatility in acting. Adolphe Menjou is featured with her and also does exceptional work. "Forbidden" is a splendid production and has been rated as one of Columbia's best pictures. It will be shown at the Vandal theater on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week.

THE MAN I KILLED, stars three favorites—Lionel Barrymore, Nancy Carroll, and Philip Holmes, but Lionel Barrymore is so splendid in his portrayal that the picture is really his. The story is an after-the-war romance, laid in France and Germany, in which a soldier tries to repay a family for the loss of their son, whom he killed. The cinema is Ernst Lubitsch's first dramatic talking picture, and has little dialogue—the characters speaking only when it is logical that they should. The story is mostly developed by use of action and the camera. "The Man I Killed" is extremely dramatic and is even better liked than other Lubitsch productions. It is now playing at the Kenworthy theater.

Ann Harding, believed by some to be the greatest feminine actor of the films, will be seen in PRESTIGE, opening Wednesday at the Kenworthy theater. Adolphe Menjou and Melvyn Douglas play opposite her in the story of a woman who redeems a man by her love. The rest of the cast is brilliant. "Prestige" is noted for its exceptional characterizations, and is a good picture.

TITLE AGAIN WON BY EDMUNDSON'S SEATTLE HUSKIES

U. of W. Takes Two Hard Fought Games From Cougars

"Hec" Edmundson's Huskies took two hard fought games from the Washington State Cougars last week-end and the accompanying northern division title in Seattle.

By these two victories the university has made a remarkable record of 11 consecutive wins after a very bad early season, when they lost four games.

Friday's contest showed the Seattle quintet the complete master of the situation as they took an easy victory 32 to 27. The second night the Huskies were extended to the limit to save off a desperate last minute rally to win 44 to 39.

The championship series brought together two different styles of play, the fast break of the Huskies and the slow block of Washington State.

Edmundson is a graduate and former coach of the University of Idaho.

WRESTLERS TO MEET W.S.C. SATURDAY

The Vandal squad is rated about the strongest since wrestling became a minor sport several years ago.
