FORMER REGENT WRITES STORY FOR IDAHO FORESTER

Huntington Taylor, Oregon Lumberman, Writes

The 1932 Idaho Forester published by the school of forestry is just off the press and the variety of subject matter makes it one of the most interesting numbers ever published, according to members of the forestry school. This edition is dedicated to Huntington Taylor, a former resident of Coeur d'Alene and a regent of the Unique of Taylor, a former resident of Coeur d'Alene and a regent of the Unique of Taylor. He is author of the lead ar-ticle in this year's publication, en-titled "A Challenge—Quo Vadis?", written especially for Idaho for-estry students.

Neale Author.

Neale Author. President M. G. Neale is the author of an article entitled "Two Visits to the Interior of Idaho" in which he describes some observations he made on a trip to the wilderness areas of Idaho. A beautiful picture of Mount Heyburn is included in his article.

Dean F. G. Miller was paid a tribute by Dr. E. A. Bryan, president emeritus of the State College of Washington, for it was through Dr. Bryan's influence that Dean Miller was persuaded to come to Idaho to become the first dean of Idaho's now internationally known school of forestry. A letter from Dean Miller, written from Dresden, Germany, where he has been studying European forestry practices the last few months on his sabbatical leave, is published and assists in giving the book a varied appeal.

Contest Conducted. The answer to the Associated Foresters' prize contest conducted on Engineers' Day as to what happened to Section 37 is given in an article by Mr. G. B. Mains, forest supervisor. Boise. The title is "How White Pine Came to Idaho" and is a humorous story involving Paul Bunyan, the real all-American mythical logger can mythical logger.

"The Range Livestock Industry in Idaho" is the subject of a con-tribution from E. F. Rinehart of the university extension division and Dr. G. W. Hammar of the physics department of the university in his article entitled "The Light Telephone" puts in writing for the first time the results of a field demonstration of his recent invention.

"The Blister Rust Situation in Idaho in 1932" by Dr. E. E. Hubert supplies up-to-date information on this important forestry topic.

Arthur Buckingham, a member of the 1930 graduating class in forestry, describes in detail the newly created "Primitive Area" located in almost the geographical center of Idaho. The 1932 booklet is well illustrated with a large number of pictures and the numerous contributions from forestry students make the publication valuable as a reference for the many activities engaged in by the Associated Foresters the past school year.

Value Of a College Yearbook

What is the value of a college yearbook? The answer would vary in relation to the appraisal of each individual. To one its greatest source of satisfaction is that it tells the story of some activity partcipated in; to another it is an historical record of the happenings during the college year. But to all it is a vivid, clear and permanent portrayal both written and pictorial of student life-the exciting and the pleasant contrasted with the rivalry and competition of campus contacts. To the few who labor in its production it is a finished product representing months of devoted attention to its correctness, its detail. Yes, even to its beauty.

The newspaper cannot compete with it. It is not permanent and it does not appeal to ones sense of intrinsic beauty. The newspaper is an enjoyment for the moment, but the yearbook is of constant service while in college as well as after. Perhaps its greatest contribution is its readiness in later years to recall the significant incidents of ones four years in college-the most active and interesting years. It will be a treasured possession. Each page will hold some memory by means of which you may relive the present experiences in the reflection of the future.

You-every Idaho student-will want a 1932 Gem of the Mountains. Get yours Thursday, and get it early.

On Men and Women

This is an editorial on women-and on men-and on people in particular. It is occasioned by the recent commendable exploit of Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam and some of the remarks which she made from London the other day. The real reason that Mrs. Putnam flew the Atlantic, we are told by the Associated Press, was to stop all of those nasty things men say about women airplane pilots and women automobile drivers.

That, of course, was very commendable, Mrs. Putnam. 'At least you have suggested something that we can do while waiting for Congress to settle the depression. Once again we can start discussing whether man or women are smarter. You, Mrs. Putnam, have led off by proving, by flying the Atlantic, that women are better automobile drivers. A woman automobile driver goes down Broadway or Main street in the midst of traffic and sooner or later removes a fender here and causes a traffic jam there. So to prove that the woman did not do it, you get an airplane and start across the wide open spaces of the Atlantic and get across without removing a single feather or fender from a single sea gull. You land in a field in Ireland, when you were headed for Paris, and you announce that a leak in the gasoline tank necessitated the landing. Now this is not written to take away any of the glory of that exploit. It was wonderful. It was inguiring. It was grand. But it does not prove a great deal about the ability of women in general. In the first place it is agreed that women are smarter than men. They have been a factor in every field which they have entered and we can find plenty of plausible explanations for the fact that no woman has been an outstanding success in any field which she has recently entered.

Resides that, you are an exception, I fear, Mrs. Putnam. It would be dreadful to see any young lady from this campus start to fly the Atlantic the Pacific, or even the local river known as "Paradise Creek." Roofs are so expensive. In fact, it would be dreadful to see women here try anything except a new model of spring coats. In other words, the game is on and the first move is to point out that all women can't fly the Atlantic and that a good many women can't drive motor cars. So that is enough for the women.

The next topic is men. It is necessary to have both sides of the matter if there is to be a contest. It is perfectly proper to say here that most men agree that the woman is the center of the universe. Around it all things girate. She is smarter; she is wiser; she is prettier; and she talks more. That last item is the one that gave rise to this nonsense. Men don't seem to have to fly the Atlantic to vindicate themselves. They readily agree that they have done quite as well as the average woman in serving the great purpose for which they were created-finding new ways to do things wrong.

Calm Down

About this time of the year with the final schedule in the offing, it is customary for students to work themselves up into states of frenzy caused by the combined worry over the approaching examinations and a deluge of term papers.

Illness, run down conditions, and in some extreme cases, nervous breakdowns are the tolls which are paid for this last minute flurry. Leaves of absences on account of sickness at this time of the year are often necessi-

It is quite possible to undo a whole semester's work during these last few days. Attendance at too many meetings for the elections of new officers, too many final banquets of the year, and other celebrations culminates in producing an overstrenuous program for the rushed students.

What is needed now, if ever through the semester, is a calm facing of facts, sufficient hours sleep, and a sensible scheduling of time allowing enough time for some good steady concentration on the books.-UCLA Bruin.

Flower gardens, lattice fences, trellised walls, and colored lights made charming backgrounds for the numerous dances given this week end. Where flowers were lacking sporting goods took their place. Now that the school year is almost over, each house wants the memory of another successful college dance to add to the list of the past.

Friday night Delta Chi entertained at a sport dance. The walls of the house were cove ed with fencing swords, boxing gloves, bats, baseball mits, and tennis rackets. In each corner was a huge golf bag, giving the house the appearance of an up to date club. Patrons and patronesses were: Prof. and Mrs. Pendleton Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Steffans, Mr. and Mrs. Liter Spence.

The same night the sophomores The same night the sopnomores lap, Miss Lucille Moore, Miss Eileen staged their annual frolic at the Hale, Miss Dorothy Howerton, and Blue Bucket. There were no programs, and no decorations, but the lack of these two minor items was not noticed in the hilarity and fun of the occasion. Patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. The lighting effects were all in violet. Patrons were Mrs. Watt. Piercey, Mr. Robert Green, Mr. Harold Stowell and Mr. Edward Poulton.

ALPHA PHIS GIVE SPRING FORMAL SATURDAY

A large rainbow in pastel hues hanked with baskets of different varleties of flowers was only one of the many attractive features of the Alpha Phi formal dance given at the chap-ter house Saturday night. The fire-place was filled with flowers and a rustic bridge was placed in front with potted ferns on either end. The orchestra were shut off by a fence covered with fringed naner of the same colors as the rainbow. Baskets of tulips, honeysuckle, and lilacs were placed everywhere. Shortly after intermission a telegram came to the surprised guests announcing the engagment of Catherine Brandt and Melvin Sackett, who were properly congratulated beneath the rainbow. Patrons and patronesses were: Mr.
