For a Bigger and Better Homecoming

It's not too early now to start formulating plans for this year's Homecoming. Homecoming day last year was not too successful for several reasons. In the first place the day was not pleasant as far as weather conditions are concerned. After the game had gotten underway the wind was taken out of the sails of most of the rooters. These are conditions which we could not help.

However there are many things which we can do toward making this Homecoming better than last. A student body committee has been appointed to work on the plans; Blue Key has a committee to function with the student body committee. Besides all the members of Blue Key work in conjunction with the committees.

Last year there was no section reserved for alumni "I" men; there was no stunt by the student body at the half; and there was no formal opening of the game where the band plays the "Star Spangled Banner" and the players and rooters alike stand at attention while a bomb is released and the American flag comes drifting down from above. All this has its effects on the alumni, townspeople, and students. It should make them realize that we can do things around here. Let's get organized.

Why Support Freshman Athletics?

Idaho's opening freshman football game with Cheney Normal school last Saturday was without doubt the most difficult assignment which a freshman squad could receive. This game was undoubtedly a blow to the morale of the entire frosh team. The final score was 10-0 in favor of the visitors. This is a thing of the past, however, the most conspicuous point about these contests is the lack of rooters, or backers for the Idaho freshmen.

It is only a matter of logic that many of the boys who played last Saturday morning before a meagre group of perhaps 200 onlookers will be playing on the varsity during the 1934 football season. This point alone is an adequate argument for the support of freshman athletics. The freshmen are the feeders for the Vandal's first string. Every year many promising young players leave the University of Idaho at the end of their first year never to return. Perhaps the loss of much excellent material is due to a lack of enthusiasm by Idaho students in supporting the freshmen football men by attending the games in which they play. Also at the closing of school next June many members of the present freshman team will return to their homes over the state. It is doubtful whether their reports of the backing which the freshman football group now receives will be favorable to bringing in other prospective college students. Common sense will tell us that two or three years from now the Idaho varsity will be composed of present high school athletes who are probably now undecided in their choice of a college.

One attends college only once. During these four years the most is received by the student who is wide awake to the life and activities of the campus. The best method of keeping this contact in the case of football is to watch the teams through their evolution from freshmen to varsity. It is apparent that many lose out on this valuable detail by entirely disregarding the freshman games. It is time that we all realize the significance of freshman athletics.

Grins and Gripes To The Editor

Re-Deal of Campus Politics

The "extremely abortive instrumentality," as the Argonaut editor chooses to designate the women's minority bloc, has attempted its first step in carrying out its Re-Deal of campus politics. Most evidently a Re-Deal is imperative; and most evidently it is up to the women of the University of Idaho to secure the Re-Deal. The politics of student government have been in the hands of the men for years, and for the same number of years have continually grown dirtier and dirtier. Realizing the necessity for calling a halt to such movement, the women organized a bloc and made their first attempt at Re-Dealing campus politics.

"Politics have been based on election by means of ballyhoo, and maintained by offices, patronage, and the 'grapes' to be passed around." But the minority bloc was an earnest attempt to uphold the better ideals. These women, believing that more sincere and honest candidates might be found than those chosen by Campus and Alpha parties, nominated their own candidates. The names of women were not all reserved for secretary-treasure jobs. If the "grabbing of grapes" by an organized party is not "dirty politics," but just plain politics, why shouldn't women have a hand in "grape-grabbing"? Why should the hand they take be referred to as "An extremely abortive instrumentality"? Women have proven themselves just as capable as men. So why not start approaching some degree of fairness in the matter of true representation by allowing women to hold a part of the "reigns of student government" instead of by making them merely signposts to pass by on the road to cleaner politics?

There must be a more equal system of representation. The women nominated men on their ticket. If these particular nominees were chosen because they had "soulful eyes" and "danced divinely," what other reason can Campus and Alpha parties give for nominating the same men? They were chosen by the women's party because the women believed that these men would do their best in office and would attempt to clean up the "mess" into which campus politics have fallen. Their women candidates were selected for the same reason.

Politics needn't be run by machine; they needn't be subjected to "group control." Let's adopt a system of representation in which there is a true representation not only between contesting groups, but also between contesting sexes. Surely this would be one step in cleaning up campus politics.

The customary greeting and salutations:
It seems as how a lot of people on this camp of ours have adopted an N. R. A. (No Response Allowed) attitude in regards to the old "Hello" tradition.

Attention Frosh: Due to the N. R. A. Season tickets to the Arboretum have been raised to $1.00. Place orders by calling 8341.
Ode (or owed) to a man about to call it love:
To get a girl or not to get a girl, that is the collegiate question.

Whether 'tis nobler in the minds to suffer the slings and arrows of academic ambitions, or to take up love against a sea of blondes, and by opposing, marry one of them.
To kiss, to love, to love perchance to dream of marriage. Aye, there's the rub. For in that sleep of love, what nightmares may come, puzzle the budget, and make us doubtful whether to bear those bills we have, or fly to others we know not of.

And just to prove that all of the putrid puns in the world don't come from the Idaho precinct, we present one from the Ventura J. C. paper. It's known as the Dummy Song: "Drink Dummy only with Thine Eyes." Now ain't that just awful.

Love flies out of the window when the housemother walks in.
Angus says: "What couple, so comfortably-enclosed in one of the new ticket booths Saturday night, was doted by 'dat old debil' flishlite in the hands of a Frosh would-be Winchell?" Remember, we only ask the question, and the tight fitting shoe soon causes the guilty parties to answer, thus saving us the trouble.

A Coed's Diary

Friday, October 13. This morning did rise in time for breakfast of bedregged coffee and debuttered toast. Then to class. On the way met Clayne Robinson, proud father of Gem and a daughter. Large crowds in the library and halls. Atmosphere has changed from mints and nuts to musts and nots. Attended several meetings which reminded me that I must ask Dr. Barton the difference between activated and activity-ated. Talked with John Farquhar, the perennial junior. On my way home from school took a nail from the old Beta house as a souvenir of the Fall of the House of Husher. To town to try Walgreen's where a couple of Chessy cat grins on a couple of Chestnuts were observed. Was almost taken in by the Delta Chi badger game which is bald, not to say bold. While wending my weary way homeward did hear the Sigma Chi pledge orchestra. Hied me to the telephone booth to offer myself as escort to a willing damsel for tonight's revelry at the Bucket and then out to test the efficiency of a new Kappa terrace. This evening did study the constellations and found that some white stars may be bright but they are seldom as constant as the north star. And so to bed to read Paradise Regained by Milton whom as a writer I consider no better than just a gigolo.

OLD VIOLA TO BE ADDED TO STRINGS

An excellent viola is soon to become a part of the equipment of the string quartet in the department of music.

"For the past three years," said Prof. Carleton Cummings, head of the department, "I have been attempting to secure a really good viola. Lyon and Healy company of Chicago, Ill., sent the instrument out to me with the statement that it was approximately a hundred and twenty-five years old, and of French make. A group of us listened to it this afternoon in the university auditorium, and I am very pleased with it. I shall purchase the instrument and loan it to the music department."

Psychology professor at Washington university claims to have dispelled the so-called mystery of women—says he has figured out how many times a week they get angry and how long the spells last.

Le Dernier Mot

"Kne-two, purl-two" are last words "all right"—last words before breakfast, lunch, dinner, bed, and dates. It's a good thing that campus stylists don't take Paris too seriously. Can you imagine being glamorous with a couple of knitting needles? But this is no trifling matter. Some really stunning sweaters are being knit by those who have passed the novice stage, and they are going to do wonders in brightening up our twin sweater suits.

If you want to practice, may I suggest making yarn cord—on a spool—as you did about twelve years ago—and lacing it through the neck and sleeves of your wool dresses. That is smart! Speaking of twin sweaters—their charm lies in the beauty of their simple necklines, and my aesthetic soul cringes when I see them reduced to the ordinary by a collar.

ALL HAIL!
Honors of the week go to the owner of as lovely an informal as has been seen on this campus—a trailing, black velvet gown belonging to Bee "Cinnamon-Stick" Flasher.

Speaking of cinnamon, our color scheme of the moment is exemplified by a brown and white tweed suit with a warm rose sweater blouse.

In closing, may I warn "Billy" Simpson that those hat pins would make wonderful ribbing needles.

Yosemite is believed to mean grizzly bear.

Idaho Vandals Play College Of Idaho Coyotes Tonight

SPORT SHOP

By BILL MCCREA

The Vandals embarked last night for what is supposed to be their second "pushover" game in a row. They should return with a decisive win even though the College of Idaho stalwarts have been pointing for the game and are going to "use everything in the books in the way of trick football."

Coach Loren Basler's pre-game statement: "We are working on offense entirely—no defense. We're going to get the ball and hang on to it. The team that has the ball is the one that scores and so long as we keep it, it's a cinch that the Vandals can't score." That is certainly a sound plan—provided the Coyotes can keep the ball away from the Vandals.

An interesting sidelight is that the game will bring together seven former Boise high school players, all of whom were coached by Basler during the eight years he was coaching in the capitol city. Willis Smith, Thad Beatty, and Oliver Davis, of the university team will compete against Hawley, Essen, McReynolds, and Swan, who are again playing for Basler, this time at the College of Idaho.

Basler is going to show some fast, tricky reverse plays and, rumor has it, one "slicker" which will wow the boys. On this play the center hands the ball almost straight sideways to a tackle. The tackle conceals the ball as well as possible for a moment while the rest of the offensive team dashes around the opposite end. Said tackle then ambles down the field for a touchdown.

We were out watching McCue, Idaho's latest "find," toss the pigskin around. Just for the fun of it Mr. McCue let a couple go skyward in order to see how far away they would come down. The old oval came down about 75 yards away, and that's enough to delight any coach.

Believe it or not—the 1933 official Football magazine reports that St. Mary's college in California can start a line which will average 245 pounds. That's not a line—that's a dam.

William "Navy Bill" Ingram, head football coach at California, refers to his backfield positions in numerals instead of halfback and fullback. His No. 1 back is the right half; No. 2, fullback; No. 3, quarter, and No. 4, left half.

This week's menu of Pacific coast football brings U. S. C. and St. Mary's together; has California meeting the Olympic club; Stanford tangling with Northwestern in the season's first inter-sectional tangle; and brings together Washington and Oregon in what should be the most interesting struggle of the day. We pick all three California teams as winners and toss a coin for the Huskie-Webfoot clash. By virtue of the record of the last four years and their potential power, Oregon should have the edge. It's a tough one to call, and will undoubtedly consist of the Husky passing attack versus the line smashing and skirting of Oregon's versatile backfield.

This weekend three outstanding football men, all native sons of Idaho, will in all probability be seen in play on widely scattered gridirons over the United States. Vido Metrovich, former Kellogg boy, who played for Kellogg and Gonzaga high schools, will play the halfback position he held down most of last season in the backfield of the St. Mary's frosh squad. John Hutchinson, Coeur d'Alene boy, will be holding down a regular tackle position on the team from the United States Military academy at West Point. Hutchinson is over six feet tall and weighs well over 200 pounds. He played on the Coeur d'Alene high school team for two years before going to the academy. Everett Robinson, flashy speedster from Wallace, is playing a regular halfback position on the Notre Dame freshman team.

Here's the way a Los Angeles expert picked the teams on the coast to rate:

1. Southern California
 2. Washington
 3. St. Mary's
 4. California
 5. Washington State
 6. Stanford
 7. U. C. L. A.
 8. Oregon
 9. Loyola
 10. Santa Clara
 11. Gonzaga
 12. San Francisco
 13. Oregon State
 14. Idaho
 15. Montana

Game Promises to Be Real Battle With Calland's Men Having Edge

Concentrating on a versatile aerial attack and a few "pet" plays, Coach Leo Calland is taking no chances on losing an "under the lights" tilt with the College of Idaho Coyotes at Caldwell tonight. Using the McCue, Iverson, and Geraghty, Honsowetz passing combinations, and again pressing into service the ball-carrying abilities of the burly John Nordby, Calland promises to offer to south Idaho fans something besides the wares of "Little Giant" Smith, ace Idaho speed merchant.

By no means are the Idaho coaches and players taking the game lightly. They have a healthy respect for Coach Basler and the players he attracted to the Caldwell institution this fall. The Coyotes have everything to win and nothing to lose in the game, a fact which the Vandals well realize. They also have reports that the Coyotes have a better club than usual, and will enter the game with the intention of using everything in their football war bag.

Football enthusiasts will remember the last game between the Vandals and the Coyotes in 1930, at Boise. In that game the score was 6 to 0 at the end of the half, and it was only by a determined rally in the last half that the Calland cohorts were able to stave off defeat. When queried as to the probable result of tonight's game, Coach Calland had no comment to make other than that it would be "a good show" and that it would be "a lot better than the Whitman game."

Willis Smith, who was cheered by loyal Boise supporters in the days when he was a mainstay on the capitol city high school club, will be seen in action for the last time in southern Idaho tonight. The mighty "Little Giant" who has streaked Idaho gridirons for the past eight years, will start the game, a thing which in itself is unusual, in that in past years Coach Calland has held him out as a trump card because of lack of reserves.

Ready For Game
At Caldwell, the "Baz" boys have been pointing for the Idaho game for weeks, and are intending to shoot the works. Since the decisive defeat of Whitman's Missionaries last Saturday, however, the Caldwell club is not quite as assured of victory as formerly on offense, pointing out as his strategy, getting the ball and keeping it. With a none too impressive 12 to 0 victory over Albion Normal and an easy 21 to 0 win over a team composed of College of Idaho alumni, they are facing their first hard game of the season against Idaho.

Three Coyote first string men, Schwieter, huge tackle, Haymen, end, and Bladear, halfback, are suffering from an attack of the flu and will be unable to start. The past week has been spent in scrimmaging against the third string running College of Idaho formations and in polishing up the Vandal offensive attack, including the passing attack which was so successful last week. Dick Nutting, booming 190-pound guard, will not make the trip due to a leg injury received in scrimmage yesterday, although Coach Calland hopes to have him back for the Oregon game next week. Other members of the squad who will be left at home on account of injuries are Paul Berg, outside half; Chick Wilson, running guard; Hesse, end; and Barbee, center. Hesse received a bad leg injury in the Whitman game and Barbee has been out for two weeks on a knee injury received in scrimmage.

Regulars Start
Halfbacks—Nordby, Earl Smith, Walker, Jacoby, Honsowetz, Parker, Evans; fullbacks—Cordon.

Freshmen Meet Lewiston Normal in Second Contest

Young Vandals Enter Game Heavy Favorites To Win

With the second game of the season approaching, the frosh footballers are rounding into shape to give the Lewiston Normal a tough reception on MacLean field Saturday afternoon. The past week has been spent in smoothing out the offense and shifting men in the line. Coach Otto Anderson has had the boys running passes and consolidating their attack formations. With the rough spots coming off, the boys are beginning to look and act like a team. Some of the young'uns have had a hard time learning the signals but constant drill has improved that phase of their game.

"I don't think the game will be a walkaway but we should have no trouble taking it," says Coach Anderson. "We expect to give most of the boys a chance to get in the game and give them the experience they lack at present."

Experienced Line
The tentative line-up will start Gwilliams and Luvaas at ends. Both of them have been doing nicely in practice and may be expected to turn in a good game this week. The tackle positions have been in for a lot of pressure since the game with Cheney and should be hard to get past. Gray and White will start the game in these positions.

Cooper and Keyes will perform at guard. Cooper has proved to be good and can be relied upon to do his part. Keyes did not get into the game last week and will be under fire for the first time. However, he is big and willing and will be fighting for a permanent place Saturday.

Woody Hall will start the game as pivot man and will be backed by Spaugy in reserve. Ritzheimer and Savage at half positions, Ross, Sunderberg at fullback and Devlin, quarter, will compose the backfield. The reserves are in good shape and will no doubt show some real stepping when they go in. Osborne has been laid up part of the week with a bad ankle and it is doubtful whether he will get in the game.

Teachers Are Light
Head Coach Greene of the teacher's college will come to Moscow with a team averaging 168 pounds per man. There has been a good turnout of lettermen at the Normal this fall. The backfield is a seasoned crew backed by plenty of reserve strength. In the line, the teachers are not so fortunate, much of their material being high school recruits, although there are still quite a number of pioneer lettermen to give the line power. The frosh linemen will meet a couple of Moscow boys who played on the high school "wonder team" of 1932, John Paulson at center, and Art Benson at guard.

SCRIMMAGES WITH COW

Casualties on football squads are of varied nature, but the "Mustangs" of Texas Tech deserve the prize for the most unique... a varsity tackle of the "Mustangs" is on the bench, suffering from "milkman's knee" received in "scrimmage" with a cow... the animal scored a touchdown on the gridder's knee.

Driving without a license, obstructing traffic, operating a trolley without a franchise, and further investigation were the charges piled on students of Colorado School of Mines, arrested while driving an ancient streetcar down the streets of the town, plastered with signs as an advertisement of their impending games with Denver.

Idaho's starting lineup probably will be Randall and Garst, ends; McInerney and Moser, tackles; A. Berg and Herbig, guards; Swann, center; Nordby and Jacoby, halfbacks; Cordon, fullback; and Willis Smith, quarterback.

Big Bob Booms 'Em

BOB MOSER, 200-POUND tackle, is one of Coach Calland's outstanding linemen. He won his varsity letter last year as a regular when he was only a sophomore. Bob does most of the set-kicking for the Vandals. When he unlimbers his toe every night in practice work-outs and starts booming them over the cross-bar, it takes a couple of lively frosh managers to keep the balls from crashing through the Memorial gymnasium windows 40 yards away.

SCIENTIST THINKS RADIO DEVELOPING

Radio and television will undergo great development soon, Mar-chese Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of radio, said on his arrival at New York recently aboard the Italian liner Conte di Savoia.

Marconi, who is accompanied by his wife, left for Chicago where he is to be guest of honor at "Marconi Day" at the Century of Progress Exposition. Marconi said that the most important steps now being taken on radio experimentation were toward finding higher channels and greater frequency wave lengths.

Signs to Coach Bacone Eleven

MUSKOGEE, Okla.—Emmet McLemore, quarterback on Haskell Indian Institute football teams more than a decade ago and associate of Jim Thorpe in pro football, has signed as coach of the Bacone Indian school here. At Haskell, where he earned a reputation for hurdling opposition linemen, he was field general for such stars as Tommy Anderson, Kipp, Lassa, Woffard, Fire and Kil-buck. He formerly coached at the Chillicothe Indian school.

A survey by the New York Herald-Tribune showed that the New York Giants, winners of the 1933 World Series, had eight college graduates on their team, as compared to four for the Washington Senators, who came out second best in the series.

IDAHO GRAD GOES TO JOHNS HOPKINS

Eleanor Beamer Easley, former Idaho student, has enrolled in the school of medicine at Johns Hopkins university in Baltimore, Md. Mrs. Easley received her pre-medical training at Duke university. During her undergraduate days at Idaho Mrs. Easley was elected to membership in Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Alpha Iota, national music honorary, and Kappa Alpha Theta, social sorority.

FROSH LOSE PRIVILEGES

PROFESSORS HELP COUNTIES

Professors R. E. Bell, C. O. Youngstrom, and T. R. Warren left the university recently and will not return until sometime during the middle of November. They have been temporarily assigned to counties to help with the wheat production control program.
