Students Lose Pep Over Exams

The only spark of life this week end from an otherwise dazed and moaning student body will be the Associated Miners' ball. They are, apparently, the only ones who feel sufficiently revived from the mid-year ordeal of semester exams. The social events this week have consisted mostly of agonized mutterings of formulas and irregular verbs, and a close communion with that boon of all cramming—the Midnight Oil.

Social activities, however, will soon pick up, and the calendar will be full from now until spring, with initiation dances, formal, mixers, spring informals, and numerous novelty affairs.

The annual Miners' Ball will be held Saturday night at the Blue Bucket Inn. Decorations will be symbolic of mining interests. Drills, small stamp mills, and gold pans will be placed around the dance hall. The programs will be in the mining motif also. All dances will be named after seniors in the mining school with rhyming mining terms placed with them. Patrons and patronesses will be Dean and Mrs. J. W. Finch, Dr. and Mrs. F. B. Laney, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Fahrwald, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Livingston, and Mr. W. W. Staley.

Mrs. Lorin Lewis, Wendel Lewis, Burley, and Mrs. Bethel Poulton, Moscow, were Wednesday luncheon guests of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Mildred Peterson was a house guest of Delta Delta Delta Tuesday.

Philip Peterson, Spokane, and Jack Frye, Emmett, were dinner guests of Beta Theta Pi Wednesday.

Louise Mulliner, Idaho Falls, and June Quatic, Montpelier, have returned to the campus to enroll for the second semester.

Gertrude Schaefer, and Mrs. J. E. Schaefer, Priest River, were dinner guests of Alpha Tau Omega Wednesday.

W. S. C. COEDS TURN ESCORTS FOR A DAY

Featuring George Washington's birthday as the theme, a "ladies' choice" dance will be held at Washington State college February 24. The affair is given under the auspices of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary.

Dating customs will be reversed with the co-eds calling for their partners at fraternity houses and dormitories, standing the expense of the affair, and escorting their "dates" home after the dance.

The co-eds of Missouri have voluntarily shaved their heads to keep from having so many dates, so that they might not be distracted from their studies.

at the Kenworthy—Walter Winchell, Broadway columnist whose today's gossip is tomorrow's scandal, is author of the story of "Broadway Thru a Keyhole," coming to the Kenworthy Friday and Saturday. The picture has a background of night clubs and show how a sweet and innocent young girl rose to fame, was befriended by a handsome young racketeer and finally became the wife of a famous radio crooner. Constance Cummings, Russ Columbo and Paul Kelly play the three leading roles.

...What was the origin of those two words, "Hey Rube"—that fascinating battle cry, that call-to-arms of carnival and circus people the world over? This was the subject of discussion during the filming of a sequence of "Hoopla," starring Clara Bow at the Kenworthy Sunday and Monday. Edward Mundy, who has been with the carnival companies since the inception of carnivals in 1893, and who had charge of the carnival used in "Hoopla" settled the question. "The cry had its inception with a wagon show in the old circus days," said Mundy. "The boss canvasser on the show was an old fighter by the name of Rube Williams. He could lick anybody. One night the boss of the gambling concession had a fight with a townsman. Getting the worst of it, the gambler yelled for his friend, the boss canvasser. He shouted 'Hey, Rube!' Rube went to his assistance and from that day the call-to-arms is 'Hey Rube'."

at the Vandal—Comely, brunette, angelic, scarcely twenty-one, yet Ann Dvorak is called "The bad girl of the screen." Her only "nice" role comes with her return to the scene in "The Way to Love," now at the Vandal with Maurice Chevalier. She is cast as a sad-eyed Parisian girl who has been cowed by her employer, a villainous knife-thrower in a street carnival. She runs away and turns to Chevalier for refuge. He is a tourist guide, in love with his Paris and he tries to bring to her sad eyes something of his joy of life. The knife-thrower returns to the scene and sets in complications.

...The fantastic spectacle of a man, a girl, and a gigantic ape united in a treasure hunt in a land of prehistoric monsters, warlike natives, and colossal sea serpents, is the unique dramatic theme of "Son of Kong," coming to the Vandal Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The story opens with Carl Denham (Robert Armstrong) accompanied by a girl, (Helen Mack) who smuggled herself aboard his ship, and a small party invading Skull island. There he meets the Son of Kong, establishes friendly relations by saving the huge creature's life, and together they set out for a startling series of conflicts. An earthquake sequence climaxes the production.

Coed Sharpshooters Start Practice for Interclass Matches

Women's rifle practice begins Monday, and will continue for three weeks when a squad of 24, six from each of the four classes will be picked by Lieut. John W. Sheehy, coach. This squad will practice two weeks more before the start of match firing. Practice hours are Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, from 2 p. m. to until 5.

The match firing will cover a period of three weeks. Each class team will fire two matches per week, and during the three weeks will fire twice against each of the other three classes. The team winning the greatest per cent of its matches will be declared class champions for the year. In case of a tie, the highest average score in matches will decide. All six members of each class team will fire in each match—the four highest scores only will count.

Each woman reporting for practice will pay a fee of 50 cents to help defray the cost of ammunition, according to Lieut. Sheehy. This fee may be paid in advance at the office of the women's physical education department or to Jean Clough, rifle manager. There will be an extra practice period on Monday during the first week.

Heads of 71 colleges and universities are Columbia university graduates.

W. A. A. Program Is Full From Now Until June First

The Women's Athletic association will open the second semester activities with the major sport, basketball. Along with the five weeks of basketball under Miss Locke, there will be rifle practice under the direction of Lieutenant J. W. Sheehy.

The free-throw tournament follows the basketball season and offers the university women an opportunity to earn points on the same basis as the horseshoe tournament was conducted in the fall. Before the tennis tournament there will be two weeks of instruction in serving and playing.

The fourth major sport of the year is baseball which is usually played for about seven weeks. A tournament between the classes follows.

The year's activities are brought to a close by the W. A. A. banquet held about the first of June.

Vandals Plan To Put W.S.C. In The Cellar

Cougars Determined To Avenge Last Vandal Win; Idaho's Offense Is Improved

Can they or can't they? That's the questions that Vandal basketball followers are propounding to each other as they consider the prospects of Idaho's chalking up her fifth win out of six encounters with the Cougars, in the last two years. The two outfits go at it here tomorrow night, with the cellar position in the conference standings the reward for the loser.

The Vandals had it all over Jack Friel's boys in their first clash at Pullman two weeks ago, handing the Cougars a 34 to 28 pasting. On the basis of comparative scores with other teams in the division, W. S. C. and Idaho are exactly even, both having lost all their games played so far this year to the league-leading Huskies, and divided their series with last year's champions, the Oregon State Beavers.

VANDALS PLAN TO MAKE IT EVEN TOUGHER

Idaho's chances of winning this next game apparently are better than those the last time. The Vandal five, with sophomores in key positions, have improved their game during the last two weeks, and in spite of the fact that Washington State lost the last game because "they played ragged ball" and "were off" that night, they will have a tough time making even as good a showing as they did then.

Since the beginning of the season, Idaho's defense has been gradually working into a well organized combination. Revolving around Howard Grenier, the Vandals prospect for all-conference honors in the pivot position, and Wally Geraghty, and Merle Fisher, the Vandal defense has become the stubbing stone in the Idaho opponents' path. Wally Geraghty, the sophomore guarding ace, has been a big factor in the Idaho defense. After holding Kenny Wills, high-point man in the W. S. C. lineup to one point, he held "Skeets" O'Connell, O. S. C. flash, to two points in the two games with Idaho. Merle Fisher, another sophomore guard, has been doing some good checking and that, combined with his aptness in sinking long shots, has earned him a regular berth on the squad.

STILL FIGHTING FOR VACANT POST

Klumb, Grenier, W. Geraghty, and Fisher are probably cinched to start in the game Saturday night. This leaves the other forward position open for either Vic Warner or Glen "Lefty" Naslund. Warner, a junior letterman, plays a type of ball that is particularly effective against the W. S. C. style. Naslund's fast passing and quick cutting calls for much shooting and his tricky, left-handed shots find the basket regularly.

COUGARS TO USE SAME LINEUP

The Washington State lineup will probably be the same that started against Idaho two weeks ago. Kenny Wills, Captain Rex Scott, Roland Johnson, Bob McPhee, and Bob Houston making up coach Jack Friel's first string. This game will be one of the deciding factors in Idaho's chances for second position in the conference and the Cougars will be here with their hearts set on winning this game of all games. Wills has a reputation to regain and hold and will let nothing stop him from revenging the last game with Idaho.

HUSKIES MEET O. S. C. TONIGHT

Will Probably be the Toughest Series For the League Leaders

The probable 1934 northern division basketball champions invade Corvallis tonight to meet the Oregon State, 1933 coast champion team. The Washington Huskies, with eight wins and no losses to their credit, are entering what will probably be their toughest series of the season.

The Beavers have always been more or less of a jinx team to Hee Edmundson's Huskies and tonight will attempt the feat at which every other conference team has failed—defeating the fast-moving, smooth-clicking Washington basketball machine. The Huskies and the Beavers meet in a two game series this week end that will probably affect Oregon State's final standing seriously. The Huskies stand little chance of being headed even if they do lose the series, but two Oregon State wins would probably do much toward getting them a lease on the runner-up position.

Next Monday and Tuesday, the Huskies move on to Eugene to complete their four games with the Oregon Webfoots.

Tomorrow night the Cougars come seeking revenge for four lost basketball games which the Idaho Vandals have walked off with in the last two years. Our prediction is that the Cougar will again sink Pullmanward with another mark chalked up in its "lost" column. And what's more it will mean that Washington State will be back in the cellar.

It is sad but true that Coach Jack Friel's Washington State Casaba squad, which was rated by pre-season dope to be either the winner or runner-up this year, has been unable to go the pace which was expected of them. The rest of the conference teams have run pretty much true to predictions although Washington's fighting machine has swept through in far better manner than was anticipated.

Bob Galer, Washington's shooter de luxe, who has a most comfortable 25 point lead in the conference scoring race, is standing in a fair way to break the new conference scoring record which Oregon State's all-American Ed Lewis hung up. Lewis scored 173 in 18 conference games for an average of 10 and thirteen sixteenths points per game. Galer, halfway through the season, has 86 points made in 8 games giving him an average of 10 and three-fourths points per game. Mr. Galer is thus one sixteenth of one point per game behind Mr. Lewis so far, but he has the last half of the season yet to play. It's rather a safe guess that with four games to play in Oregon the Huskies' scoring won't be as profuse as it was the first of the season, but Galer has been up against every team in the conference except O. S. C. and none of them; have managed to hold him in yet.

Tomorrow night's game will be the half-way mark in the conference race for the Vandals. Furthermore, it will probably tell just how much of an opportunity the Vandals have to put on a spurt that might land them in second place. A loss will mean that Idaho has little chance to be far from the cellar position when the battles are over. The game will undoubtedly be a furious one as a loss would be even more serious to the Cougars. It would put them absolutely and definitely out of the running for everything.

A couple of personal battles should lend color to the big fray tomorrow night. Kenny Wills, who was held to one point by Wally Geraghty, is reputed to be rather irritated and out to regain his lost honors. Geraghty, rapidly becoming famed for his "shadowing," will probably make himself rather obnoxious to Mr. Wills. Wills is now in third position in the conference scoring race, and will probably not cherish the idea of being outscored and held to one point again, so it looks to be a full evening for both men.

Another interesting duel should be put on between Howard Grenier, potential all-conference center, and Washington State's elongated sophomore, Bob Houston. The Cougar "stratosphere kid" has about a 2 1/2 inch advantage in height of "little" 5 ft. 5 1/4 inch Howard. But Grenier not only got more than his share of tipoffs in the first W. S. C. game, but scored 11 points while he was holding Mr. Houston to three counters.

Although Grenier is tied for sixth place in the conference scoring race, Howard has not shown outstanding form which he displayed last year in outplaying practically every opposing center. With the exception of the Washington State game, Howard has not hit the stride he is capable of. Idaho fans know this kind of ball Grenier can play and are expecting him to clearly show his right to the all-conference center post. He is about due to get going again against Washington State, and when he does—look out Cougars!

Here's a chance to get the exams off your mind. Let's have a 100% student attendance at the game. The Cougars are due for their second whipping, so let's all be there to witness it.

THERE'S A FOUR-WAY FIGHT ON the Idaho basketball squad for one of the forward posts, and this veteran of the 1932 squad is right in the thick of it. Naslund, Warner, and Katsilometes are the other contestants. Which one will get the starting assignment tomorrow night against W. S. C. will not be decided until game time.

VANDAL MAULERS ARE LOOKING GOOD

Boxing Ring Is Installed; "Man Mountain" May Invade Idaho

Following installation of a new permanent boxing ring downstairs in the gym, activities of the followers of the squared circle will go ahead with renewed vigor, reports Coach Louie August, boxing mentor. The new ring will facilitate practice and with important bouts coming up in the near future a grueling practice session is in store for varsity fighters every night.

"I want more freshmen," says Coach August. With about a dozen yearlings turning out now a large number in addition can be worked in very nicely, according to the boxing coach, who declares that the younger he catches them the better fighters they make. If a large enough group turns out, a match with the Washington State freshmen will be arranged, reports August.

VARSITY BOXERS HITTING THE BALL

Varsity fighters are coming in for their share of the work these days with a card scheduled for February 9 at Lewiston, another card at Moscow the 14th, and a tentative exhibition in March. Louie Denton, whose left hand poke has worried several opponents in the ring, is reporting once more, following an operation and is expected to be back in the thick of it in a short time. Orville Schmitz, varsity football man, is also back in harness after a protracted absence from fistic circles.

Morrey and Carl Fickes are going nicely as is also Wendell Dayton, one of Coach Calland's fullbacks who is keeping up training in the off season. Glen Gage, a new man who formerly called the University of Nebraska his home, is a promising youngster, says August, and there is a definite possibility of his appearing in future varsity cards. Gage has two years of ring competition left, being a sophomore this season.

IDAHO FIGHTERS TREK TO LEWISTON

The big match to be held at Lewiston February 9th will see three Idaho men in action and possibly more. Matches are being arranged for Morrey Fickes, 147 pounds, Wendell Dayton, 160 lbs., and Morrey's little brother Carl, who weighs in at 130. February 14th is the date set for another card at Moscow, featuring Idaho varsity boxers, Washington State men, and possibly delegates from the Triple C camp at Troy. In the event that the CCC boys enter the competition, the exhibition will probably develop into a three-cornered tournament in the opinion of Coach August.

"CARNER" THEODORATOS MAY FIGHT HERE

The card being lined out for early in March in the Vandal camp will probably be another tilt with W. S. C., with the added possibility that George Theodoratos, huge Greek from Washington State, may be the drawing card. "Lammie" always an attraction, will be matched with Clyde Luce, Moscow A. C., according to advance notices. Luce has met the Grecian giant before and on that occasion managed to pound out a neat decision on the ribs of his towering opponent. Varsity boxing practice is being held from 3 to 6 in the afternoons downstairs in the gymnasium and all interested should turn out at that time. Including both varsity and freshmen boxers about 30 men are turning out at the present time.

 TEST No. 15

Take a small rubber band—not more than two inches in length. Place one loop over your little finger. ... Then pull it across the back of your hand, well below your knuckles and catch the other end in the position indicated in the drawing. Now, without touching your hand to your body, without help from the other hand, work off the rubber band. Average time is 10 seconds. Shepard Barclay (Camel smoker), famous bridge expert, completed the test in 7 1/2 seconds.
