The GOLDEN FLEECE

HOWEVER punk a game of baseball they play, there's always a hilarious sideshow attending a W. S. C. Idaho battle that makes it an event that you shouldn't miss for anything. When "Big Bubber" Black Blalney and little Rich Fox start charging their verbal salvos at each other or at the hapless umpire, there's bound to be some entertainment of the first order.

Fans who have followed Vandale-Cougar baseball rivalry at all count on enjoying the sideshow furnished by the coaches more than they do the game itself. And you can always count on the big Texas moose who guides the Vandaleers' destiny to entertain the crowd by kicking up the bats, whistling his outfielders into position, cursing out his players for a boner, and joshing with the loud-mouthed Idaho fans who always congregate back of the W. S. C. bench. It's a show that comes just twice a year to Moscow, so don't miss it.

THIS WEEK'S "bird" goes to Paul Ennis of trumpet trio fame, who has graduated to the position of R. O. T. C. band leader while Robert Lyons is away with the Vandaleers on their south Idaho junket. At the Peace assembly Wednesday, the most appropriate piece that Ennis could select for his tootlers to toot was the march, "Squads Right." Not many people knew the name of the piece, "is true, but the martial strains of "You're in the Army Now" were unmistakable as they boomed out over the head of the good pastor from Seattle. We shouldn't be too hard on the hard-working Ennis, though. It certainly wasn't his idea that he stay at home while Director Lyons takes his place in the trumpet trio that has been touring south Idaho. It was an unavoidable conflict that necessitated this switch in jobs, says Paul.

THE NEW DORM will furnish the kind of living arrangements that the large majority of the hall-dwellers on the campus prefer. Men's Proctor Bob Greene questioned about 400 men on what kind of suite they would prefer. The two-men-in-room, two-man-bedroom-adjoining, recessed-sink-in-room arrangement won 90 per cent of the votes for the five different plans, and that is just the kind that will be built in the new dorm.

Running a poor second with 5 per cent of the votes was the four-man suite arrangement with two study rooms, a common bedroom, and a washroom between. This lack of enthusiasm for the four-man plan is probably explained by another question that was put to the hall-dwellers. To the query, "Given the same proportionate accommodations, can four get along together as well as two?" 97 per cent answered with a blunt "no."

The system now used in Lindley hall, that of parking a double-decked bed in a two-man room, was practically laughed out of the running, it getting a measly .007 per cent in the voting.

A GOOD IDEA of how the suites in the new dorm will appear can be secured by a visit to the university carpentry shop next to the Dairy building on Line street. Built to actual size, there is a model of the suites, including the study room, clothes closet, wash basin room, sleeping room adjoining, double-deck bed, and some furniture.

Not all the attractive features of the new dorm will be inside the building itself. In back of the dorm site is a huge playground that is already being groomed for grass seed to be planted within the next few weeks. It will make a handy spot for the new dorm dwellers and the Idaho club boys to play softball, touch football, etc.

POPE CONTESTANTS MEET MONDAY

All contestants in the James P. Pope oratorical contest must meet Monday, April 27, in Ad. 206, at 4 p. m.

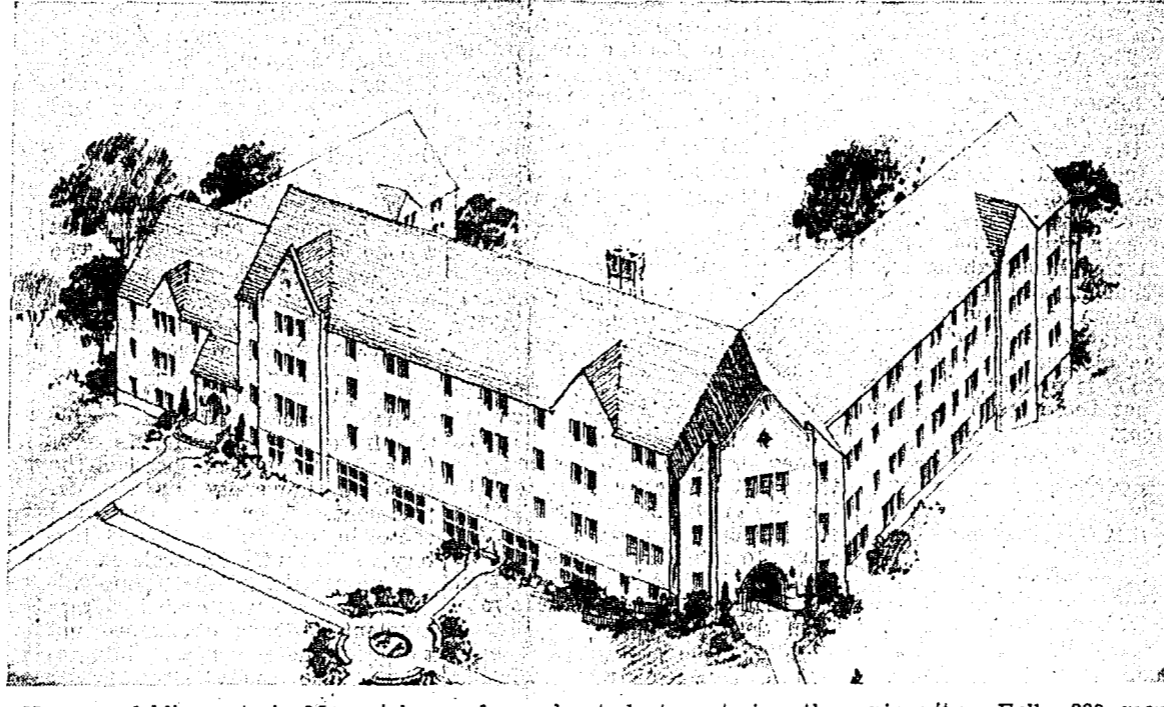

Senator Pope has just written that he is ready to send the checks as soon as the winners are announced. He also stated that if the orations are good enough he will have them printed in the Congressional Record.

Contest finals will be held on May fourth, for which the contestants must appear in formal dress. Ten students have indicated their intentions to enter the contest.

Orations may be on any topics, must be original, and be a maximum time of fifteen minutes.

START $250,000 MEN'S RESIDENCE JULY 1

A New Red Brick Home on the Hill

No more folding cots in Memorial gym for male students entering the university. Fully 200 men will be accommodated in this new dormitory, to be constructed at the corner of Line street and Idaho avenue. Swank living suites, built for two men, will put the new hall on a par with the finest college men's residences in the country. Plans include a spacious lounge, reading room, a gymnasium, and a number of other features for the comfort of Idaho collegians. July 1 marks the beginning of construction—December 1 the completion. The men move in the second semester of next year.

Much-Needed Hall To House 200 Men

Construction of a much-needed men's residence hall on the campus will be underway by July 1, according to an announcement made to The Argonaut today by President M. G. Neale. The new residence will house 200 men and will be built at a cost of approximately $250,000. The corner of Line street and Idaho avenue, directly north of the Dairy building, has been selected as the site for the new hall. President Neale indicated that the building would be ready for occupancy about December 1.

Tulip Garden Evokes Frolic

Sophomores Landscaping With Flowers, Rocks, and Fountain for Tonight's Dance

Sophomores have purchased 1,000 tulips in Spokane for decorations at their Frolic in the Blue Bucket tonight. That's a lot of tulips!

Rock gardening—the first done this spring—will transform the Blue Bucket tonight into a spring paradise for a "spring dance."

Nothing but the purest of Moscow water will gush forth from the fountain of youth, say the sophomores. Beer—especially Moscow beer—could never make a fountain of youth.

Frolic dance programs—one for the man, one for the woman—were distributed among men's group houses last night, announced Mark Robinson, general chairman. Programs will also be sold at the entrance to the rock garden to those requesting them.

"Old Marc" to Lead Livestock Parade

Little International Will Be Held May 2; Floats Being Prepared

"Maple Grove Marcus", twice grand champion Percheron of the Western Livestock show in Denver, will take the lead behind a six-horse carriage team in the grand parade of the Little International Livestock show. The parade will start activities in the Little International on "Ag Day", May 2. The parade will feature more than 100 head of University of Idaho livestock.

The place of honor will be given to "Maple Grove Marcus"—better known as "Old Marc"—because of his outstanding record in western shows and because he has sired so many of the university's fine horses. Bringing up the rear of the parade will probably be "Midget", mascot doggie of the dairy department, who has contributed six litters of puppies to the department.

BLUE KEY ARRANGES BOOSTER DAY PLANS

The Blue Key, local service honorary for upperclassmen, at their last meeting discussed plans for Booster day on May 13. It was decided that tickets for Booster day and for the Booster banquet would go on sale May 4. The banquet, which will be held at the Blue Bucket Inn, is open to the public.

Plans for the Blue Key informal dance, which is to be held May 1 at the Sigma Nu house, were discussed. According to Earl Bopp, president of Blue Key, elaborate decorations will prevail. Bert Wood's orchestra will play for the event.

Visitors to Swarm Idaho's Campus On Saturday

Four Outside Organizations Will Meet on University Grounds, Sing, Sight-See, Banquet, and Gather Ideas

An estimated total of 2,500 visitors representing four outside organizations will meet here Saturday, doubling the campus population for the day.

Most numerous and juvenile of the visiting groups will be 2,000 grade school youngsters who will raise their voices in unified song in the third annual Latah county music festival. The young choristers will perform in the Memorial gymnasium, under direction of Miss Berenice Barnard, assistant professor of music on the university faculty. The festival will be sponsored by the Moscow Kiwanis club.

Fewer in numbers but older in years will be 250 to 300 Oregon, Washington, and Idaho high school girls, mostly seniors, and faculty advisers of their girls' organizations. They will meet in Moscow for a Pacific northwest conference. An automobile tour of the university campus will be arranged for their benefit.

University faculty members will comprise the third group, delegates to the fourth annual meeting of the Pacific northwest section of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education.

This group will meet on the campus Friday and Saturday. Approximately 75 delegates are expected, from the University of Washington, Oregon State college, Montana State college, Washington State college, and the University of Idaho.

Delegates attending the annual convention of the Idaho Mining association at Lewiston Friday and Saturday will end their two-day gathering with an auto trip here. A luncheon will be given in their honor, followed by an inspection tour of the school of mines and the campus in the afternoon.

Military Officers Dance Saturday

Grand March of Annual Ball Starts at Eight Tomorrow Evening

Tomorrow night the cadet officers and the military department will polish their brass buckles and groom themselves to strut their stuff at the Military Ball. The last brass button may be overlooked, for the grand march starts at 8 o'clock.

In the lead will be the honored guests. There will be Gen. Edward R. Chrisman; Permeal J. French, dean of women; Dean J. A. Kostalek, dean of the college under which the military department falls; and Dean Ivan C. Crawford, colonel in the engineering corps. Then there will be Brigadier-General McConnell and Major Hood, who are in Moscow to inspect the cavalry unit here. Members of the board of regents of the university have all been extended invitations.

Paris Knights to Play

Dick Paris and his eight Paris Knights will fill the Blue Bucket Inn with music throughout the evening. The decorations will be on the military theme, but the Blue Bucket Inn will not be turned into an arsenal as it has on similar occasions in the past. To be more original, the cadets will create battle scenes with fortresses, blockhouses, and objects that are emblematic of military strategy.

"The program is a big feature of the evening," stated Cadet Col. George Rich. It is covered with olive drab leather with the United States army crest on the front of it. Inside is a silver fly leaf and a double sheet of parchment paper. A red, white, and blue cord is tied to a nickel-plated saber which runs diagonally through the program. When the evening is over the saber is drawn and the young officer's lady has a favor in the form of a letter opener.

Ags Dine at Bucket On Farm Products

Doctor Woodbury Is Toastmaster of Annual Feed; Speaking Cup Presented to Norval Wardle

One hundred eleven students and faculty members laughed and dined at the annual Ag club banquet which was held Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock in the Blue Bucket Inn. After a healthy farm dinner of potatoes, gravy, pork, bread, and milk, those attending were entertained by a program. A welcome and introduction by Rodney Hansen. The response was given by Dean E. J. Iddings of the college of agriculture. A dance by Garda Fyhrte, a saxophone solo by Val Walsin, accompanied by George Dawson, and a piano solo by Jeanette Wines, followed.

An after dinner speech was given by Dr. K. H. B. Klages, new member of the Ag college faculty from North Dakota. The concluding feature was the extemporaneous public speaking contest which was won by Norval Wardle.

Dr. G. M. Woodbury of the horticulture department was the toastmaster of the banquet. General chairman was Don Peterson, and he was assisted by the following committee heads: Glenn Beck, entertainment; Arnold Poulson, tickets; Andrew Jean, invitations. Guests of the Ag club at the banquet were the university herds-men and the stenographers of the Ag college.

A late advertising racket has been exposed by the Syracuse Daily Orange: A young bride, intrigued by the possible contents of a book entitled, "What Every Young Woman Should Know," advertised in a cheap magazine, remitted her dollar for the "enlightening publication." A few days later she received a cook book.

Vandaleers Commended Through Many Letters To President Neale

Letters and reports are still pouring into President Neale's office commending the performances of the Vandaleers on the tour which they are making of South Idaho. More than a dozen are now in the president's hands. Here is a sample from Buhl:

"It seems to be a general feeling that the Vandaleers is the finest group which has ever appeared here. This statement is good for all time for all schools or organizations. I do not believe this to be an extravagant statement for I have checked with many people of varying abilities and desires and received the same opinion on every hand. I am sending the message to your unsolicited, and in the interest of encouraging you and your assistants in developing a high, finer type of music.

"To the best of my knowledge all musical organizations from various institutions of higher learning which have toured southern Idaho have appeared here but this one is far superior to all. We have welcomed and supported all groups. I have had some appreciation of music all my life in gymnasium, chauntauqua, music clubs and college; but have never enjoyed a similar group as much as the Vandaleers."

From Rupert came this enthusiastic statement:

"We have just listened to a short program given in our high school by the Vandaleers, and wish to express our appreciation of them. Students and faculty agree that it was the finest program coming here from the university in a number of years. The chorus is one of the best we have heard."

Norval Wardle Wins Speaking Contest Of Ag College

Norval Wardle, junior, was victor in the first annual extemporaneous public speaking contest of the Ag college, the finals of which were held Wednesday evening in the Blue Bucket as a feature of the Ag club banquet. Second place was awarded to Melvin Butterfield, freshman, who spoke on, "Rural Resettlement." Wardle's topic was "Financing the Farm Business." The winner will receive a large silver loving cup, and his name will be engraved on a bronze plaque which will be placed in Morrill hall. A medal will be given to Butterfield for second place.

The two finalists had previously topped all entrants in the preliminaries Monday evening, Wardle taking first in the junior-senior division, and Butterfield winning the fresh-sophomore division. Judges of the contest were Dean E. J. Iddings, Dr. C. W. Hungerford, and Prof. G. M. Woodbury.

No doubt the weekend presentation of "The Moon's Our Home" is just as big a surprise to you as it is to us.

It is going to be a very interesting picture in more ways than one. The original story is grand, and there wasn't a dull moment from start to finish.

The next point of current interest is how much both Sullivan and Fonda vary from the book characters. The personalities are entirely different.

Enough of these generalities. Now for the story of the play.

Miss Sullivan portrays a spoiled movie queen, Henry a spoiled young author. Both of them want to get away from it all.

The comedy and drama come through their not daring to tell each other who they really are.

This picture should be one of the most amusing of the year. We wonder if you can guess who the author of this type of story is, because not many authors have the knack of handling our smart young folks quite so cleverly.

"The Widow From Monte Carlo," not only sounds like a fun show, but the title is very intriguing.

WOW. Isn't it funny the illusion's one has about the purpose of a university before he comes to it?

That's almost as bad as the habit that the profs have of making the student learn their side of every question.

It wouldn't be so bad if they gave credit for the amount of thought that was put in on a subject. The way it is now, the people that remember the sugared sentences that come from the instructors' lips get the grades.

I know because my grades have gone up ever since I decided to forget all this hooey about freedom of thought and speech.

The Passing Parade

By Helen Madison

If it were not for the approving glances of the gentlemen, the women would pay very little attention to the artistic retouching of the face, which in this day and age seems to be a very important problem. After unraveling the prejudices and personal feeling from the grounded ideas of the Idaho students it has been found that the consensus of opinion centers around the motto—"nature under pretenses". That is to say that "nature in the raw" is seldom beautiful and most every appearance is improved with the addition of a becoming powder to allay the ever horrifying shiny nose. The question of rouge is debatable, some agreeing to its use while others are vindictive in their statements against it. It was finally agreed that the gardenia skinned (if there is such a thing) girl could be allowed a faint blush, provided it was so carefully harmonized it looked natural.

Red lips are taken for granted, in fact, lipstick is considered by far the most important factor in a woman's toilet. In making a choice between powder, lipstick, rouge, or mascara, lipstick is always rated top notch, emphasizing its importance. To achieve the appearance of an outdoor girl which seems to be a goal of the coed, lip rouge is a natural affinity.

Eye make-up is definitely out for daytime wear, but a close-up of several coeds catches the secret of their moist look in revealing glistening eyelids. (vaseline is the secret)

The net message of the make-up question is to look natural with a sparkle of vitality. Whether or not you choose to wear a dusting of powder, softly red lips are obligatory. And as far as evening make-up is concerned—"anything goes". Naturalness is overlooked and striking artificialities are brought into play under the shadows of the moon.

If oo love me, tay toe,
If oo don't love me, tay toe,
But for gosh sates don't keep sitting on these told, told steps.
If oo want to tiss me—tiss me—
I love dat cave man stuff.
