She holds membership in a number of organizations including the national association of deans of women, the national vocational guidance association, the American college personnel association, the Eastern college personnel officers' association, and the American association of university women.

Lettermen Place Ducats On Sale

Tickets for the "I" club informal dance Saturday night went on sale this week and are "moving fast," according to Tony Kamelevic, president of the lettermen's organization. The ducats are being vended by all members of the "I" club at 40 cents apiece at men's group houses.

Feature of the dance will be the crowning of the "I" club queen, kept anonymous by the lettermen until the final date. Even the names of the six nominees for the title are shrouded in mystery.

The club will meet Saturday evening before the dance and select the lucky woman to receive the honor along with an "I" club blanket.

Kamelevic announces that Joe Titus, who will play for the dance, plans to introduce a new style of music, patterned after the dance of Glenn Miller, one of the leading juke-box attractions throughout the country.

Gun Concert Wakes Women Early Sunday

"I'm sure I heard at least nine shots!" chortled one diminutive Hays girl. "Those horrid initiations must be awful." "I'm praying he wasn't killed," advanced another.

"I heard someone screech, 'I'll never date your girl again,' and then the shots were fired," stated a Ridenbaugh miss. "I thought it was funny."

Jangling all day was the phone at Moscow bastille as boys from fraternity row to Idaho club called to see if absent fellows had been arrested as a "peeping-tom," and late stragglers were greeted with a cold, "How was the clink?"

All because a two-gun volley was fired on the street in front of Hays and receding footsteps were heard down the alley back of Ridenbaugh in the inky Sunday morning.

Lawyers Beat Ags In So-Called Basketball Game

The college of law set a new precedent here Saturday afternoon by defeating the college of agriculture fairly, 33 to 31, in a basketball game.

The lawyers won all around, collected dime for admission from the more gullible spectators. The Ags' brass band, apparently imported direct from the corn country, took second place in public appeal. Bernice Bacharach, star of the game for the lawyers, ranked first.

"The dimes will be used for some good project," a member of the lawyer team said after the game.

It was a bitter battle throughout. Reserves from both sides sprinkled the floor, so nobody got much of a workout but the score-keeper. In the hectic finish, the lawyers were operating with a seven-man team. The extra two did not handle the ball or score, but they did all right with whistles.

The game was neck and neck all the way, and some spectators in the balcony followed suit during halftime.

Dean Kloefer, a big, rough, tough lawyer, took high point honors with 10 points. Two of his counters came from his lone field goal. Sherman Furey tallied 7 for the lawyers. Jim Evans scored 6 and Emory Howard 5 for the Ags. Evans would probably have scored more if he had not been closely guarded much of the time by Miss Bacharach. Though the lady did not score, she came remarkably close, and she kept Evans nervous and confused much of the game.

Paul Ennis, Bill Gigray, and William Robert Cole were other outstanding players for the lawyer team who did not score. The Ags served milk during rest periods, with Henry Jenkins pouring. The

Board Moves Date For Elections

Presidential election for the ASUI has been brought one week nearer by a vote of the executive board which last week moved the date of the election to April 25. The election date, scheduled for May 2, was changed because of a switch in the dates of the conference of incoming and outgoing presidents of the Pacific Coast colleges.

Only controversial question discussed at the meeting concerned the freshman cheer leaders, the five women who appeared at the last five home games. The controversy over the cheer leaders came from the appearance of conflict between the women leaders and ASUI cheer leaders. The question of allowing the freshmen leaders to appear as separate units at future ASUI events was tabled for further discussion.

A report by Charles Tiller, chairman of the election board, concerning the conduct of the recent elections was accepted by the board.

Last business of the group consisted of concluding business of the ASUI athletic benefit dance held in Memorial gymnasium last Friday.

Golf Course To Open March 15—Maybe

The university golf course will be ready for the steady march of student golfers about March 15, if the weather permits, stated Perry Culp, assistant graduate manager yesterday.

The new holes will be ready for play about June 4 and the tees will be in shape when the course opens.

Dramatists Seek Candidates For ASUI Play

Lois Thomas and Beth Geddes, members of various ASUI play casts, yesterday issued a call for players in a student-written, student-directed, and student-acted performance to be presented at the ASUI assembly March 21. Candidates for parts and costume and set designers were requested to report for a short tryout in the U-hut Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

"We need men for most parts," Miss Thomas said. "None of the parts will take much time to learn, but we won't have long to prepare, so we want candidates who will work hard whenever we can practice."

Miss Geddes described the play as a mildly satirical treatment of the struggles and aspirations of university students here. Held together by only a thin thread of plot, she said, the sketch will not be a "play" in any strict sense but will include features of the burlesque and the skit. It is called "Fight On, Old Idaho!" It was written by Bill Johnston, Argonaut managing editor.

"We'll need good cooperation to put the production across," Miss Thomas said, "even though it will not be difficult. Few of the actors will have parts at all difficult to learn, but we need candidates who will get in the spirit of the thing and get enough fun out of the parts to make the production fun for the audience."

Ray Clark, ASUI executive board member, is in charge of the ASUI assembly of which the play will be a part.

Bucket To Appear Next Friday; Features Ted Kara

The Idaho Blue Bucket, student humor magazine, will go to press Friday and be on the stands for sale Monday, according to Art Swan, editor. Members of the Odd Jobs club will be in charge of sales for this issue.

Town Men Gallop For Safety As Home Burns

A serious fire in the South Asbury apartment house of C. D. Bell yesterday destroyed nearly all the possessions of five university students and put one, Joe Collier, in the infirmary.

Collier received a sharp blow on the head when he was overcome by smoke while attempting to close the door of his room to prevent the draft from sucking flames through the building. He will remain in the infirmary until it is certain he has not sustained serious concussion, according to Dr. Cramer.

Idaho students living in the house were Mr. and Mrs. Rex Willard, Collier, Victor Sellers, Victor Nelson, Floyd Curtis, and Alice Bell, daughter of the owner.

Sellers and Curtis were able to save most of their belongings by staying in the building and passing clothes, books, and other possessions out of the window to friends below.

Thought It Was Drill Thinking the siren to be only the signal for a fire drill, Collier and Curtis stayed in their room, oblivious to the fire around them, until finally aroused by the flames when they rushed downstairs and joined the fire fighters. It was then that Collier, remembering they had left the door open, reentered the building to close it. Soon after, Curtis started up the stairway to be met by the smoke-choked Collier rolling down the stairs.

Apparently originating in the basement boiler room, the fire reached the attic of the large frame structure before the alarm was turned in. Fire Chief Carl Smith estimated the damage at between $2,000 and $3,000.

Waiting for the insurance appraiser to evaluate their loss, the students have taken temporary residence downtown and on the campus.

KRLC Will Feature Idaho Pep Band

A broadcast over KRLC and a "senior special" dance at Grangeville will be the highlights of the 362 mile, two-day tour by the Idaho Pep band this week. The band will leave tomorrow morning and return late Thursday night.

The broadcast is planned for Thursday, from 5:30 to 6 p.m.

The program tomorrow night and the one at Lewiston high school Thursday will include a part of the formal portion of the Pep Band show.

Twenty-three Pep Band members will make the tour and six others will journey to Lewiston to play for the air show and the Lewiston program. Dr. J. W. Barton, faculty advisor of the Pep band, will accompany the men on the tour.

State Head Plans Student Talk, Class Inspection

Paying his first official visit to the university campus since his inauguration, Idaho's chief executive, Governor C. A. Bottolfsen, will spend next Monday, March 11, inspecting classes, visiting points of interest on the campus, and addressing students at an 11 a. m. assembly.

"Governor Bottolfsen has expressed particular satisfaction that his official visit is to occur while the university is in session. This informal visit will give him an opportunity which he desires to see the students at their classes and to visit various divisions of the institution," said President H. C. Dale.

"Education for Citizenship" will be the theme of the governor's talk to the student body in Memorial gymnasium at 11 o'clock Monday morning. Morning classes will be limited to 35 minute periods to permit the entire school to be present according to President Dale.

Governor Bottolfsen was connected with the Daily Bulletin at Blackfoot. He went to Blackfoot from Arco where he owned and managed the Arco Advertiser, a weekly newspaper.

"A friend of the university ever since he represented Butte county in the state legislature," said President Dale, "the governor has been vitally interested in this institution."

President Dale is spending the week in Boise making final arrangements for the governor's visit and will accompany him to Moscow.

30 To Take Course In Electricity

The third university rural electrification short course opened yesterday with approximately 30 persons registered to participate in the annual four day session of lectures, luncheons, and educational tours.

Purpose of the course, handled by the university because of the large personnel needed to administer the REA program, is to help students, rural dwellers, employees of private utilities, and REA administrators.

Featured speakers of the four-day session will be J. P. Ditchman, of the incandescent lamp department of the General Electric company; Horace Campbell, assistant chemist of the Frozen Pack laboratory, Seattle; and T. C. Butler, Jr., hydraulic engineer of the Pomona Pump company.

A regular agriculture extension station luncheon is scheduled for Tuesday at the Blue Bucket, and a Wednesday luncheon there will feature Dean J. W. Buchanan speaking on engineering progress.

Members of the course will tour the university poultry plant and dairy products laboratory Thursday morning and attend a banquet at Hotel Moscow at 1:30 p.m.

Students May Attend Dance Concert At Spokane Friday

Students interested in modern dance may attend a dance concert under the direction of Miss Virginia Johnson in Spokane, Friday, March 8. The university bus, chartered by the Women's Athletic association, is available for all students and will return immediately after the concert.

Shoes For Speedy Nags Lie In Morrill Hall Exhibit

Quaint is the history of a collection of racing plates in Morrill hall—a little white-haired man, world-champion boxer Bob Fitzsimmons, bright lights of summer fairs, and the smoky haze of a pool hall have figured in its past.

Charles Staley, an old Spokane blacksmith, started the collection shortly after the turn of the century. Working several years on them, he made the 62 plates by hand, polished them, and had them nickel plated. In 1910 at the Apple show, Spokane, the plates were first exhibited; and the world-champion boxer, Bob Fitzsimmons, who had himself risen from a smithy, sent a plate to be added to the collection.

Dean W. L. Carlyle, then head of the college of agriculture, saw the collection, and immediately interested in it, wrote Staley telling him that if he ever wanted a permanent resting place for the collection, to send it to the University of Idaho. That was in 1910. Twenty years later came the answer. Staley, now an old man, wanted his plates to be in good hands. Dean Carlyle had long been gone, but Dean C. W. Hungerford asked William L. Stephens of the extension division to get the collection.

Stephens went to Spokane, and after a considerable search found the collection in the obscurity of a dark pool hall, where it had been for many years. The collection was sent to the university, where it has become a permanent addition.

Remarkable workmanship is shown on each of the horseshoes, designed as corrective shoes for racing horses. Some shoes are thicker on the side or toe to offset any tendency for the horse to run crooked; others are designed to aid in stopping hoof-splits.

Bob Fitzsimmons' contribution is in the bottom center of the display.

Sound Study Wins Doctor's Degree For Grad

First student to receive a Ph.D. in acoustics from the University of California at Los Angeles will be Edwin Francis Fricke, who was graduated from Idaho in physics in 1935.

For the past three years, Mr. Fricke has been probing the theory of absorption of sounds in gases—a remarkable feat considering that Mr. Fricke is hard of hearing, says Dr. G. W. Hammar, head of the physics department.

In recognition of his work he was granted a $300 Will Rogers scholarship to further his research.

"Results of Mr. Fricke's exhaustive investigation," says Dr. Vern O. Knudsen, physics professor and acoustics expert at UCLA in a letter to Dr. Hammar, "will be of great benefit in leading to an understanding of certain problems in the physical realm."

Astronomers Take Last Long Look At Planet Lineup In Southwest

Mercury, Venus, Jupiter, Mars, Saturn Present Rare Picture

Seven planets including the earth in our solar system have moved into a straight line across the heaven, one of the rarest solar phenomena Earthlings will have a chance to observe. Line of the wandering celestial orbs extends from a south of west position near the horizon upwards toward the zenith.

"Optimum in the line-up appeared to be a week ago," observed Julius Miller, fellow in physics. "During the next few weeks, the planets will recede from their present position. Use of a star map will facilitate locating the bodies."

Planets playing parts in the rare occurrence are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, and Uranus. All are visible to the naked eye but Uranus, which is too faint to be seen without the aid of a telescope. Absent are Neptune and Pluto, two outer planets of the system.

Lining up of the planets along a common radius from the sun is a rare occurrence. Laymen picture the planets as huge balls flying around the sun in orbits, visualizing them as if they were rings on a piece of paper. However, the orbits are not perfectly circular, which hinders the line formation.

Engineers Inspect Chassis

HANDBUILT and representing a factory cost of more than $7,000, this specially constructed Dodge chassis was delivered to the college of engineering from the Dodge factory for class instruction. Inspecting the unique chassis, left to right, are Hobart Beresford, head of the agricultural engin-ering department; Howard Whitney, Dodge dealer; H. F. Gauss, head of the mechanical engineering department; Major William A. Hale, partner of Mr. Whitney; and Dan Beck, regional manager for the Dodge company.

Students Frequently Hear Amateur Station Calls

Students tuning all-wave radio sets at the University of Idaho are frequently greeted with "W7UQ, CQ, W7-XY," or other letters coming from the amateur short wave station located in the engineering building annex.

W7UQ are the letters used to designate the local university station; CQ is the call sent out when the operator wishes to talk to any other amateur operator who might be listening.

The engineering building station, one of 60,000 in the United States, is owned by the Radio club, which has about 15 members. Carl Brown, electrical engineering instructor, is faculty adviser for the group.

Plenty of Equipment

Both radio telephone and radio telegraph equipment are available for students who have obtained amateur operator licenses. To obtain a license the applicant must pass a government examination on radio theory, and be able to send and receive the International Morse code at 13 words per minute.

Non-Students In Activities

The academic council last week argued the feasibility of making a rule that would permit non-students to participate in activities. When it was discovered that there is no rule restricting participation, the council dropped the conversational problem. As the matter now stands, Joe Doakes out there in Podunk can, if he is good enough, can become a member of any non-competitive extra-curricular activity.

The non-competitive activities include the publications—The Argonaut, Gem, Blue Bucket, ASUI Handbook—Glee club, Pep Band, Vandaleers, department of dramatics, cheer leaders. Although it is improbable that a non-student will become a leader in any of the activities, it is not impossible.

At least three major criticisms of non-student participation are obvious: (1) activities should be restricted to persons they are intended for, except in rare cases; (2) it is possible for non-students to replace students who have become ineligible because of grades; (3) students pay $8.50 each semester, and thus maintain the activities.

Consider the first criticism. Individuals with a lot of experience on publications can compete with students who are inexperienced, and if the editors are fair, the non-students will receive higher editorial positions. These positions are usually reserved for regularly enrolled students. Again, non-students may compete against students for parts in the ASUI plays, and if they prove superior, the play would not be a production entirely presented by students as generally publicized.

If Joe Doakes can toot good music on the piccolo, and the Pep Band feels that a piccolo is indispensable to that organization, Joe may become a member. He does not have to make passing grades to become eligible. But a good piccolo playing student is left on the campus when he can't get a certificate of eligibility. This is applicable to the Vandaleers and other activities.

The argument is raised by supporters of non-student participation that in a few cases it is necessary to get outside assistance to maintain the prestige of an activity. Most students probably want to feel, when they hear the Pep Band, or read the publications, that the product is 100 per cent Idaho student talent, and not recruited talent. In isolated instances where it is impossible to get talent for a necessary position, recruiting may be justifiable. But these cases should be carefully considered, and the regularly enrolled student given first chance to qualify.—F. R.

Communique - - Comment

Propaganda Minister Goebbels claims that the Allied blockade has no chance of bringing Germany to her knees. According to the little Doctor, there will be no repetition of the terrible "hunger blockade" that was decisive in pushing the German Empire into oblivion in November, 1918.

The Nazis claimed that the Reich was 82 per cent self-sufficient in regard to food at the start of the present war. They are confident that the acquisition of half of Poland and the organization of Polish prisoners of war as laborers on German farms will enable them to raise that percentage. The people of Germany are now accustomed to food rationing; the outbreak of the war in September merely meant a continuation of the restrictions in food-purchasing that they had been submitting to for over a year. The Hitler government evidently believes that strict rationing and intensive development of the arable land will keep the Reich from starvation.

Reports from Berlin indicate that the Germans have sufficient reserves of grain, potatoes and meat for a number of years. In fat, fish and cattle feed, the Reich is facing acute shortages. The war has suspended the operations of the German whaling fleet, which sent large amounts of precious fat to German ports before September. In August of last year, Germany was only able to produce half of her fat requirements within her own frontiers. The naval warfare in the North Sea has hampered the work of the German fishing fleet there, while the hard winter has frozen large areas in the Baltic. A large proportion of the feed used for livestock in Germany before the outbreak of war was imported; now the Allied blockade has cut the German farmer off from several important sources of his feed supply.

Thanks, Say Headmen

To The Editor:
I wish to take this means of publicly thanking all those who had any part in making the ASUI Athletic ball a success. Without the cooperation of all, the dance could not have been successful from the financial standpoint.

The members of the four orchestras who volunteered their services; the Intercollegiate Knights for accepting the operation of the check room; the Spurs for their work in the advance ticket sale; Mac's Radio Hospital for loaning and installing the public address system; Isamu Abo for necessary poster work; and Bob Ingraham for installing the lighting system, all deserve a great deal of credit for their contributions. I also wish to thank the many workers who assisted in arranging the program and made the gymnasium ready for the dance.

I would also like to express appreciation to The Argonaut for the cooperation extended in giving the dance publicity, and the ASUI Executive Board for shouldering the responsibility of giving the dance.

Very truly yours,
Ted Bank.

To The Editor:
The ASUI Executive Board wishes to take this means to thank the many willing workers who assisted in any way in making the Athletic Ball a success.

Very truly yours,
Walter Olson,
President, ASUI.

THE SCREEN SCOPE

Quart—Thursday-Saturday

David Niven takes the title role in "Raffles" to become a society "smoothie" who leads a secret life of crime. As the famous Amateur Crackman, he commits spectacular robberies to baffle Scotland Yard, and particularly one Inspector MacKenzie, portrayed by Dudley Diggs. Olivia DeHavilland provides romantic interest.

Most of the action unwinds on the beautiful country estate of Lady Melrose, where the action grows faster and faster, with the detective and gentleman crook playing an exciting game of wits.

Minor roles are excellently handled by E. E. Clive, Dame May Whitty, Lionel Pape, Douglas Walton, Peter Godfrey, and Keith Hitchcock.

Kenworthy—Tuesday-Thursday

All the sentiment that "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair" and other famous Stephen Foster songs flooded into one's heart can be found in the reels of 20th Century-Fox's "Swanee River," the life story of America's great troubadour starring Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds, and Al Joison.

Joison is featured in the role of E. P. Christy, famous Minstrel King who first introduced Foster's songs to American audiences. Andrea Leeds stars as "Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair," and Don Ameche plays Foster in the technician film.

The supporting cast features Felix Bressart, Chick Chandler, Russell Hicks, George Reed and the Hall Johnson choir who give memorable renditions of Foster's songs.

To The Editor:
Is vulgarity necessary for humor? I do not think so. Then, perhaps, the fact that I am only a lowly freshman and cannot yet fully understand and appreciate college humor, is the reason that I was so disgusted when I read the last issue of the "Blue Bucket" magazine. True enough, if I don't like the magazine, I do not have to read it. But I feel my objections have a sounder foundation than my lack of humor.

Whatever we students in this university do, any publication or action which the student body endorses, will be judged by outsiders. Conversely, we as individuals and members, will be judged by the actions of this student body. Certainly the "Blue Bucket" is not an accomplishment to which I feel that I can point with pride. Strangely enough, I have heard similar comments from a number of my fellow students who are not freshmen. Can it be that their sense of humor has not progressed with their advance in education?

I have read a number of advertisements asking purchasers of this publication to send a copy home. What irony! Is there an individual who has any consideration for the respect of his school, who would send one home? In fact, how many of us would dare send one home? Yes, the "Blue Bucket" is something to be proud of.

But, of course, there is always the old, cut and dried argument that nearly every other college does it, so why shouldn't we? Perhaps those who offer this objection are right. It may be true that there is not enough originality and courage in this school to be able to undertake only those activities which will bring pride, honor, and respect to this institution and its students. But I, the lowly freshman, must regard my superiors in awe and reverence, and follow in their footsteps. However, I do hope that I will retain my lack of a sense of humor.

Naive Nan

Dear Mr. Dakin,

We take it that Naive Nan's mamma has been having difficulty getting her enrolled as a graduate student and since we understand that you are a person which does things for worthy causes and prevents undue authorities from perpetrating unfair injustices to students, we feel you should exert your influence to have her reinstated.

Like Naive Nan's mamma, we want to know are you going to stand by and let a vicious system such as the grading system crush a thoughtful expiring student such as Naive Nan was? Why don't you do something?

Take the matter up before the city council, the inter-church council, the epidemic council, or some reasonable people that will realize what a lot is at stake, both as concerns Naive Nan herself and as concerns this university.

This is a serious matter. Think what a loss will result to our institution if a student which is as valuable as Naive Nan doesn't return. What a blow to us, her friends, to be denied her cheery presence!

Even The Argonaut has suffered already and is not so appealing as it was when Naive Nan wasn't gone. Just think, what if her Fox's "Swanee River," the life story of America's great troubadour starring Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds, and Al Joison.

In the interests of democracy, the faculty, humanity, and the Argonaut readers, we beg of you, let's have Naive Nan back again. Trustingly and hopefully, Naive Nan's friends.

Dr. Cramer To Speak

TMA and Idaho Independent association will hold a joint meeting Wednesday night in the upper lounge of the SUB. Dr. Harold Cramer will give a talk and conduct a panel discussion on the factors to be considered which directly influence happiness in married life.

"Every town man living off the campus is invited to attend this meeting," said Norman Fehr, president of TMA.

Spencer Names Heads

Committee chairmen for the Xi Sigma Pi dance to be held March 23 in the Student Union ballroom, have been chosen, according to Ben Spencer, president of the forestry honorary. Named committee heads were Charles Miller and George Nietzold, decorations; Ralph Reid, tickets; and Jim Webb, programs. Bob McKinnon's orchestra will furnish the music.

The 1940 Vandal grid team will travel nearly 10,000 miles this fall including a 6,000 mile trip to Boston and return.

Venerable Janitor Believes Students Less Formal Today Than In 1906

Skog Names Stiff Collars As Reason For Change Of Campus Attitude

Shortly after the turn of the century, when dashing college swains courted demure women in hacks and buggies, when MacLean Field was the dump yard, and when students came to college to study, Fred Skog, head janitor, came to the university.

"Main difference between then and now," Mr. Skog considered, "is that students in those days seemed older. Perhaps it was the combination of stiff collars and long black dresses.

"I can remember when the Ad building was under construction.

"The foundation was dug down into the hill, and material was wheeled into the second story windows from the top of the ground. Eidenbaugh hall, Engineering building, the metallurgical and geology buildings, and Morrill hall comprised the university buildings."

Few Had Buggies

But few students had buggies of their own, he observed. However, the town livery stable did a sizeable rental business. Social occasions demanded a hack, much like the present use of taxis. Faculty members sported horseless carriages; students possessed high wheel touring models.

"The fellows in those days seemed to hang around classrooms and study more than now, although the modern students are taking heavier courses," the janitor noted. Politics have changed but little. Everyone on the campus knew all the rest of the students, for there were about as many students then as there are faculty members and assistants now."

War Changed Things

The World War brought a change, according to Mr. Skog. Barracks were erected behind the Ad building. Regular classes were held during the day. Military classes ran all night. Women refused to look at a man without a uniform; old faces vanished; many a woman regretted her actions when the sad news came back. The present greenhouses are what is left of the old barracks building, he said.

"The post-war years saw a lot of building," he states. "The depression caused things to tighten up, students to be more serious. Students come and go. In the days when winds howled across a barren campus, I knew most of the students. Now I see them only at commencement. The only things I have to regret is that I haven't kept a log of events—thirty-four years is a long time."

Vandals Place Three Players Among Ten High Scorers

By Russ Hill

Three Idaho players were listed among the first 10 high scorers of the northern division basketball teams, according to figures released yesterday by E. E. "Andy" Anderson, Moscow statistician, official keeper of the division's cage records. "Rook" Hilton, 6 foot 8 inch center, topped the Vandal players with 143 points to wind up in fourth place among all scorers, just two points behind the third place man, Bud Olson of WSC.

Only other division college to place three men in the upper 10 was Oregon. John Dick of the Duck team scored 183 points to lead the pack. His total lacked only four points of tying the conference record of 187 points set by OSC's Wally Palmberg in 1936. The 1936 record established by Idaho's Harold Stowell of 75 field goals in 16 games was tied by Dick. Oddly, the division champions, Oregon State, slipped only one man, John Mandic, into the select 10 point canners.

Hilton was nosed out of free throw honors by Bob Lindh of Washington by one point. The Vandal ace converted 55 shots out of 77 attempts, while Lindh netted 56 out of 84 tries from the foul line.

Atkinson High in Fouls
Chick Atkinson, steady Idaho guard who ranked among the first 25 scorers, led the Vandals in personal fouls with 41 marked against him. Bob Voelker of Washington was the villain of the five colleges with 49 black marks. He left six conference tussles via the foul route.

Anderson's record revealed a tremendous increase in Idaho scoring over the 1939 season. Following are the comparative records for the Gem Staters:

Idaho Teams Lose In Seattle Meet

Idaho's minor sports men returned to Moscow Sunday after capping a disastrous season at Seattle the day before in the annual northern division minor sports meet. None of the Vandal swimmers, wrestlers, or fencers managed to take individual honors in any event.

Macy Is Runner-Up
Dwight Macy, captain of the Idaho grapplers, fought his way through two preliminary matches to the final bracket of the 148-pound division in the wrestling tournament, but was forced to take runner-up honors behind Gene Caddy of the University of Washington.

Team scoring for the wrestlers was as follows: Washington and W.S.C., 30; Oregon State, 19; Idaho, 8; and Oregon, 0.

Idaho's tank squad salvaged a fifth place in the 440-yard free style relay to earn the Vandals' only two points in the swimming meet which was won by Washington. Swimming for the Vandals in the relay were Al Dodds, Norm Skjersaa, Earl Peebles, and Jim Kirscher.

Team standings in the pool were Washington 72, Oregon 71, W.S.C. 14, O.S.C. 8, Montana 6, and Idaho 2.

Washington Wins Again
Washington won its 12th consecutive northern division fencing title, winning three matches in the round robin to two for Oregon State. Idaho, headed by Captain Bob Frazier, came nearest to winning a match in their bout against W.S.C. which the Vandals lost 5 to 4.

Coach Picks Hilton On Second Team Of Division

Otis "Rook" Hilton, towering basketball center and baseball first baseman, was named by Coach "Hobby" Hobson of the University of Oregon cage team, Saturday, to the center position on Hobson's all-division second team.

The Vandal hoopster was also rated as the second best center the Duck coach saw in action against his team in division play Hobson revealed to Andy Anderson, local statistician.

Hobson's all-division team included John Dick and Vic Townsend of Oregon; Johy Mandic of Oregon State; and Jack Jennings and Bud Olson of Washington State. The second team was composed of Hilton, Idaho; Chase, W.S.C.; Hunter, O.S.C.; and Lindh and Bob Voelker of Washington.

Spikesters Taper Training Work

Trackmen Begin Competitive Season Monday With Inter-Class Meet

Trackmen will complete their training season this week with the final quarter and half mile trials. Next Monday the regular competitive season gets under way with the annual inter-class meet and will be followed in one week by the inter-group championships. These meets will serve as warm-ups to the Inland Empire championships in Pullman on March 23 and the Hill Relays in Portland on March 29, according to Coach Mike Ryan.

Coach Ryan has made it known that any track man who does not take part in these meets will be dropped from the squad, because the meets will serve as trials for the Pullman and Portland meets.

Events to be contested are: 40-yard dash, 300-yard dash, 500-yard high and low hurdles, 600-yard run, 1000-yard run, mile and one-half run, pole vault, broad jump, high jump, shot put, and 35-pound weight throw. There will also be novice 40 and 300-yard runs for new men, and a two-lap relay.

To Pick Relay Teams
Final half-mile trials take place this afternoon, and Coach Ryan has matched his six fastest men in order to pick the four fastest to defend Idaho's honors again at Pullman.

Later in the week, a trial will be held to select a mile team to defend the northwest championship won at Portland last year.

Lindley hall, Delta Tau and the Fijis, and Sigma Chi against the Delta Chis. Wednesday night, Lindley plays LDS, the Campus club takes on the Betas, Delta Chi battles Delta Tau, and TMA meets the Fijis.

Rex Engelking, Chase Anderson, and Tony Kamelevicz will referee Tuesday's games, and Dale Sanner, Merle Stoddard, and Ray Smith will handle the games Wednesday night.

In last night's "B" league basketball wars, the Sigma Chis and TMA's pulled a thriller out of the book, the Sigma Cris edging the down towners 22-20 in a story-book finish.

Willis Sweet hall galloped to a 40-24 trouncing over Idaho club and the Fijis walked on their neighbors, Delta Chi, 25-16. The ATOs defeated the "White Stars of Sigma Nu" 33-17 as the Betas and SAEs annexed triumphs over LDS and Campus club by forfeits.

Rinehart Interviews Chem Majors

H. W. Rinehart, of the personnel division of the du Pont de Nemours company, visited the campus yesterday and interviewed 11 seniors majoring in chemistry and chemical engineering about prospective jobs and accepted their applications with the du Pont company.

Later the chemistry staff entertained Mr. Rinehart at a luncheon at the Moscow hotel.

Airliners May Take Grid Team East

When the varsity football squad treks eastward next fall to clash with Boston college October 19, they will probably be taking the longest trip of any college team in the country, believes Ted Bank, director of Idaho athletics and Vandal pigskin mentor.

The jaunt will break Idaho's traveling record set by the 1932 football squad when they journeyed to Hawaii during the Christmas holidays to meet the University of Hawaii.

"Since other western colleges have not as yet scheduled games with far eastern schools, it seems likely that the trip will be the longest distance traveled for a game in 1940," said Coach Bank.

Idaho athletic authorities are investigating airline rates to determine the advisability of using that mode of transportation for the trip east next fall.

"If the proper authorities decide that the trip will be made by air, two 18-passenger planes will probably be chartered so that a full traveling squad can make the trip," said Coach Bank.

Rated as one of the strongest New England teams, the Boston college eleven lost to Clemson 6 to 3 in the Cotton Bowl clash at Dallas, Tex., on New Year's Day this year.

"From all indications they will be equally strong this year," commented Bank, "and will make the Vandals' first debut on an eastern field before an eastern crowd a tough one."

Wet weather and pending Northwest boxing tournament have been the main factors preventing Idaho football coaches from getting spring practice underway. Line Coach Tessier's call for
