Jason has said before, and subsequent events have supported the assertion, that students have a way of sifting through the advance notices of artists and speakers for those who have the necessary added attraction.

Most students commend the paying out of $1,250 as the university's contribution for bringing these outstanding musicians

Yet for the first concert here this year, Ionian Singers, only 410 students turned out. At the second concert, 423 students trudged over to the gymnasium to hear Joseph Knitzer. These student audiences represented only approximately 16 per cent of the student body, enough to fill the auditorium less than half full.

But the clubmen should find consolation in the fact that the United Student party is trying to bridge as wide a gap in its ranks. From the Fleecer's crow's nest the winner looks like McCarthy as campus women are too jealous of their own sisters to help one of them attain the presidency.

But keep your weather eye out for traditional things to happen. This will not be a quiet election.

Curtain Plans Play For Campus Day

Curtain, dramatics honorary, initiated 13 students and made plans to sponsor a play as part of the dramatics exhibition for "All University Day," following a dinner Sunday evening. A picnic for Curtain members was planned for late spring.

The play, "The Marriage Proposal," will be presented by members of the organization.

The following were initiated into the dramatic honorary: Georgie Wolfe, Erma Williams, ^{Velma} Marsh, Gayle Manion, Jake Harshbarger, Howard Sarpenter, Essamary Parker, Dorothy Pecbles. Bonnie Jean Jennings, Cope Gale, Sabey Driggs, Meril Small, and Bruce Gordon

Comment

British public opinion is showing a definite anti-American trend, now that the war has been going on for six months and there is no sign of a change in our isolationist policy. Uncle Sam, charged with making money out of the European conflict, is pilloried as

"Uncle Shylock." Britons assert that the Yanks were willing to "talk big" about the danger of Nazi aggression before last September-but are now afraid to fight. Americans should realize that the British press, in the past four years, has given considerable space to statements by American editors and statesmen which pledged U.S. co-operation to Britain and France in defending democracy against Hitlerism. The stirring warnings to Germany made by President Roosevelt were taken by the British as proof that the American people would soon join hands with the Allies if it came to war. Speeches and articles by American isolationists received little or no space in British newspapers. Senator Borah and other isolationist leaders were held up to ridicule as ignorant politicos who did not represent the eminently sensible Hitler-hating American people.

It is now apparent to the British people that the United States is determined to remain out of this war. The natural reaction of the British is anger and resentment. They feel that we have let them down, that we have ured them into believing that the United States would soon be their military ally and then walked out. While they are paying war taxes of 37 per cent, they read in their papers that certain interests in this country are making a killing in war orders. The British correspondents in the United States and the editors who headline their copy on Fleet Street are partly responsible for this situation. President Roosevelt must also bear part of the blame. Unconsciously or deliberately, he has given the world the impression that our determination to mind our own business was only a mask. Waving the big stick only misleads foreign nations when it isn't backed up by an American public opinion that demands intervention in Europe.

Poll Shows Students Scorn 'Ghosts'

Minority Escape Themes, Term Papers To Find Time For Added Study

"Ghost writing," the practice of preparing themes and reports for some one else's class work, gets a thumbs-down expression of opinion from three-fourths of American college students.

What may be more surprising, however, is that the other fourth is either indifferent or openly in approval. These are the results of a poll conducted by the Student Opinion Surveys of America, collegiate sampling organization of the undergraduate press, of which The Argonaut is a member.

What is your opinion of the practice of students paying ghost writers to prepare themes and term papers for them?" was the question presented to a scientific cross section from coast to coast.

Disapproving were 75 per cent; indifferent were 10 per cent; approving were 15 per cent.

Significantly, it may be noted that a majority of students, 54 per cent, is in the strongly-opposed class. Also, the trend of approval dwindles down to a mere 7 per cent strongly in favor.

The chief argument of those who favor ghost writing is that in effect it often helps students by giving them more time to study for more important and pressing courses. On the other hand, the majority of those opposed condemn it as plain scholastic dishonesty.

Three Idaho marks by the boards in track and field already this year leads fans to ask what Vandal marks are in all events. For your record book, then, here they Shot put, 48 feet, 8 inches, Johnson, 1938. Mile relay, 3:23.8, Felton, Thomas, Livingston, Kalbus, 1933.

A quick look from the Sidelines, and we come up with the information that records in the one and two mile runs, high jump, and pole vault are shaking. Reason? Leibowitz, Dyrgall, Flechtner, and Makela, McHarg, and Kerby in the stratosphere soaring event. "Flyin' Phil" Leibowitz is itching for a warm day when he can cut at least two full seconds off his mile mark. Vic Dyrgall, if he can get time to run at least 10 miles in warm-up preparations, is going to erase Don Cleaver's mark in the eight circuit affair before the curtain drops on the 1940 track and field drama. Elongated Al Flechtner will boost his high jump mark an inch after he recovers from the spiked foot which is handicapping him right now, and any one of the three vaulters is ready almost any Saturday to hoist the pole vault flag up to the 13-foot, 6-inch figure. If OSC brings warm weather with them this Saturday, watch the boys in these events, for history may be in the making! Dust from the Sports Bin.

Tennis addicts at Idaho have a rare opportunity to watch one of the real top-notchers in intercollegiate ranks this year. Morrison "Jimmie" James has mowed down everything thrown at him so far this season, and it's no secret that Coach Dr. Martell believes his ace can move far in the national intercollegiate tournament. . . . What Pacific Coast conference member had three baseball players playing for pay in Payette last summer? . . . Washingto (): Huskies are moving in on intercollegiate golf with all the vim, vigor and vitality of a collegiate football coach. The Seattle school boasts three freshman green gunners who can shoot rings around the best varsity material and are among ranking intercollegiate players in the U.S. Boy, those U. of W. professors must really have something on the ball!

An inspired sea-gull whipped in the other day to tell us Coach Forrest Twogood really was going to win a game or two of baseball when the conference, season begins. Any squad with the desire to play and the love of the game which the Vandal contingent has, and backed by a coach who puts his heart into the game with his players like Twogie does, is just bound to rattle the fence boards occasionally for enough markers to give them something on the win side of the ledger.
