

WAR AND THE CAMPUS
On Jason's desk: lie letters from two of the most honest and keen-minded political scientists to graduate from the university last year.

"It makes one feel so insignificant," writes the one graduate, "when the old steam roller of 'civilization' starts down the bloody, mucky path to war."

The other writes: I am not a military expert, but I keep wondering why Hitler is not able to get across 30 miles of water when the whole Atlantic Ocean is an open highway.

And on the way to the office, Jason met a refugee from Europe to whom a year's study of American attitudes has been a fascinating adventure.

Jason paused only long enough to reflect on the irony of a situation which might place the Dictatorship of the Proletariat in the position of Chestnut-Guardian Number 1 for England and America.

In Jason's notebook were several facts, filed under "Conscription." The first was a quotation from one of the registration officers:

That statement Jason dismissed as unimportant. The possibility that a student body, as apathetic toward public questions as Idaho's might stage a demonstration tomorrow is too remote to cause concern.

Another fact: So many Idaho youths have enlisted voluntarily that the state's conscription quota will be small.

How convenient is patriotism! And one more fact: Registration starts in the gym tomorrow at 7 a. m. Let's all get in there and show a lot of pep all the time in there.

NO DIRTY DOLL
The Argonaut has been besieged of late with queries, verbal and written, as to what has become of "Dirty Doll" and her column of rumors, scandals and half-truths.

That was the only column in the paper the kids read," one complainant declared.

Judging Team Wins First Place At Portland Show

Alvin Hadley Earned First Place in Entire Contest

One first place and two third place positions were won by the University of Idaho animal husbandry judging teams at the annual Pacific International Livestock exposition at Portland last week.

The Idaho animal husbandry judging team placed first among six teams at the intercollegiate livestock judging contest. Alvin Hadley was high man in the entire contest and also high man in judging horses.

The dairy cattle judging team ranked third in the intercollegiate livestock judging contest. Ray Richmond was the high individual in judging Jersey cattle, and Randal Sparks was third high man.

Home Ec Majors Practice Efficient Homemaking The practical side of keeping house is the purpose of the Home Management house in which senior women majoring in home economics are required to live for six weeks.

Located behind the infirmary, the frame structure is home to six women at a time, who live there with Miss Margaret Ritchie. While there, the women learn the practical and efficient ways of planning meals, purchasing food, cooking, serving, washing and ironing. Planned by the interior decorating class, the Home Management house has been used by home economic majors for three years.

Miss Ritchie's apartment, the living room, dining room, a roomy kitchen and a washing room are on the first floor. Upstairs are three rooms, one for every two girls, a bathroom, and the sleeping porch. The house is furnished with early American style furniture. All the women help with the work, each one having a chance to do all the different tasks. They entertain faculty members and students at informal luncheons and formal teas. Each group undertakes a project such as making curtains or bedspreads for the house.

Planned by the interior decorating class, the Home Management house has been used by home economic majors for three years.

Dr. Lemon Says Timid Child Most Serious Problem Most serious among problem children is not the little brat or ruffian but the timid and self-conscious type, says Dr. A. C. Lemon, professor of educational psychology at the University of Idaho. Such a child feels inferior, turns his mind within, is little given to outward expression, is inclined to condemn or belittle himself, and to retreat from the responsibilities of life. Unless helped, the timid child will become a very unsocial individual and may become a completely disintegrated personality. Dr. Lemon explains in the current issue of the "Idaho Journal of Education."

First step toward adjustment is to find the cause of such inferior feelings. Psychiatrists recognize three general causes: physical afflictions such as a weak or crippled body, peculiar facial appearance, cross eyes, or speech defects; failure in work, play, or social relationships; dominance by some stronger personality, be it parent, playmate or schoolmate, resulting in feeling of inadequacy. Once the cause or causes are found they must be frankly faced, and, if possible, removed. Dr. Lemon advises. The next step is to reconstruct the child's personality, to reestablish faith, self-confidence and self-assurance. Dr. Lemon suggests the following as ways of teaching the child to succeed in his tasks and social relationships: 1. Find tasks that he can do—be sure he will succeed in whatever he undertakes; never let him fail completely. 2. Praise him whenever possible. 3. Avoid and protect him from all ridicule and disparagement until he is able to bear it. 4. Never emphasize the permanent effects of a mistake.

Beta Dance Opens Autumn Season

Colored caricatures of pledges decorated the walls of the Beta Theta Pi house Saturday night, when the Betas held the first pledge dance of the season. Green streamers ran from the caricatures to a lighted Beta crest placed above the fireplace. Programs were green with a caricature drawn on the front. Patrons and patronesses were: Mrs. Nellie Barclay, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Snyder, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Jones and Mr. Frank G. Ensign of Boise. Music was furnished by Curtis Martin and his Escorts.

Alpha Phis Dance. A supper dance and a home football game combined to make last Saturday a memorable one for Alpha Phi pledges. Upperclassmen surrendered their seniority for a day and honored this year's pledge class at a "get acquainted" dance which was started immediately after the football game and continued until eight o'clock. Each pledge had as her guest a "blind date."

A buffet supper was served from a long table at one end of the dining room.

Faculty Man Weds Miss Cowen Miss Rosemary Cowen, secretary to Dean E. J. Iddings, and Dr. W. E. Shull, head of the department of entomology at the university were married at 7 o'clock Friday night, District Judge A. L. Morgan performing the ceremony. Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Fisher were their only attendants. They left at once for Spokane.

Students Speak Their Piece On Conscription Issue Conscription may come but once in a lifetime, but that's once too often, according to many campus minds. An equal number seem to favor tomorrow's registration. As one man, the objectors didn't mind being called. They merely were a little fearful of the militaristic consequences of a policy that might be carried too far in the future. Expressing the general opinion of advanced military students, Bob Bonomi said, "It's a fine thing and I'm not saying it because I'm exempt till graduation. Our defense forces are undermanned and militarism and imperialism are things of the past here."

Hoopes Against For the anti's, Hugh Hoopes spoke. Over 21 and conscriptible, he doesn't mind going, but thinks sincerely that the state of the nation doesn't call for it yet.

Women questioned thought while concerning their conscription, they then went on record mostly "for." Mary Gauss and several other Delta Gamma consider it essential for national defense.

CHRISTENSEN TO SPEAK The first experiment station luncheon for this year will be held Tuesday, October 15, at 12:05 in the Student Union building. Dr. Leo M. Christensen, head of the department of agricultural chemistry, will speak on "Farm Chemistry."

Pea Grading Keeps Lab Crew Busy Howard Roylance, Federal pea inspector and his lab crew of moun have had a busy season in the bean and pea grading laboratory in Morrill hall. Their work consists of running dockage analyses on each farmer's lot of peas. After harvest of the beans and peas, representative samples are gathered by sampling every five sacks with a probe. Then with a magnifying glass they spy out the most minute defects such as split coats, weevil stings, off-color, etc., determining the percentage of sound peas, the basis upon which the farmer is paid.

The territory from which peas are graded in this laboratory extends from Lewiston almost to Coeur d'Alene and as far northwest as Colfax. Beans graded are principally from Kendrick, and Troy.

Assisting Mr. Roylance in his laboratory this summer were Russell Fowles, Farrell Daniels, Keith Carlson and Ray McGraw. Rosemary Wilson, secretary in the agronomy department, kept detailed records for the laboratory.

Association Holds Meet in Spokane Miss Margaret Mylne, Miss Margaret Ritchie, Miss Louise Steadman, Mrs. E. A. Stillinger, Mrs. J. R. Bender and Mrs. W. E. Folz were in Spokane Saturday for the leadership conference of the American Association of University Women.

In the discussion of the problems of A. A. U. W., talks were made by all the branch president of the district and also by many of the different committee chairmen. Miss Margaret Mylne, as president of the Moscow branch, gave a report for that organization.

IIDDINGS TO TALK Dean E. J. Iddings left Sunday night for Shelley, Idaho where he will be the main speaker at the annual Shelley Spud Day Tuesday.

Groups House Anne "Marie" Throughout Year

Idaho's first woman exchange student, Miss Eva Anne-Marie Elizabeth von Krusenstierna of Stockholm, Sweden, arrived Friday morning. She is frank and friendly and likes to be called just "Anne-Marie." Anne-Marie likes the campus, the town and the country. She is tall and collegiate, with clear skin, rosy cheeks, dark hair, and a winning smile.

She came to Idaho on a scholarship voted by Idaho sororities last spring. Each group will provide board and room for her for one month. She is at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house for her first month and will move from group to group through the year. The university is giving her the usual exemption from fees that is granted to exchange students.

Speaks English Readily. Students will find no difficulty in talking to Anne-Marie, for she speaks and understands English readily. She has been in the United States for a year and a half. She came over with a group of 14 girls to act as hostesses in the Swedish section of the New York World's fair. War broke out while she was here and her family told her she should remain in this country.

Last year she had a scholarship to Knox college at Gatesburg, Ill. She spent the summer with friends in Chicago.

Her interests are varied and she is attempting to touch many phases of American education. She already knows Swedish shorthand and is planning this year to take a course in English shorthand here. She will also take journalism and advertising and hopes to study a little interior decorating. She speaks English, Swedish, French, and German.

Her only comment on Hitler was "When you hear him speak, he brings you under his spell."

4-H Members Plan Reorganization Of New Chapter

Reorganization meeting of the university 4-H club will be held Thursday, 7 p. m., in Science 110, Estella Larson, secretary, said today. Nine o'clock permission has been granted all women students attending the meeting.

Organized last spring, the club admits anyone who has completed at least one year of 4-H work, she said.

Purpose of the meeting is adoption of a constitution drawn up last year by temporary officers including Gerald Sorenson, president; Marie Connick, vice president; and Estella Larson, secretary.

Women To Attend Guild Dinner

Westminster Guild, club for women of the Presbyterian church, will hold a dinner Wednesday night at 8 p. m. in the Presbyterian church for all new women students belonging to the Presbyterian and Congregational churches. Dean Beatrice Olson, Dr. and Mrs. O. L. Walters and patronesses of the guild will be guests.

Elizabeth Bracken, president of the guild will welcome guests. Entertainment will consist of speeches by Dean Olson, Dr. Walters, and Mrs. Walters representing the patronesses; a vocal solo by Joanne Tretner, a piano selection by Carolyn Norris, and a reading.

If any women interested in the guild do not receive invitations, they are requested to contact Elizabeth Finck, general chairman of the dinner.

Twogie Issues Call For Varsity Casaba Tossers

Practice Sessions Begin Tonight with Five Lettermen Included in Roster

Initial preparations for the varsity basketball season got underway yesterday with Coach Forrest Twogood issuing a call to all men interested in trying out for the team.

Practice plans call for the squad to work each evening in the Memorial gymnasium at 7:15 o'clock.

All men are urged to draw their equipment before the initial session tonight. Equipment will be made available today in the Memorial gymnasium.

Five lettermen are included in the group of 22 making their early turnout intentions known to Coach Twogood.

Major Arthur L. Harding, a member in the Reserve Corps, has received a notice that he may be called to active duty in the near future.

Team Leaves for Boston After 25 to 0 Defeat

A squad of 33 players left for Boston last night on one of the longest jaunts ever taken by an Idaho football squad in the school's history.

It was necessary to run the entire squad through a hard practice yesterday afternoon to determine what players would make the trip.

"The boys played in scrimmage today like they should have played Saturday," commented Coach Bank on Monday's scrimmage.

"We are going back to win that game next Saturday whether Boston has a great team or not. If the boys can play Saturday as they played this afternoon, Boston is going to know that they have played a ball game," said Coach Bob Tessier.

Showing plenty of power and good downfield blocking in yesterday's scrimmage, the team looked as if they would give any team a battle. Outstanding was Bill Michlick, sophomore fullback, who broke through the freshman team for several long touchdown runs.

Backfield men making the traveling squad are Mac Beal, Pete Hecomovitch, and Chet Long, quarterbacks; LaVern Bell, Bill Michlick, and Laune Erickson are the fullbacks; and Earl Acuff, Rex Engelling, Ray Davis, Fred Nichols, George Nixon, and Ken Cox, halfbacks.

Before returning home the team meets Utah State at Boise on October 26. The Vandals will also hold a practice session at Pocatello.

Gonzaga Defeats Idaho. The Gray Ghost of Gonzaga, Tony Canadeo, and his teammates put a blackout on the University of Idaho eleven's opening performance before the home fans with a 25 to 0 trouncing.

After battling on even terms for the first few minutes of the game, Canadeo took Acuff's punt on his own 40 and returned it 21 yards to the Vandal 39. Derr gained six and then Hare made six more for a first down on the Idaho 27.

In the second quarter starting on the Gonzaga 39, Hare, Derr, and Canadeo picked up 11 yards in three tries. Canadeo made three, tossed a pass to Hare for six, and then picked up three more for another first down on the Vandal 38.

The decision of Gonzaga athletic officials to develop boxing as a major sport basis at the university has added another ring team to the northwest's collegiate contingent.

'Mural Sports

Last week's rains interrupted Idaho's intramural touch football program by forcing postponement of two games. Sigma Alpha Epsilon vs. Lambda Chi Alpha and Beta Theta Pi vs. Sigma Chi...

Big scores featured Monday night's play. Chrisman I walloped Campus Club I 32-0; Kappa Sigma doused Delta Tau Delta 20-0; and Willis Sweet I trampled over Idaho Club I 20-0.

With good weather, the touch football campaign is scheduled to end the latter part of October, but with the postponement of so many games, it will probably run into November.

At the present time Sweet I has made the most impressive showing in Division A with a record of three victories in three starts. Other undefeated squads in the A group are: Lindley II, Sweet II and Chrisman I.

Freshman Gridders Drill Without Varsity

Taking Advantage of the 13-day absence of the Vandal varsity, Coach Walt Price's freshman gridders will buckle down in earnest to the job of developing a capable yearling eleven.

Outstanding man in the backfield is Howard Manson, Moscow. Manson is the only triple-threat man on the team and has shown plenty of talent in all three departments.

Other Candidates: Bob O'Connor, a lineman in high school at Wallace, has been shifted to full back. O'Connor is a hard-hitting blocker, but needs experience.

Marvin Churchill, Weippe, is a halfback candidate. He passes and kicks from the left side. With experience he should develop into a fine passer.

Don Anderson, Twin Falls, has turned in the best performance at tackle. Anderson, younger brother of Chase Anderson, varsity end, has good coordination for a big man.

Working at end is Dale Price, Driggs, a light but fast wingman and a good pass receiver. Biggest man on the team is Jack Jones, 265 pound Sandpoint tackle.

To Those Who Try

Last night 33 Vandal football players left for Boston. They will travel about 3,000 miles to meet one of the strongest teams in the United States. They will probably take a sound trouncing, but you can give them credit for one thing—trying.

Yesterday afternoon one of these 33 football players reflected the whole team's attitude with the statement, "We may lose, but we'll give them a good game. We aren't going to lay down just because of Boston college's reputation and the football experts' predictions that we're going to get slaughtered. We're green and inexperienced, but potentially dangerous. We may play way above our heads and upset Boston. After all, there isn't much difference between football teams. Albion Normal or some other small school may be just as tough as Boston, Cornell, Michigan, or any other 'top flight' team to beat."

Last night as the train pulled out, the consensus among the students was: "Well, it's a long way to go to take a beating." But it'll be a good trip, anyway." The football team has taken three bad trouncings against Oregon State, Washington, and Gonzaga; but it hasn't lost its confidence. It's still trying!

It's great to be on a winning football team from the players' angle. The down town quarterbacks come up to you the next day, shake your hand, and say, "Good game, Tom, you were right in there." You have something tangible to work for. It makes you feel that the three or four hours of practice every afternoon, the incessant orders of the coaching staff to "hit that dummy harder" weren't wasted. You were rewarded with compliments. It makes you try harder.

But on a losing team, the situation is changed. No longer is there anything for which to try. The down town quarterbacks say to your back the next day, "That's Tom. Did you see the lousy block he made Saturday? Let the defense through and rush the passer." Tom WAS trying. He was probably trying just as hard as the Tom on the winning team, but his efforts weren't rewarded.

It's hard to try—especially when you don't get rewarded. But 33 Vandal football players are trying—trying to upset one of the nation's strongest football teams. It's great to be a winner, but it is easy to act the part. The real test comes when you are a loser, but can come back for more. Under those circumstances, it takes guts and courage to try!

Why should we "get on the boat" as everyone has advised us to do. If everyone who missed the boat got on now, the darned thing would sink anyway.

As Europe's latest war news flares across American headlines, it becomes clear that England approaches closer and closer to getting the United States into a John Bull session.

The way some fraternities go about it we suggest that the name "rushing" be changed to "rustling."

Communique Comment

Cut off from their vital European markets, threatened by revolts involving Nazi organizations, the Latin American states are waiting for the sunrise. They watch the moves of our State Department carefully, but with a certain distrust. What is "hemisphere defense" to the citizens of the United States is another aspect of Yankee imperialism to our neighbors below the Rio Grande. Therefore, it is wise not to expect wonders from the present effort of the Roosevelt administration to improve relations between Latin America and Washington.

The Latin American peoples have been in the habit of looking at Uncle Sam more in the light of an avaricious bully than of a kindly protector. The efforts made by Secretary Hull since 1933 to dissipate the widespread suspicion of Washington's motives have only been partially successful. The inhabitants of Central and South America do not forget the somewhat lurid part which the Theodore Roosevelt administration played in the Panamanian revolt from Columbia in 1903. The payment of 25 million dollars to Columbia by our government in 1921—as compensation for the loss of Panama—did not heal the wound; the 1921 treaty was regarded as a belated admission by the United States that in 1903 it had acted the part of a blackguard.

Latin America is tied more closely to Europe than to North America. It ships its raw materials and foodstuffs to Europe, and from Europe it has always received a large part of the manufactures which it uses. Paris and Madrid have been its cultural capitals; the composite civilization that stretches from Hollywood to Boston is still characterized as barbarian by South American observers. Meanwhile, the success of the Axis powers tends to strengthen German and Italian prestige in the southern part of our hemisphere—at the expense of Britain and the United States.

We in the United States are alarmed by the fact that the majority of the states to the south of us are democracies only in appearance, dictatorships in actual fact. The situation is not encouraging. Latin Americans smile at our insistence that Uncle Sam is the eternal defender of democracy in this part of the world. They remind us that American interest, engaged in economic exploitation has financed revolts in a number of Central and South American states to preserve Yankee profits. The political instability that has led to the formation of dictatorial regimes is—according to the claims of our southern neighbors—the result of Wall street imperialism.

Globe Trotter Likes Moscow; Enjoys Irish Customs

Vagabond Student Notes Impressions of Many Countries in Travels Abroad

by Fritz Meagher

Complimented indeed may the city of Moscow and the University of Idaho consider themselves by the presence of Lawrence Francis McWilliams, a New York lad who has traveled around a bit in his twenty years. He is now attending the university.

"Sure an I've knocked about in 42 states during the past four years," admitted the red-headed Irishman in his inch-thick brogue, "But it's quite an attachment for Moscow I've formed since first I come here last summer. The place just appeals to me."

Besides his hitch-hiking rambles in nearly every section of the United States and Canada, Larry's travels include three trips to Europe and the Hawaiian Islands. Hitch-hiking across the ocean being too hazardous, the three crossings were made by passenger liner.

Irish Still Superstitious
 Ireland, naturally enough, was where Larry spent most of his time while in Europe. "The Irish people still bear a bit of resentment against the English," he admitted, "But toward the Americans, they are very friendly. Although there were a great many civic improvements between my first visit to the 'Auld Sod' in '32 and my last visit in '34, the people still cling to a great many of the old customs and superstitions. People living in the interior are especially quaint," Larry says. "The day of the leprechaun is past, but the shillelagh lives on."

"The most fun I had while in Erin was attending a good old fashioned Irish wake. Och, it was better than a party," he laughed, his blue eyes twinkling.

"When you first arrive it is customary to cry for a few minutes over the corpse. Then it's his, Paddy, come out to the kitchen for a minute; sure man, you can use just one little glass! And it's out in the kitchen for Paddy and the rest of the men for the remainder of the night. Early in the morning, it is again the right thing to cry for a few minutes over the corpse. Sure and a man sure misses a lot when he is an Irishman—and dead."

Frenchmen Polite
 "The English landscapes were beautiful," admitted Larry, but every day it rained and if ever you forget your umbrella, you're as good as drowned. France was a bit more pleasant. The French people are unusually friendly, especially the French police, who are the friendliest people on earth. To American tourists especially, whose guide book French is unintelligible, are the gendarmes helpful" explained the globe-trotting Mick. "As a whole, living conditions in France were much below ours."

"Three and one-half weeks in Calcutta were too much," confided Larry. "The business district of the city wasn't bad, but the native quarters were indescribably filthy. The people were almost starving."

"The Italian people are, without a doubt, the happiest people on earth," was Larry's opinion. Forever it's some sort of festival or dance they're having. Never before have I seen such a carefree, laughing people. But of course," he added, "that was in 1934."

Hawaiian Islands
 "Ah, but the Hawaiian Islands, there's the place for a man to live. The atmosphere of peace and tranquility is everywhere; no hustle and bustle, just quiet—and the Islands. The three weeks I spent there were heaven, especially after New York."

Until the wanderlust again becomes uncontrollable, Larry will stay in Moscow. Then one morning he will roll his few possessions into a bundle and again be on his way for far-away places.

"There's a lot of the world I haven't seen yet, he admits and adds slyly, "But I will."

Miss Cline Arrives

Miss Jessie Cline of the National Live Stock and Meat Board will be in Moscow tomorrow morning, conferring with Miss Margaret Ritchie, head of the home economics department, Prof. C. W. Hickman head of the animal husbandry department, and other members of the two department staffs.

Miss Cline is a specialist on meat quality—and-cookery—and is on her way to Washington State college.

Letters

To the editor:

Your policy, dear editor, relating to the Greek-Independent situation on the campus is no less than a puzzle. That you are attempting with every weapon at your command to destroy Greek prestige, and to paint all Greeks unscrupulous personages is fairly obvious. But what is not quite so obvious is just what is your ultimate aim.

Last year, under the guidance of a fair-minded editor and tolerant, the Argonaut—newspaper of all the ASU!—was instrumental in healing to some extent the hard feelings that have for some time existed between the local Greek and Independent groups. This year, by adopting the policy of "Soak the Greeks" you have widened more than ever the differences between the two factions.

Discrediting the Greek letter groups in every way possible seems to be your purpose, but toward what ultimate end? Are you attempting to drive from the campus the fraternities and sororities?

Rattling the skeleton in the Greek family closet was but one instance of your faintly rabble-raising tactics. Certainly there have been instances of sharp practices in the glorious history of the noble Independent party. Aren't you getting short of ammunition when you are forced to hold up by the tail a five-year old herring to expose to the new students the innate corruption of the terrible Greeks.

Then, too, your cute feature stories telling of the horrible and nerve-racking ordeal to which women rushees are subjected were women rushees are subjected were certainly not given space at the expense of legitimate news because of their cleverness.

As to your well-timed attacks on Blue Key and Intercollegiate Knights, little need be said. Your purpose and tactics leave little to the imagination. And nobody is thereby rise in denial of the fairness and bigness you showed in the On The Campus of your Oct. 1 Jason column. It was a gem, Jason; a gem of rhetoric and big-otry.

Well, dear editor, my little say is said. Anxiously do I await your well phrased reply. Of course you'll print it; one must show one's broad-mindedness, you know.

I. M. W.

(Ultimate Purpose No. 1: to spur such Greeks as yourself to throw out T.N.E. The herring is two years old, not five. I will turn some venom on the Independents as soon as they arise from their sluggishness enough to do anything stupid or obnoxious. Thanks for writing. I was beginning to fear you boys, in addition to your other sins were taking your long-awaited lacing lying down.—Ed.)

To the Editor:

What has become of Dirty Doll? Everyone on the campus is interested in the extra-curricular activities of the students, and now that Doll is inactive, the fun and spice seems to be gone from the Argonaut.

After all, the Argonaut is a campus paper, so why try to make it like any local bi-weekly?

It should reflect campus spirit and interests, and harmless personal gossip certainly comes under that heading.

Names and events are the things which make a campus paper interesting, and no one can deny that Dirty Doll had the most popular column in the paper last year.

So please, Dear Editor, give us back our beloved snoop.
 S.G.F., H. L. A., P. B. F.

something, he will be invited to contribute. Meanwhile, the Argonaut assures all those who wish to see their names in print that they need only do something important and outstanding and their story will be covered.

From now on, requests for the column will be carefully filed. The names of those requesting it will be listed. When the list is long enough, Argonaut staff members will go to work on it digging out the worst scandal it can find or surmise about each individual. The column will appear with the following introduction: "This column is written for and about those who requested it. It will be continued as often as demand requires."

Eighteen colleges and universities sent delegates to a New York state scientific conference at Vassar college.

Men Plan Banquet

Sigma Delta, men's journalism honorary, met yesterday afternoon and launched plans for entertaining Vincent Sheean, noted commentator, who will appear here October 29. The journalists will hold a banquet, to which Mr. Sheean, members of Theta Sigma, women's journalism honorary; and several faculty members will be invited, according to President Ray Scheetz.

Dr. Young Speaks

Dr. Vernon A. Young, professor of range management at the University of Idaho, spoke to about 30 members of the Benevoh Livestock Growers association at St. Maries Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Young emphasized the need of protection against overgrazing which is followed by severe erosion, and a need of fewer and better livestock, which will give higher return because of the increased calf crop and better average weights.
