ERC Men Depart for Duty

Good luck, God bless you, and goodbye," said Doctor Erwin in a farewell address to the men who left last night with contingent of ERC men who received orders to report for duty.

The men were guests of honor at luncheon given by the university earlier in the afternoon at Hotel Moscow. The luncheon was arranged by Dean T. S. Kerr, Dean H. E. Lattig was toastmaster at the brief program which included music arranged by Dr. Beecher, and Col. C. W. and President H. C. Dale addressed to the men the best wishes of the university.

At 4:30, a group of Idaho students, beginning at the Bucket, gathered members from each as they passed, escorted the men to the station where a rally was held.

Dr. Erwin spoke to the men and offered the congratulations of the student body to the men who are to be inducted into the armed forces, and Rena said goodbye to the Associated women students.

In addition to the luncheon and an all-university mixer was held Tuesday night in the Bucket room in honor of the men who were to leave.

Because this has been the first group to leave in a single night this was the first official goodbye extended by the University of Idaho as a whole. "Hitherto," said President Dale, "we have said goodbye to individuals as they left the campus, but this ERC call gives the university a chance to give a good-bye to quite a sizeable group."

Reinhardt Names Junior Theme for This Year

"College Days" is the theme to be used for this year's Junior Day, chairman Rey Reinhardt announced after the committee met Monday night.

Plans are under way for four days of fun starting with a mixer Wednesday night, April 14. The night a selected group of students will offer an all-campus parade. On Thursday the annual Junior assembly will be preceded with the Prom on Friday giving a formal touch. The week's activities will be wound up Saturday night at the Cabaret. The assembly will be written by Frank and John Krier, with Wood directing the serenades. John Hamm was named as the decorations in place of the Littlefield. Music for the week will be provided by the Grimmett and his orchestra.

Music Honorary Initiates Five

Phi Mu Alpha, national men's professional music fraternity, announces the initiation of five members. Initiates are Donald Binning, Reid Fife, William Walter, Fred Watson, and Winton Wood. SAI Will Present Vesper Service

Sigma Alpha Iota, national music honorary, will present a Vesper service for students of the university March 21, at 4:30 o'clock in the auditorium. Members of SAI plan to make the service an annual event. Among those featured on the program are Mona Meyers, organist; Billie Byerlee, violinist; Jean Gochneur, pianist; Jean Armour, pianist; and Marjorie Call, vocalist. Everyone is invited to attend the service.

U. S. Army Postpones Arrival Of Engineers Indefinitely

"99 Gals And A Guy"

Making their initial appearance at the send-off rally for the ERCs yesterday, 63 women make up the turnout quota for the first all-woman band to be on the campus. Prof. E. J. Marty is organizing the group, striving to bring its membership up to the "99 gals and a guy" mark.

Idaho's All Girl Band Makes First Appearance At Rally

After but one rehearsal, the all-girl band known as "99 Gals and a Guy" made its first appearance yesterday afternoon at the rally for the ERC men. In addition to playing at pep rallies the band will also play concert music.

Although 109 women signed up for the band only 63 attended the meeting at which the band was organized. The goal has been set at 99 members, Edmund J. Marty, director of bands and sponsor of the group, announced.

This band will not replace the men members of the regular university band but women will play at the new organization. The regular meetings of the band will be held every Wednesday from 4:00 to 5:30.

At the first meeting, a picture to be used as the letterhead on the stationery of the music department, was taken.

Music Honorary Initiates Five

Phi Mu Alpha, national men's professional music fraternity, announces the initiation of five members. Initiates are Donald Binning, Reid Fife, William Walter, Fred Watson, and Winton Wood. The initiation was held on March 4 in the university auditorium and was followed by a dinner at the Hotel Moscow.

Four members from the WSC Psi chapter were initiated at the same time.

SAI Will Present Vesper Service

University Makes Changes In Personnel

Switches, resignations, and new additions have been prevalent in the university's administration and faculty line-up in the past two weeks. The appointment of Mrs. Evelyn Albrecht as purchasing agent, Mrs. Josephine Shealy as assistant hostess at Forney hall and replacements within the French and English departments dominate the personnel changes.

Granted a leave of absence in order to join the Red Cross program, W. W. Goss's position as purchasing agent for the university will be filled by Mrs. Albrecht, President Dale announced Tuesday. With experience as purchasing agent for a department store in Oakland, Calif., where she bought building supplies, she will assume the duties of selecting university supplies during the absence of Mr. Goss.

No replacement will be made for the vacancy created when Cecil Hagen of the publicity department resigned to accept a position with a farm journal firm in Spokane. A graduate of the university, Hagen was Argonaut editor for a year and has been assistant publicity director for the university for the past few years. He will join the editorial staff of the company publishing the Oregon, Washington and Idaho Farmers magazines.

The appointment of Theodore A. Sherman as graduate manager caused a reshuffling in the English classes, with Mr. Arthur H. Beattie of the French department taking over some freshman English courses. Miss Mabel Rentfro is teaching some of Mr. Beattie's former classes and Dr. H. L. Ax-tell from the classical languages department will take over some Latin courses she has been instructing.

Mrs. Shealy, mother of Prof. Edward Shealy of the college of law, is to be assistant hostess at Forney hall for the remainder of the year until she returns from her leave of absence to her position as a librarian at the University of Wisconsin.

Postponed for an unstated length of time, the arrival of the army engineers is absolutely indeterminate, President Dale stated this week.

In a telegram received from the Ninth Service Command at Fort Douglas, Utah, it was announced that the initial unit will not arrive on April 5, as previously agreed upon. No explanation was given nor any mention of a later date of arrival so that moving day for the Forney-Hays women might be April 6th or May 6th. In all events, the officers who were to meet at the university to draw up the contract did not come yesterday.

Eating and living facilities for the women who will be moved out of their dormitories are still being investigated but no decisions have been made. Either the Blue Bucket will be completely reconditioned to provide a dining room large enough to accommodate the women, or arrangements will be made to cook for the women in the respective fraternity houses that will be taken over for rooming facilities.

The houses to be used will be selected by a committee made up of Dean Beatrice Olson, Robert F. Greene, Charles A. Truitt, Frank Stanton, and Dean H. E. Lattig.

Bulletin Outlines New Policy For Deferment

A new directive of interest to many college students has just been issued to local draft boards by the National Headquarters of Selective Service System. This bulletin outlines a policy whereby deferment may be granted to competent students who can complete their college work by July 1, 1945, in the various branches of engineering and mining, bacteriology, chemistry, physics, pre-medical, pre-dental, and pre-veterinary studies. Provision is also made for students in agriculture and forestry who have finished at least one-half of their undergraduate work.

Dr. L. C. Cady, director of the Summer Term, points out that second semester freshman students who are now carrying normal loads may complete their requirements in most curricula by June, 1945, by enrolling for two Summer Terms in addition to the next four regular semesters. This program depends upon whether the necessary pre-requisite and required courses are available.

"We shall be glad," Dr. Cady indicated, "to include those courses in the Summer Term for which there is sufficient demand." It is, of course not possible to offer classes for only two or three students. A time schedule for the 1943 Summer Term will be made up in the next few weeks. Students planning to attend the Summer Term should consult their dean and the Director of the Summer Term, Dr. Cady.

Each group house is to select its candidate and pictures of the contestants will be on display in the Ad building or in the Bucket lounge. Each penny placed in the container beneath the candidate's picture will count as a vote. Winners of the contest will receive prizes to be presented at the dance.

The money obtained by this contest will be used to buy war bonds which will be redeemed after the war to erect a plaque in honor of the former students killed in action.

Willard L. Thompson, aviation cadet and son of Dr. J. W. Thompson of Moscow, has been transferred to the naval air station at Pensacola, Fla., after completing his primary flight training at Lambert Field, St. Louis.

After three months at Pensacola, he will receive his commission either as an ensign in the navy or second lieutenant in the marine corps.

Communique Comment

During the coming spring and summer, the U.S. Senate will have the opportunity to help in laying the groundwork for permanent peace. The project for an Allied council that will bind the U.S. to post-war co-operation with the other United Nations, has led already to declarations by members of the upper chamber which show that a strong group of senators will attack bitterly any plan that does not leave our country complete freedom of action in foreign policy after this conflict. If this bloc is successful in its opposition to the resolution introduced on Monday by two Republican and two Democratic solons, an important step will have been taken in turning the world into the path that leads directly to a Third World War.

Talks between Foreign Secretary Eden, Ambassador Litvinov, and the heads of our State Department this week look toward the forging of closer bonds between Britain, the Soviet Union, and the U.S. Neither Britain nor the U.S.S.R. is going to work earnestly for the establishment of a system of international security after the war if it seems probable that after the current hostilities our country will return to a policy of isolationist aloofness, as it did in 1919. The decision made by our senate in 1943 will be more influential than Americans can realize at this time in moulding the foreign policies of the great powers of the world for the next decade.

U.S. public opinion is hard to gauge at this moment. Careful discussion of post-war problems seems to be confined in large part to a small minority that looks with hope on the announced aims of such practical idealists as Vice President Wallace. Certain American business interests are spreading propaganda that is designed to convince our people that the final peace settlement must grant to U.S. air-transport companies domination of the world's airways. One tycoon of the American press is spreading the gospel of an "American Century" in which the nations of the earth will learn to work together under the schoolmasterly supervision of Wall Street and Washington.

The events of this week at our national capital take us back to the debates of 1919-20, when Senator Lodge and the Lion of Idaho helped to wreck Wilson's plan for U.S. entrance into the League of Nations. Americans sometimes forget that a clear majority of the upper house favored at that time U.S. participation in the League with certain reservations. The refusal of President Wilson to compromise with Lodge as he did with Clemenceau and Lloyd George at Paris, was in large part responsible for the failure of those senators who favored our entrance into the League with qualifications to get the two-thirds vote necessary for ratification.

The GOLDEN FLEECE by Jason

The whole thing is rich in irony. One hundred ROTC men are on their last lap of college and the rumor pops up that the army is going to shove them into uniform, give them a base pay of $50 a month, and quarter them en masse.

Statistically, it works out that at a minimum of $30 board and room paid by the government plus the $50 pay rate, not less than $8000 will be spent per month for the dubious advantage of having the same men keep on at the same routine that they've been following at their own expense for seven months.

To break up a college unit in the middle of a semester, mess up the entire teaching curriculum, move someone out of somewhere to make room for barracks is asinine when put up to the alternative of keeping on at the status quo, letting the fellows pay their own way out and inducting them into the army in the spring when they intend to enter anyhow.

"If they want to take us, why don't they let us go? But to sit up in some girls' dorm and study journalism just doesn't make sense." Current feeling follows similar channels as the rumor makes its rounds. It might not merit the griping—it might be pure speculation that such a turn will be taken by the army, but again it might be, in sports writer jargon, just a little pre-game dope, with the order for ROTC mobilization following in its track. Complications

What's going to happen when part of the men go out to PE 37 at 7 a.m. and then sit around waiting for their 2 o'clock classes? Or is everything to be regimented so the fellow who's been working in a physics lab until midnight has to chuck it all to meet the army bedtime mark? The basic theory seems to rest, as some ROTC manual hinted, in: "young Americans take a pride in belonging to a unit that is organized, uniformed, and equipped. There is little incentive for them to be in mere inactive list of the lowest rank." So apparently it would be for moral... disrupting a whole semester for morale.

It's a little disheartening. Before, the men have studied and

Dr. J. H. Einhouse Dies In Moscow

Dr. J. Harry Einhouse, well-known university graduate and Moscow resident, died early Monday morning at the family home from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Dr. Einhouse was one of the university physicians for many years. Long interested in campus health matters, he was instrumental in getting the new infirmary for the university.

Dr. Einhouse received his B. S. degree from the university in 1917. He was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity, and for 21 years was secretary-treasurer of the alumni corporation. His medical fraternity was Phi Chi.

played along for four years, and have come out with a commission. Now they sit as privates, will enter the forces next June as corporals and eventually hit officers' training. And yet thrown in is the possibility of being "organized uniformed, and equipped," merely to continue in their same curriculum. When the whole purpose has been to permit them to finish school where's the reasoning that wants to disrupt the school schedule to let them play soldier on their own campus at the army's expense?

Cecil Hagen Takes Home Ec's Discuss Magazine Job

Cecil Hagen, assistant in the publication's department, since 1930 and acting alumni secretary, last week tendered to President Dale his resignation, effective April 1. He will join the editorial staff of the Pacific Northwest Farm Trio, publishers of the Idaho, Oregon, and Washington Farmer, twice-monthly farm magazine. Mr. Hagen received his B.A. degree from the University of Idaho in 1930. While attending college he was very active in campus activities, being editor of the Argonaut, and holding membership in Sigma Chi, Silver Larch, and Blue Key. During his senior year he was chosen as one of six senior students to be in the "Representative Idahoan" section of the Gem.

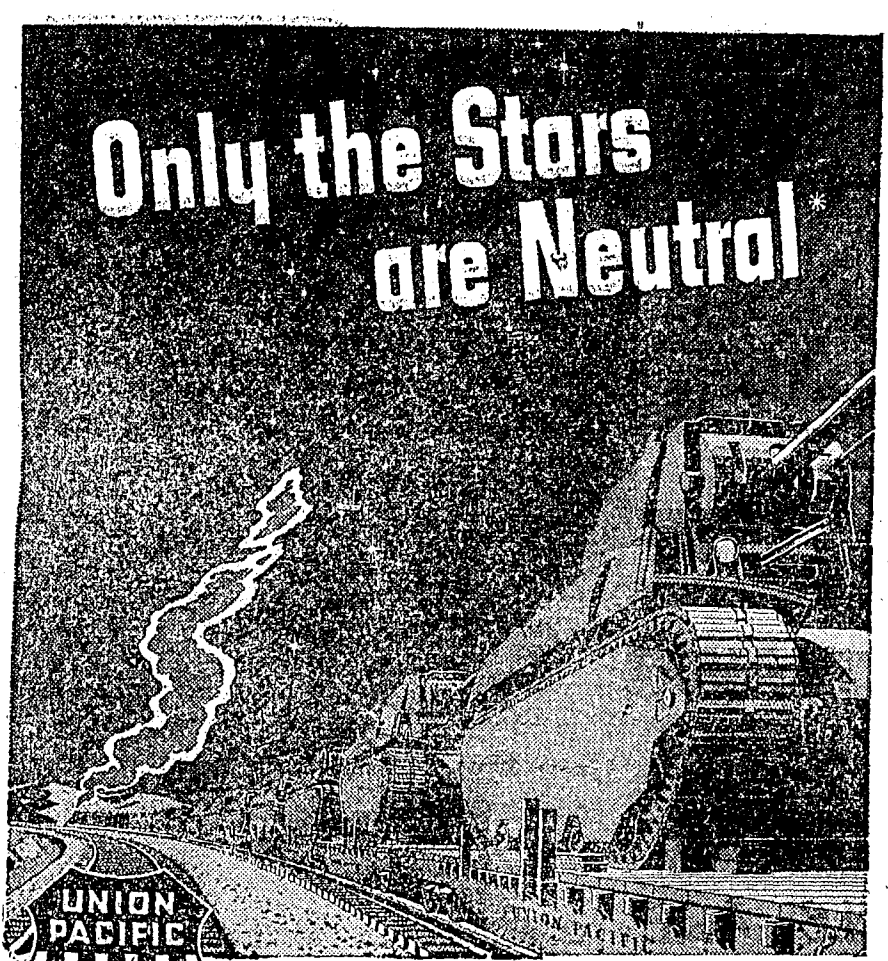

Home Ec's Discuss Vocations

"Career Day" was the theme of the monthly meeting of the home economic club held last Monday. To acquaint home economics students with opportunities for employment, a discussion of vocations that home economics majors may enter was held. Letters from home economics graduates concerning the type of work in which they are now employed added first-hand information to the discussion. Fields discussed were institution management, research, nutrition, dress designing, teaching, and homemaking.

Whitman To Meet Vandal Nine In Eight Games

Athletic Director George Greene announced yesterday that eight pre-conference games had been arranged with the Whitman baseball team. The first four games of the season will take place March 26 and 27 at Walla Walla with the Missionaries playing return games here April 7 and 8.

The conference schedule opens with a Vandal invasion of the Willamette Valley April 14. After playing Oregon State, Oregon and Washington on the trip, the Vandal nine returns to Moscow to open their home stand.

Greene said the diamond men are working indoors at present and taking easy workouts. The main exercise for the team has been throwing and running. As soon as the weather permits, the baseballers will go outside, Greene said.

Women To Sponsor Poster Contest

To make the students more nutrition conscious, Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economic honorary, is sponsoring a poster contest as part of the professional work of the freshman art structure class. A prize will be given to the three outstanding posters, which will be placed in every house and hall on the campus, with the three best ones rotating to each house.

The posters are on nutrition, with vitamins as a theme. The purpose is to show the individual function of the various vitamins in relation to the values of foods and points and the needs of the body.
