

Seniors Open Week's Assembly Friday

Preparing for their Friday night show are members of the senior assembly cast. Rehearsals have been held in the university auditorium.

Idaho Establishes Guidance Center To Aid Veterans

In answer to a need for guidance and counseling of returning veterans on the Idaho campus, a veterans administration guidance center was opened on the campus this week under the auspices of the Boise veterans administration office.

Main purpose of the program will be to determine the best probable courses for the 70 or more veterans already enrolled in the university. Arrangements have been made with the university psychology and education departments to aid in giving aptitude tests.

Final Choice Final choice of the course will be made by the veteran, with the advice of the veteran administration representative, the medical consultant, and the individual who gave the tests.

Rehabilitation The program is to rehabilitate the veterans who are disabled or had their education interrupted by the war.

At the present time plans are being made for the opening of a similar branch office at southern branch of the University of Idaho located at Pocatello.

Whoever drew the postcards advertising the advent of the senior ball Saturday evening seems to have had the wrong kind of social event in mind.

Red noses will either be absent or well disguised at this austere farewell to the seniors if past events are to be taken as a guide.

Despite the gentleman drooling over his drink, the senior ball promises to be an event well worth attending. It is a campus activity of long standing and one that deserves support from every student.

PEM club members managed to steal a march on critics who bemoan the lack of "something to do" last Saturday when their folk dancing party at the women's gymnasium.

Folk dancing is a sport in itself and the type of party it prompts is as informal and, excusing the term, as "jolly" an event as can be found.

PEM club's initiative is to be lauded and its bravery in interjecting something new into campus life is to be commended.

PEM club dared and won.

Prichard To Accept Harvard Fellowship

T. J. Prichard, connected with the university art and architecture department since 1926, left last week on a seven-month leave of absence to accept an Arthur Wheelwright fellowship at Harvard recently awarded him.

Prof. Prichard will study for a Ph. D. degree in architecture in the graduate school of design while at Cambridge, Mass.

He will attend the spring and summer terms and return to Idaho next fall.

Students View Play

Members of the reading and interpretation and advanced play reading classes attended a play, "Morning Becomes Electric," by Eugene O'Neil, staged in Lewiston last week by the state normal school. They were accompanied by Miss Jeanne Collette.

Gem Photos

New students who have not yet had their photographs taken for the Gem may make appointments to have pictures taken this afternoon or tomorrow afternoon at Hutchinson's studio.

Navy To Consider Establishing ROTC Unit Here

The university is still on a list of 23 institutions throughout the nation that are being considered as likely spots for the establishment of Naval ROTC units.

Dean Announces Close Of Rush

Final plans have been made for the close of semester rushing, announced Louise Carter, dean of women.

Mrs. Carter asked particularly that there be no noise or demonstration in the halls, and that the women come and go quietly.

Campus Club Closes

Campus club will be closed next semester, according to Robert F. Greene, director of dormitories.

Chrisman Hall Opens Doors To All Independent Men

With very little fanfare, Chrisman hall, named after Brigadier General E. R. Chrisman, formerly of the university military department, opened its doors February 8 to welcome in the many male students moving in from the Campus club and other men's living groups on the campus.

It wasn't very long ago that the radio code of the navy trainees echoed through the long corridors of one of the finest college dormitories in the Northwest.

Many Changes Since that fateful day of December 7, 1941, the campus has seen many changes, one of them being the closing of Chrisman hall to civilians for the ushering in of armed forces' trainees.

Replanning Dr. and Mrs. Irving Jolly, who were proctor and hostess of Chrisman, will be Dr. and Mrs. R. F. Daubenmier.

Pres. Dale Speaks President Harrison C. Dale was the main speaker last Sunday when a chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution was installed at Lewiston.

Senior Ball To Culminate Traditional Festive Week

Climaxing a week of traditional activities, senior men and women will play host at the annual Senior Ball scheduled for Saturday night in the student union ballroom.

Tickets will be on sale until Friday evening in the Administration building with Ruth Leth in charge and in the men's houses with Fred Watson in charge.

Working with Billie Keeton and Reed Fife, co-chairmen of Senior week, on arrangements for the dance are Helen Howard and Tom Ryan.

Others named were James E. Kraus, formerly horticulturist at the Aberdeen experiment station, an associate professor of horticulture; David A. Strong, instructor in men's physical education; Alton B. Jones, former superintendent of schools at Lava Hot Springs, as acting director of the placement service.

Resignations Resignations of Harold Watling, instructor in zoology, and William C. Moore, instructor in business, were accepted by the board.

Leaves of absence from the staff were granted to Earl W. Carlson, assistant professor in business, and Howard Andrews, director of the placement service.

Only promotion made at the meeting was Hubert E. Hattrup from instructor to assistant professor of electrical engineering.

Minute Maids Plan New Bond Contest

Tentative plans are being made by the Minute Maids for a contest between all living groups in the sale of war stamps and bonds, according to officials.

A thermometer will be placed in the administration building to record the total sales made of bonds and stamps.

Further plans for the contest will be made at a meeting to be held at the Alpha Phi house, February 14 at 5 p.m.

LDS Holds Meeting

Lambda Delta Sigma will hold a meeting at the LDS institute Sunday at 7 p. m. A special program of readings and musical numbers is being arranged with Elaine Anderson in charge.

University Asks State To Assign Research Fund

A combined appeal from the state Grange, the alumni association, mining, forestry and engineering interests seeking funds for an adequate program of scientific research is being made to the state legislature in Boise, according to President Harrison C. Dale.

First to approach the legislature was the Alumni association through its president, A. B. Curtis, of Orofino. The association asked that a fund of $200,000 be set up for research purposes in line with a program outlined by the group last spring.

These groups are asking the state legislature to make suitable appropriations to start a research program at the university.

While in Boise, President Dale appeared before the joint finance committee of the legislature and outlined what a research program could accomplish at the university.

The Alumni proposition is to "keep the state abreast of changing conditions," while the Grange proposal aims at the development of new uses for farm products.

Others named were James E. Kraus, formerly horticulturist at the Aberdeen experiment station, an associate professor of horticulture; David A. Strong, instructor in men's physical education; Alton B. Jones, former superintendent of schools at Lava Hot Springs, as acting director of the placement service.

Resignations Resignations of Harold Watling, instructor in zoology, and William C. Moore, instructor in business, were accepted by the board.

Leaves of absence from the staff were granted to Earl W. Carlson, assistant professor in business, and Howard Andrews, director of the placement service.

Only promotion made at the meeting was Hubert E. Hattrup from instructor to assistant professor of electrical engineering.

Flirtations Characterize All-Campus Comedy Skit

When the curtain rises in the university auditorium at 7:30 tomorrow night, the senior assembly will start the traditional week of activities for the graduating class.

The all-campus program, which includes students from all classes, is similar to assemblies sponsored in previous years by the seniors.

Played by experienced student actors, the first scene opens in the living room of the Penelopes, a conservative family in the little town of Roseville.

Whole Family At the meeting is the entire Penelop family whose parts are taken by Grace Lillard as Mrs. Penelop, Jerry Riddle as the pompous Cyrus Penelop, Jean Pugh and Barbara Jo Smith as two elderly maiden aunts, and Marion Wilson in the role of the daughter, Hyacinth.

Humor and laughs are inevitable in the unusual flirtation scene between Clive's mother and a grocery boy.

In addition to the comedy, special numbers will be presented by entertainers from the Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Chi Omega, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Phi Gamma Delta houses.

In the skits are Perry Truant, Jo Spring, Vivian McLaughlin, Billie Adamson, Pat Robinson, Bernice Bakes, Marge Spring and Charles Henderson.

U. S. Pays Tribute To Paul Ryan Over KRLC

Tribute to Paul Ryan, former Idaho student, will be paid Sunday at 6 p. m. by radio station KRLC at Lewiston with a broadcast of "Salute to Captain Paul Ryan," a recording issued by the United States Treasury department.

Capt. Ryan, son of Coach Mike Ryan, was killed on Saipan last June. Because of his outstanding military record, his achievements were chosen as subject for the record, made in connection with war bond publicity.

While attending the university, Ryan was a three year letterman in track and football, and in 1940 was named honorary track captain.

Upon graduating in 1941, he enlisted in the "Fighting 69th Regiment" in which his uncle had won decorations during World War I.

He and his brother, Bernard Ryan, also an Idaho track man, served together until Paul was killed. Bernard was wounded in action within three days after his brother's death.

Other officers are Perry Truant, music chairman; Winifred Tovey, secretary-treasurer; Karma Smith, scholarship chairman; Margaret Arnold, culture chairman; Zelva Hodge, social chairman, and Pat Dohberstein, assistant social chairman.

All-Girl Orchestra To Tour Spokane Army Bases

"Musical Varieties," the show by the All-Girl singing orchestra which drew an ovation from Idaho students several weeks ago, will go on tour from February 26 to March 2, A. A. Beecher, head of the university music department and director of the group reported yesterday. They will present the program to servicemen in the Spokane area on the trip.

Early Birds Under the auspices of "Early Birds," the All-Girl singing orchestra will present a program Tuesday evening in the Civic Auditorium with Ruth Draper, who is famous for her whistling, both in pictures and over the radio. The group will then entertain members of the Spokane Ad club Wednesday noon, after which they will be presented at Fort George Wright.

Other Stops Other places at which they will perform include Galena airport, Wednesday evening; the Lion's club, Thursday noon; a broadcast over KFPY at 5 p. m. Thursday, and Baxter hospital, Thursday evening. Recording of selected parts of their repertoire will be made by KFPY.

According to Professor Beecher, soloists to be featured will probably be Joseph Brye on the marimba; Bette Scott, Virginia Eggen, Jean Taylor and Dorothy Monico, sopranos; Virginia Chaney, mezzo-soprano; Robert Walls, tenor, and Bernice Bakes and Jean Armour, violinists.

Members of the troupe will be quartered in a new WAC dormitory at Geiger Field. They will be accompanied by Hall M. Macklin, Robert Walls and Joseph Brye, all of the music department, and Mrs. Hall Macklin, who will act as chaperone.

Negro Issue Faces South

Marilyn Kaemmerle, 22-year-old editor of the College of William and Mary's student paper, the Flat Hat, seized the southern bull by its aristocratic horns when she wrote an editorial suggesting that the time should come when Negroes should attend the college, "fraternize and marry among us."

Her daring in hitting at the "white supremacy" code of the south resulted in the paper's temporary suspension. The college board of regents was shocked at the thought of what she had written and expressed their "thorough disapproval and condemnation."

The south has been in the toils of the race problem for many years. They have had their own way of solving it, i.e., keep the Negro subject and at the mercy of the white groups and do nothing constructive.

The time has passed when the Negro is content to remain inferior. He has been discriminated against long enough. He has ridden more than his share in the Jim Crow streetcar and has lived long enough on a $3 a week wage scale.

The Negro has been held down in whatever undertaking he has attempted, but despite this, members of the race have educated themselves in the democracy that has been denied them.

When the war is over the Negro can be denied no longer. Systems like that in operation at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va., will have to abandon autocratic and ruthless methods or face a race war.

Southern Branch Bill Fails

A bill to make possible the establishing of a four-year curriculum at the Southern Branch of the University of Idaho failed to pass the state house of representatives by a narrow 28-31 margin yesterday. However, the house passed a bill settling the discussion as to the validity of upper division V-12 credits from that university. In spite of the two-year stipulation placed upon the school curriculum by the Idaho legislature, upper-division work completed by sailors there will be honored at any accredited university toward a degree should they desire to complete their schooling after the war.

Investigation shows, however, that the house's action was but a formal acknowledgement of V-12 credits. Since July, 1943, V-12 credits from the Southern Branch of the University of Idaho have been acceptable to the University of Idaho and to all other accredited universities. According to the report to the American Association of Collegiate Registrars on credit given by educational institutions for 1944, the highest authority used by all universities in checking the validity of credits from other schools, "Upper division courses other than pharmacy certified for V-12 students only since July, 1943," approximately the date when the V-12 program was instituted. The house's action clarifies the issue, but makes no change in the acceptability of already valid upper division credits.

Engineers Attend Assembly Today

At an assembly scheduled for 10 a. m. today, Bayrd Hodgins, manager of the sales division, Spokane district of Westinghouse Company, will speak on "Science Applied to War." The assembly is for all engineers and their classes will be excused.

Mr. Hodgins is a graduate of the University of Idaho class of 1923, and his talk is being sponsored by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

The assembly will be held in room 206 of the engineering building.

To Seniors

Today is the last day that seniors intending to receive a degree this spring may file an application for a baccalaureate degree, according to D. D. DuSault, registrar.

He urged all seniors who have not filed to do so today.

Riflemen Compete With Other Units

Over 115 new students were enrolled in the enlisted reserves at the university February 5 to begin their three months training term before being called into actual duty with the armed forces, Lieutenant John H. Swain, adjutant of the university unit, announced today. Lieutenant Swain added that there is now a total of approximately 265 reserves on the Idaho campus.

Rifle scores of the Idaho AST reserves and scores of other training school units are exchanged weekly for the purpose of comparing the respective scores. In an exchange with the naval reserve officers' training corps at the University of Pennsylvania, Idaho's score was 30 points in advance, Sgt. Charles V. Kramer, military science instructor for the Idaho unit, reported.

Coach William Ramsey announced also that tentative plans are being made for intra-mural basketball games between Company A and Company B.

Veterans Have Difficulty Adjusting To College

While university students and faculty members have apparently attempted to help returning veterans re-establish themselves they have, to a certain extent, failed an interview by an Argonaut reporter with one of the veterans revealed.

This ex-sailor has found it extremely difficult to get back to the routine of studying and that he has forgotten many of the things he learned in high school. To overcome this he suggested that instructors spend more time at the first of a course reviewing background work and teaching fundamentals.

He suggested, too, that the instructors give assignments that require study and concentration. Otherwise the veterans are likely to attempt to slide through the courses.

More Conferences
 The deans, very co-operative when asked for help, could probably be of more help if they would confer with the students in their college or school, the veteran said. These conferences, he felt, should serve as an introduction of the dean and the student so that the student would feel like consulting his dean more often and so that the dean might know the problems of all the students the veteran continued.

The students have remained a little apart from the veterans and although willing to pledge them have not invited them in to their individual small groups. Because of differences in age and experience, the younger men on the campus and the veterans have little in common and thus have some trouble in meeting each other on common ground.

Get Acquainted
 The veteran suggested that by becoming thoroughly acquainted with the veterans the younger students would find these differences to be almost entirely imaginary.

Believing that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," the former sailor expressed a wish that the "GI bill of rights" allow veterans attending school to work during the summer months and return to school at the beginning of the fall term. As the bill now reads a veteran must register for consecutive semesters to be eligible for assistance.

Teacher Returns From Idaho Tour

Miss Lucille Magruder, teacher in the home economics department, returned February 11 from a tour through southern Idaho.

She spent a week visiting home economics departments and holding group meetings at the high schools, and visited schools in Twin Falls, Boise, Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

Among the Idaho graduates now teaching home economics with whom Miss Magruder contacted were: Meriam Meyer Koister and Maureen Kruser Rigby, now teaching in Idaho Falls; Dorothy Whitney Mercer and Lucy Hearley, Pocatello; and Estella Larsen, Buhl.

Present at a group meeting in Idaho Falls were Joyce Mercer Casper, presently at St. Anthony; Mary Ellen Closser, of Sugar City; and Frances Harvey, now teaching at Firth.

Chrisman Chooses Hall Officers

At its initial meeting Chrisman hall chose the following men as officers: Robert Nelson, president; Robert Smith, vice president; Irvin Wentworth, secretary; Kenneth Goldsberry, treasurer; Kyle Bates and David Stidolph, social chairman; and James Brown, intra-mural manager.

Gal Giant Gripes At Skyscraper Condition

"When ya' coming down off the stilts, Highpockets?" That phrase has been flung in my face so many times, I could sca-ream! You see, I am five feet, nine and three-quarters... all right, all RIGHT, so it's five feet, ten inches tall. But ever since the sixth grade, when I stood a foot and a half above the rest of the class, I have learned to grin and philosophically beat my head against the wall.

However, there are a few minor problems connected with my... uh... condition. Mostly people. First there is the group known as "mother's friends." You know the type. They have a stock phrase, "My dear, how you've grown since I last saw you." Usually three weeks have elapsed since our last meeting. I reassure them I haven't grown an inch and I stopped growing YEARS ago. Then I dash madly into my room to measure myself just to be sure.

Then there's the funny (ha-ha) type. I have been cursed with more than my share of them. Not a month passes that I don't run across some individual that comes up with, "Well, at least you're someone to look up to." Amusing, isn't it. That was one of the reasons I wore cleats to dancing school.

I've tried, oh, I've tried to "recline in a graceful position, then uncoil my long limbs with tiger-like grace." I tried it in public once, and I distinctly heard a little boy ask his mother if I had fleas. There are a lot of advantages, too. They say I can wear a mink coat like anything. All I need to make my life complete is a measly $2,500 plus luxury tax.

And then I can see over crowds. You've probably seen me. People are beginning to refer to me as "that head over there." Of course, if things are too bad I can always sell my skull to a medical school. Oh, I wouldn't trade places with anyone. Not anyone. Not much I wouldn't.

Students Relax Into Coma As Quiz Week Passes

This problem of the taking of finals at the nine weeks and again at the semester brings heated arguments from students both pro and con. The students are not alone in the cramming, sweating, and worrying it out though, for our good profs must suffer with us. With the present arrangement of scheduling it is possible to have perhaps a week's vacation after the finals have completed their blood letting. This comes about through a weekly program best suited to the quiz sheet and surely the profs are entitled to this hope also. But alas, most of us must suffer, and postpone that trip to Spokalo or Lewiston 'till a quiet week-end.

Are Quizzes Necessary?
 Take the case of Bill Banks, for the heart-breaking example. Being human, although a university professor, he could successfully argue that a final was not necessary at this mid-year due to the nature and type of course thereby enabling him to keep the graces of his lads and lassies and still have five for the general time account.

Then to gum up the works one of his students feels that he is not doing her justice and so proceeds to go the registrar and demand a quiz. The blow fell, quiz to take for the outboud students and quiz to prepare for the state's instructor.

Early Birds
 One time-pressed education professor must have felt he would give his students full cramming advantages of recent study and scheduled to give a quiz at 5 a.m. right after he assumed the mariority would be about ready to lay out a perfect blue book. Come five, no students. Come six, no more prof. Come dawn, no headaches. Too bad that time is rationed out at only 24 hours per each.

Dull Exam
 Then comes the poor student who finds a quiz so intensely interesting that he drops off to sleep with pen in hand. A lecture perhaps explainable but a quiz... mercy!

Saturday afternoon privacy was invaded upon not by a shortie but rather by one of the longest quizzes on record. Engineering drawing class members punctual as usual sat down at 1:30 to whip out a problem or two. At 4:30 (three hours worth) everybody was still going strong. At five one person completed and hastily departed. By 5:30 several more had given up the ghost, at 5:45 a few more per whisks and a mad stampede to the door and down the hill to a weary dinner just in time to ward off a nervous collapse.

One more quiz week completed many more mental cases to clean up.

Council Sponsors All-Church Party

Sponsoring an all-church party will be the activity undertaken by the Inter-Church council, Tuesday, February 20, at 7 p. m. in the small ballroom of the Bucket.

Lewiston Provides Music For Game

Providing music and half time entertainment at the Idaho-Washington basketball game Monday night was the Lewiston high school band and seven baton-twirling majorettes.

The band, under the direction of J. Ross Woods, former Idaho student, played at intervals throughout the game and concluded with "Here We Have Idaho" with the crowd standing to sing the Alma Mater song.

The majorettes, led by Nadine Holmgren, performed between the halves and presented twirling specialties and drill routines.

DAVIDS'

BENCH NOTES

By JACK ANDERSON

As the new semester dawns, and finals are over, we can relax a bit and survey what athletic achievements the past semester brought. Last year virtually all student-participation sports were discontinued, as it was said due simply to "manpower shortage."

The major sports survived and although competition was scarce, we fielded teams regardless of their ability. It must be said with all fairness that the athletic department was working for the good of the student, as they would have had justifiable reasons for "throwing in the sponge" as our Cowtown neighbors did in some sports.

Football Revived

This year saw an upsurge in athletics on the campus, as football, truly not professional class, but nevertheless spirited football was revived. Cross-country continued, and Idaho gathered other schools in the "back to sports" fold.

Francis James, our doughty little Scotsman, launched a successful golf tournament for both guys and gals, that brought many newcomers to the links.

A highly controversial but appreciated intramural basketball schedule was completed, but boxing showed it was not quite ready to begin the upward trek.

What Next?

A meeting is being held this week to introduce a tentative seven-sport plan in intramurals for this semester. It will provide for combining of houses that do not have enough men to field teams and a definite set of rules for each sport.

The current basketball season is drawing to a close, with the Vandals rising from the cellar to knock off some of the "uppers" much to their displeasure, and coming opponents are keeping a worried eye on the silver and gold cagers.

Baseball has perhaps the brightest outlook for the coming season, as campus talk indicates plenty of material on hand, some of it experienced in summer leagues in the "big town."

Track Slack

Track is having a nip and tuck battle with a situation reversed from that of last year, in which we had men out, but had difficulty in lining up competition. This year the Inland Empire Relays are being held in Pullman, and Coach Mike Ryan has a possible five-meet schedule awaiting developments in turnouts.

Up To Students

The physical education staff can do no more than set up a sports program. They cannot force students to turn out. The program is offered for your benefit and is not something they're trying to hang on you. Two sports—baseball and track—are offering major letters, and a workable intramural program is coming up, so let's get into the game and support them. Too busy? Sure, we're all busy, but analyze the situation fairly and see if that nasty word "laziness" isn't putting up a strong argument.

The Loss . . .

Of Keith Finlayson and Jim Peroni from the basketball squad due to ineligibility was at least partially offset by the medics declaring Darwin Brown sufficiently recovered from his appendectomy to play.

Very Mad . . .

was Jose after playing a round of golf in a broiling sun. It seems he had a sunstroke, and the Scotchman he was playing with made him count it. Putter there, Joe, I'm leaving. . .

With the 1945 Northern Division hoop race rapidly moving into the home stretch, Oregon's waddling Webfoot continue to pace the pack, but their once comfortable margin has since been whittled to a mere one game over the rampaging Beavers of Oregon State and Washington State's Cougars, deadlocked in second place. Anything may happen in the ensuing weeks, but one of the two Oregon schools will automatically be bounced out in the near future since the pair face each other twice more. A split would knock the props from under the gangling Beavers, and place Oregon and Washington State into a playoff series, provided, of course, the Cougars can sweep their remaining four tilts against Washington's V-12 at Seattle and the up-and-coming Idaho Vandals. Oregon also must capture a pair from the Vandals.

From every indication it appears a new division scoring mark will be set this season. Wash State's tall "Evergreen," Vince Hansen, went completely wild last week-end to rack up 57 points against Washington to replace the Beavers' tall "Palm" from Honolulu, Ephrum "Red" Rocha, as individual scoring leader. Hansen hit 34 points Saturday night to equal Don McMillan's high water mark set last year. His 189 total in 12 games places him only 36 from topping Gail Bishop's 224 record established a couple of seasons back. Rocha, at 176, needs 49 tallies, or a 12.25 average in his remaining four tilts to also surpass Bishop.

Idaho's scorers are all bunched together. At this writing, Bob O'Connor is ranked twelfth with 77, followed by Len Pyne in fifteenth position with 72, Bill Carbaugh, 71, John Taylor, eighteenth with 68, and Jeff Overholser's 60, placing him in a tie for nineteenth place. Individual scoring:

Huskies Nipped Twice, Beavers Once

Idaho Wins Two Week-End Games

Making Washington's trip through the Palouse hills an unpleasant memory, the U. of I. boys tied a can to the Huskies' tail both nights this week, thus splitting the series with the Seattleites and racking up their second and third conference wins. Overholser and Pyne tied for scoring honors at ten each in the first game, Pyne repeating the second game to lead Vandal point making. King dropped 12 to lead the Husky pack on Monday; Jorgenson taking over on Tuesday night, also with a dozen tallies.

Idaho 39; Washington 34

Using a dribble-pass stall in the final six minutes, and converting the fouls that a baffled Washington team committed in their frenzied efforts to get at the ball, the Vandals rode home to their second conference victory.

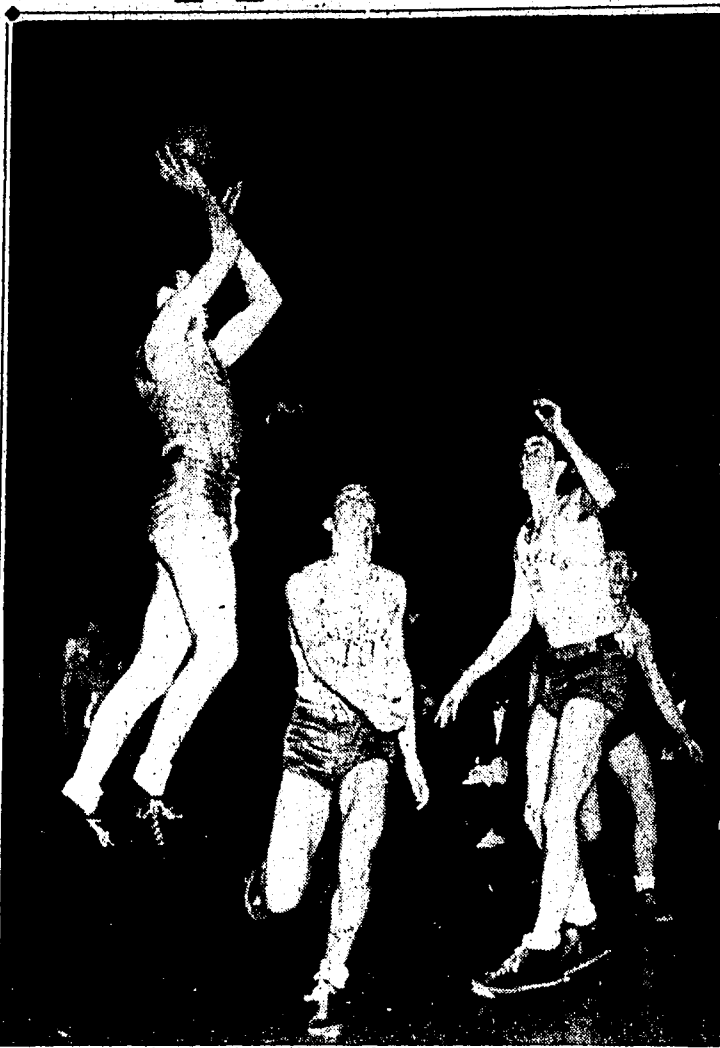

In the first moments of the game the Idaho offensive erred in nearly every way possible. Pyne, Overholser and O'Connor drove down the center for lay-ins that rolled tantalizingly around the rim, but dropped outside. The Seattleites capitalized on the Brownmen's foibles to race to an 18-5 lead, the longest of the game for either team. By half time the tattered offensive had pulled itself together to match baskets with the Huskies who left the floor with a 24-16 lead.

As the second frame began, O'Connor opened up with three buckets, Pyne raced in for a lay-in, and with the clock showing 9 minutes to go, the Vandals clung to a slender one point lead. In three more minutes the margin was 33-27, setting the stage for the keep-away. Brooks and King scored a basket each, but free throws by Pyne, Carbaugh and Taylor boosted the total to 39-34. The Washingtonians made four of eight free throws attempted, the U. of I. cagers potting seven of their 10 gift shots. Both teams fired 54 shots from the floor, Idaho sinking 16, the Huskies following closely with 15.

Idaho 36; Washington 35

Again using freeze-out tactics in the final minutes of the game, the Vandals eked out a one point winning margin. The Huskies jumped into a 6-1 lead in the first frame, their first and last of the contest, as the Brownmen overhauled them and went on to keep a substantial lead until the tardy Washington rally in the dying seconds. With the score 16-12, Idaho, and four minutes remaining in the first half, Coach "Babe" Brown substituted the second team. Charles Schiferl promptly dumped in a counter, Jorgenson collected a free throw, and in the last four seconds of the half Schiferl grabbed Bob Smith's long pass and layed it in, giving Idaho a 19-13 edge. Returning to the floor, the Vandals kept control of the backboards, building a 21-14 lead, on which the Seattleites chopped vainly. Len Pyne, hustling Vandal guard, contracted a muscle cramp and had to leave the game. With three minutes to go, Jorgenson canned a long one-hand pusher, and King streaked down the floor for a lay-in, but the rally was short as continuous Washington fouling gave the Moscowvites the ball out of bounds. The silver and gold converted eight of their 12 free throws, the purple-clad Huskies cashed in on five of their seven gratis chances.

All white male cats with blue eyes are deaf, but no reason for this curious condition has been found.

Track Team's Future In Balance, Declares Ryan

Turnouts this week will determine the prospective strength of the 1945 Vandal track team. Those intending to turn out should notify Coach Mike Ryan at the gym this week. It was emphasized that there is no differentiation between indoor and outdoor track, and the following schedule has been arranged.

Monday, March 19 — Inter-class meet, Gym.

Monday, March 25 — Inter-group meet, Gym.

Saturday, March 31 — Inland Empire Relays.

April 7 — Whitman at Walla Walla.

April 21 — * at Pullman.

April 28 — WSC at Moscow.

May 12 — Whitman at Moscow.

May 19 — Northwest championship meet—Walla Walla.

Major letters can be earned, and all events are in need of candidates. Regardless of past experience, anyone interested in track is urged to see Coach Ryan at the training room as soon as possible.

It is requested that those men who turned out for cross-country and are not going to participate in track, check in their lockers and equipment this week. All prospects will have a chance to compete in every meet of the season. Early season conditioning is of vital importance, and, as the first meet is less than a month away, training must be begun as soon as possible.

Dr. Smith Returns

Dr. Wayne W. Smith, associate professor of education, will return today from a meeting of the Pacific Northwest Guidance association in Portland. Dr. Smith, who will be one of the three main speakers at the meeting, will speak on the topic, "Cooperation in the Guidance Movement." Dr. Smith left for Portland last Tuesday.

Victorious Vandal Cagers To Travel In Coming Week

A rejuvenated Idaho cage crew will leave Monday for the swing through the Willamette Valley where they will battle the league leading Oregon Ducks at Eugene Tuesday and Wednesday nights, and move to Corvallis to engage the now second place Beavers Friday and Saturday.

Two wins on the road would pull the Vandals out of the cellar, or draw the Washington Huskies into a tie for the bottom spot.

In their previous meeting at Moscow, the Ducks squeezed by on a one point lead the first game, and three the second. Both teams have improved as the season progressed so a nip and tuck series seems in the offing.

The Beavers were nicked for a loss on the Idaho home court, after winning the first game on their lofty ball handling. The Brownmen appear to have perfected an offense against the zone, and if they can continue to keep Rocha from running wild, a split would not be surprising.

Vandals Fall 'Tall Fir' In First Conference Win

Shooting from the edges of a zone defense that covered the court like a circus tent, the Vandals were unable to out-score the aerial play of the Beavers on Friday, but bounced back the next eve with a spread-eagled offensive to fell the animated beanpoles with a narrow one-point lead.

Friday Night—Idaho 35, Oregon State 43

Ephrum (Red) Rocha, elongated OSC center, gave an exhibition of basket stuffing, which, coupled with deadeye tactics from the free throw line, kept the Beavers out in front the entire game. The tall rust-topped ex-Hawaiian canned 19 points before being ousted with 11 minutes remaining, and taking over, temporarily at least, the northern division scoring lead.

John Taylor, Idaho center, fouled the going rough, but with Rocha out on fouls began banging the hoop, ending with a total of 10 points for the game.

Vandals Undone

Trouble in converting their gift tosses proved the Vandals undone as they slipped on 14 of a possible 27 chances, the Beavers ruining 11 of their 24 charity tries.

At half time the "tall firs" were on the long end of a 14-24 count.

Starting the second half with a barrage of shots, Rocha sank three in a row to give OSC a 30-15 lead. The game became rougher as the Brownmen whittled the margin, but weren't able to connect at the free throw line.

Saturday Night—Idaho 32, Oregon State 31

Concentrating on holding down Rocha, OSC's one man shot-making machine, Idaho used nearly the entire team at times, but he was able to break away for 17 points, to score over half of his team's points in the game.

Wide Working

Working the ball wide, and with fast passing the Vandals scored steadily in the first half to counteract Rocha's offensive and had established a 20-14 lead at the half.

In the second canto, Morse and Smith playing guards started a two man game of keep away, which flustered the Beavers' defense. The Brownmen's nine point lead had been whittled to 29-27, when they began to stall. Pyne took the ball out of bounds, was fouled by McGrath and sank the free throw for a three point lead. Ted Henninston pushed one in, followed by Bob Labhart to put OSC in the lead 31-30 with a minute and a half to go.

Playing rough ball in their attempt to sink a winning basket, the Beavers fouled Overholser and Carbaugh, who made the free throws. Seven fouls were called on the tall boys in the remainder of the game, Idaho taking the ball out of bounds to keep it in their possession. The Vandals dunked eight of 17 free throws, OSC converting five of 14 chances.
