Ancients on the campus will re member the frequent disappearing acts through the years of the local gossip column, Mulberry and/or Raspberry Bush. As editors come and go, so also does the Bush with amazing regularity. Its annual demise has usually been due to the fact that most of its authors have been aware of only a handful of students and their forlorn love live. "Joe College passed his Zeta pin to Suzy Coed this week" was bound to be followed in the next issue with "Joe and Suzy are no longer twosom-ing at the Bucket. Wonder what goes???" If Joe were a BTO, still another item would appear the third week, linking his name with that of the campus belle. Although the eds were bored with blue-pencilling the same copy every week, the Bush, like the Tree of Life, has managed to start new shoots each year and has been nurtured by the anguished howls sent up by the Argonaut's gentle readers when it failed to appear. Gossip columns lack the approval of good journalism; however, the Argonaut is a publication for the students and as such must print, within reason, what the students want to read, not what the editors think they should absorb. Mulberry Bush is not back, but a similar column under a new warning, however-don't look for a list of pin-passers. Frankly, stable love life.

Yearbook Rates Scholastic Press

Idaho's yearbook, the Gem f the Mountains, received his week the all-American honor rating, best classification which can be given to university annuals. The rating was announced by the National Scholastic Press association in the Yearbook Scorebook sent to Ted Sherman, graduate manager.

Standards set for judging the yearbooks include consideration of the kind of book and type and enrollment of the school. The Gem was judged "excellent" and "very good" with the exception of the section representing classroom procedure and curricular activities which was rated "good." Rating was based on 12 phases of the book, including each section, artistic appearance, general effect, and financial status.

Staff members who filled top positions on the Gem are Beverly Weber, graduate of 1945, Mary Jane Donart, Marion Krussman Dykman, Ruth Leth, Jean Thompson, Bette French Brown, Ann Hite, LaRaine Stewart, Sue Wittman, Shirley West, June Williams, Jean Pugh, Ora White, Jack Anderson, Tom Ryan, Dona Harding, Clara Beth Young, Jeanne Edwards, Ralphine Strub; Mary ane Hawley.

Included with the rating were comments for improving the book and detailed criticism.

This year the sport page will be edited by two people instead of the customary one. The co-editors will be Jack Goetz

The former who, prior to his entry in the Navy, was a student here at Idaho and sports editor at that time. He is especially qualified in that he was an all-around athlete in high school. A knee injury acquired while playing football in high school compelled him to quit all athletics. When a student here, in his pre-Navy days, Jack was senior manager of the basketball team. This fall he is senior manager of the football team, so it is easy to conclude that he has an active working interest in all athletics.

We are looking forward to some interesting reading from Jack's experiences "On the Inside."

The latter, also an ex-Navy man, has had some valuable experience in the various athletic fields. During his high school days, he earned a reputation for himself as a swimmer. During his sojourn in the Navy, he was fortunate in being stationed here at the U of I and, having the guidance of that very capable "Maestro of the Cinder Path" Mike Ryan, he managed to coach a Pacific Coast Servicemen's cross-country championship team. Following this experience, Wally had the good fortune of working for Frank James, that very genial gent, who is professional and manager up at the campus golfery.
