If Larry Hanson, Idaho heavyweight, could hit his opponents with his feet, . . . well, there just wouldn't be much of a fight, That's what boxing managers Mike Williamson, left, and Pat Ab-bott decided this week when they tried to fit the Vandals' 208-pound slugger. Hanson, a freshman, wears—when he can get 'em-the largest boxing shoes ever issued to an idaho boxer: size 15s. To date the athletic department has been unable to secure shoes large enough for Hanson, so the heavyweight is forced to fight in ordinary basketball shoes. Lack of footgear hasn't hindered Han-son so far, however. He won his first collegiate bout last week oranget Gonze, with a second-round knockout—and he clouted against Gonzga with a second-round knockout—and he clouted his opponent with his mitts, not his feet.
