Contributions From Fans Needed For Boxer Plaque

The school of business Chamber of Commerce sent out an urgent appeal today to Idaho fight fans for help in the final round to honor Idaho's boxing champions. A 22 by 30 inch bronze plaque with the names of national and Pacific Coast winners engraved will be set up in Memorial gymnasium if boxing enthusiasts aid in meeting the cost.

A notable project, launched today, is the school of business Chamber of Commerce's plan to set up a bronze plaque honoring Idaho's champion boxers. The campaign to raise one hundred bucks to pay costs is unfortunate in its timing, however. Most students, just recovering from the Christmas squeeze, have been hit from all sides for contributions to various causes.

It isn't hard to see that many of the fellows are a little short this month. Veterans are watching the newspapers closely, checking on the progress of their raise in subsistence.

Non-veterans shelled out this week to pay for their education, as well as for their books. All in all, it's a discouraging time for plaque donations. Jason hopes that the March of Dimes hasn't taken all the spare coins on the campus.

Idaho's boxers, whom the plaque honors, have always brought glory to the university. It has suffered poor years, as well as better seasons, but on the whole, it has been among the more successful of Idaho's athletic undertakings.

Useful Stuff

One veteran on the campus must have been in the states during the war. Dick Westover, Phil Delt, lowman, at least seems to know the angles. He is apparently acquainted with rationing, including the doling out of gasoline.

It seems that Dick's car turned up with an empty gas tank over by the Nest. Not dismayed in the least, our hero poured a half-can of cigarette lighter fluid in the carburetor, stepped on the starter, and purred smoothly into town. "It ran fine," he reported, then as an afterthought, "it did smoke, though."

Re-Enlisting

Registration wasn't much of a job this semester. Jason didn't get lost once during the entire process. Furthermore, he stood in but one line. There was a slight delay in getting out the textbooks, and Jason was forced to wait for two minutes.

However, the latecomers weren't so lucky. Most students noticed the long, slow-moving lines in the Ad building today. It is to be hoped that those people weren't waiting to un-register.

On behalf of the Arg staff, Jason would like to congratulate the deserving officials, who finally evolved a successful registration system. Thanks are also in order for KUOI. That music in Memorial gym was heartening to students gazing at schedules crammed with 1st and 8th period classes.

Large and Smooth

The efficiency of a huge corporation is a thing to admire. Most of us have been filled with awe when we think of the millions of automobiles General Motors assembles, or the millions and billions of match sticks that are hewn from forests of trees.

Yesterday Arg staff members found that sometimes a little bit of human weakness shows through the cold walls of efficiency. The Interstate Telephone Company shipped to meer man's level for a half-minute.

Wanting desperately to get in touch with a Ski club member in Science hall who was attending the Ski movie, an Arg staff member dialed information.

"Is there a pay phone station in Science hall?" she asked the operator.

The dignity of the corporation was forgotten with the operator's answer, "Gee, I don't know. Don't know how a person would find out. You could run over and see. I know the Ad building has one."

Football Traveling Squad Feasts On Steak

Thirty-five Vandal footballers and their coaches and managers were entertained Wednesday night at Johnnie's cafe when John Jabbara, proprietor, treated the team to a steak feed. The dinner honored the 1947-48 squad which defeated the College of Puget Sound, Stanford, Portland University and the University of Utah.

Fewer Students Are Marked Ineligible

Engineers To Meet For Discussion Of Road Building

Northern Idaho resident engineers, inspectors and materials men of the Idaho Bureau of Highways will meet here February 17 to 21 for discussions and laboratory studies on the latest techniques developed in highway construction material testing and control.

The conference is being sponsored by the university civil engineering department, and a similar conference will be scheduled soon at Boise for Southern Idaho personnel.

"The conference here in February will be the first in many years," said Professor James C. Dalton, testing engineer for the bureau in the materials laboratory, "and is particularly important as it will review developments that came with the war years."

Holding special interest will be the discussions and demonstrations on air-entrained concrete. Until recently the opinion was held by engineers generally, that entrained air was injurious to concrete due to the serious reduction in strength. Research has now developed the fact that certain "air-entraining" agents, when introduced into the mix, will materially increase both workability and durability and with new design techniques result in only minor reductions in strength.

Contrary to rumor, fewer students are ineligible to register because of failures during the first semester than at comparable periods before the war, university officials disclosed today.

Ninety-six students have been reported as ineligible to register for the second semester this year, although not all grades have been turned in. Officials say that maximum of three or four more failures can be expected.

Students are eligible to reregister if they have passed in at least ten credits. Freshmen and special students are exempt, being required to successfully carry eight credits.

Co-op Begins Fight Against Prices, Says Bill Rathbun

Announcement of the formal opening of the Veteran's Cooperative of Moscow, Inc., at 8:30 a.m. Friday, February 6, was made public today by Bill Rathbun, manager of the store.

Rathbun said that membership cards would be on sale for $12.50 to all veterans and living groups associated with the university. Stock available at the present time includes groceries, meat, and produce. The store, located in the Moscow Meat Co., plant on W. 6th, also hopes to handle furniture and household goods in the near future.

The venture is designed to operate at as near wholesale prices as possible, in order to combat rising living costs. Members will be given a dividend at the end of each fiscal period, and a refund will be paid when the stockholders move away. Rathbun encouraged non-members to come out and look over the establishment.

Less Students Failing

Figures for the first semester, 1947-48, list a total enrollment of 5,538; approximately 96 ineligible students were reported to make a 2.71 percentage of failures. A decade ago, 2,832 students were enrolled during the first semester. Exactly 124 failed, making a percentage of 4.38.

Other first semester figures are: 1938-39, 2792 enrolled, 145 failures, percentage of failures: 5.19; Post-war, 1945-46, 1450 enrolled, 34 failures, percentage of failures: 2.34; 1946-47, 3458 enrolled, 87 failures, percentage of failure: 2.51.

Dean Announces Program, Revision

Teacher-training programs at the university have been completely revised to fit the need of students seeking the new Idaho teacher certification regulations, which go into effect as of January 1, 1948, said Dean J. F. Weltzin of the school of education.

This certificate calls for a year of graduate studies or a master's degree for teachers training to qualify for the new advanced elementary certificate or the new advanced high school certificate.

Such programs in the field of special educational service as guidance and administration have been revised and improved, Weltzin stated.

Idaho Enters Team In Annual Debate

Three teams from the university will participate in the annual Tri-Angular debate with North Idaho College of Education and Washington State college in Lewiston Saturday, February 7.

Each team will debate four times on the question: "Should World Federal Government Be Established." The tournament is for students who have had just one year of experience in debate.

All the debates will be judged. Dr. A. E. Whitehead, faculty advisor for Idaho's debate squad, will be the judge from Idaho. The Lewiston chamber of commerce will give a cup to the winning team. Washington State college won the tournament last year.

Members of Idaho's debate team that will participate in the debate are: Shirley Jacobson, Mary Louise Will, Tom Rigby, Paul Rigrup, Perry Dodds, and Henry Curtis.

University Plans Summer Sessions

The 1948 Summer School gets under way on June 10th with a full program of undergraduate and graduate courses offered in most of the schools and departments of the university.

This summer, as last summer, is expected that large enrollments will occur in all divisions and particularly in the school of business administration, school of education, and the college of letters and science.

Once more students will avail themselves of the work offered in the college of agriculture and the school of mines. Many students from the school of forestry will be on the campus and many more will enroll in separately operated forestry summer camp at McCall.

There will be no housing shortage during the summer term for single or for married students and their families.

Marriages Must Be Certified By VA

All Veterans re-entering training under the VA program who have been married since they were in training before should file a declaration as to marital status at once, C. H. Bond, veterans counselor urged.

The increased subsistence for a dependent begins with the date the notice is given the VA and not the date of marriage. Veterans must provide the VA with a certified or photostatic copy of their marriage certificate.

Women Rushees Pick Up Bids

Pictured above are women rushees completing their three days of rush parties by accepting bids to various sororities. Miss Jeanne Hofmann, secretary-treasurer of the Pan-Hellenic Council, is handing out the invitations. Eighteen women were pledged by five women's groups during the three days.

Cupid Reverses Usual Policy

"It is a tale told by an idiot signifying nothing"... Hamlet.

As mute proof of this tragic statement, the bulletin board on the first floor of the Ad building yesterday carried the following bleak words:

"For Sale: Beautiful diamond engagement ring. 1/4 kt. Platinum setting."

Always more than willing to sympathize with a tragic love affair, members of the Idaho student body had added these comments:

"Tough luck, kid!" "You mean 'Good Luck' don't you?" "You're can't win all the time." "You're lucky, son. Some of us can't win any of the time."

Don't give up. Leap year, you know.

Thorpe Accepted By Medical School

John Donald Thorpe, a pre-med, has been accepted by Washington University in St. Louis. He is the second University of Idaho man accepted by a medical school.

Thorpe will start medical school next September.

Ski Club Dance And Mucker's Ball Scheduled For Weekend Activities

Seniors Must File

Seniors who plan to graduate May 31, 1948, must file their applications for baccalaureate degrees in the Registrar's office before February 15, 1948. Graduate students must have their applications in the office by March 15, 1948.

Hays Girl Injured In Auto Accident

Helen Rice, Hays girl, received a sprained back and bruises Sunday morning when the car in which she was a passenger collided with two other cars at the Potlatch junction.

Miss Rice, who was with Roger Vincent, Chrisman hall, was taken to the university infirmary. Her condition was reported as satisfactory, but she is expected to remain in the infirmary for several days.

A northbound car driven by Dean Dennison, Phi Delta Theta, swerved on the icy road, striking the rear of an army reconnaissance truck driven by Robert E. Woods, Boise, also travelling north. The impact caused the truck to slide sideways down the highway, knocking Vincent's car off the road.

Mother Lode Gambling, Folk Dances, And Prizes At All-Campus Dances

This semester's social activity will be opened tonight with a Ski dance after the game featuring costumes in the ski mode and old country folk dances.

Saturday night the associated miners will present the annual Mucker's Ball. This dance will carry the gambling hall theme and each couple will be presented with one thousand Mucker's "bucks" to be used at the various games of chance.

Dorms Full, Vets Seek Housing

All dormitories are full and there are waiting lists for veteran's housing facilities as a very small turn-over in housing conditions was noted at the beginning of the new semester, Robert Greene, director of dormitories, reported.

Chrisman, Willis Sweet, Lindley, and the Campus club are completely filled while the Idaho club and Pine hall are awaiting late arrivals and may have some openings caused by pledging, Greene said.

Nearly 300 families are on the waiting lists for veteran's housing units and trailer village facilities. Approximately 100,000 meals were served each month last semester by university kitchens to persons living in dormitories, Greene said.

Honoraries Expect Large Crowd At Military Ball

Veterans will have an opportunity to squeeze into their uniforms once more to attend the Scabbard and Blade-Pershing Rifle military ball, February 14, Jim Farmer, captain of Scabbard and Blade announced yesterday.

The Scabbard and Blade, Pershing Rifles, ROTC honoraries are working together to sponsor the first ROTC military ball since before the war.

Farmer said that while uniforms were preferable for men attending the semi-formal ball, suits are acceptable for veterans with expanding waist lines. The dance will be held in the student union ball room. Music will be furnished by the "Rhythm-Airs."

Expect Crowd
 Farmer extended an invitation to all faculty members and ROTC students to attend the ball, but warned that ticket sales would be limited to prevent crowding of the ball room. Tickets will sell for $1.50.

Under the direction of Col. H. B. Hensley, advisor of the two honoraries, Farmer is serving as general chairman of the dance. He is assisted by the following committee heads: Dick Turner, decorations; Jack Jones, tickets; and Marvin Earl, publicity.

Students To Teach

Bob Spiker, junior in education, left Wednesday to assume duties as principal of the Riggins high schools. He was accompanied by Rex Spears, science major, who will teach mathematics and allied subjects. Both obtained emergency teacher's certificates.

Sororities Pledge 18 Women

Mid-year rushing came to a close Wednesday morning with the pledging of 18 women by five national sororities.

The women received their bids Wednesday and went to their respective houses for lunch. Several of the sororities entertained their new pledges at formal dinners Wednesday evening.

The list of pledges, as announced by the sororities, follows:

Gamma Phi Beta—Nancy Bowden, Pat Rivets, and Virginia Watson, Boise; and June Reed, Rigby.

Alpha Chi Omega—Bonnie Feeler and Mary Ann Zapp, Nampa; and Jean McGuire, Helena, Montana.

Delta Delta Delta—Joyce Carlson, Murtaugh.

Alpha Phi—Mary Loraine O'Neal, Mountain Home.

Bashful Women Contest Sim's Claims

In protest over publicity received by the sim, an emergency meeting was held last night by irate members of the bashful and inferiority complex club.

"All of these months," stated a disgusted woman, "we have been circulating about the campus in dark shrouds of anonymity while the sims (those dirty rats) gained all the publicity."

Challenge Claims
 Stated another member, too mediocre to mention, "We challenge their (sim's) claims to complete insignificance. For months our organization has been in operation and yet we have remained so insignificant that even our president does not know us when she sees us. It is the disgusting popularity concerning the sims which has forced us into the open."

She further stated, "We of the bicc are sick and tired of letting the sims claim all the glory."

Steps are being taken to prove the sims is no longer insignificant—some members have advanced themselves to the stage of being a spoke in a big wheel. Threatened Maxine Minimum: "We shall take the sims from their false cloak of mediocrity and flaunt their superiority to the world!"

HELL DIVERS MEET

A meeting of the Hell Divers will be held at 7:30 Monday night in the Memorial gymnasium.

Communists At College

The testimony before the Canwell investigating committee in Seattle recently that certain University of Washington professors are now or were at one time connected with the Communist party in this country, whether true or not, serves to bring out two interesting points.

It first gives us an example of how Communists in this country might operate in order to further their Marxian philosophies. If a college professor were to throw in a little plug for community property ownership or state owned industries, for example, would not the gullible student, a little radical in his youthful ideas anyway, accept the word of his teacher?

In a good many cases it is college studies which give a young person his first chance to form opinions on such matters as political questions and philosophies. Most students are too busy to be bothered with political questions, and if he is pressed to view his opinions on the subject at times, he thinks "Well, Professor Whatchamacallit says thus, so it must be so."

This is but a crude example of the danger which a red-minded professor could bring about if he were placed in a position to influence thousands of young and formative minds. It shows the need for American youth to know and understand the basic principles of democracy in order to form his own ideas on government.

Whether the Communist party of the state of Washington lists University of Washington professors among its members or not, isn't the question. The mere idea of such a situation is something which should set college administrations throughout the country thinking. —G.D.

Efficiency Up; Waiting Down

Students who have experienced the long lines of waiting and drudgery due to administrative inefficiency in earlier registrations have expressed amazement at the rapid rate they were swept through registration at the start of this new semester.

Everything seemed to progress with the maximum amount of rapidity, including the usual long wait for books. Slump in registration is common between semesters, but even if less students have attended, the handling of 3300 in such a short time should be commended.

When President Buchanan took office, one of his first objectives was a reduction in the endless hours wasted in waiting during registration. He consulted Registrar D. D. DuSault and conducted a field survey of other large universities in the northwest to determine the most efficient method of registration. The survey produced our present system of mass-registration. It contrasts sharply with the old system, when one had to take his lunch with him before he could cut through the red tape to enter the university.

Mass registration could be stepped up to an even faster pace if students were allowed to register during the spare time between final examinations. This system has worked very successfully at Washington State.

The faculty and registration workers are thanked for the splendid job they did during registration. —R.M.

'Shyster' Lawyers Answered

To the Bench and Bar Society:
A wordy and slanderous challenge recently printed in the Argonaut and signed by an organization of shyster lawyers, was apparently directed at an honest and straightforward group of students who can be found conscientiously pursuing an education over in the school of agriculture.

These students, known collectively as the Ag Club, heartily disapprove of the vile parasites who have organized themselves into a disreputable organization called the Bench and Bar Society, but which could more appropriately be called the Society of Possibly Potential Parasites and Impostors.

As these embryo shysters are a menace, not only to the University of Idaho, but also to society as a whole, and as the members of the Ag Club are fully aware of the degradations of this obnoxious and warped group, the Ag Club desires to bring out to the public the character of these human parasites.

To verify and substantiate our opinion of the character of these subtle chisellers we refer to the wordy and misleading text of the previously mentioned offer of defiance which contains the statement "words are the tools of lawyers." Judging from the length of wordiness of the challenge there is no argument about said statement, but it has been noticed that the bar room parasites left their best tools on the sidewalk entrance to the Blue Bucket on the evening of the Ag Bawl. If words are the tools of lawyers Mr. Simplot will soon be bankrupt.

To prove the inefficiency of the lawyers and their tools, we of the Ag Club accept their challenge to a game of basketball, providing that, at the time and date still to be arranged, they can drag their decrepit and alcoholic torsos away from the degrading habitat in which they plan their parasitic forays on the upper levels of society.

Everything But The Frosh Different Than In '92

By MARGARET WEITZ

Have you often wondered what school was like when the University of Idaho first opened its doors? Well, let's go back to 1892—then you can see "that things aren't as they used to be."

In the fall of 1892, only the west wing of the old Administration building had been erected. There was no furniture to put in the rooms, then—but it had been ordered and was "on the way."

The preparatory students had their prep hall on the third floor and the room formerly occupied by the preps had been converted into a reading room. There the freshman could chew gum and write notes without being disturbed by the seniors who preferred to have at least the appearance of loving learning, by loitering near the bookshelves in the library.

There was no "Ad" walk then, no paved roads that wound around the campus—but only a wagon road which had been used by the contractors for hauling the essential materials for the construction of the administration building.

President Scolded Students

Before the furniture arrived, the students stood around the president of the university in his office as lessons were assigned. Students also had to "walk the carpet" in those days, or be reprimanded by the president.

The greatest horror known to the students of the University of Idaho then was the terrible "rhetorical" system, when two orations a year had to be given by every student from the sophomore on assembly days. At that time, each victim would tremble up the aisle, bow to the faculty which sat in a rigid line behind him and then tremble and shake through an oration before the eyes of his fellow students.

One poor individual, whose memory failed him during his oration, upon reaching for his manuscript in his hip pocket, pulled forth a dog chain. Embarrassed, he took his seat without finishing.

Wintertime on the Idaho campus was rougher than usual, raising the problem of whether or not the co-ed should defy convention and be warm in ski-pants. The general advice was to do so, if less than 130 pounds are involved.

Coffee sold for seven cents a cup at the Nest and the Blue Bucket.

The Vandals piled up a nine game winning streak before dropping the last two games to Montana State and University of Montana. Idaho had previously defeated both teams.

Harry Lewis, ASUI student body president, leaves tonight for a two-day conference of school leaders being held tomorrow and Saturday at the University of Washington. Presidents of the northwest's college and universities will attend to discuss war problems affecting the student bodies and outline new school programs and activities.

MISSION TO MOSCOW

By RUSSKI

Registration at the University of Idaho certainly is a lot different than registration back in the Soviet I found out yesterday. No one seemed to have trouble except me, and tonight I am so tired that even my usual vodka toddy won't relax me.

First off, I got up at 5:30 a.m. to be the first in line. Unfortunately, I went to sleep leaning against the wall and when I woke up it was 9 o'clock and everyone had received his cards—but me. So I went to the end of the line, and at eleven, my patience just about exhausted, I faced a sweet young thing who asked me for my permit.

Jolly Prof.

I said I forgot to get one and she said I didn't need any, just take your card to your Dean's office and ask his advice about your course.

The professor was glad to see me, he said sit down and take your shoes off and join me in a short one. We had several short ones and he said Shay, what Shay, are you in? I said I was in Letters and Shience, mazorhing in Russian, shinsch I already spoke the languish.

I filled out my card and he signed it about fifty times and told me to go to the Moscow slaughter house and get a number. It was quite a walk, but I didn't mind. I was warm all over. When I got to the slaughter house somebody stamped me "Grade A—U. S. Department of Agriculture."

Still Warm

I said thank you, and they put a big hook in my coat and hung me up in the big frozen beef locker. It was very cold, but I didn't mind. I was still warm all over. Pretty soon they took me out and threw me into a truck and the next thing I knew some housewife was preparing to pare off a few sirloin steaks. By this time I wasn't quite so warm and I jumped to my feet and ran back to the university and got in line again.

At 4:45 the sweet young thing spoke to me again. I'm so glad you came back, she said, you'll need your permit after all, I'm sorry I forgot to tell you, you can get one at the registrar's office.

I got in line at the registrar's office and at 5 p.m. I was just about to go through the door when some man slammed it in my face and said I'm sorry but we're closing now, please come back tomorrow.

One of these days I'm going back to Murmansk Tech. Or maybe I'll go to Minsk Junior College. But I'll try registering here again tomorrow.

Young Women Give Opinions About Young Men's Fancies

By The Inquiring Reporter

The old saying that "in the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love" is apparently contradicted daily by the large number of clasped hands on "Hello" walk, the large number of dancing couples and the larger number of non-dancing couples in the student union ball room.

The inquiring reporter, seeking expert opinion on mens emotions, asked eight women "Do you believe that a young man's fancy is any different in winter than it is in the spring?" (He asked only women because, being male, he had more fun that way and, being male, he knew.) The women's answers:

Pepper Burns, Gamma Phi Beta: "Yes, in the spring trees are budding, flowers are budding, and romances are budding, too."

Mildred Bradbury, Forney Hall: "It depends on the young man." (She would have been asked, "How about your date?" but he was bigger than the I.R.)

Corrine Schumacher, Pi Beta Phi: "It seems like their fancy just turns from study to goit."

Eleanor Justice, Ridenbaugh: "Well, I'm not really very well acquainted with their fancy in the spring."

Joan Link, Delta Gamma: "No, men are stupid and never change." Shirley Cowin, Moscow: "They are more in winter than in spring."

Mary Green, the Nest: "It doesn't change in spring. It's just a little more so."

Maxine Minimum, society of insignificant women: "Wasps make paper by chewing the pulp and spreading it out thin to dry."

A new men's choral group will meet every Thursday afternoon at 4 p.m. in Science 110, Norman Logan, director of the group, said. This is the first men's singing group on the campus since the war, and is open to anyone who is interested in singing.

Miss Ruth Erickson will meet with the women's group during the eighth period on Wednesday also in Science 110.

Both groups will meet at a mixed choral group on Monday at 4 p.m. in the same room. There are still a few openings in both singing groups and anyone interested are asked to contact either Miss Erickson or Mr. Logan before Friday, Feb. 13.

Class "A" intramural basketball games last night at Memorial Gym were highlighted by many high scoring contests.

Vandal Boxing Squad Faces Unbeaten Gonzaga Bulldogs Tonight In Spokane

Carlson vs. Maxey Headlines Matches

The University of Idaho boxing squad will journey to Spokane tonight to meet the unbeaten Gonzaga university squad in a dual ring event Friday night. Coach Ken Butler said that agreements made with Gonzaga's coach, Joey August, would shuffle the Idaho contenders into different divisions than some of the sluggers fought in in the two previous matches in Louisiana.

Herb Carlson, intercollegiate national champion of last year at 155 pounds, will meet Gonzaga's ineligible Carl Maxey in an exhibition bout at 118 pounds. Norman and Len Walker, two Idaho freshmen who cannot compete in the intercollegiate contests, will fight Gonzaga lads in exhibition bouts.

Lineup Listed
Otherwise the Vandals will enter the following men in the various weight events:
Ken Clark and Dale Hammond, each at 126 pounds.
Darrel Titus at 137 pounds.
Thane Johnson at 147 pounds.
Howard Morton at 160 pounds.
Ted Diehl, normally Idaho's 175 pound king, will fight in the heavyweight division.

"Idaho will not expect too much in dual meets this season," said Coach Butler, "but expects to make a better showing in the Pacific Coast Conference finals. We are short in a number of weights, but have outstanding fighters in four or five divisions."

The Vandal coach stated that he was drawing Carlson off of the regular card in order to provide an opponent for Gonzaga's Maxey.

Idaho Ski Clubs Face Big Weekend

Idaho skiers will compete on the hickories with squads from Washington State College, Gonzaga University, and Boise Junior College at Emida, Idaho, this afternoon.

The three way meet, sponsored by Idaho and Washington State College, will begin today with a five-mile cross country race. Saturday morning the slalom events will be held, and in the afternoon, jumping competition will conclude the meet.

Larry Remaklus, Jack Numbers, "Crusty" Hamon, Hal Crawford, and Lou Berriochoa will represent Idaho at the meet.

While the university ski team races at Emida, the Vandal ski club will enter the second Intermountain Ski Council races at Chewelah, Washington. Slalom and downhill competition is scheduled for Sunday.

The seven members of the Vandal ski club who will go to Chewelah are Bill Allen, Ed LeDuc, Don Hayes, Hal Barnes, George Haas, Tom Giles, Clyde Gochour, and Dick Anderson. Other clubs entering the races are the Idaho Ski Club, Spokane Ski Club, the Selkirk Ski Club, and the Cheney Ski Club.

Safety Taught

Students who wish to certify as Red Cross water safety instructors should register for P.E. 106, according to an announcement from the physical education department. The supplementary short course will not be taught this year due to the lack of instructors.

Time Out

By Harry Howard

Dear Harry:

"You don't know me personally, but you have seen my picture for any number of years connected with the University of Idaho. In my day I was a tough customer and Idaho took me as, shall we say, a mascot. Some have called me the Vicious Vandal. In years past, there has been times when I wanted to sever my connections with Idaho, but now I am rather proud of it. The university seems willing to fight for its own place in the sun, and I am for them."

I want to speak to you concerning the basketball game Saturday night, January 31, in the Washington State gymnasium. I was there. Too, I saw the WSC-Idaho game at Moscow on January 24. Needless to say, I was quite surprised during the period between the two games when Washington State complained in public print of things that went on in the Idaho gymnasium. The screamers said that Idaho rooters had yelled and waved hankies when WSC players were trying to shoot gift shots. They said that Idaho's pep band played while the game was in progress. But in the WSC gymnasium I have seen exactly the same yelling, booing, and even a dog as a full time spectator. What gets me is that in the Idaho gym, it is not fair, but in the WSC gym, it is correct. Something smells.

Too, I heard the announcer over the radio station of Washington State, KWSC, while the freshman game was in progress, say, "There is a dog on the floor. It is whining. It must be an Idaho rooster." What is whining—the moan in the newspapers about sportsmanship while your team wins by 24 points? Don't you agree that it doesn't add up too well?

But now let us get to the game in the WSC home alley—Hanson's rebound shot with three seconds to play but WSC in front. Idaho took the ball down the floor and Hanson fouled Phoenix before Phoenix even got the ball for his long prayer heave. Then the official timer, a member of the Washington State P.E. department, said the game was over. Umpire Ed Stricherz, who called the foul, came at once to the timer and asked him where the ball was when the game ended. According to Frank Young, Idaho's official scorer, who was seated next to the timer, that official said the ball was under the Idaho basket. Umpire Stricherz ruled that Phoenix would have one free throw. Idaho argued that Phoenix had been fouled in the act of shooting and should have two shots. Stricherz said the foul was committed even before Phoenix got the ball so it would be one shot.

Now here is the part I don't like, and you mark it well. Coach Jack Friel of WSC had sent his players off the floor. When he was notified that the game was not over, he refused to return his players to the game. Seems to me that speaks of forfeit. Then Mr. Timer gets a change of heart and says the game was over while the ball was under the WSC basket. The referee, who must settle all disputes arising in the game, and who is in complete charge, walked off the floor at the same time as the WSC players, and likewise refused to return. He tossed his brother official to the wolves by saying he didn't know anything about the foul. But I am not blaming the officials. I am blaming a coach who stages so much pressure on the officials.

I place the blame squarely on Jack Friel. His refusal to return his squad to the floor, his criticism of the officials in their dressing rooms after the game both at Idaho and WSC, his sashy into the stands at Idaho during the game to talk to the Northern Division commissioner, all bring him to the fore. These things are not just being done, nor do 20 years in the conference give him leeway over a newcomer.

You don't hear Coach Chuck Finley talking. But this I did hear him say, "I don't often quote the Bible, but I think this is pertinent, 'I was a stranger and ye took me in.'"

So then here it is. Idaho felt that perhaps they were in the wrong in the game at Idaho Jan. 24. WSC moaned in the papers, but Idaho tacitly agreed with them by silence—although there were plenty of Idaho rooters who felt the "rough" appellation was uncalled for. There were 69 fouls called, 38 on Idaho and 31 on WSC. Doesn't seem as though the kettle had too much to talk about.

The sportsmanship in Bohler gymnasium is no pure thing, at least not purer than in Memorial gymnasium, so let us have these people reinforce their own glass house before bricksbats get heaved about.

The University of Idaho faculty athletic committee, through its chairman, Dean T. S. Kerr, long ago laid down this athletic policy of the university. It is strictly being adhered to. Here it is:

1. We will not condone retaliation in kind to any real or imaginary unsportsman-like conduct by opponents.
2. We believe officials should have complete charge of games free from influence or pressure by coaches or other athletic officials.
3. We ask no concessions from anyone—simply fair and impartial treatment.

Now Harry, I don't often break into print. But there are times when I must rise in defense of my own. I thank you for your kind consideration. I like that name—

Department Lists Clothing Classes

Adult homemaking education courses in foods and clothing have been scheduled to begin Monday, Margaret Ritchey, head of the home economics department, announced.

These classes are open to anyone interested, Miss Ritchey said, adding that those who wish to enroll may call Mrs. Donna Reddekopp at 8576 in the home economics department.

Two classes in clothing have been scheduled. The first section will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the university home economics department in room 304 and the second section will meet February 11 at 2 p.m. in the Moscow high school homemaking department.

Classes in foods will meet February 12 in the Moscow high school homemaking department. Additional classes may be scheduled at a future date, Miss Ritchey stated.

Ski Movie Shown

A large crowd was in attendance at a movie, "Wax Those Skis," sponsored Thursday evening by the Ski Club.

Shown in Science 110, the movie concerned a skier who devised his own ski wax and toured the United States and Canada to have it used by ski champions. He ended up eating it.

Phoenix Declared Ineligible

Jack Phoenix, 6-foot-9-inch Vandal center, was declared ineligible for scholastic reasons. One of the top centers on the coast, Phoenix had scored 220 points in 19 games so far this year, and had averaged 11 points per contest in conference play.

Idaho Cage Crew Crippled; Phoenix Found Ineligible

What to do now? That is the question that confronts Idaho's head basketball coach, Chuck Finley. Yesterday, big Jack Phoenix, Idaho's 6-foot nine-inch center, was ruled ineligible to compete in athletics due to scholastic difficulties. This leaves the Idaho Vandals without a first string center and their major offensive threat.

With Bob Linck, one of Finley's first line reserves, also out of action, the scene darkens for the Vandals. Linck suffered an ankle injury in a toboggan accident Monday night, and is expected to be out of action till near the end of the season.

Meet Oregon

Friday and Saturday night the Vandals entertain the University of Oregon Ducks in conference basketball play at Memorial gymnasium. The Ducks, smarting from two one-point defeats at Washington State earlier this week, will undoubtedly be anxious to return to Eugene with at least an even break on their Inland Empire jaunt. Idaho basketball followers can't see how Oregon can miss.

Finley could not be reached for comment regarding his possible starters against Oregon. He started Wendell Christenson and newcomer Dexter Lipak at forwards and Joe Grove and Preston Brimhall as guards against Washington State, and probably will stick with that combination against Oregon. But the center spot will be the stickler. Most Idaho fans guess it will be either Jay Gano, six-foot three-inch, senior, or Dick Geisler, six-foot, two-inch sophomore. Neither will have the height to cope with Roger Wiley or Bob Amacher, both six-foot, nine-inches tall. Wiley has led the Ducks in the scoring in the past two games with Washington State.

and is expected to give a repeat performance this weekend. The Vandals have won but one of their five conference starts this season, and now the picture appears as dismal as an empty cup-board.

Washington State college's two one-point wins over the Oregon Ducks this week have put the Cougars in a virtual tie with Oregon State for the top spot in the northern division conference standings. Percentages now favor the Beavers who have not played as many games as the Cougars.

With Washington State idle this weekend, the outcome of the two game series between Oregon State and the University of Washington Huskies in Seattle will determine the conference leadership. Only a complete sweep of the series will keep the Beavers in undisputed 1st place. In the last series between the two teams last month at Corvallis, each team garnered a victory and suffered a defeat. The Huskies with a .500 won-loss percentage could jump into a tie with the Beavers for the second place spot, if they can hold the Beavers for the two contests.

Report Given In Research Project

Idaho's youngest major agricultural enterprise, freezing and canning vegetables, continued its steady growth in 1947, according to the progress report of research in this field conducted by the university. In charge of the special research project to aid canners and freezers were Dr. James E. Kraus and Lloyd Cowden, associate horticulturists with the agricultural experiment station, and D. F. Franklin, superintendent of the Parma branch station farm.

"Approximately 20,000 acres of vegetables were grown for processing in the state in 1947," their report indicates. "This is several times the pre-war acreage. At the present rate of expansion the industry could double in size within the next five years."

The freezing and canning acreage consisted principally of sweet corn and peas, although some lima beans and tomatoes are included. The produce went to at least eight commercial canning and freezing companies. Farm value of these crops was about $1,500,000. Principal research work was carried on at Moscow, Lewiston, Parma and Twin Falls.

Washington Rates Team Man' Nichols For All-American

Bud Herwitz, writing in the University of Washington Daily, had the following remarks to say: "Back in the Mid-West they're poo-pooing our Jack Nichols and rating towering Jim McIntyre 'heads and shoulders' above our hopeful.

"It's that 6' 10" of height that enables the towering Minnesotan to take fancy passes from the clowning Young and bank 'em off the backboard for baskets at the rate of 20 points upward a game.

"Of course this makes his scoring average higher than Washington's center, but not necessarily his shooting average. In fact, when the lanky Gopher had his great 30 point night at the Pavilion, last season, Nichols actually caged a greater percentage of the shots he attempted. And our man has an infinite more variety in shooting.

"He cages one-handers from the edge of the key, hook shots from the corner, and underhanders while McIntyre is content to station himself at the side of the hoop and bank in the passes he gets.

"But it's in the other all-important departments of play where Nichols, the team man, has it all over his opponent for mythical All-American honors.

"Captain Nick is the general of his ball club. He passes smoothly, shoots only enough to diversify the offense, outruns McIntyre, dribbles neatly when the occasion demands, helps out in taking the ball down court, and even gets off the ground better than the Mid-western hero."

NSA Plan Calls For Student Aid, Better Teachers

The aims of the National Student association are generally consistent with the report released by President Truman's commission on higher education, according to the NSA News, official publication of the organization.

The lengthy report recommends among its list of suggestions, increased federal aid to all students, 14 years of free public education for all students, advances in social studies, enlargement of professional schools, and improved teacher training.

'Do Not Contribute'

The commission report also stated that "present college programs are not contributing adequately to the quality of student's adult lives either as workers or as citizens. This is true in large part because the unity of liberal education has been splintered by over-specialization."

A sharp point of controversy within the commission concerned racial segregation. The majority report recommends immediate elimination of education segregation.

Four members dissented, stating that they favor removing inequalities in the south, but that these efforts must be made "within the established patterns of social relationships."

The NSA program for southern states calls for an "eventual elimination of discrimination rather than an immediate elimination of segregation."
