GOLDEN FLEECE

by Jason

Typical college student Joe had rough yesterday. His trouble seemed to sprout with the spring weather. For seven months or so he had been going to school through Moscow's rain, snow, and sleet, but now it was Spring.

Joe was tired when he got up. Somehow it seemed he was always tired first thing in the morning. He couldn't get going until 10 or so, he thought as he hiked for the Ad building at 7:50.

By 10 o'clock Joe was wide awake. The grass was green, the sky was blue, the world was right. By 11 he was sleepy. "Spring does that," he thought, but suddenly remembered he had always been sleepy by 11 a.m.

Gazed at Coeds
On the way home for lunch he watched the women dressed in their summer dresses. "I should be married with a family well started," he mused as he checked his neatly-turned ankle. "Spring makes me think like that," he was observing when it occurred to him that those thoughts had come to him all year.

The spring weather and fifth period fought over Joe for eight minutes. Springtime won. "Well, I wasn't interested in the Marxian theory in detail," Joe rationalized. "I just need the general outline."

"I wouldn't have skipped if it hadn't been for the warm sunshine," he reflected but then he recalled all the previous times he had cut class, even in the rain.

Caught By Memory
So it went all day. Every time he tried to blame something on the Spring weather, his memory tripped him up. It was a rough day, all right.

"With this college education," a fellow has a hard time getting away with rationalization," he mumbled as he sipped a beer. "Must be the Spring giving me a first so early in the week," he decided.

Caught Us Again
"You've slipped again, Jason," the student with heavy-lensed glasses said quietly. "There was such person on the Argonaut as Anaceus." He produced a list of 30 names. "Here are the boys."

Jason read: "Acastus, Admetus, Great Anaceus, Little Anaceus, Argus," and so on through Zetes. "Thirty-five Argonauts sailed from the Pagansea Gulf in quest of the Golden Fleece aboard the good ship Argonaut. The year was 1225 B.C. Before the voyage was (Cont. on page 2, col. 8)

Coming Of Springtime Confirmed By Coeds

Idaho students know that spring has finally come. One of the Arg photographers caught this group of Pi Beta Phi women sunning themselves in a secluded portion of their back yard. Scenes such as this will grow more prevalent behind living group houses as the season advances.

For Aspens--Not Amour

If we were a good-sized three-acre arboretum, like the Shattuck Arboretum here at the university, we'd be mighty unpleased at the slurs and connotations given our good name through the years.

We'd gripe, instead of just sitting on a hill and saying nothing, when students make casual remarks like "Hey, Babe—let's go up to the Arboretum and hold hands in the moonlight."

We would be pretty sore because more than half the students didn't know why we were born, or what constitutes our purpose in life. Webster defines the word "arboretum" in one short and snappy sentence—"A place where trees and shrubs are cultivated for scientific or educational purposes."

But it's no wonder that the Shattuck Arboretum, named after the forestry school professor who started planting it in 1914, should have a bitter and disgruntled frame of mind. Freshman women are awed by the hushed tones used by other coeds whenever the Arboretum is mentioned, and rarely, unless they are positive daredevils, do they ever set foot within its borders.

Yes, if we were an arboretum, we'd tone down the scandal and emphasize the fact that we contain over 150 species of trees, that we should be used solely for identification of these species and for laboratory exercises in silviculture, and that our reason for existence is for the proper conducting of botanical—and not biological—experiments. —S.H.G.

A Piece Of Bread

During the night, several of the occupation troops in the Korean outpost had gotten drunk. They had broken into the company kitchen, stolen the next day's supply of bread, eaten very little of it and thrown the rest away.

The next day, the Korean laborers found the bread. By American standards, the bread was unfit for consumption, but the Koreans began fighting over its division. The GI in charge of the detail told them to stop.

It did no good and he found it necessary to send for an officer and an interpreter to force the Koreans to throw the bread in with the garbage that would later be thrown into the sea.

Later one of the Korean laborers who had learned a little English, said, "I do not understand. They only wanted a little piece of bread." —H.R.

Spring Cleaning Has Houses Sparkling

By PETE WILSON
(Editor's Note: The following story as clipped from the Argonaut of May 7, 1948, is reprinted in its entirety.)

With a happy glance at the sun and a rueful look at itself, the campus decided it was time for spring cleaning. Blue Key took charge of the campus at large. Their first job was cleaning up the remnants of Miami Triad and sweeping them into their respective houses. Meanwhile, the birds and bees were busy at work in the Arboretum as well as the students.

Each house and hall had its meeting to decide how best to meet the situation. Willis Sweet's meeting broke up when they could reach no decision as to where the janitor would start first. In the houses it went more smoothly. The members held the meetings and decided that the pledges would do the work.

On the appointed day at a girls' residence, they promptly got to work. One girl was appointed as telephone girl. She called each man's living group and sent the plea, "Would you be so nice as to send over some of the fellas to help with the rugs and heavy stuff?" (Heavy stuff includes sweeping and waxing floors, washing windows, etc.)

Everything was well organized. In the week before Mother's day, there wasn't a day that missed being chosen by some house or hall as its clean-up time. This was to make sure that no one got any sleep that week.

As work progressed, there came a growing need for refreshments. Periodically during the week this was satisfied as was evidenced by the numerous early morning serenades and also by the red eyes in classes.

Finally Mother's day arrived and the campus was ready. As for the students, after a week of no sleep counteracted by stimulants, they were ready to greet their mothers in a natural state of healthy youth.

Dear Jason

Dear Jason:
It is apparent that there is a move against MacArthur for President throughout the country.

Some people are using second and third hand information to make him seem as undesirable a prospect as possible for the presidential candidacy.

As an example of this type of information take M.B.E.'s letter published in the Arg, April 13.

Having read "They Were Expensible" by William Lindsay White, I was under the impression that General MacArthur, his family, Admiral Rockwell, and the most valuable members of MacArthur's staff left Corregidor in PT boats.

Later they made contact with airplanes and flew the rest of the way to Australia. I do not believe that M.B.E. can prove his point, that MacArthur took his furniture with him to Australia in preference to taking the nurses.

Followed Orders
MacArthur had a Presidential order to leave Corregidor. Being a military man, MacArthur followed through with this order. Ever as it was there are those omng us now who want to think he was acting cowardly by leaving.

As a military leader I believe that MacArthur has done exceptionally well by the United States. The fact that he is a military leader, an autocrat, is the reason that I would not cast my vote for him if he becomes a presidential candidate.

Play Has Food For Thought Behind Frosting Of Comedy

By MAURICE PAULSEN

"State of the Union," as produced by the dramatic department last week, was a delightful comedy. But it was more than that. It was in addition a pungent commentary on politics, politicians and the voters.

The story in the main is that of an idealist who was urged to become a candidate for the Presidency. Practical politicians told him to say this and that to capture votes. Against such advice, his idealism rebelled but at times he faltered under the influence of the lure of the White House.

Coldly Practical
The candidate's original purpose was to present his ideas and his ideals. His political advisors, though, told him that he would be required to adopt different policies to get the votes. They were coldly practical and realistic — men and women concerned only with a political objective.

The play is, to be sure, an attack upon politicians as such. But there is something else that is a basic and significant part of the lesson. It is also an attack upon the cupid and apathy of the voters. Politicians do what they do, as the play suggests, because they are interested in obtaining public endorsement. If a program of high idealism would produce such public approval, they would present it.

Will Endorse High Ideals
Long experience, though, has inclined them to the belief that the people are influenced importantly by other considerations.

The people say they are ready to endorse men who speak frankly and who advocate high ideas. But, unfortunately, their response often is something else. They are strongly inclined, as the record shows, to give their votes to the man who promises the most. They are affected, too, by their personal position. The industrialist looks with favor upon the candidate who promises him some special consideration. So do the laborer, the farmer and the professional man.

Politicians Are Creations
In the final analysis, politics and politicians are the creations of the people. They are what the people make them—and, in consequence, our government is what the people make it.

This is the really fundamental lesson of "The State of the Union" and if we missed this point we missed the basic significance of the play.

Here's More About JASON

over; the roll call had been increased to 50.

Who Was Jason
"And," interrupted Jason, "24 years later, students at the University of Idaho wonder who Jason was, and why Arg staff members use names such as Pelius and Athena."

"Still other students catch on when we misspell the name of a sailor who has been dead for 2,000 years. Makes one wonder about the permanence of things."

Jason thanked the studios and pondered life. Could anyone name a crew member of Magellan's ship? or of Columbus' Santa Maria? Or much more recently, another kind of ship, the B-29 Superfortress?

Jason doubted it, thought of student knowing 50 names of mythological sailors, and changed the spelling of "Anaceus" to "Anaceus."

New Constitution Goes to Polls

Students To Vote On Revised Rules; By-Laws Replaced

Several months' work by the ASUI executive board will be finished next week when students go to the polls to vote on acceptance of the new ASUI constitution.

The former By-Laws, cumbersome and difficult to amend, have been replaced in the new form by the Regulations. The By-Laws were often as much as a year out of date as a vote of the entire student body was required to change them.

The Regulations require a two-thirds vote of the executive board for any changes.

The Regulations will be printed in subsequent issues. Here is the Constitution:

Taylor, Nebolon Art High Scorers

Patty Berg Wins Students With Patter And Putting

By BETTY PETERS

Patty Berg, well-known woman golfer, paid her second visit to Moscow last Saturday, giving a lecture and demonstration on the university golf course.

Her engaging personality gained the whole-hearted approval of students and Moscowites who braved the windy weather to see her perform.

At the course, she first gave a lecture demonstration stressing such points as accuracy, balance, timing, rhythm, and smoothness. After stating that grip is one of the most important factors in golf, she explained different grips, adding that she preferred the one used by Sam Snead.

Humorous Remarks
Demonstrating the different stances, she urged building a game around the square stance. Her humorous remarks and antics, throughout the exhibition, excited laughter from onlookers. At one time she mentioned every piece of her equipment as being Wilson made, then added, "Is there any question as to whom I work for?"

Strong winds afforded tough competition for Miss Berg as she discussed different phases of the game. At one point, she remarked, "I thought we only had wind in Minnesota, but now I know you have it in Idaho, too."

Exhibition Game
Following the lecture, she played an exhibition game with three university students, Miss Dorothy Holen, Jack Peterson and Dale Taylor.

Miss Berg was a luncheon guest of the Women's Athletic association at the Blue Bucket Inn, Saturday noon, where she was greeted by Mrs. Boyer, Mrs. Frank James, Mrs. Minnie Connolly and WAA members.

Robins To Speak To Univ. C. Of C.
Date of the Business School Chamber of Commerce banquet, at which Governor C. A. Robins is scheduled to speak, has been changed to 6:30 p.m. April 29 in the Moscow Grange hall.

The date was changed because the governor was unable to be present on the 27th. Tickets for the banquet should be picked up before April 24, Bert Sorenson, president said.

Officers for the school chamber of commerce will be elected Thursday in Ad. 317. Following elections, Bill Marineau, president of the Moscow C. of C., will speak on the organization of the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce.

Swimming Pool
The swimming pool in Memorial gymnasium will be open this week from 7 to 9 in the afternoon and from 7 to 5 in the evening.

Time Out

By Harry Howard

The boys who spend most of their evenings lurking around the stands and sidelines in Neale stadium have a new problem this year. Last season, they wondered just what the team could do, and what Dixie Howell could do with the team. That question was answered in the Stanford and Utah games.

Now the sideline quarterbacks are wondering just who will be in their next fall when the team rolls into Corvallis for their opening game. There are so many impressive backs that it's hard to narrow a choice to four starters:

Rough Schedule
On the other side of the ledger, Idaho faces one of the roughest schedules in its history. On four consecutive weekends, the Vandals must meet Oregon State, Utah, UCLA, and Oregon. All are regular powerhouses, and this year will be no exception. The Ducks are being boomed for Rose Bowl possibilities already.

With the addition of UCLA to the schedule, the Vandals once again have a full conference slate of six games. The Idaho squad has met the Bruins six times, winning one. In 1928, the Vandals came out on top, 20-6. Since then, the Bruins have won by scores of 20-6, 6-0, 13-6, 33-0, and 40-13.

Tie Complex
The Vandals and Oregon State's Beavers have tangled 21 times, the Idahoans winning five. They have met Utah's Redskins 13 times, winning five. The Vandals have had the tie complex with the Oregon Ducks, coming out all even in four contests and winning two of 27.

Of the remaining conference squads on the Idaho schedule next year, Washington has won 21, tied one, and dropped two to the Vandals, and the Montana Grizzlies have won 10, tied one, and lost 21 to Idaho.

The overall conference record for the Vandals since 1893 is 132 wins, 21 ties, and 171 losses.

A Real Live Beaver

The Oregon State Game Commission has offered the Oregon State college Beavers a live beaver named Benny for their mascot.

Benny has been discussed by the OSC Student Body Executive Council. The council has decided to house the animal in a fraternity during the winter months, and when warm weather comes, Benny is to spend his time on a fur farm.

GETS HOLE IN ONE
Bill Johnston, a member of the Oregon State college varsity golf team, joined the hole-in-one club when he dropped his tee shot in the 135-yard, number 7 hole at the Corvallis Country club. The feat was accomplished with an 8-iron club.

EDITOR ADDS NOTE
Following a 2000-plus word letter in the Otago University Critic (Dunedin, New Zealand), the editor last month added: "This eye-wash could go on indefinitely."

VARSIITY WANTS STORIES
Varsity magazine is offering $100 for any story written by college students which they publish. Submitted stories should be about 1200 words in length.

OWN MONKEYS
The University of Utah possesses ten monkeys which the department of bacteriology uses for research purposes.

Boxers
All boxers are requested to meet in room 109, Memorial gymnasium, tonight at 4 o'clock.

Vandal Golf Team Bows To Northern Division Champs

The University of Oregon Ducks defeated the Idaho Vandal golf squad on the rain soaked university course in Moscow last Saturday. The Ducks won the doubles 8 to 1 and the singles 11 to 7 to make the final tally 19-8. Stafford and Provost of the Oregon squad tied for medalist honors with a score of 72 each.

Individual scoring went as follows with the Idaho man being listed first in each case. In the singles competition: John Morely 3; Al Crosbie 0; Gene Rodwell 0; Lou Stafford 3; Walt Kelm 1/2, Don Provost 2 1/2; Glenn Cushman 2; John Prince 1; Jack Keenan 1 1/2; Al Riegel 1 1/2; Jack Ogsbury 0; Bob Sederstrom 3.

Meet Huskies Next
Scoring in the doubles competition went as follows: Morley and Kelm 1, Stafford and Riegel 2; Rodwell and Keenan 0, Crosbie and Prince 3; Cushman and Ogsbury 0, Provost and Sederstrom 3.

Coach Frank James expressed pleasure that the meet had gone off as well as it had despite the adverse weather conditions. The Vandal golfers will travel to Seattle to meet the University of Washington squad in dual competition Saturday, April 24.

Idaho Sportsmen Venture Outdoors To Greet The Sun

By John Martin
Golf clubs, fishing rods, rifles, and tennis rackets are coming off the shelf into the spot light. Idaho campus sportsmen are swarming out to take advantage of the belated spring weather.

A warm sunny afternoon yesterday brought golfers aplenty to the university links. Some of the old timers are blaming their 53's and 60's on the late return of the robins to Moscow; others are a little more conclusive and place the blame on the 32-inch waist line that has expanded during the winter to an intolerable 38 inches.

The zing of a dry fly swishing through the air on the end of a double-tapered line serves notice on the innocent passers along the sidewalks and to the aquatic early bird that the fishermen are getting set for an early trip to their favored haunts. Reels and rods are being taken out and put to test daily by the campus Isaac Waltons.

"Spring Has Sprung"
Local sportsmen have oiled up the "old shoothin' irons" and are going in daily increasing numbers to the fields to zero in on the gopher population. A few braver ones of the rifle set have invaded the city dump at night to try their luck at diminishing the rat numbers there.

Tennis enthusiasts are keeping the net courts active with their ball swatting and retrieving—emphasis on the retrieving. A demand for tennis rackets has plagued the fortunate students that have had theirs restrung before the season came.

Even the parlor sportsmen have been affected with the sunshine and twittering of the birds. All over the campus, the armchair artists can be seen moving the bridge game out to the porch or on the lawn. When these lovers of the fireplace come out, one can truthfully say "Spring has sprung on the campus."

Tough Doo-mat
Since Howell's arrival on the campus last spring, the Idaho football picture has brightened considerably. Last fall, the new football coach and his assistants embarked upon the season with nearly the same team that had won one game in nine starts the previous year. Howell stated at the beginning of the season that he did not expect his team to win many games, but that they would make a tough doormat for any of their opponents.

With this attitude and plenty of grueling practice behind them, the Idaho eleven won four and lost four of their grid forays. This included a win over Stanford, a team which no Idaho grid machine had ever been able to surmount.

Another high spot for Idaho fans was the 13 to 6 victory which the Vandals, under the tutelage of Howell, chalked up against an unbeaten Utah eleven. Southern Idaho fans went wild—"the gentleman from the south" had put himself and his team high in the spotlight of all. Telegrams from throughout the state poured in congratulating Howell and his "new" Idaho team.

Back on the Map
Howell, the 35-year-old former all-American, had fulfilled the hope of all the Vandal supporters—put Idaho back on the conference football map. The lengthy, nationwide search for a grid coach at Idaho had yielded an outstanding selection.

Howell's coaching career began in the fall of 1935, when he signed as head coach at the University of Mexico, Mexico City. The following season he served as backfield

Coach Howell Ponders 1948 Football Season At Idaho

Vandal grid aspirants, who played on the Howell-coached football squad last season, or who are returning out now for spring practice, will testify to the hustle which "Dixie" displays himself and expects from every man on the field. The signal chant of the Vandal quarterbacks "Let's go now," which was inaugurated by Howell as a rhythm for the shift of the Notre Dame box formation, has not only become the by-word of the football team but also of Idaho grid fans throughout the northwest.

Baseball Too
Following his discharge from the navy as a lieutenant commander, Howell returned to the University of Alabama as backfield coach and head baseball coach. His baseball experience included service with the Detroit Tigers and with teams in the American Association, Pacific Coast, Southern, and Texas leagues.

From Howell's old coach and recent boss, Frank W. Thomas, athletic director and football coach at Alabama, comes the finest of the many compliments paid Idaho's football revival. "Howell was one of the smartest athletes I have ever had the privilege of coaching," said Thomas. "In my opinion he is the best all-around athlete I have ever coached."

The recent advent of spring on the Idaho campus has heralded the

Vandal Net Squad Opens 1948 Season Against Cougars

The Vandal tennis squad, every strong, travels to Pullman today to open the 1948 spring tennis season against their cross-line rivals, the WSC Cougars.

Competing in the singles events for Idaho will be Hal Barnes, John Bretz, Jack Rainey, Bill Gartin and Mark Eisner. The doubles teams are Nolan Johnson and Tom Benson on one and Jack Rainey paired with John Bretz on the other.

Rained Out
The meet was scheduled for last Saturday but was cancelled until today due to adverse weather conditions.

The Vandal coach, Eric Kirland, stated that his team is rather inexperienced compared to the Pullman squad which has four lettermen back from their high flying squad of last year. He added, however, that his team has been rapidly improving and should make an impressive showing.

Managers Discover 'Boys'll Be Boys'

It seems that boys will be boys no matter where they are. Last week, the Vandal football managers were complaining because some pranksters had done away with the tires used in football practice. Over at Oregon State, the rowing squad is having similar troubles. Their training barge, the "Rho Dammit Rho" mysteriously disappeared last week, and it was not until the rowing squad, accompanied by the coach, had searched up and down the river for several miles, and an airplane had been called into the hunt, that it was found 10 miles from its mooring.

It was quite a trip for the old barge, whose home water way extends only a mile in either direction from Corvallis.

opening of spring practice. Hoping to take advantage of every possible day allowed by the conference for training, Howell had his 1948 grid prospects out pushing back the mud and snow on the practice field in order to limber up winter-laxed muscles.

Inside Dope
Mrs. Howell has given one of the best thumb-nail descriptions of her husband that is available. "Mr. Howell never really quits thinking about football, but he doesn't bring it home. However, I can tell when things are going bad and when the breaks are uppermost. It takes living a while with a football coach before you can tell. For instance, when he breezes in, grabs up the evening paper, and stretches out in a chair to chuckle over the comic strips, things are not going too badly. But when he comes into the house slowly, wanders about the living room, picks up the paper, grunts with disgust at the comics, and tosses the paper aside, you know the problems and breaks are on the bad side of the ledger. That is the time to cook him a special dish for dinner and tell our daughter, Dixie Jo, not to disturb daddy."

Idaho Baseball Team Drops Opener To Huskies, 13-3

Ten runs in the first two innings was too large a lead for the Idaho Vandal baseball team to overcome in their season opener against the Washington Huskies in Seattle Friday. Playing errorless ball, the Huskies gathered three more runs and held the Vandals to six hits and three runs. All of the Idaho tallies came in the fifth frame.

The Vandals starting pitcher, Francis (Lefty) Auer, gave up five runs on a single, three walks, followed by two additional one-base hits. Auer left the mound with two out and two left on base.

Charles Plastino came on the mound for the Idaho nine and retired the Huskies after allowing one runner to cross the plate. The Idaho pitcher ran into serious trouble in the second inning and another four runs crossed the plate before the Vandals could tighten up.

Couper Triples
In the fifth frame, the Idaho batsmen started a rally when Plastino singled. The next Vandal hitter Bill Williams, received a walk from the Washington pitcher, Hal Arnason. Charles Couper, centerfielder, connected with the ball and drove it into the far field for a triple, scoring Plastino and Williams. Couper came in to score on the next hit and then the Huskies settled down and stopped the Idaho spree.

No Candy, Tight Schedules Trouble Touring Vandaleers

By MARGARET WEITZ

One year when the Vandaleers were in Boise, a member of the group happened to oversleep one morning. With her hair still in curlers, she rushed frantically to the place where the bus was supposed to pick them up. Seeing that the bus wasn't there and realizing that as usual the group had left promptly at 8, she hailed a taxi—told the driver to "catch that bus," and the chase was on.

Almost to Mountain Home, the driver realized there was no bus to catch. He turned around and headed for Boise again and there they saw the other members getting on the bus. Later she found out that a breakfast that morning the announcement had been made that the bus was being repaired and they wouldn't start as early as usual. Result—was a case of shattered nerves and an $11 taxi fare.

Problems and Headaches
Maybe this won't happen to the Vandaleers while they are on tour this year, but Hall Macklin, acting head of the music department, and Glen Lockery, director, will be confronted with all sorts of problems and headaches.

In 1930, rumors were being heard that the University of Idaho had a new singing organization. But two months passed before Prof. Carleton Cummings presented the Vandaleers in a formal concert held at the university auditorium. They received such an ovation that they toured the state in December 1930 and sang their way to statewide fame. Then there only 18 Vandaleers—today there are 60.

Tight Schedule
One can easily compare the Vandaleer tour with a military spring offensive. At a certain time place 60 persons must assemble and be herded into two chartered buses. They must always eat together and then are assigned to private homes for the evening. Sometimes when they are on a "tight schedule" and don't have time for lunch, a crate of apples and oranges are taken along to tide them over until the next stop.

The only headache the Vandaleers suffer from is that they are denied candies and desserts before all performances because it interferes with singing. Because of this, the group has lost one friend—the chef at Sun Valley.

Special Surprise
It seems that during their stop in Sun Valley, the chef decided to surprise them with something "special" for dessert. Taking great pains in his work, he made individual shortcakes with gigantic strawberries and crowned them with whipped-cream which formed and resembled Mt. Baldy. But the Vandaleers' cries of elation soon turned to disappointment when they saw the director shake his head and say "no." The chef threw his hands up in despair.

Marine Reserve Seeking Airmen

Robert H. Burrows, 113 North Washington Street, Moscow, has announced that any former marine pilots interested in joining a Reserve squadron, which will be based in Spokane, are requested to drop him a card.

Information necessary is name, serial number, rank, and mailing address. The squadron will operate in conjunction with the Naval Reserve group, that will be activated on May 1, in Spokane.

The program will be on a volunteer, non-paying basis until more interest is shown. Probably by July the squadrons will be commissioned with all personnel receiving regular monthly payments, Burrows stated.

Arrangements will be made whereby a plane from Spokane will pick up the pilots at the local airport and return them the same day.

POLITICAL CLUBS APPROVED
The Dean's council at the University of Utah has agreed to allow Young Republicans, Young Democrats and Students for Wallace to hold meeting on the campus.

Council Receives More Information On Campus Chests

A survey is being made by the Interfraternity Council to secure details about Campus Chests at other schools. It is the aim of the Council to install the plan at Idaho.

The first reply has been received from the University of Washington. The Washington Chest is operated by a committee appointed by the Student Board of Control, the equivalent of Idaho's Executive board. The committee is in charge of the collection and allocation of all the funds involved.

A single financial drive is made each year by the committee and its agents. The collected money is then allocated to the different charities and activities included in the plan, judged mainly by the past record of donations to each project.

Board Must Approve
The recommended amounts are submitted to the Board of Control for approval. If approved, the allotments are sent to the charities.

A small sum is kept on hand to meet emergencies which may arise. Grants from the emergency fund also require the approval of the Board of Control. According to reports from former Washington students, the system is both effective and satisfactory to the students.

Forty Nations Are Members Of UN Committee

By ARIS PETERSEN
College students are reputedly said to know very little about world affairs. For instance, how many students know what UNESCO means, or something about the organization of this agency?

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization is one of eight specialized agencies recognized by the United Nations general assembly. The agency promotes aids in the progress of education, science, and culture throughout the world.

Membership of 40 Nations
Forty nations are now members as membership in the UN carries membership in UNESCO. The USSR is the only large power which is not a member.

Five delegates for each member nation form a General Conference to determine the policies of the organization. The General Conference met first in Paris in 1946, in Mexico City in 1947, and will meet next in Beirut.

U. S. Commission Set Up
The United States had set up a U. S. National Commission for UNESCO to advise the State Department of the U. S. course in the agency. The commission is composed of 97 members who represent education, science, arts, literature, government, etc.

Journalists Banquet Following Sunday Initiations

Theta Sigma and Sigma Delta, women's and men's journalism honoraries respectively, joined forces Sunday to hold a banquet in the Moscow hotel. Theta Sigma had initiated eight women, while Sigma Delta initiated four men. Above, the photographer caught the banquet group in a quiet moment.

MISSION TO MOSCOW

By RUSSKI
I was standing in front of the Theta house the other day near the fire-plug, looking at the linets in the pine trees, when a young string-bean sort of fellow approached me and asked me if I wouldn't mind running on the Incompetent-party ticket for an executive board job next year.

Heck no, I replied, I would be glad to run, how much does it pay. Well, the string-bean said, it doesn't pay anything—you serve for the glory of the school.

I said, I guess I could stand a little glory and then I asked him why he picked on me. He said since I was out-of-state and didn't know anybody I would make an ideal candidate.

Another Approach
Fine, I replied, and I started up Hello Walk to the Ad building where I had a class in Sympathetic Philosophy. Halfway up a timid looking gentleman with brown eyes and spectacles stopped me and asked if I would run on the Ununited ticket for the Executive board.

Sure, I said, nothing to lose. Gee, that's swell, he answered, us Greeks have such a rough time getting people to run for offices that it makes it nice to find someone so agreeable once in a while. So long, champ, he said, and ambled happily on his way.

After class I met a fishy looking man eating a Hays hall sandwich and carrying a violin case. What's this I hear, he said, are you running for office. I answered in the affirmative, and he told me I was a fool. He said he held a job this year and that his association with the committee-chairman seekers was forcing him back into the violin business.

Propaganda
I'm going back to New York and write music for the Subway Concert, he said. Next day I found posters plastered all over the campus saying things like Vote For Russki, He'll Save the University and other things like Russki's 39 Point Program Insures You Complete Campus Autocracy. Gee, I'm important, I told myself. Nothing like a little publicity.

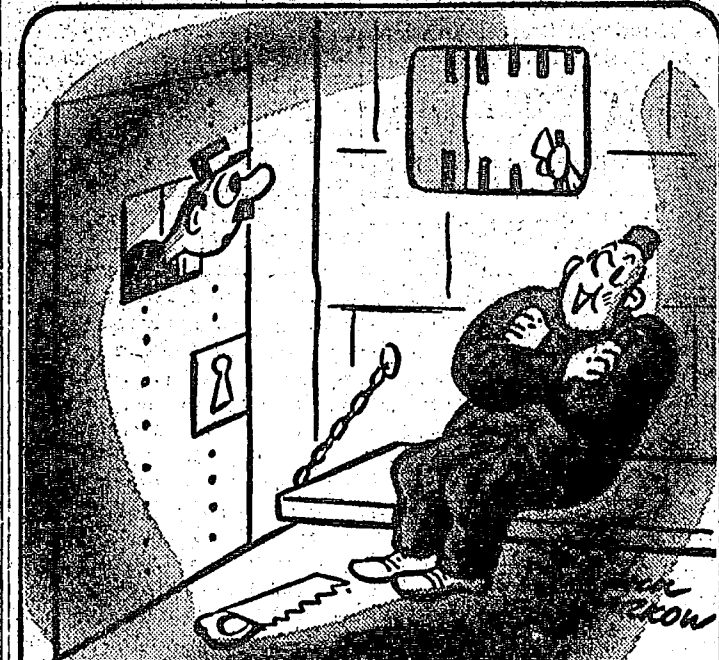

Next day the graduate manager got around to looking up my grades and found I flunked everything but Laissez Economics, and that I wasn't eligible to run for any office, even student-body president.

One of these days I'm going back to Odessa and get one of those nice little Politburo jobs. This voting business is all bunk anyhow—a fellow can't be sure of being elected.

Duo Returns From West Coast Meet
Jan Garber, AWS president-elect, and Donna Chapman, AWS president, returned Sunday from a Western Intercollegiate Associated Women's Students convention at Seattle.

The convention, which was held April 14 to 17 at the University of Washington campus, included 90 delegates from seniors west of the Mississippi, and all AWS presidents and faculty advisors.

The theme of the convention was "The Function of AWS Students on the Campus". Discussion groups and open forums were held. Dean Newhouse, director of student affairs at the University of Washington, spoke on democracy and student government. Next year's convention will be held at the University of New Mexico.
