Vandals Defensive Play Drops WSC From Unbeaten Ranks

The GOLDEN FLEECE
by Jason

New freshmen trudging along the registration lines for the first time have the whole-hearted sympathy of Jason who was recently put at the helm of the good ship Argonaut. As the frosh are finding the reality that an academic schedule must be stated, Jason found out that an editorial course must be plotted.

Being a true conformist, your brand new Jason will tackle this first hurdle.

It will be the policy and objective of the members of the staff to put out this newspaper every Tuesday and Friday with as little confusion as possible. Student thought and opinion will be sought and given high value.

Every legitimate campus undertaking will find the columns of this publication open to them and the staff willing to cooperate in every way possible. However, "Drum Beaters" and "Rag Chewers" will find little companionship in the Arg office. Our chief "Tub Thumper," the gossip editor, has been lying in the morgue for some time. The resurrection of this character is not in sight.

The old timers (those are the lucky stiffs that slept till ten a. m. yesterday and somehow were through registering last night) have undoubtedly thought of the many dreams which have become realities on the campus in the last semester.

The student union building has become more than editorials andreams of paper. The board of regents has approved the plans adopted by the ASUI executive council. Steps are being taken to set up a financial plan for the improvements. It looks as though bricks and mortar will crowd out the engineer's testing stakes and drawings this spring.

More and more instructors are voluntarily giving the students an opportunity to fill out teacher rating sheets. True there are some instructors who indicate that they can see no value in the plan, but this is an ever diminishing minority. Congratulations are in order for those directors of student learning who are willing to take a look in the mirror once in a while.

A field house, the dream of Vandal supporters for many years, has been started. Despite the inclement weather, the first unit of the project is being gradually erected. The boxing team has had its home moved to the newly erected gym annex, which provides the pugilists with additional space and facilities.

KUOI, the Voice of the Vandal, has been put on a more permanent basis with backing from the ASUI. The executive board has placed funds to be used in improving the station at the disposal of the campus radiomen.

The first semester of this year has seen a bit of life breathed into the university. Students and alumni throughout the state are becoming confident that this will be the spark to light the way for the enlargement of their alma mater.

Vandaleer Tryouts
Vandaleer tryouts will be held Wednesday, February 2, from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. in room 11, center cottage, according to Glen Lockery, director.

Notifications of acceptance for vacancies will be made during the second week of the semester.

COMING EVENTS

Today:
Alpha Phi Omega meeting in Bucket, 7:15 p. m.
KUOI officers meeting in Bucket, 8:00 p. m.
Wednesday:
IK meeting in Bucket at 8:45 p. m.
Thursday:
KUOI staff will meet at 5 p. m. in Engr. Bldg., 201

Registration Speeded Up By Student Cooperation

Students showed outstanding cooperation in speeding up registration procedure this semester, announced D. D. DuSault, registrar, yesterday. According to DuSault, the usually long line at the university classroom building where registration numbers are issued was minimized to a 20-minute wait.

Muckers' Ball To Be "Takeoff" On Legal Gambling

The grand opening of "Harold's Other Place in Gold Gulch, Idaho" is one of the many highlights of the annual Mucker's Ball to be held Saturday in both ballrooms of the Blue Bucket at 9 p. m.

The Rhythm-aire's eight-piece orchestra will furnish music for the all-campus affair which is sponsored by the Associated Miners under the leadership of Phil Beeson, president. Admission price will be $1.50 with $1,500 in bogus money to be handed out with each ticket.

Students Attend Spokane Concert

About 35 students will go to Spokane by Greyhound bus Thursday to hear the internationally known St. Olaf Choir concert. Dean Carter has granted permission for university women to go as members of the party traveling by bus.

Leaving the front steps of the Administration building at 4 p. m. Thursday, the bus will return to Moscow immediately following the concert. Passage is still available for a few more students. Anyone caring to go is requested to contact Glen Lockery at the Music hall.

Prof. Scott Announces Journalism Scholarships

Three students who are majoring in journalism at the University will receive a total of $375 in scholarships awarded by the Coeur d'Alene Press, Moscow Daily Idahonian, and the Wallace-Press Times, announced Paul T. Scott, journalism head.

Each scholarship of $125 is given to a student who shows promise in the newspaper field and ranks high in his college class.

Cogswell and Petersen
Named to receive the Coeur d'Alene Press scholarship is Darwin Dwayne Cogswell, second semester freshman and Delta Tau Delta pledge. A veteran, Cogswell works on the staff of the Argonaut, student newspaper.

Johnson Wins Award
A sophomore and Sigma Chi pledge, Philip Johnson is the winner of $125 scholarship given by the Wallace Press-Times. He works on the sports staff of the Argonaut and the Gem, the student yearbook.

Publishers who have made the awards possible for the first time in the year 1949 are William T.

Field House Goes Up Despite Weather

Idaho's new and much needed field house on McLean field is nearing the final phases of construction as the contractors defy "old man winter" in his attempts to stop them. The framework is completed and the remaining work involves the placing of aluminum siding on the structure. It will be used as an inside track and training place for Vandal boxers and cinder men.

New Field House Nears Completion

Something new in prefabricated construction in the Northwest is the first unit of the University of Idaho's athletic field house.

Record-breaking winter weather slowed down but did not halt construction of what the builders say is the biggest prefabricated construction enterprise in the Pacific area. A field house of similar size and construction recently was completed at the University of Minnesota.

Two of the Northwest's major industries, timber and aluminum, figure in the construction of the giant rising on the Idaho campus to the west of the Memorial gymnasium.

Use Large Crane
Bowstring trusses 175 feet long, cut to measure at the mill and assembled on the ground are lifted into place by a giant crane. Supporting these trusses are 50-foot columns, a special sawmill job. Each column represents a carefully selected, straight-grained forest giant.

Ceiling clearance inside the field house will be 50 feet, a point of considerable importance to the Vandal football players when they are practicing up on long-distance punting and passing. Overall height from ground level to top center of the bowstring span is 75 feet.

Several Units Planned
The first unit is 175 feet wide and 100 feet long. Additional units will provide a field house 400 feet long. Although the first unit is being finished with aluminum siding, the foundation was laid wide enough for a brick veneer addition should that become desirable.

The field house is being constructed under a board of regents bond issue to be paid off by student activity fees. Approximate cost of the first unit is $70,000.

LDS Sweetheart Ball Friday Night

Lambda Delta Sigma will present its annual Sweetheart Ball Friday night in the Blue Bucket ballroom at 9. Norm Herzinger and his orchestra will play for this all-campus semi-formal. Tickets are now on sale in all men's living groups.

The Sweetheart Ball is being substituted in place of the Gold and Green Ball usually sponsored by the LDS group.

TUITION PLAN
In an effort to keep its fees within reach of qualified students and still meet inflated costs, Sara Lawrence college will begin a new tuition plan next September.

Oregon State Gains Tie With Cougars For Lead

Two of the best defensive systems in collegiate basketball clashed Saturday night when an underdog Vandal quintet halted the Washington State Cougars, previously out in front in the race for the northern division pennant, by a score of 41-32. The Cougars' loss put them in a first-place tie with OSC, by virtue of a pair of Beaver wins over Washington a week ago.

Visitor Of Europe Comes To Campus To Speak On WSR

Coming to the university as part of the campus chest drive is Barbara Brady, Mills, college graduate who spent three months last summer in England, France, Switzerland, and Germany.

Forty-five per cent of the money collected during the drive, scheduled February 9-14, will go to the World Student Service Fund, the organization which Miss Brady is active in.

Local Music Fans To Pick Selections For Beneke Show

Advance publicity on the Tex Beneke orchestra which will appear in Memorial gymnasium on February 13 indicate that the musicians will be prepared to run the gamut from "Little Brown Jug" to "My Heart is a Hobo," from "Chattanooga Choo Choo" to "St. Louis Blues March."

With this wide range of variety available, a poll will be taken on the campus to determine which tunes the Idaho students want to hear most at the concert.

Mills UNESCO Delegate
She has gained knowledge of tension of political conditions in Europe through lectures and discussions with students, newspaper reporters, commentators, city officials, and citizens. Traveling with the faculties and students enabled her to observe university life, living conditions, and libraries, and to talk over problems of interest with student leaders.

BRI! IT'S COLD
January, 1949, has set a new low for Moscow with 15 days in one month of zero or below weather.

Gifts Totaling $25,000 Given University, Says Buchanan

Eleven gifts to the University of Idaho totaling more than $10,000 were formally accepted by the university regents at their last meeting, it was announced today by President J. E. Buchanan. Three were student scholarships, three to assist in university research, and five for special projects.

Annual Ball Fetes Seniors Receiving June Commissions
The Military Ball presented annually by Scabbard and Blade, Idaho chapter of the national military honorary, is officially scheduled for February 12, in the Blue Bucket ballroom at 9 p. m.

Davis Brothers Award
The four Davis brothers, James, Tine, Austin, and Darius, formerly of Burley, contributed $600 for the support of a scholarship in the school of business administration. All former Idaho students in business, they now operate a chain of food stores in Florida and Kentucky.

Fisk Scores High In Archery Shoot
Jane Fisk has scored 12 consecutive bulls-eyes at 20 yards, Miss Mary Fram, archery instructor, announced yesterday.

Commencing next week, archery practices will be held in the women's gym from 4 to 5 p. m., on Monday afternoon. The national intercollegiate telegraphic meet will begin the following week.

Leave Of Absence For Study Given Jeffers And Cady

Two University of Idaho staff members, Dean D. S. Jeffers of the school of forestry and Dr. L. C. Cady, executive secretary of the university research council, will be away from the campus on leave of absence during the second semester, it was announced today by President J. E. Buchanan.

Will Study Forestry
Although away from the university, Dean Jeffers will not desert his favorite field, forestry. He plans to devote his leave to a study of timberland management problems and accomplishments in California, New Mexico, and Arizona. For Dr. Cady it also will be a "postman's holiday." He will visit research divisions of colleges and universities and research institutes in the Middle West, the East, and the South.

INDIVIDUAL GRANTS
The awarding of federal grants to individual students rather than to colleges and universities might forestall the possibility of governmental control of higher education, William B. Baer, dean of the New York University College of Arts and Science declared recently.

ENROLLMENT TOPS
For the third successive year the nation's college and university enrollments have climbed to a new peak. The U. S. Office of Education revealed that enrollments this fall increased by over 72,000 students over last year, despite a drop of 100,000 in number of veterans enrolled.

Coeds Vie For LDS Queen

Nada Gilbert, Forney hall; JoAnn Wilde, Moscow; Anne McKay, Pi Phi; Norma Tovey, Alpha Chi; and Bonnie Shuldberg, Hays hall, are candidates for the LDS Sweetheart. The winner will be announced at the intermission of the dance Friday night.

The Idaho Argonaut

Official publication of the Associated Students of the University of Idaho, issued every Tuesday and Friday of the college year. Entered as second class matter at the post office at Moscow, Idaho.

Registration Becoming Easier

Registration, for a long time an ordeal at Idaho, seems to be an easy task. There were a number of incidents during the first of registration to indicate that nobody was doing very much standing in line and that everybody was doing about the same amount of waiting.

Yesterday morning at 8:15 a student walked into the Ad building apparently ready to stand in some lines. He had on a heavy sweater, a heavy coat, and gloves and was carrying a thermos jug of coffee. We doubt if he was disappointed when he found no lines to stand in.

Even the number line—last semester's only bottleneck—moved rapidly.

Some, as usual, tried to beat the system. It was getting harder to do. A major lost his permit to register and despite his rank he had to pay his dollar and get a new one.

One student, trying to get his schedule approved ahead of time, got caught at it and had his registration card held in his dean's office.

And even the PMS&T, registering for some undergraduate courses, had to wait in line to get his books.

All in all, things looked like registration was a system, and that the responsible parties—whether they are the president, the registrar, or the fellow that takes the new students' pictures—deserved a hearty thanks. —H.R.

Post-War Education Level High

A recent New York Times survey indicates that a new educational plateau 100 percent above the pre-war level has been reached in the institutions of higher learning.

Here are some of the highlights of the Times' survey: a total of 2,400,000 students are now enrolled in the nation's 1800 colleges, technical schools, and teacher-training institutions; more than half of the colleges surveyed report that they lack sufficient facilities to handle their students' requirements; sixty percent say they do not have enough dormitories; sixty-five percent of liberal arts colleges indicate that they need more teachers.

These figures show that American colleges and universities are hard pressed to meet the demands of a greatly expanded student enrollment.

But this is only part of the over-all picture. Of the 400 universities and colleges questioned, the majority report that the graduate interested in continuing his studies will also find the going rough. This is particularly true of the fields of medicine, dentistry and engineering.

Far more students are applying for graduate study than can be admitted. Many schools are concerned about this fact and realize that not only the individual but also the nation will feel the effects of a shortage of highly skilled scientists and specialists.

The survey points out that the picture is not entirely black by any means. For, although many potentially good engineers, scientists, and specialists in other fields will be denied the advantages of a higher education, the truth is that the U. S. is training more highly skilled technicians than it ever has in the past.

Added to this is the fact that the 400 schools surveyed stated that they plan to spend an average of three million for new buildings and facilities. If this group is representative of American schools as a whole, it means that higher education faces a building program that may well run as high as $5 billion in the next decade.

The guy who is now fortunate enough to be in college should make the most of his time. It appears rather obvious that with an increase in total college graduates, there will tend to be a corresponding intensification of competition among highly trained specialists. So dig hard, men, you may be in for a rough time when you get out!

Navy Department Institute Offers Religious Courses To Qualified Men

A revised age bracket of 18 years through 26 years for Naval Aviation Cadets was announced today by the Office of Naval Officer Procurement. Students accepted for the Naval Aviation Training course at Pensacola, Fla., must not have reached their 27th birthday, however, at time of acceptance.

Two Years Of College

The U. S. Navy's Aviation Cadet program is open to physically and mentally qualified young men with at least two years of college education. After an 18-month course they will be commissioned ensigns in the Naval Reserve or 2nd lieutenants in the Marine Corps Reserve.

An additional two-and-a-half years of advanced flight training is held after the 18-month course, in which advanced single-engine planes and multi-engine planes are flown.

Details may be obtained from college faculty advisors, Naval Recruiting stations, or from the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, Arctic Bldg., Seattle, Wash.

Institute Offers Religious Courses

For second semester, Idaho Institute of Christian Education is offering the following courses in religion, Dr. Oscar M. Adam, director, announced today:

Religion and Literature of the Old Testament, two credits, first period Tuesday and Thursday. The Life and Letters of Paul, two credits, Tuesday and Thursday, third period.

Medieval Christianity, two credits, Tuesday and Thursday, fourth period.

Present Day Problems in Religion, one credit, Thursday, seventh period.

Principals and Methods of Religious Education, Tuesday, eighth period.

Students who cannot fit these courses into their schedules are asked to register for the course desired and, if possible, a convenient class period will be arranged.

Work completed in these courses receives academic credit. Courses are offered without extra charge to regularly enrolled students. Classes meet at 822 Elm Street where students can meet the director for conference and counseling.

Group Travels 25,000 Miles For A Three Credit Course

Students who think it's tough to travel across town to class ought to see the mileage figures brought back by Dr. Ray Berry, professor of secondary education at the University of Idaho, from a recent meeting with a university extension class at Twin Falls.

Round trip teacher-mileage for the 43 students in this class was 2,164 miles. They came from 12 different communities. With the class meeting 14 times a year, this group will run up a grand total mileage in excess of 25,000 miles to earn the three credits offered by the University of Idaho for this extension study in the principles of curriculum construction.

Travel Seventy Miles "This class alternates between Twin Falls and Jerome," explained Dr. Berry. "The mileage is a little less to Jerome but it still is large enough to indicate that teachers are willing to go a long way—even over wintry roads—to improve their professional standing. Long-distance travel honors for the Twin Falls-Jerome class go to the teachers who come from Halley and Carey, each more than 70 miles from the 'classroom'."

At a recent meeting of the board of regents, President J. E. Buchanan of the university gave the regents a brief picture of the new extension education courses, of which the Twin Falls-Jerome one is a part. Others are at Boise, Nampa, Payette, and Sandpoint.

Regent Student The only University of Idaho class to have a regent as a student was instituted a little over a year ago as a result of demand among teachers throughout the state for extension courses that would enable them to qualify under the new certification law.

The first extension courses in this field, arranged through the department of educational field services of the university, were at Boise and Sandpoint. The Boise course last year had an enrollment of 87 while that at Sandpoint attracted 39. The university conducted the Boise course while that at Sandpoint was handled jointly by the Northern Idaho College of Education and the university, N.I.C.E. being in active charge.

Four Classes Held This year the University is operating four classes in southern Idaho, at Boise with 119 students, at Jerome and Twin Falls with 43, at Nampa with 71, and at Payette with 35. The course at Sandpoint this year, still operating as a cooperative venture with Northern Idaho College of Education, has 35 students.

Students in these extension courses study the principles of curriculum construction. Their university professor the past year has been Dr. Ray Berry of the school of education, for more than 20 years a high school administrator in Idaho, serving at Blackfoot, Idaho Falls and Moscow. Dr. Berry has visited each class at least four times a year.

Snider Staff Member Because of the growing demand for this type of off-campus teaching among the school people of Idaho, the University of Idaho is adding a new staff member who will carry on this work. He is Hervon L. Snider, who comes to Idaho from the University of Nebraska. He will take over the work handled so far by Dr. Berry, who has been meeting the field classes in addition to his full-time teaching duty on the campus.

HONOR SYSTEM

Barnard college students recently voted overwhelmingly to retain an honor system at the college in preference to strict proctoring, but at least half of the students indicated that they would not report cheating if they saw it during exams or other academic work.

New Scholarship Awarded To Grad

First scholarship award under the Kellogg foundation fund at the University of Idaho to encourage the training of medical technologists goes to Betty Jean Brookbush Lash of Sterling, It was announced today by Dean H. E. Lattig, director of student affairs and coordinator of university scholarships.

Mrs. Lash, a graduate in the class of 1948 with a major in bacteriology (medical technology), now is at work on her internship in medical technology at the Dee Memorial hospital at Ogden, Utah. Mrs. Lash graduated from Aberdeen high school. In her senior year at the university she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, scholarship honorary.

The fund from which the $200 award was made to Mrs. Lash was created recently by the W. K. Kellogg foundation to encourage through loans and scholarships more college students to prepare for careers as medical technologists.

Books On Display In Library Case

About 100 significant books, well worth reading, are on display this week in the glass show case in front of the first floor library.

The purpose of this display is to encourage good reading. "We are trying to help the students to know which are the best books to read; books, such as these, that have stood the passage of time and are still considered great," said Lee Zimmerman, librarian.

Zimmerman also recommended a book called "Good Reading" which is edited by the National Council of Teachers of English and published by Penguin Book, Inc. It may be purchased for 35 cents at any drug store and in it are listed 1,000 of the best books all briefly annotated. These books are selected by 44 professors, librarians, and editors throughout the country, on the basis of solid worth and readability. They are arranged by period, literary type, and subject.

Upperclassmen Express Would-Be Changes In Poll

Various opinions were expressed by Idaho juniors and seniors yesterday for the Arg poll, "What would you do if you were a freshman again?" Many agreed they would work a little harder, and of course, more relaxation was first on the list for several.

Norm Fabst, Campus club: "I'd take an easy load."
 Fred Willett, Bill McIntyre, Don Haynes, Sigma Nu: "In general we'd do the same thing over again, but concentrate more on instructors and spend less time studying courses."
 Jeanne Cox, Delta Gamma: "Frankly, I don't think I'd stay in school."
 Tom Boyd, Beta: "I'd not study so hard, have fewer hours, more relaxation."
 Betty Batts, Tri-Delta: "I'd just give up!"
 Sherman Nesbitt, Willis Sweet: "Probably back out and not go to school."
 Katy Kateron, Ridenbaugh: "I guess I'd work harder."
 Carolyn Craddock, Gamma Phi: "As a pledge I'd get away with as much as I could, skip as much libe as I could get away with, and collect Beta pins."

STUDENTS GOOD College student writing on immorality of college students recently took a poll in which he claims to have discovered that more college students believe in God and go to church regularly than do the old folks. They're just noisier about their sins.

Officers Elected By Two Groups

Jean Dammarell was installed as president at Forney hall at a fireside Sunday evening. Officers chosen to assist her for the year are June Thomas, vice president; Mary Lee Bates, secretary; Mary Jones, treasurer; Beverly Schupfer, scholarship chairman; Cleo Lenz, culture chairman; Shirley Forrey, social chairman, assisted by June Sutton; and Joyce Waiser, song leader, assisted by Joyce Fisher.

Women To Enter Swimming Meet

Backstroke, breast stroke, and crawl are to be included in the telegraphic swimming meet which takes place in Memorial gymnasium February 15 to March 15. During the swims, times will be recorded and sent to the National telegraphic swimming association which conducts the matches.

Women To Enter Swimming Meet

Only women are eligible. Miss Mary Fram, swimming instructor, asked that all women interested and willing to train, contact her at the women's gym. Practices will be held in the university pool from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday, and from 7 to 8 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday. Ann Dingle and Eric Kirkland will assist Miss Fram in supervision of practices.

Women To Enter Swimming Meet

These officers will preside for the remainder of the year and first semester of next year. The annual "Whoopie Party," with the faculty in charge, will be held at the next Sunday meeting in the church. All Methodist students are welcome.

Various 'Big Names' Adorn Large Coffee Cups At Nest

Here's a new angle on the fight against the rising cost of living on the campus. Economy minded students have found that the largest cup of coffee for a nickel west of the Mississippi can be had at the Nest right here on the campus.

Here's More About—Vandals

enabled the Vandals to maintain their lead until the final gun. In the final minutes, Idaho adopted a large "pin wheel" as a stalling maneuver, abandoning it twice to take advantage of an open shot at the basket.

Idaho Skier Sets Record In Hyak Jumping Event

Sverre Kongsgaard, 26-year-old junior Norwegian exchange student now attending the University of Idaho, registered a new North American competitive ski jumping record Sunday, when he soared 290 feet off the towering Olympian hill jump at Hyak, Washington.

The Oslo university transfer eclipsed by one foot the old mark of 289 feet scored in 1942 at Iron Mountain, Michigan, by the late Torger Tokle. Kongsgaard's leap was also two feet better than Tokle's 288-foot Olympian hill record mark set a week before the Iron Mountain event.

20-Year Man
Kongsgaard, a native from Kongsberg, Norway, home of many a world's foremost jumper, has been gliding on the hard wood slats for over twenty years. He holds several jumping records on Scandinavian slopes and had previously sailed a distance of 279 feet.

In an exhibition flight during the Olympic team trials two years ago, a cousin of the new record-holder, Arnold Kongsgaard, soared 294 feet at the Olympian-hill jump, but the distance was not recognized as an American mark since it was not scored by official judges.

Graded Down On Form
Though Sverre of the Kongsgaard clan performed the longest jump of the day, his form was not good enough to secure him the top position in the 1949 renewal of the Seattle Ski club's invitational tournament.

First place honors went to George Thrane, Norwegian exchange student at WSC, who scored 236.0 points. Petter Husted, Norway's Olympic games champion, placed a close second with a 235.0 score. Kongsgaard placed 280.6 points for third place.

A perfect 20 was scored by Thrane on his second run down the hill when two of the judges failed to find fault with the 1947 Norwegian champion's approach in-run, take-off, flight, landing and out-run.

Kongsgaard is expected to compete again Sunday in an invitational meet at Leavenworth, Wash.

Sets New Ski-Jump Mark

Sverre Kongsgaard, a junior exchange student from Norway, got up in the air about something last Sunday—and when he came down, he'd set a new North American ski-jumping record. His 290-foot leap out-distanced the previous record by one foot, and bested the Olympic mark by two feet. It didn't, however, win the Hyak, Washington, individual meet, since judges graded him down on form. WSC's George Thrane won first place honors.

Time Out

Well, the "Battle of the Palouse" is over, until the two squads meet again February 25-6 for another home-and-home series. Finals are all over, the Vandals were all over the floor in Bohler gymnasium, and Sverre Kongsgaard was all over the course at Hyak Sunday—but he didn't win the meet.

On the face of it, it appears unfair to have one man jump 290 feet, shattering all kinds of records, and then award the jumping honors to someone else who didn't jump as far but displayed better form. But, the judges can present a pretty sound case in favor of their decision.

Take, for instance, the case of the diver who makes a mighty leap from the end of the board, clears a good half of the pool—and lands flat on his face in the water. Surely no one would object to awarding the diving honors to another man who hadn't covered so much distance, but looked a lot better doing it. The point is, the distance covered by a ski-jump is not considered so important as the form with which the jump is performed.

Reasons For WSC Defeat
In the cage world, disgruntled Cougar fans are going out of their way to determine reasons for the astounding upset pulled off by the rampaging Vandals. The best of these reasons are: (1) Chuck Finley out-platooned WSC by setting up his own two-platoon system. The use of two squads proved very effective for the Cougars until it encountered a similar system. It was, in our opinion, a very cage-y maneuver.

The second and third reasons were George Rey and Joe Grove, who turned in outstanding performances on the court. Fourth, the Cougar squad was off their game, and couldn't find the range. And the loss of Guard Bob Elliot late in the first half was one the WSC team could ill afford.

But one reason that doesn't seem to have occurred to anyone is the one which is the most obvious. The Vandals are definitely a dangerous team, and there isn't a coach in the Northwest who won't agree. Although Idaho hasn't done too well in conference games this season, the squad is always a potential threat to come from behind and win if the opposition isn't on its toes.

Babes Drop Close Contest To WSC

The undefeated Washington State college Couzababes continued to rank high among the nation's freshman basketball squads after toppling the highly regarded Idaho yearlings last weekend 46-42 in Pullman's Bohler gymnasium. Idaho to date has lost two contests, both to the WSC squad. The Cougar yearlings defeated the Vandal Babes 36-35 in their first meeting January 22.

The Cougar's high scoring wizard 6 foot, 7 inch center was held to ten points by the Vandals, while Idaho's Jenkins garnered scoring honors with 15.

Basketball Game 'Too Darn Rough' In Inland Empire

The game of basketball has become nothing but a modernized game of football, especially in the Inland Empire; there seems to be a large amount of bumps and bruises—some of which are never heard of on the gridiron.

It has been proven that the fastest games are witnessed in the Palouse country, especially when our own Idaho Vandals and their cross-state rivals the Cougars of WSC mix it up.

Several incidents that have been recalled in the rough and tumble brand of basketball occurred in the first meeting between the Vandals and the Cougars in the Memorial gymnasium. Ray "Tiny" Arndt, WSC's durable 6-foot, 3-inch, 240-pound center attempted to block out Idaho's all-conference guard Preston Brimhall and in doing so was knocked flat on the floor. The play resembled that of a shoulder block commonly used in football.

In the same contest, WSC's forward Bob Gaston in attempting to retain the ball from the backboard received a severe jolt as he plummeted to the floor. Unable to arise from his prone position, the play

RAISE IN PAY
Salaries for Emory and Henry college faculty members were raised five per cent at the recent meeting of the college board of trustees, according to an announcement made by President Foye G. Gibson.

The referees also received a ribbing from the players, as in one case Idaho's Bob Pritchett's temper flared as he took a swing at Al Lightner in the second half of this contest.

In last Saturday's Idaho victory over WSC Nick Stallworth was given a free ticket to the showers after a wild swing at Gordie Prehm of the Cougars. It has been reported that Prehm had been consistently pulling the hair from the back of Stallworth's legs, irritating the Vandal to the extent that there was nothing else to do.

It looks as though the game of basketball has reached the heights of a rugged football contest. Maybe more referees should be used to counteract such difficulties.

It's a well-groomed look you're after, come to the Campus Barber hereafter.

Cagers Aren't 'Poor Idaho' After Stopping WSC Cougars

Ah, but it feels great to see the Cougars beat on their own home court!

Saturday night's victory was the first Idaho win on the maples over WSC since the Vandals whipped their cross-line rivals in four straight games during the 1945-6 season. That was the winter Idaho won its second Northern Division Championship—the first was in 1923.

Idaho's Iron Men
Those four wins are something to remember. WSC boasted loud and long about the team's two All-Americans—Sharp-shooting Gale Bishop and towering Vince Hanson. But the Vandals' five "iron men" held them in control. Little Len Pyne's defense was too much for Bishop, and the great "Whimpy" Quinn's fantastic hook shots more than made up for Hanson's tip-ins.

This year Idaho needs no "iron men" to defeat WSC. Reserves are plentiful, and through Coach Chuck Finley's capable generalship they will be beaten again. The Vandals lose only two men from this year's squad—guards Preston Brimhall and Wendell Christensen—and with replacements like Sam Jenkins and Herb Millard coming up from the Frosh quintet Idaho will be stronger next year.

Defense Won the Game
Finley's emphasis this year has been on defense—tactics borrowed from his old coach Hank Iba of Oklahoma A & M, whose team recently "outscored" the top-flight St. Louis Billikens, 20 to 27. Defense and "out-platooning" Coach Jack Friel's Cougars counted for the win Saturday night, and it wasn't a fluke victory.

Don't sell the Vandals short. They may not come out on top this year, but they're "poor Idaho" no longer.

They laughed when I walked in with tight breeches on but when I bent over they split.

Vandal Portraits

When Joe Grove gets dressed up in his basketball togs and begins maneuvering his six-foot, one-inch, 180-pound frame around the floor of a gymnasium, it spells bad news for the opposition. For Joe, who has been one of the stars of the Idaho varsity for the past two years, has shown up very well on the basketball court, both offensively and defensively.

Basketball isn't the only sport he's ever played, either, since when he left the town of Berwyn, Ill., where he was born on December 31, 1925, Joe went to Cicero, Ill., where he lettered in basketball, baseball, and track.

After he graduated from Cicero's Morton high school in 1944, Joe joined the navy, and spent 44 months in the service. He registered at the University of Idaho in 1947, as a transfer from Morhof junior college in Cicero. Here he distinguished himself by being named to the All-Star team at the Los Angeles Invitational basketball tournament last year, and appears to be headed for even bigger honors this season. When he finishes school, Joe, a junior in PE, hopes to become a coach.
