

The GOLDEN FLEECE by Jason

Herman McDevitt, an Idaho student and member of the House of Representatives, who at 22 is one of the youngest men to ever be elected to the Idaho legislature, has a few words to say about the session convened last week. In a letter which crossed our desk this morning, Representative McDevitt, relates:

"... It is easy to see why some people go into politics. The hours so far have been very good and the salary does not depend on whether you accomplish anything; neither can you be fired very easily until the time comes for another election. For the first five days of the legislature now in session the work was almost entirely organizational and very little of it done on the floor of the house. The old 'cloak and dagger' and 'smoke-filled room' plays a bigger part in the organizational work of this legislature than I ever supposed... even after reading 'All The King's Men.' Can you lend me a dagger? The lobbyists will buy me the cigars."

Mrs. Taylor Secretary

"Larry Mills from Pocatello, an alumni and good friend of the university has been elected Speaker of the House. Mrs. Fred Taylor is now secretary to Mills. She is the mother of Jackie Taylor, Delta Gamma at the university. In her position she more often advises the Speaker what to do or not to do than perhaps any other person. 'I think I should announce my committee appointments so that anyone having comparable interests can contact me. They are: Fish and Game, Reclamation and Irrigation, Judiciary and Rules and Revenue and Taxation."

Will Report to Arg

"I will put the Argonaut on my mailing list so that you will receive a daily account of what is going on here."

McDevitt will be back on campus January 23 to take his law semester finals. He has agreed to send to the Argonaut at least once a week an account of happenings in the state capital which are of interest to the student body. His reports will be printed in a special column.

She Has Troubles!

Looking over our mail, we found another letter today too, of a different nature. It is from a lady who seems just to want to let us in on her troubles, or rather her son's:

"Sit'n here lookin over that new jenny I just swapped for sorta reminds me of my son's troubles in college."

Seems that he was always using bad grammar in school and catchen Hall Columbia for it. Well my boy, being the serious type, studied like sin for three years and was made editor of the school paper during his last year. Naturally being a chip off the old block, he went to town.

But near the end of the first semester, one of his teachers lowered the boom on him. Same old trouble, poor grammar. And this time it was a shoveler in the school paper. Let me tell you that my boy's never the one to back down when he's called. So he just stood up and replied in politician's English:

Follow The Chinese

"Madam—I am fully aware of the errors in the paper. In fact... I have borrowed a trick from the ancient Chinese Editors."

This caused the school marm to prick up her hearing and she comes back with:

"Go on young man, explain yourself."

And my boy says, "Look here Ma'am, (whenever he draws, he's a gitten sore) the Chinese editors for centuries have been fully aware of the inflation effect the discovery of errors has on the reader's ego. And because of this, they intentionally put 'em in. Let me tell you... Ma'am... As editor of this school paper... Ah do the same."

"Well my boy didn't ever tell me what he was getting in the course, but I guess it won't hurt him none to come back for another semester."

Idaho Wins Northwest Debate Cup

The fateful flip of a coin gave Idaho a Pacific Northwest debate trophy last week, breaking a three-way tie between Montana State University, the College of Idaho, and the University of Idaho. The invitational tourney was conducted on the university campus for freshman and sophomore debaters of four-year institutions of higher education.

Representing Idaho were Charles McDevitt and Dean Holyoake, who won five out of six contests; Betty Westerberg and Bob Gibbs; Marion Haggerty and Kenneth Horner. These six copped 14 out of 18 debates, each team debating six times. The question was Resolved: the non-communist countries of the world should form a new international organization.

Seniors Aid

Idaho faculty members who aided in judging the debates were professors C. Dobler, W. Tenney, H. Willis, E. Cebull, and A. Whitehead. Teams from Idaho State college, the College of Idaho, the College of Puget Sound, Montana State university, Washington State college, Gonzaga, and Idaho participated.

Senior students who aided in the meet were Lois Osberg, William von Alven, Richard Gibbs, and Marvin Jagels.

Weather Review Of One Year Ago

Winter had really moved in on the campus one year ago today.

The mercury slid to three degrees below zero and we had already received a large proportion of the 48.3 inches which fell during the month.

Subzero temperatures were recorded on seven of the 15 following days, the lowest being 26 degrees below zero on January 31.

In sharp contrast to the 3 below of last January 16 was a low of 22.6 recorded at 8 a.m. this morning.

Skiers Unhappy

Flurries of snow and rain fell yesterday but the weather cleared up and temperatures went up above 30, as compared with a high of 11 a year ago.

Only 4.7 inches of snow have fallen so far this month with most of the precipitation coming in the form of rain. Little or none of the snow has remained and skiing enthusiasts are fast becoming frustrated.

At this time last year plenty of snow was on hand for the practice of their arts, which they did on or nearby the campus.

Klages Reports

Engineers taking surveying courses have been blessed for the first time in many seasons with little snow to hamper the completion of their projects.

From the files of university weatherman Dr. Karl Klages, where the above figures were obtained, some indication of comparative temperatures between January 1950 and the part of January 1951 already by the boards can be gained.

March Of Dimes Annual Campaign Begins Over Nation

The annual nation-wide March of Dimes campaign began yesterday.

Because of a university regulation governing all campus funds drives, that is, the regulation of all such campaigns under the single Campus Chest drive, no official March of Dimes campaign will be staged on the campus. However, students are urged to contribute generously to the March of Dimes fund by dropping stray dimes in contribution boxes placed downtown for that purpose.

No Decision Yet

According to Vern Bahr, ASUI prexy, a donation was made by the University last year to the March of Dimes campaign from the general reserve fund. The amount of that contribution was $150, the largest single donation received in Latah county last year. No decision as to whether this plan will be followed again this year has yet been made.

Betas Keep Warm With Loose Wiring

A loose wiring connection was blamed for a small blaze that broke out in the Beta Theta Pi house early last Wednesday morning. The fire confined itself to one room, on the second floor, and was extinguished immediately after discovery. Besides consuming a cardboard closet full of clothes belonging to Larry Daigh, the flames demolished the room's rug, curtains, and did extensive damage to the furniture, walls and ceilings.

The blaze was discovered by Richard Lint who heroically broke down the locked door, raced into the midst of the holocaust and with the aid of an extinguisher subdued the fire.

The chapter showed their gratitude for Lint's fearless act of bravery by appointing him "Fire Warden" of the house. He was presented a large paper badge on a tooth pick.

When commended for his actions Lint blushing replied "Twarnt' notin' 'tall."

Pogge Interprets New Security Law Effect On Colleges

An official interpretation of the provisions of the new social security law as they affect public colleges and universities has been given by Director O. C. Pogge, bureau of old age and survivors' insurance, social security administration, federal security agency.

Mr. Pogge's report answers two questions which have been raised:

1. If a college staff is covered by a retirement system involving contributions paid to some non-governmental organization, and this system is not part of a general state retirement system or plan, does this bar application for federal coverage?

Answers Given

The answer is yes, it does bar federal coverage, if state funds are contributed to the system, or if it is sponsored in any way by the state or its instrumentality.

2. If a retirement system covers only the faculty of an institution may the non-faculty employees still be covered by the federal system as a separate "coverage group." The answer is yes, they may.

Chetwood To Head All-University Day Scheduled In April

April 21 has been chosen by student and faculty committees for All-University Day, 1951, Bill Chetwood, chairman for the calendar event, announced today.

At that time the University will open officially its many doors to visiting high school seniors throughout the state.

Besides athletic contests occurring on that day, a dance in the evening will "put the cap" on the recreational activities for the occasion, stated Dick Raivio, assistant chairman.

The purpose of University Day is to familiarize prospective college men and women with the University of Idaho, campus, and campus life.

Logan Conducts Singers In "A German Requiem"

"A German Requiem," by Johannes Brahms will be presented Thursday night by the University singers, with Norman Logan conducting. The concert will be in the university auditorium at 8 p. m.

"Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be comforted," will be sung by the chorus for the first part of the program. Then the chorus will sing "For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of men as the flower of grass."

Forney Soloes

"Baritone S. Keith Forney will sing the chorus," Lord, make me to know the measure of my days on earth." Number four "How lovely is thy dwelling place, O Lord of Hosts!" will be sung by the chorus.

"Ye now are sorrowful; however, ye shall again behold me, and your heart shall be joyful," will be sung by soprano Joanne Peters, with the chorus.

Chorus Concludes

"Mr. Forney and the chorus will sing 'Here on earth have we no continuing place. Lo, I unfold unto you a mystery—we shall not all sleep when He cometh' for number six of the 'Requiem.'"

Concluding the program the chorus will close with "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord, from henceforth."

Brahms named this work, "A German Requiem" to distinguish it from the liturgical Mass for the dead, as written by Mozart, Palestrina and others. Unlike liturgical compositions, Brahms' "Requiem" offers up no prayer for the dead; and the text is sung (in the original) in German rather than Latin.

Story Told

The underlying conception of "A German Requiem" is expressed as follows:

"Blessed are they which mourn, for they shall be comforted. It is true that all flesh is as grass, and the glory of man like the flower of grass; it is true that every man must die one day. But death is not an eternal annihilation; the redeemed of the Lord shall obtain everlasting joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

"And, therefore, we say in the end, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from this time on. For death leads us into a better life; those who lead a God-fearing and upright life on earth shall see their dear ones again in heaven, and rest from their care and labour, for their works follow them."

Marian Frykman will accompany the chorus on the organ, and Greta Beck will be piano accompanist for the concert.

No admission will be charged for the concert, and the public is invited to attend.

Students Allowed In Book Shelves

Library officials are now permitting undergraduate students to go directly into the book shelves. This arrangement, whereby students can browse through the book collection at will, will continue to the end of the semester.

If it works out satisfactorily, this program will be extended through next semester. Idaho is one of the few colleges to grant such permission.

An improvement to the library was installed recently. This is a stairway at the west end of the library, leading directly from the reference desk and main reading room to the basement level.

Let's Make the Best of Things While We Still Can

Dear Jason

Dear Jason:

Awhile back my roommate (who wishes his name withheld) and I started out to take an extensively extensive poll on male vs. female opinion on the campus. We began in fine fashion, gathering quite a number of opinions from both sexes, until the foolishness of taking such a poll penetrated my (I speak for myself only) thick skull and I hastily gave up the whole idea.

Nevertheless, I was left with a number of opinions from persons polled which impressed my mind. In general, the opinion of an overwhelming number of girls polled was very favorable toward the boys (thanks, girls, we need tolerance) while only a slight minority of the boys polled were favorable in their opinions toward the girls. Maybe the boys only revealed their frustration (?).

Of course I realize that no boy (or girl) has much to say about his (or her) natural physical appearance but this is of no tremendous consequence in boy-girl relationships if such intangible, but indispensable qualities as kindness, understanding, and patience are put into practice with heartfelt sincerity. Most students plan to marry eventually, anyway, and if their respective marriages are to be successful and happy, they will need all the patience and understanding they can find. To get a head start, why not put these necessary elements of character into practice now and end the battle of the sexes?

In fact, in writing this letter, I feel as though I am the only one still fighting (?), so I'll throw away my remaining criticisms and call it a day.

Yours sincerely,
 Ralph A. DeMarr

Big Problem Of Marriage Is Changing To Cooperation

By Lester A. Kirkendall

One of the problems of adjusting to marriage is that of shifting from a competitive relationship between men and women to a cooperative one. Far too many boys and girls, men and women, are taught to stress differences, nourish antagonisms, and compete rather than to work together and understand one another. We have immortalized this rivalry in our common expression, "the opposite sex."

In our society, men typically occupy the more favorable position. In general they have greater freedom, a wider range of vocational choice, are less restricted by social regulations, and in marriage are less tied down by their home responsibilities. The freedom of women is also much restricted by their biological role in reproduction. Consequently they often feel they are discriminated against.

Rivalry Is Carried

Competition rather than cooperation between the sexes occurs in many sectors of our social life. For example, children in school are sometimes organized into sex groups, and expected to compete with each other for marks. The same kind of challenges and comparisons are often made within families. It has been said that boys and girls "are treated as alike whenever it suits the rest of the world, and as unlike whenever that provides a better goal. If a boy cries, he is scolded more than a girl who doesn't cry; when she outstrips him, he is told it is even worse than if he had been outstripped by a boy, and yet she may be almost twice his size and he has also been told not to hit her because she is a girl."

This same rivalry and competitiveness is carried into adolescent and premarital life. The January, 1950, Readers Digest, summarizes a chapter from "The American People" by Geoffrey Gorer, an Englishman. Dating is called "Our Most Popular Tribal Custom." Seen through Mr. Gorer's eyes, dating becomes a highly competitive and intricate game between the sexes. He says that one feature of dating "is a mixture of persuasion, flattery, wit, and love-making—called a "line" . . . The object of the "line" is to entertain, amuse and captivate the girl, but there is no deep emotional involvement; it is a game of skill. The girl's skill consists in parrying the "line" without discouraging her partner or becoming emotionally involved herself. To the extent that she falls for the "line" she is a loser in this intricate game but if she discourages her partner so much that he does not request a subsequent date she is equally a loser. To remain the winner, she must make the nicest discriminations between yielding and rigidity. The man scores to the extent that he is able to get more favors from the girl than his rivals.

Need Attention

Instances of this competitive relationship could be multiplied; the double-standard of sex conduct makes men and women competitors in this important area of adjustment.

If this situation is to improve several things are necessary. First, in our families children of either sex need to be accepted for the worth of their personalities rather than valued because they belong to one sex or the other. In courtship, engagement, and marriage both men and women need to be asking themselves "What are the particular needs and unique problems of my partner? Does her (or his) membership in the other sex

THE COLLEGE COMMUNITY

My first principle is this: The most effective single instrument in effective training for democracy is not the college curriculum, but the college campus, the college community. The most important questions which our colleges must emphasize and clarify today are two big and very simple ones. They are these: first, What kind of community is it to which modern men belong? Second, How must men learn to live if they are to escape disaster and give reality and significance to that community of which they are a part? — Dean Christian Gauss.

How About Preregistration?

Gripes have been heard from many sources, both student and faculty, about the registration system. For a regular registration procedure, the University's system is pretty good. Lines don't get TOO long and if one starts at 10 o'clock the first day he may finish on the morning of the third day. There is only one possible solution to the problem—preregistration.

The pros and cons of the issue in favor of preregistration are many—some good, some not so. One of the main worries of the administration, apparently, is that it would interfere with final test week. This could probably be overcome by placing preregistration on such a basis that it could be accomplished before Christmas. (Most of the arguments are based on establishment of this plan for second semester registration, but apply equally well to any plan which might be set up for Spring registration for the Fall term.)

Various faculty members are opposed to the idea on the grounds that it would place an added strain on them. But a majority of them are in some way connected with registration as it stands now, and with preregistration faculty members could arrange with students a plan enabling them to register at the convenience of both. A little sidelight, and not truly the main reason for advocating this plan, is that both faculty and students would be afforded a rest period between semesters.

A factor very important to students is that the book lists would necessarily have to be printed sooner. This would enable the students to trade books and buy and sell from each other, alleviating the present situation much more easily than with the aid of such programs as the one currently under consideration—the trading center for books.

Students are fairly certain of their next semester's studies before Christmas. This is with the exception of courses inadvertently flunked in the interim. But the only way to cope with the situation of that nature would be a quarter system.

Perhaps another headache feared by the administration would be long lines of students queued outside of the registrar's office, who were entering school for the first time. But this could be coped with by that same office. Take a look at the lines of students who form there after the regular registration period has ended. These students are there because they went home, or didn't bother to register, and figured the small fine was worth the extra-free time. The students who are there now wouldn't have to register late if preregistration were inaugurated.

A few more problems might be encountered in registering in the Spring for a Fall semester, mainly because of the influx of freshmen and new students. In such event, a line similar to that now in existence could be set up for one day, and could easily handle the newcomers. These new additions to our school aren't in such desperate need of a period in which to swap books anyway—they generally have none to swap and will start from scratch.

Preregistration will not throw more work on anyone, if a little study is made of other schools' systems prior to beginning our own. It will be to the advantage of students, faculty and administration, and cannot be overlooked or pigeonholed "for future reference."

Puzzled Campus Expresses Views On Present Inflation

By George

"Is you is or is you ain't" seems to be topic of today's poll. As we were peering around the campus yesterday, the question of what Idaho students thought would be bust, oops, best struck us full in the face concerning the question of gay deceivers. Since final exams are getting precariously close, we thought people needed an up-lifting, so off again.

We wandered into the Bucket, busted in on a duo sipping coffee, and asked them the question of the day, "Do you think women should wear falsies?"

Bob Frink, Sigma Nu: "Yes, I think they should because what nature has forgotten, can be supplied by cotton." We gulped twice and asked the other fellow, Don Quane, also Sigma Nu. "None of the girls I know do, but they're here to stay," he replied.

Padding With Men?

Further enlightened, we approached Virgil Felton, ATO, who said, "Yes, style demands padding—men's as well as women's clothes."

Our curiosity aroused, we decided to really delve into the situation. Our next interviewee was Bill Nash, TKE, who stated, "I think there are two sides to this question—a couple of good points in favor—but I don't like affection in any way, shape, or form. They are only worn by girls who want to put on a big front."

Wondering whether the subject of this whole thing was pointless or not, we inquired further of Stu Dollinger, Campus Club. "Certainly, if it improves the outward appearance of their figure," said he, leaving us further in the dark.

A red flash whizzed by, we tripped him and found him to be Charles McDevitt, Sigma Chi. He answered, "I think honesty is the best policy, but not the best policy. Nowadays girls have to put up a good front or bust."

World Is Disappointed

Pat Reilly then informed us, "I don't think they are necessary. Nowadays the new low neckline and different styles do much more for girls than falsies."

Jack Skull, Beta, walked up and we slipped him the $64 question. "No, there is too much bitter disappointment in the world already."

We blushed and thanked him. Then we asked Pat McGill, DG, who also blushed, but bravely answered, "No, of course not—well, it depends."

Running to meet a deadline, we close thoughtfully thinking that maybe there is more to this than meets the eye.

Oregon Is Accepting Dental Applications

The University of Oregon Dental School is now accepting applications for the fall of 1952 and will give provisional acceptances. Such provisional acceptances, if sent to draft boards, should defer military service. Any pre-dental students wishing to apply at Oregon should see Dr. H. Walter Steffens, Science 203, at once.

G.I. Insurance Up For Renewal

G.I. term insurance policies, which thousands of former servicemen took out during 1943, will come up for renewal or conversion sometime this year, according to the Veterans Administration.

These policies are effective for an eight-year period, and must be renewed or converted before their expiration date, if they are to be continued in force without the veteran having to take a physical examination.

Of the 13 players on Duke university's varsity basketball roster, only one is a native of North Carolina. Duke is located at Raleigh, N. C.

Delvin Miller of Meadowlands, Pa., topped the Grand Circuit harness racer drivers in 1950 with a .502 average for 211 starts.

Ephraim (Red) Rocha, 6-foot 9-inch center of the Baltimore Bullets in the N.B.A., was born in Hilo, Hawaii.

Guard Roger Johnson of the University of Arizona basketball team led the Tucson city recreation softball league in hitting last season with a .571 mark.

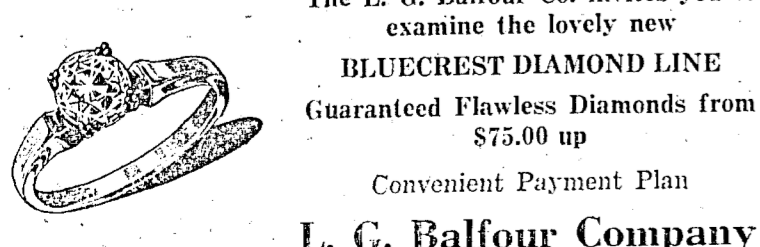

Champions of ten major conferences automatically will qualify for the 16-team NCAA basketball championship tournament in March.

One Tradition Remembered! Is The Other Forgotten?

By Don Hardy

There are a couple of traditions around here which mean very little, and very few people pay any attention to them. However, it would be impossible to go through a year without them.

These two traditions of which we speak are "Hello Walk," and a feature in the Argonaut about same. Since tradition must be kept up, here goes nothing.

Hello Walk, for the information of those who don't know, is the walk which goes down the hill from the front door of the Ad. building. Strangely enough the tradition holds that one must say hello to everyone on the walk. In other words, everyone is supposed to be deliciously happy with the spirit of friendship bursting out all over.

Something has happened to our little tradition. If you should walk along saying hello to everyone you meet, people would think you were out of your head. It seems to be the style to trot along with hands in pockets, coat collar turned up, and a mean look on the face.

A short time ago this writer decided to throw discretion to the winds and say hello to a total stranger on "Yak-yak walk."

Friendly Life Story Revealed Of Popular Campus Casanova

By Barbara Green

Fredrick Pennell, the official representative of the long arm of the law on the Idaho campus, is rumored to know more about the university than any student or faculty member. Known to hundreds of students as "Fearless Freddie," this policeman has become an Idaho tradition. Incoming freshmen are told, "If you haven't met Freddie, you haven't attended college."

"Freddie" began life in Bristol, Tennessee, but the words, "Go West, young man," brought him to Washington where he spent two years as Washington State college. After leaving college, Fred worked at various times as a hotelman, a cattleman, and a salesman.

Fresh are Surprised
In 1946 "Freddie" came to Idaho because he was attracted by the friendly people found in a university town.

This spirit of friendliness has enabled Fred to meet most of the regular campus habitués, and he is able to call a large percentage of the students by name. Many freshmen are surprised to find that after attending Idaho for only a few weeks, they are being hailed by the familiar figure on the corner.

Idaho co-eds are much friendlier than Idaho males according to Freddie, at least they are more willing to introduce themselves and their friends than the men. While on the subject of women, Freddie stated that despite recent comment to the contrary, Idaho's feminine population is a very attractive one. "They are not only good looking, he continued, "but they have personalities as well."

Has Pet Peeve
Like most people Fred has a pet peeve. His greatest source of annoyance is the student who stops in the middle of the street to talk to his friends. Directing the swelling university traffic, is another constant headache for this protector of law and order. Noon-time hams, U-turning automobiles, and jaywalking students leave Freddie fuming. Fred's one goal is to teach students to walk in the pedestrian lanes.

To the question about his most unusual experience, Freddie only shook his head. "Everyday on this campus is unusual," he replied, with a twinkle in his blue eyes, "but the more unusual experiences aren't printable."

Friend to All
Since his Idaho debut Fred has managed to establish himself as an integral part of campus life. He has been not only an enforcer of the law but also a valued friend to many students and faculty members.

Idaho Student Impressed With Southern Hospitality

By Barbara Greene

Don Theophilus, Jr., has a reputation on the Idaho campus as a man who gets around, and his 2000-mile hitch-hiking trip to New Orleans substantiated this theory.

Don felt "the call of the open road" in Los Angeles where he had ridden with a friend. Setting out alone, Don arrived in New Orleans two days later. During the trip he rode in every conceivable type of vehicle and with every type of person. Don found the most interesting traveling companion to be the Southern Negroes who were quite willing to discuss the racial problem in the South.

Attended Events
After his arrival in New Orleans, Theophilus was kept busy just accepting free tickets. On these passes, Don attended the L.S.U.-Idaho boxing matches, the Sugar Bowl, tennis matches, track and field events, two basketball games, and a yachting event.

The sporting world was not the only one to extend its hospitality to the Idaho sophomore, Don received invitations to a press cocktail party and a buffet supper. A ride on an authentic Mississippi steam boat was also included on his busy schedule. During his spare time, he explored the city, and the campuses of Tulane University and Loyola University.

Don was most impressed by the renowned Southern hospitality. "The people were wonderful," he said, "I've never seen such friendly spirit."

Willamette Valley Trip Next On Vandal Slate

Coach Chuck Finley and his Idaho court combo began to map plans yesterday for their first invasion of the Willamette Valley this weekend. They journey to McArthur Court Friday for a two-game stand against the Oregon Ducks. Idaho earned a split at Eugene last season and figure to do as good, if not better, in this year's series with the Webfoots. At least they hope they don't have to operate for eighty minutes under the same cooker-pressure tension they sweated out last Friday and Saturday with Washington State.

The Idaho games will be the first action that the Ducks have played at home in conference competition and only the third time Oregon has appeared in McArthur Court this season. Oregon has played nine of its first 15 games on the road and are now set for a long home stand.

Last week the Vandals added two chapters in the book of Northern Division one-point basketball thrillers by eking out a 43-42 spine-tingler Friday and dropping a 41-40 hairline decision to the Cougars Saturday. The two games were terrible from the spectator standpoint but in the conference flag chase Idaho got nowhere fast. Meanwhile, at Corvallis, Oregon State edged past Washington in a squeaker, 41 to 40 and if the one-point victories continue in the Northern circuit throughout the remainder of the schedule, state laws in Idaho, Oregon and Washington may be passed to prohibit people over the age of 60 from attending the contests. The life insurance companies might demand it.

Too Tight For Comfort
Both affairs ended in true Ned Brandt fashion. Friday, sophomore center Hartley Kruger calmly dunked two charity shots with eight seconds to go and the din of the Idaho crowd was deafening. The fracas was nip and tuck all the way as the lead switched hands 17 times and was knotted on 12 other occasions. Idaho had a 26-24 advantage at the intermission period but what WSC lacked in height and talent, they almost made up for in determination. They took the lead momentarily at 40-38 and 42-41 and had

Freshmen Stretch String To Eleven Straight Wins

The high scoring University of Idaho freshman basketball five rolled to two additional victories last weekend as they plastered the Washington State college yearlings twice, 43-31 Friday evening on the Memorial gym floor and 64-50 the following evening in Pullman.

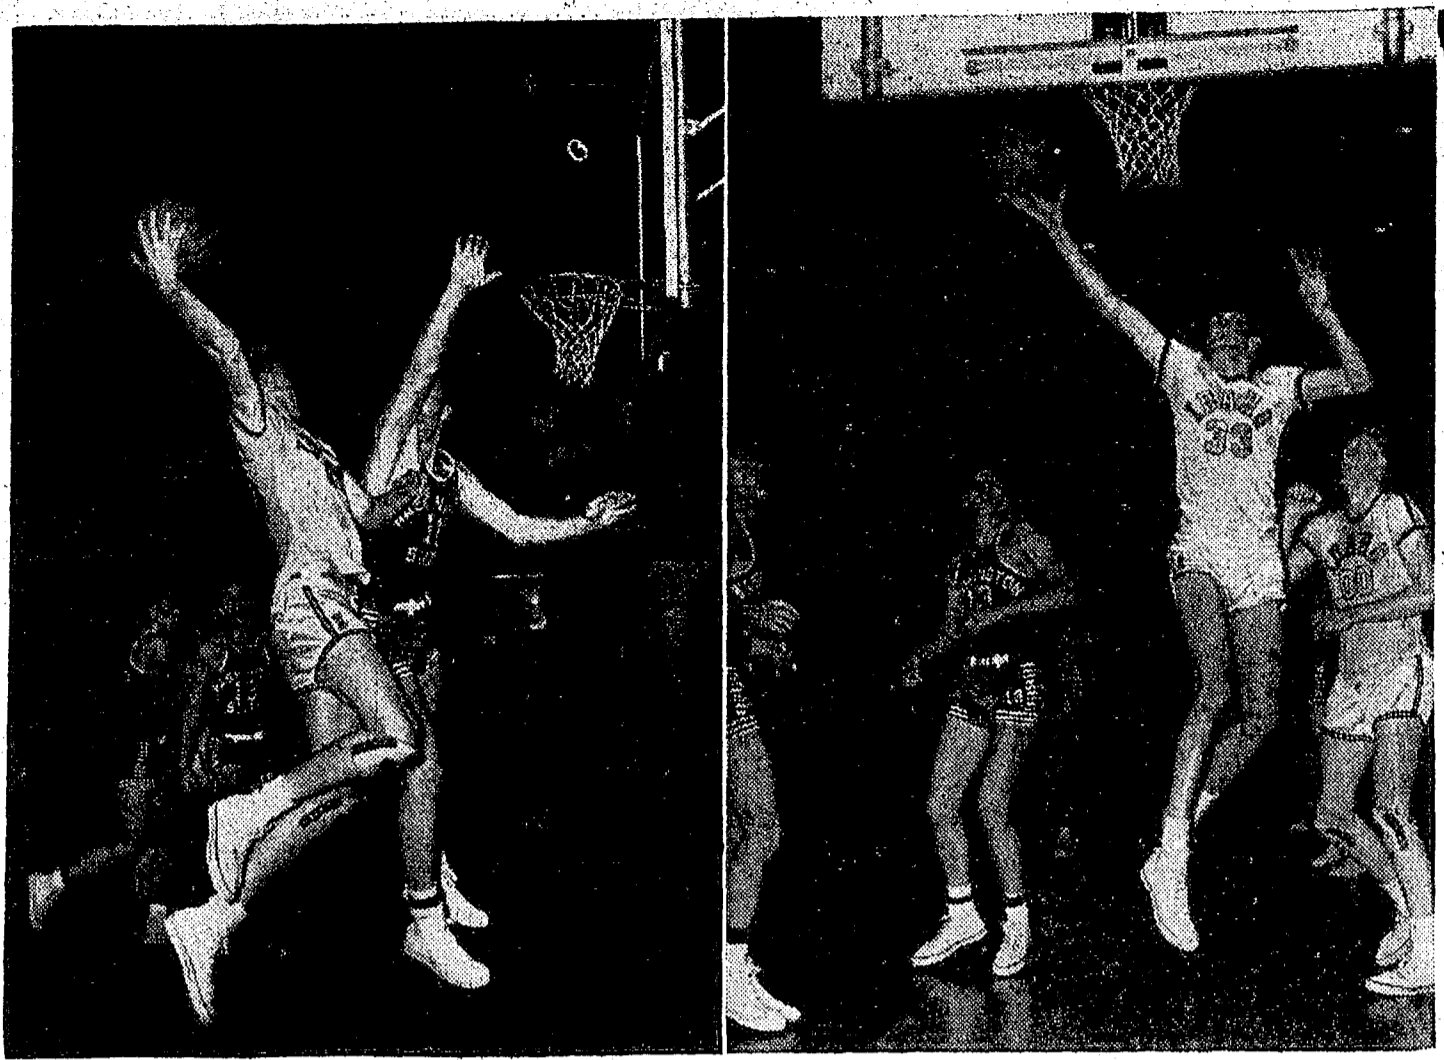

The double wins gave Coach Art Smith's charges eleven consecutive triumphs. Following the contests, up-to-date statistics showed Tom Flynn, high scoring guard, as the Babes' top scorer with 125 points. Flynn has an 11-point average per game. He is followed by Stan Wilcox, 6-foot 3-inch forward, who has tallied 108.

Hitting with the brilliant accuracy that has characterized their play during the entire season, the Vandal Babes started the Friday contest with a bang, and at the conclusion of the first half they had piled up a 32-15 margin. The Cougababes caught fire for a brief period in the second half and pulled within nine points of the Idahoans at 38-29, but five straight points by Stan Wilcox and three field goals by Ken McClennen shot the Vandals ahead to stay. McClennen and Tom Flynn were the sparks of the ball game with their accurate shooting, floorplay, and backboard work. McClennen was top scorer for the evening with 14 points.

In Pullman Saturday night the Cougababes ran into referee trouble as they had 27 fouls assessed against them while Idaho picked up 15. Idaho made only three more field goals than the Staters, but they had a margin of eight in

Idaho Tankmen Drown EWCE 50-25 In 1951 Season Debut

Coach Eric Kirkland's 1951 tankmen gave the Eastern Washington College of Education swimming pool a sound churning Friday afternoon and when the tidal wave had receded, the Silver and Gold men had washed the Savages 50-25.

The Vandals took first place in eight out of nine feature events with several team individuals turning in outstanding times and bettered previous earlier season marks. This was the first of a two meet series with the Cheney Savages before the Vandals swing into the Northern Division conference against Oregon the 9th of February.

NCAB Statistics List Idaho Defense 15th

The National Collegiate Athletic Bureau official basketball statistics release of January 6 places the University of Idaho 15th in the nation on team defense. The Vandals thus moved up five notches from their December 30 ranking of 20th.

Ranking 21st on December 30, the University of Washington stepped forward to place itself one spot in front of the Vandals in the latest standings. Southern California advanced from 26th to 17th while California dropped out of the top 30 after holding the 28th position.

In the offensive department, the only Pacific Coast conference representative was the U.C.L.A. Bruins, who also failed to land in the ratings after placing 16th in the December 30 release.

Only two members of the University of Florida 22-man basketball team live out of the state.

IM Basketball

The second week of intramural play on the Memorial gymnasium hardwood commenced last night as WSH No. 2 routed Pine Hall No. 2 33 to 15, LH No. 1 stopped CC No. 1 41 to 31, and Idaho Club No. 2 forfeited to CH No. 2 in the 7:30 contests.

Willis Sweet No. 2 opened fire quickly and posted a 20-6 half-time lead over Pine Hall No. 2. The second half was a little tighter but WSH continued to dominate the game. Katesanes of WSH led the scorers with nine tallies.

Lindley Hall racked up an eight point lead in the first half and stretched it another two points in the second to win handily over Campus Club. Puckett paced LH with 14 counters and Collins posted 12 for the losers.

In the 8:30 games Sigma Nu swamped DSP 58 to 20 as McCarty netted 19 points for the victors. Delta Chi edged AT0 27 to 25 in a thriller. Bryan led DC with 10 markers, and Atchison followed with eight counters for the losers.

In the remaining contest Campus Club No. 2 whipped Lindley Hall No. 2, 33 to 26. Olson of Campus Club paced the scorers with 10 points.
