Slogan Contest Begins Soon

One male and one female student will be selected master of the slaves through their entries in the Blood Drive Slogan contest which starts tomorrow.

Clara Armstrong, Homecoming queen, and Flip Kleffner, ASUI president, will be slaves for a day as part of the four-day-long Vandal Blood Drive which will run from October 26 through October 29. These two will serve their selected masters October 25 and will attend the blood drive Kickoff dance that evening.

The male student will have Clara as his slave and the slave of his living group. Flip will serve the female whose entry will be selected.

The contest starts tomorrow and will continue through Wednesday, October 20. Students may leave their entries in boxes set up in the SUB and the Ad building. "My Heart Bleeds For You,"

"You're My Type," are sample titles suggested by publicity chairman Dale Carlisle. You may enter as many slogans as you wish, Carlisle commented. Slogans suggesting that it doesn't hurt to give blood have the best chance of winning, he said.

Representatives will be appointed in each living group to assist the blood drive program. The representatives will get the names of students unable to give blood so that these students will not be counted in the living group percentage.

Release slips will be available in all living groups next week. Tuesday's Argonaut will run one of the slips.

Navy To Welcome Washington, D. C. Inspectors Soon

The NROTC will roll out the carpet of welcome, October 12, when Capt. W. A. Stevenson, head of field administration, and J. G. Cornwall, Educational Specialist, arrive. Both men are from the Office of Candidate training, Washington, D.C.

While here on their one-day visit, they will observe the problems and conditions at the unit level. They will receive the views and recommendations our department of NROTC may have.

The juniors and seniors in the NROTC program will be offered a new course next semester in experimental Naval Administration. This school will be one of four offering the course.

Ruling Set For Student Credit Hours

In order to be classified as a full-time student in the University of Idaho for the purpose of having class standings certified to Selective Service, the Academic Council has ruled that 12 semester hours each semester are the minimum hours which must be carried by a student.

A student cannot carry more than 12 hours one semester and have the extra credits count to make up an underload the next semester. There must be a minimum of 12 hours each semester, and they must be carried until the end of each semester.

Committees For Board Organized

Mrs. Ethelyn Toner and Dr. Robert E. McConnell, members of the college accreditation team, spoke at the Executive Board meeting Tuesday night. Other business included committee appointments and a motion to have Bob Bakes draw up a challenge to WSC for the coming football game.

Dick Gaskins was appointed to serve as chairman of the student recruiting committee. Wayne Hodgson was named to the traffic appeals board. Jim Kruger, is the new independent member of the education committee and Barbara Anderson will serve as the new Green member.

Appointed to the Student Services Council are Bill Emacio, Ed Schmith and Mollie Godbold, Independent; Tom West, Bob Newhouse and Les Walker, Greek.

Terrell Davis, Jack Parker, Gene Dickey and Flip Kleffner were appointed to formulate an ASUI policy regarding off-campus athletic participation. Davis reported on the meeting of the Athletic Board of Control.

Chuck White was asked to check about the PE department's organizing more dance classes.

O. K. Olaf

Olaf Stavik, student from Norway, puts the finishing touch on a remodeling job in the campus International House. Bernard Nugues, French student, and Frank Libersky lend a hand with the job.

International House Open For Students

Walk in the door and popular American music greets a person from the radio; talk to a man and he speaks fluent English; sit down and coffee is served.

Typical American residence? Well, yes and no.

The residence in this case is an "international house" which has been opened this fall at the University of Idaho on a trial basis.

A project of the Cosmopolitan Club, an organization composed of American and foreign students, the house will serve mainly as a "living room" where foreign students may entertain and thereby return the hospitality of other students and university faculty members.

The cooperative venture has been led by two European students, Olaf Stavik of Norway and Joris Rosse of The Netherlands who is now in France on a Fulbright fellowship.

"In the past we have been guests at many student living group houses and faculty homes," Stavik said. "Now we have our own 'home' in which to entertain and represent our countries' social customs and food to American students."

Formerly a private residence, the house is still in the renovation stage, yet it has already served a purpose this fall. It was a "hotel" for early-arriving foreign students until they obtained permanent living quarters on the campus.

Stavik estimated that during the past summer 20 students, both American and foreign, used the house as a stopping place while visiting the University.

The Norwegian student pointed out another important function of the house. During Christmas and other vacation periods when most students return to their homes, the "International house" will be open to anyone unable to go home for the holidays.

Several foreign students worked on the house the past summer to get it "in shape" for this fall. Joining Stavik and Mr. and Mrs. Rosse in the renovation program were Frank Libersky of Czechoslovakia; Mike Serustan, Persia; and Tore Kristoffersen and Helge Gagnum, both of Norway.

With all material financed by the students, the group painted the house, remodeled the kitchen and bathroom and accomplished other renovation projects.

Informal educational programs sponsored by the Cosmopolitan club and led by the club's advisers are planned for the house. Dr. Robert E. Hosack, chairman of political science at the University, will lead a lecture-discussion program on American government.

English for foreign students including idiomatic expressions and vocabulary building is the title of an educational series planned by Thomas F. Hopkins of the speech faculty. Also scheduled for the house are modern American musical programs.

About three foreign students will live in the house permanently. Joining Stavik as an early resident and host is Libersky.

A two-year letterman on the Idaho ski team, Stavik is majoring in electrical engineering. Following his graduation from the University, he plans to go to Japan to continue his education.

Hosack and Hopkins are advisers for the Cosmopolitan club and International house. Stavik leased the property from Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Workshop Plans Chamber Operas For Next Month

Two Opera Workshop chamber operas scheduled for performances on November 5 and 6, are in rehearsal with much interest being shown by all who are working with the productions, according to S. Keith Forney and Edmund M. Chavez, directors.

Performances will be held in the Recital Hall of the Music Building, with this being the first showing of a dramatic work in that auditorium.

Chamber opera, or "opera in miniature," is more interesting in a smaller auditorium as it is so much more intimate in style and character than full length grand opera. Both operas, "Sunday Excursion" by Alec Wilder; and "The Impresario," by Mozart, will be sung in English, as are all Opera Workshop productions.

Co-Chairmen Are Named

Jatk Wilson and Marcia Thornton have been named co-chairmen for the Dad's Day weekend November 13 and 14.

Dorothy Larson will head publicity, Nancy Backstrom and Roger Tovey have charge of the dance, and house decorations will be under the direction of Mike Spence and Alenor Hathaway.

Other committee appointments include Dick Roads, awards; Dorothy Warren, judge; Bill Bausser, Susie Oberg, registration and Elaine Schroeder, general secretary.

The next general meeting will be Wednesday.

Five-Cent Hop To Pop Tonite

Tonight the annual Spur-Nickel Hop will take place in all the women's living groups.

Fellows will be required to pay five cents for each fifteen minutes they spend in the halls and houses.

Spurs will be at the doors to collect the money, which goes to supplement their treasury.

Attendance last year was nearly one hundred per cent of the men on campus, with the Gamma Phi's collecting the most money. There will be competition this year, also.

The living groups will be open for dancing from 8 until 11 tonight, with all girls present.

Louise Tatko, Nancy Backstrom, Carole Lyle, and Pat Parsons have been in charge of making publicity posters. Judy Crookham, Karen Lee Krauss, Carolyn Sanderson, Dorothy Larson, Barbara Knight and Shirley Danielson had the responsibility of the skits which were presented in the men's living groups during dinner last night.

Students Are Income Tax Exemptions

Students may be declared by their parents or guardians as income tax exemptions, even if they earn over $600 total income.

This was announced in the National NEA Divisions of Legislation and Federal Regulations publication recently.

A University staff letter quoted the report saying "PL 591 provides that the $600 earnings limit for dependents is not applicable if the dependent is the taxpayer's child and is under the age of 19 or is a student.

"Student" is defined as a full-time student at an educational institution during at least five months of the year." This would apply to most University of Idaho full-term students, according to the report.

The report also said, "... In the case of children of the taxpayer who are students the 'half support' test excludes the value of scholarships received from an educational institution."

Formerly, a $600 exemption could be taken for a dependent only if he had gross income less than $900. Thus, if a child helped to pay his way through school by securing part-time employment, the parent was denied a dependency exemption if the child happened to earn more than $600, the report said.

X-Ray Unit Takes 996 U. Students

The ASUI office reports that 996 students went through the Idaho Chest X-ray mobile unit in the three days it was here.

About two to four weeks after the survey is completed a report will be mailed to each person examined. If the X-Ray appears normal he will be notified. If the film shows need for further study, he will be notified where he may have another X-Ray without charge.

If the second film shows any significant departure from the normal he will be advised to see his physician promptly.

About two out of every hundred people X-rayed by the unit have been found to have TB, according to the unit.

Company C Wins Drill Competition

Company C, under the command of midshipman Jim Townsend won the bi-annual drill competition held Thursday morning. Townsend is a senior Marine student and will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marines upon completion of this school year.

Platoon commanders of company C are Tom West and Harvey Hoff.

Music Honoraries Schedule All Campus Moonlight Sing

An all campus "Moonlight Sing" has been scheduled for October 12, from 6:15 to 7 p.m. by the Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia and the Sigma Alpha Iota music honoraries.

The "Moonlight Sing" was originated in 1946 and two sings were held, one in 1946, the other in 1947. The last one scheduled was for 1948, but inclement weather forced cancellation. The idea never was rejuvenated.

The sings were held at the site presently occupied by the music building. Professor of Music Mr. Norman Logan led the singing.

This year it has been planned to have the sing at the council fire pit behind the Field House. Bill Exworthy will accompany the singers on the piano and popular music will be the plan for the evening. Song leaders for the affair will be announced later.

Everybody who likes to sing is urged to attend and join in the singing.

The GOLDEN FLEECE by Jason

So the cards are lined up for a $150,000 ice skating rink. Last year's Executive Board, after holding polls, decided that the students wanted to build a rink with the $10 facilities fees. The fee brings in an additional $50,000 per year.

We are not condemning last year's Board for any wool pulling but we are strongly suggesting that student opinion is now against such a venture.

The proposal is ready to be passed this year. This writer does not believe that Idaho students want to skate, at least not to the tune of $150,000.

To prove our point, and we hope your's also, this column contains a ballot which can be clipped and filled out indicating your wishes.

If the number of ballots received is high enough to indicate a cross section of the campus we believe the problem will be fully investigated before any further action is taken.

Other suggestions last year included scholarships, a starting fund for a new swimming pool, a golf driving range, a ski lift, more campus parking facilities, a winter sports area and additional tennis courts.

If you are concerned with this situation we ask you to clip this coupon, indicate your wishes and hand it in either to the Argonaut office or the ASUI office, both located in the Student Union building.

Accrediting Team Studies U Of I Curricula, Books

An accrediting team composed of faculty members from several West Coast colleges has spent the last four days accrediting the University. The team, made up of 25 of the area's top educators, is conducting a school-wide accreditation study of universities in the West under the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools.

While visiting the University of Idaho campus the accreditors have been visiting classes, evaluating text books and curricula, and conferring with faculty members and students. Tuesday they attended a luncheon with the Deans and administrative officers of the University.

Each member of the team will write a report of his findings and will submit the report to the NASHS at a meeting held in Salt Lake City in December.

The team's report will not be made public until after December 1 when the reports are given to the higher commission of the Association. The Association will then make a final accreditation and release its findings several days later.

Jayme Vieira Pinheiro, student from Brazil, takes a bead on some economy size Idaho wood. Pinheiro is attending the University on a Consul General Foster Forestry fellowship granted by Dr. Carol H. Foster, a 1906 Idaho graduate.

Brazilian Granted Foster Fellowship

"This is a beautiful opportunity for me. I've waited 12 years to study in the United States."

These are the words of Jayme Vieira Pinheiro of Sao Paulo, Brazil, who is attending the University of Idaho on a Consul General Foster Forestry fellowship offered by Dr. Carol H. Foster, a 1906 graduate of the University.

"One of the main reasons I'm here is to study about coniferous plantations, especially pine trees," Pinheiro said. "In my research studies I hope to find a pine that will grow in Brazil."

He explained that there are no species of pine trees that grow well in Sao Paulo at the present time.

Pinheiro pointed out that the food, education and campus life of the two countries are very similar. He is looking forward to December when his wife and three

Bird, assistant economist, said the project was being financed by the RMA and the state. The three men have just returned from a three week's tour of 160 packing plants in southern and southeastern Idaho.

Twelve of these 160 will be selected for sample plants. These 12 will be visited at least two times this fall and at their high and low periods during the next three years.

Liberal Arts For Engineers?

The recurring problems of specialization vs. liberalization are in the air again. This subject gains importance each new year. As our engineers become more plentiful industries can begin to choose their help with an eye towards their future usefulness as executives.

Business Week magazine quotes Dr. Vannevar Bush as one of the most vocal men in the call for a more liberal education for engineers. Dr. Bush, president of the Carnegie Institute of Washington, is quoted as arguing "that the engineers' training is too narrow, too specialized."

A scientist with a liberal training in the basic theories of technology can frequently make a novel project look like child's play while an engineer is still thumbing through his textbooks. During the war physicists solved many of the difficulties of radar and became engineers in the process.

From the above statements we note that problems such as how a unit expenditure will affect a total outlay cannot always be handled by engineers. Such economic problems must then be handled by the men in a separate executive department.

Also the problems of what type of a return and profit a project can expect must often be referred to the economists merely because an engineer does not have the background he might have.

Along with the problems in economics that an engineer finds difficult, he is often called upon to make social evaluations of proposed projects or to handle the problem of directing men in the construction of some installation. These problems require a knowledge of sociology or psychology or both and the present day engineer too often finds himself incapable of handling them.

In general, these are considered management areas. However, many of today's large business concerns are looking for men who can handle the technical items and still graduate to the mahogany tables as executives.

Why should the political sciences have to be called in to be department heads when an engineer who has the technical knowledge could handle the job as well or better with only a little more training in the liberal arts?

Phi Kappa Taus gathered at dinner Wednesday, October 6, to celebrate Founders' Day, honoring the seventh year of their active organization on campus. Congratulations, Phi Taus!

Pledges in the various living groups are remaining active even after the end of Homecoming and trophy-stealing. Alpha Phi, Delta Sig, and Sigma Chi pledges have elected their officers—the Theta pledges took the lead among living group freshmen in taking their sneak Monday evening when they spent the evening free of study hours.

The "Singing Sigs" returned to Idaho's music world this weekend by serenading the girls' living groups as well as entertaining their own brothers.

Esquire-Girl candidates will spend a busy two weeks as guests of the ATO chapter house for dinners and firesides, while competing for the coveted honor.

"All the answers aren't in the book"

Here Don Garland makes noise distribution measurements with a Level Distribution Recorder

"My job is to help solve problems of noise and other interference on telephone lines due to power interference. Inductive co-ordination is the technical term for the work."
"First thing the Chief Engineer explained to me was that 'all the answers aren't in the book.' He was right. Most of the problems have required a combination of electrical engineering, a knowledge of costs and generous amount of ingenuity. I like it that way. It's given me an immediate opportunity to put into practice the theory I learned at school."

"In addition to this on-the-job experience, I have attended several special training courses conducted by the company. Now I'm breaking in a new man, just like when I started."
Don Garland's work is typical of many engineering assignments in the Bell Telephone Companies. There are similar opportunities for college graduates with Bell Telephone Laboratories, Western Electric and Sandia Corporation. If you'd like to get more details, see your Placement Officer. He will be glad to help you.

How is an oil well like a cow?

In many ways the similarity between an oil well and a cow has a great deal to do with the future security of your children.
Both well and cow give us vital products—petroleum and milk. But unless we withdraw those products at an efficient rate we can ruin our source of supply.
For it's as economically unsound to take a year's supply of oil from a well in a month, as it would be to try to obtain a year's production of milk from a cow in a day!
It's equally bad economically to underproduce a well or a cow. Yet, today, the American petroleum industry is underproducing—to accommodate the oil coming into this country from far-off places.
Obviously, if our own industry is to maintain its capacity to produce it has to be able to sell its products. Whatever interferes with this jeopardizes its ability to continue to satisfy America's need for oil.

Nor does it have the financial resources to drill wells and then shut them in until needed. You have to do business to stay in business.
What's worse, oil from distant shores creates a dangerous dependency. In a national emergency it could disappear overnight. And we can't slow our production down too much and expect it to be adequate when we want it.

In our opinion, there is only one safe way to keep this nation's rate of petroleum production up to any challenge it may have to meet. That's to encourage our domestic oil industry to constantly find and develop new fields in the Western hemisphere, where we can get at them if we need them.

Vandals Prep Under Lights; Stahley Has Lineup Shakeup

The Idaho Vandals worked out last night under the lights at Recreation Park and wound up a week of practice in preparation for Saturday's encounter at Stockton, Calif., with the College of Pacific.

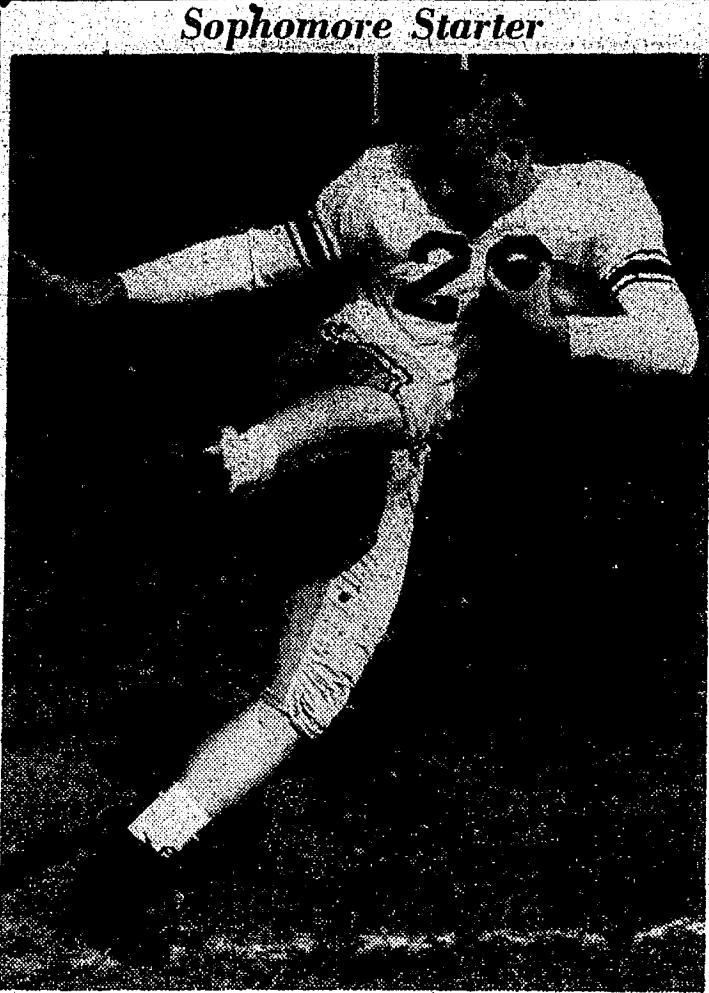

Coach Skip Stahley drilled his club against dummies most of the workout and held pass plays in live scrimmage form.

A 34 man squad left Moscow early this morning and will fly to the California city. Included in the traveling team was Ted Frostenson, out earlier this season with a shoulder separation. Frostenson won't be counted on but for limited action, Stahley said.

Stahley said the team is coming along pretty well after putting the Vandals through their paces last night. Wednesday afternoon the Idaho team "knocked heads the hardest this season," the head coach commented.

Other starters will include Frank Teverbaugh and Paul Giles at ends, Dick (Tiny) Foster and Marsh Jones, at tackles, Ivan Resa at Sophomore Bill Baxter will bet the nod as the Vandal's starting fullback Saturday when Idaho travels to College of Pacific for a night encounter at Stockton, Calif. Baxter takes over from junior transfer Wilbur Gary. Both backs are slated for action, Coach Skip Stahley promised.

Six Veterans To Bolster Swim Squad

Swimming coach Eric Kirkland expects to greet the largest group of varsity swimming prospects ever seen at the University of Idaho when practice starts early in November. Six veterans are included.

Lettermen from last year's team which had a 4-3 record include: Jerry Jones, sprints (co-captain); Fritz Holz, distance (co-captain); Don Medley, breaststroke; Byron Richards, diver; Jerry Light, butterfly stroke; Ted Bell, diver.

Up to bolster the squad from last year's undefeated freshmen team are: Bruce Buckman, sprints; Gene Anderson, and Dale Carlisle, backstroke; Jack Belle, breaststroke; Norm White, sprints.

Other prospective tank men include: Dennis Jensen, sophomore sprinter; Bill Bonnet, junior sprinter; Ted Ciesielski, sophomore backstroke man; and Russ Whitney, diver. Whitney was the intramural diving champion last year and rates as a top prospect this year.

Kirkland stated that his biggest problem would be at backstroke where two of his top men, Rich Bradbury and Bill Buckley, were lost from the squad. Bradbury has joined the service and Buckley, who placed third in the Northern Division meet last year, decided against competing.

Individuals have already begun to work on long distance and endurance swimming. Later the swimmers will begin to build up their sprint speed.

Kirkland yesterday invited "any swimmer interested in freshman or varsity competition to see me about turning out this year."

Whitney stated that he hopes to see that many students out this coming Monday night at 7:30 when tryouts begin in the pool. He urged that all Helldivers be present Monday. After the tryouts a business meeting of all members will be held to elect officers for the coming season and tabulate the scores of those who have tried out for the group.

Freshman women will be unable to tryout for the organization until second semester.

For Hess

Bob Walker, junior college transfer from Adin, Calif., will take over the big job of filling in for the injured Burdette Hess tomorrow at the starting left guard position for the Vandals.

Melton, Benzin Win ASUI Golf Rounds

John Benzin and Harlan Melton were the only two victors in the first round of the ASUI golf tournament and were also the only two players to have their matches played by yesterday afternoon.

Benzin stopped Jerry Riggers 4-3 and Melton stopped Buddy Gibson 5-4 in championship flight play.

Intramurals Lindley I and Willis Sweet Cop I League Crown; Frat Protest Filed

Lindley No. 1 and Willis Sweet Hall earned berths in the intramural football playoff next week by clinching first place in their respective leagues of the Independent Division.

The league champions took advantage of a pair of Idaho Club teams yesterday, Willis tromping I Club 38-0 and Lindley taking a forfeit from I Club 1. The two champs were undefeated in Independent play.

Meanwhile in the Fraternity Division Kappa Sigma, strong contenders for the League II championship, fell to Delta Chi but filed a protest immediately following the game. The protest was on grounds of inadequate timing.

The protest was accepted by the intramural manager office but the Delta Chi team failed to accept a rematch and have asked the Intramural Board of Directors to rule on the game.

Sigma Nu, currently leading the League II of the Frat Division won easily yesterday from Phi Kappa Tau 32-0 to remain unbeaten in league play. Beta Theta Pi leads League I with five wins and no setbacks as a result of a win over second place Delta Tau Delta. League and Division playoffs will be held next week, according to intramural director Larry Golding. Times and dates have not been set, depending on possible tie playoffs in the Fraternity Leagues.

MY COUSIN HASKELL

I have a cousin named Haskell Krovney, a sweet, unspoiled country boy, who has just started college. A letter arrived from him this morning which I will reprint here because I know that Haskell's problems are so much like your own. Haskell writes:

"Dear Haskell (he thinks my name is Haskell too):

I see that you are writing a column for Philip Morris cigarettes. I think they are nice cigarettes which taste real good and which make a pleasant noise when you open the pack, and I want to tell you why I don't smoke them.

It all started the very first day I arrived at college. I had just gotten off the train and was walking across the campus, swinging my cardboard valise whistling snatches of Valencia, Barney Google, and other latest tunes, admiring statues, petting dogs and girls, when all of a sudden I ran into this fellow with a blue jacket, gray pants, and white teeth. He asked me was I a freshman. I said yes. He asked me did I want to go places on campus, make a big name for myself, and get pointed at in fashionable ballrooms and spas. I said yes. He said the only way to make all these things happen was to join a fraternity. Fortunately he happened to have a pledge card on him, so he pricked my thumb and I signed. He didn't tell me the name of the fraternity or where it is located, but I suppose I'll find out when I go active.

Meanwhile this fellow comes around every week and collects his dues which are $100. Later he has been collecting $10 extra each week. He says this is a fine because I missed the meeting. When I remind him that I can't go to meetings because I don't know where the house is, he twists my arm.

I have never regretted joining the fraternity because it is my dearest wish to be somebody on campus and get pointed at in spas, but you can see that it isn't cheap. It wouldn't be so bad if I slept at the house, but you must agree that I can't very well sleep at the house if I don't know where the house is.

I have had to rent a room. This room is not only hellishly expensive, but it isn't the kind of room I wanted at all. What I was looking for was someplace reasonably priced, clean, comfortable, and within easy walking distance of classes, the downtown shopping district, the home of a local costermonger, which is dingy, expensive, uncomfortable, inconvenient, and I don't even get to use the bed till six o'clock in the morning when my Landlord goes off to mung his costers.

Well, anyhow, I got settled and started going to classes. But first I had to pay my tuition. This came to a good deal more than the advertised rates. When I asked the bursar what the extra money was for, he told me lab fees. When I said I wasn't taking any labs, he said I was taking psychology which counted as a lab because which there are plenty in my room, he twisted my arm.

So I paid the money and went to my classes where I found that all my professors had spent busy summers writing brand new textbooks. Over to the bookstore I went, saw the prices on the textbooks, and collapsed in a gibbering heap. At length I recovered and made indignant demands to speak to the proprietor, but they told me the Brinks truck had already taken him home for the day. There was nothing for it but to buy the books.

Next I turned to romance—and found it. Harriet, her name was—a great, strapping girl. I first spied her leaning against the statue of the Founder, dozing lightly. I talked to her for several hours without effect. Only when I mentioned dinner did she stir. Her milky little eyes opened, she raised a heavy arm, seized my nape, and dragged me off to a dimly lit place called The Trap where everything was ($7.00), a scuttle of french fries (18¢ the french fry), an artichoke (80¢ the leaf), and compote (80¢ the prune).

After dinner she lapsed into a torpor from which I could not rouse her, no matter how I tried. I banged my zinc with my fork. I did bird calls of North and South America. I pinched her huge pendulous jaw. I rubbed the legs of my corduroy pants together. But nothing her to the girls dormitory, to the vast amusement of everybody.

But it was not the jeers of bystanders that bothered me. It was the hernia. Fortunately, medical care for students is provided free like X-rays, anesthesia, operating room, forceps, hemostats, scalpels, sponges, catgut, linens, towels, amputation, and nurses. They would not, however, let me keep the nurses.

So, dear, cousin, if you see me these days without a Philip Morris cigarette, it is not because I don't like Philip Morris cigarettes. I do. I flip when I taste their mild rare vintage tobaccos. But I can't afford cigarettes. I can't even afford matches, what with fraternity Harriet and medical care.

Well, I'll write you again soon. Keep 'em flying.

Yr. Cousin, Haskell

(Max Schulman, 1954)

This column is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS who think you would enjoy their cigarette.
