

Fifteen Of 'The Best' Ready For Blue Key Talent Show Tonight

Emcees Fisher . . .

Busy Blue Key Talent Show chairman declared Thursday the 1958 version of the campus talent exposition would be "the best collection of musical acts Idaho has seen yet" when it is presented at Memorial Gymnasium tonight at 8.

Co-chairmen Clark Anderson and Mike Patton, who this morning were both scurrying from the half-ready Gymnasium stage to committee meetings and back again, made that prediction after watching a rehearsal last night.

Tickets for the 2 1/2-hour show will be sold for 25 cents at the door, Anderson said. There will be no advance ticket sales.

Patton said the show's 15 acts were selected from 41 which were auditioned last week.

"The student and living group participation during the preliminary auditions was especially enthusiastic," said Patton. "We had an opportunity to be really selective."

Anderson said show judges would be Mrs. Harlan Hodges, wife of the Idaho basketball coach, Walt Snodgrass, Moscow High School band director, and Gerald Goecke, Moscow High School choir director.

Five Trophies

Trophies will be awarded to winners of five divisions Friday night. They include house groups, vocal solo, instrumental, small ensemble and non-musical serious.

Patton listed these entries for the show, included here in the order that they will appear tonight:

Alpha Chi Omega will present an all-house vaudeville rehearsal as the lead-off act. Jeanne MacMartin, Hays Hall, will do an acrobatic ballet to "Canadian Sunset." Barbara Nonnenman, Forney Hall, will sing "You'll Never Walk Alone," and Don Royster, Delta Sig, and Elaine Hieber, Hays Hall, will play a piano duet, "Streets," "Snow White"

Members of Pi Beta Phi will present a parody to "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and Tony Paleno, SAE, will sing "Without a Song." The "Swan Lake" ballet will be danced by Sharon Sessions, Alpha Phi, and Don Jenny, ATO, will sing a series of popular tunes with a small ensemble providing the background music. Gamma Phi Beta will present an original native dance.

The Keynotes, an instrumental and singing quartet, will play "Someone to Watch Over Me." Kappa Dorothy Jacobson will sing "Don't Take Your Love From Me" and B. J. Schaffer, Sigma Chi, will present an interpretative native dance. The "Motherly Brothers," members of SAE, will sing a group of songs popularized by the Everly Brothers. Gary Dossett, Sigma Chi, will play a saxophone solo of a Tommy Dorsey tune. Final entry is a Delta Gamma all-house number, "E-dah-how Rocks."

Intermission Entertainment

Three acts will provide intermission entertainment. A Kappa Kappa Gamma house chorus and Ralph and Loretta Alley, winners in the 1957 show. A new group, the Embers dance band, will be the third non-competing act.

Blue Key members Jerry Kessler, John Kroiss and Al Andrews are in charge of special lighting effects for the show, Patton said. George Fowler, Knute Westergren and Tom Stroschien will be chairmen of the stage crew.

Proceeds from the show are used to finance Blue Key activities and to provide a scholarship which is awarded annually to an outstanding sophomore.

Board Approves Parking Report

The Exec Board parking committee report was approved with minor changes by the Exec Board Tuesday evening and plans were put into motion to present it to President D. R. Theophilus at an early date.

The report, result of the committee's research last semester, was changed slightly in seven places by the Exec Board.

Changes in the handling of financial recommendations within the report were made in four instances, two were in the facilities development, and one in the recommended regulations section.

Finances

Included in the finance section changes were the suggestions that students be allowed three violations per year instead of three per college career. The present fine system of $2.00, first offense; $5.00, second offense; and $10.00 third offense, was approved by the Board.

Other changes in this section included recommendation on present funds from which parking financial aid may be available, and the manner in which the suggested parking fund will be set up.

Facilities

Further explanation of the committee's view on storage parking lots and a recommendation for diagonal parking facilities between Shoup and McConnell Hall made up the facilities development changes and additions.

The only other addition was a request pedestrian right-of-way be enforced at all times over that of vehicles.

The report which was submitted to the Exec Board by committee Chairman Lowell Martin almost a month ago, calls for a fee to be paid by student car owners.

The report was made by the committee at the request of ASUI President Dave Maxey. Dr. Theophilus had asked that a student report be submitted for his consideration.

BORAH ORATORY SET

A Borah oratorical contest will be open to Idaho students in late May, Robert Hosack, Borah Foundation chairman, announced during the initial meeting of the annual conference. The former Idaho senator will be the subject of the contest speeches.

Road Reports In SUB Lobby

A special section on the bulletin board in the SUB lobby is being set aside for students to post ride lists of available transportation home for vacation.

Bruce McCowan, chairman of the ASUI travel and traffic committee, said students who want rides home can place a notice of their name, phone number, and destination. Also students who have room for passengers can post the information.

McCowan said the individual student would have to make arrangements with people displaying information.

Road condition reports will not be posted before vacation, the chairman said, unless floods or other unexpected weather conditions develop next week. He said all reports state that roads leaving Moscow are in excellent condition.

Five Bands To Present Talents Saturday at 9

Idaho couples will dance Saturday night to the music of five bands at the first annual Musicians' Ball in the Central Ballroom from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight.

Sponsored by Phi Mu Alpha-Sinfonia, national musicians' fraternity, the dance is designed to give students an opportunity to become acquainted with local bands, Bob Whipple, dance co-chairman, said.

Each participating band will play for 30 minutes during the evening. Cards giving the name of the band and where to contact the band will be placed on stage during each performance.

The Notables will lead off the ball and play until 9:30 p.m. Next band to play will be Gary Dossett's Quartet from 9:30-10 p.m. The Keynotes will be on the band platform from 10-10:30 p.m.

At intermission a hi-fi set, valued at $150, and gift certificates of $5 and $10 from Cub's Music Den will be given as door prizes, Whipple said.

Admission to the dance is limited to 200 tickets at $1.50 a couple. Ducats are on sale at the ASUI office, central office in the Music Building, Cub's Music Den or from any Phi Mu Alpha member.

Music for the final portion of the dance will be provided by the Embers, from 11-11:30 p.m., and the Fore Notes, from 1:30 p.m. to midnight.

Nominations For Ag Queen To Be Tuesday

Nominations for Agriculture Queen and an individual to honor at the 32nd Little International Show will be made at a meeting of the Ag Club Tuesday. The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. in the Agriculture Science Building.

The Little International each year is dedicated to the person named by the students as contributing most to the field of agriculture and arrangements for the show.

Other activities scheduled for the weekend is the agricultural engineering contest which will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Scheduled for the welding room of the Ag Engineering Building, the contest will consist of arc and oxyacetylene welding. Each contestant will be given two pieces of metal for welding, and the finished work will be judged on a pull test.

Students are competing in the 25 contests of the show for points. At the end of the series of contests the student earning the most points in crop contests will be awarded the Outstanding Cropsman trophy.

Student Government Nominates Kay As Prexy Candidate; Sets Platform

Jim Kay, ATO, became the fourth candidate for ASUI President last night by receiving the nomination at an assembly of the Student Government Party.

A four plank platform was approved by the 12 students attending the annual nominating assembly.

The party will hold a second nominating meeting at 3 p.m. Saturday to nominate candidates for an Exec Board primary scheduled for Monday. The primary will be held in all campus living groups.

Party president Bert Miller, Gault, said the party's platform was being set up to carry out three main objectives outlined by party officials.

He said the party will strive to elect representatives in student government who will work for adequate representation on the administrative bodies of the University, continue regard for the improvement and reorganization within the administration of the student government, and provide a balanced program of activities which will be aimed at the needs of all the student populis.

The party platform calls for attempts to insure more adequate representation in the University community by:

1. At least one Executive Board member shall be appointed to each administrative committee.
2. A program of action will be devised aimed at securing the membership of the President of the Student Body on the Board of Regents, along with a faculty representative and the President of the University.

To improve the administration of student government the platform advocates:

1. The Board of Selection and Control shall be responsible for the interviewing and selection of all chairmen and committee members on the Department of Promotion and Services and the Department of Student Events, with the approval of the Executive Board.
2. The ASUI President and the Executive Board shall assume offices on Commencement Day of each year.

Members of the party are planning to contact people in campus living groups today and Saturday in an attempt to draw more people to the Saturday meeting.

In addition to the nomination of Exec Board candidates additional planks in the platform may be proposed, Miller said.

Lofdahl Is Independent Candidate For Presidency

Clyde Lofdahl, a Willis Sweet Hall junior, Wednesday was named the Independent Party's presidential nominee.

Lofdahl received 507 votes in the party's primary to lead second running Jim Rathbun, also of Willis Sweet, who got 393 votes. A third man Marvin Mackie, Chrisman Hall, withdrew from the race, but a write-in candidate, Bob Hazelbaker, Gault Hall, got 50 votes.

Meanwhile, Independent delegates met Wednesday and nominated 16 candidates as possibilities for their Exec Board slate. A primary election will be held today.

In the primary race are Mackie, Rathbun and Hazelbaker, Joe Er-ramouspe, and Arnold Nikula, Lindley Hall; Sharon Shulberg and Elaine Hieber, Hays Hall; Willis Smith and Ray Emerson, Willis Sweet Hall; Jack Taylor, LDS House; Barb Davis, Forney Hall; Earl Hall and Quentin Stoda, TMA; Janet McDevitt and Carolyn Dempsey, French House, and Beverly Lord, Ethel Steel.

Party secretary Lee Watenpaugh said candidates would meet Sunday after the primary election to discuss strategy and draft a platform. He said the party's platform would be announced early next week.

Campus Chest Allocations Get Board OK

Approval of Campus Chest fund allocations by the ASUI Exec Board Tuesday evening included the addition of World University Service to the list of recipients and an increase in the allotment set for Religious Evaluation Week.

The Board's approval of the Campus Chest committee's recommendation finalized the plans for distribution of the funds which now total $2476.56.

Committee member Ann Becker, Theta, reported that funds still expected to be turned in should bring the total close to $2500.

Funds for the addition of WUS was provided by reducing the Red Cross allotment from 10 percent to 5 percent. WUS, which was dropped from the fund list last year, will now receive 5 percent of the total.

The Religious Emphasis Week quota was increased by the addition of money left over from the Happy Mountain Orphanage in Korea.

The allotment calls for 5 percent up to $100 to be provided for the Korean orphanage. Money left from this source was voted to go to RE Week which is provided with 6 percent under the committee's recommendation.

Other charities included are: CARE, 10 percent; Cancer Fund, 10 percent; Idaho Polio Fund, 10 percent; American Heart Association, 10 percent; Multiple Sclerosis, 15 percent; Elks Convalescent Home, 15 percent; Crippled Children's Fund, 5 percent; Easter Seal Center, 5 percent; Lewiston Children's Home, 5 percent; and St. Joseph's Mission at Slickpoo, Idaho, 5 percent.

Registrar Reveals Teacher Shortage Relief In View

What may be a turning point leading to some future relief in the teacher shortage was revealed in figures released by Registrar D. D. DuSault recently.

According to the totals almost 30 percent of the students enrolled at Idaho this year are planning on securing a teacher's certificate upon graduation.

For the first time in the university's history this semester, the number of students who said they would seek a teacher's certificate passed the 1,000-mark. The total in this category was 1,031 compared with 960 the first semester.

Those who said they would make teaching their vocation objective totaled 895 compared with 853 the first semester.

The great majority of teaching-minded students, 620, were registered in the college of education, but others were found in all divisions. The report follows:

	I	II
Letters and Science	272	159
Agriculture	59	49
Engineering	6	2
Mines	2	2
Forestry	0	1
Business Administration	11	3
Education	620	594
Graduate School	61	85
TOTAL	1,031	895

Some Recognition Long Due

The University of Idaho Saturday will have the honor of playing host to 50 Intercollegiate Knights from Oregon and Washington who are meeting here for a one-day regional convention.

Because of this, it is especially appropriate to recognize the value of this important group of college men who wear the white and yellow sweaters and who live the word "service."

Idaho's IK chapter, one of the strongest in the nation, has not only taken on the burden of doing the work for most other organizations on campus, but has produced a long list of high officers in the fraternity's hierarchy.

When something has to be done at Idaho, the usual procedure is to appoint a student committee to do the planning and to absorb the glory. But when the need arises for some dependable workers to do the "menial" tasks, the IKs or their feminine counterparts, the Spurs, are invariably called upon.

They act as ushers, sell programs, lead tours, raise funds for charity, sell books and take on a hundred other jobs that others are either too busy or haven't the energy to handle.

About the only reward they get is a slight amount of recognition and a chance to be an IK officer the following year. It's a good bet, however, that a sizable number of committee chairmen will admit that without Knight aid their projects might have flopped.

It's a credit to Idaho, too, that this chapter last year was rated the best in the United States in competition with other active contingents.

Two key words provide the philosophic backbone for the fraternity. They are "leadership" and "loyalty." Both are especially apparent in the Idaho organization.

IK at the U has constantly emphasized that every man tapped for membership must have a potential for leadership. Once he has joined, the freshman IK is given individual responsibility to prove himself—a valuable test for every college student. Campus activities are his classroom; the respect he commands at the end of the year is his GPA.

In addition, Intercollegiate Knights have a nationwide program for teaching the concepts and steps to leadership. Over half of all men in high positions on the Idaho campus today got their start as IKs.

It is difficult to measure loyalty in any situation. In the case of IKs, the fact that they devote long hours to aiding University of Idaho's many activities is perhaps the best indication of loyalty to their school. They are the best University recruiters in the business and have talked many a visiting high school senior into attending here the following year.

It would be rather unfortunate for the campus as a whole if events had to be planned without the IKs as every-ready workers.

Politician Rests At College; WSC Has Breather Trouble

By Jim Flanagan

A 33-year-old freshman at Ohio University, Athens, Ohio, has an interesting background.

Prior to entering college, frosh William F. Hite was mayor of Willard, Ohio, population 5,000. But he had a desire to become a teacher and took up campus life.

Referring to his experience as mayor, he said, "people should take a greater interest in politics."

According to the Ohio University Post newspaper, Hite finds college life "relaxing."

The coeds called an operator on their house's other phone. She became worried also, but explained nothing could be done until it was proven an emergency.

Another hour passed!

The operator decided to call the police since the breathing continued. However, while she was tracing the phone number where the breathing was originating, a friend entered the other party's room, lifted the receiver and explained:

"He's a college student and he fell asleep!"

Research Pays

An Oklahoma State University professor believes research has its values in college life. In fact, he has guests speak to his sociology class to further their knowledge in life's problems.

By the way, his latest guest was a prostitute.

Absent-minded Prof

Minnesota Daily's Ivory Tower magazine related a story of a true absent-minded professor recently.

This instructor had a hard time eating a meal at his dining club. He placed a plate of chow mein, water and coffee on his tray.

From there he walked over to the sugar and cream table, where he poured a long stream of cream in his water amid laughter from his fellow members.

He took his tray over to a table nearby, picked up some soy sauce and placed some in the coffee. More laughter occurred. The professor was so shook by this time that he poured the glass of water

USA-USSR Exchange

The University of Michigan will be one of the first schools to send students to Russia for a history-making student exchange with the Soviet Union.

Two students have been selected for the program. One is a graduate student and the other a junior. Both have a good background of Russian history and language.

Sponsored by the Council on Student Travel, the 39-day trip will see 10 students participating. In planning three years, the program materialized recently after a relaxation of US immigration rules.

WSC Mystery

Four WSC coeds were studying for mid-terms when they noticed their living group phone was off the hook. On the other end of the line they heard a heavy breathing.

This was the situation that confronted four members of Sigma Kappa sorority last week at the Cow College, according to the WSC Evergreen.

They decided to let the problem slide for a while and went back to the books. An hour later, one coed returned to see if the line was free. But there was still the heavy, steady breathing.

Lonc Dog

She called her companions to listen in. Suddenly they heard a dog barking in the background, then silence intervened.

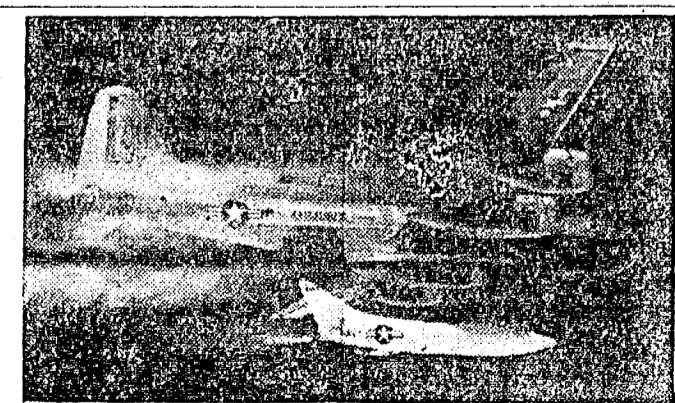

They set off alarm clocks and yelled over the line in an attempt to gain a response from the other end. Still there was the breathing. Nothing else.

MY CLOSEST SHAVE by Bill Bridgeman
Douglas Test Pilot

"My closest shave was during the first try at a speed record in the fantastic Douglas Skyrocket," says Test Pilot Bill Bridgeman, author of The Lonely Sky. "A special B-29 dropped me like a bomb at 30,000 feet... I turned on my rockets and climbed to 40,000... when suddenly all power failed. Rocket power, cabin pressure, heat—everything went—and the window frosted over so I couldn't see. Finally I got the radio going on an emergency battery... and a pilot in a chase plane talked me down to a blind landing!"

The Fifts Are Out In Force; Rebels Cloud Political Picture

It will now take all the fingers of one hand to keep track of the political parties that are in the vote-chasing business.

Newest addition is a rather light-hearted faction which wants recognition as the "Fifth Party."

Actually there are two "Fifth Parties" functioning at the moment. One is headquartered in the midst of fraternity row and includes politicians of both sexes and all shades of political opinion. They have no candidates and, according to a party spokesman, will spend the next month caucusing at the "S" room in downtown Moscow.

Their only organized function will be to attend all meetings of the other four parties and wave "Don't Vote" signs before the frenzied campaigners.

The other fragment of this dissident group has set up campaign offices at Gault Hall. Mainly they are pushing these plans in their platform: a fifth column, a fifth quarter, a fifth for everybody, and the fifth amendment.

Grapeshot

Takes this week are looking for the miscreants who have been stuffing their seemingly harmless cannon and setting them off, frightening the south section of the campus out of its wits.

So far, the oldstyle artillery piece has been "fired" twice, but the culprits have escaped both times, Tekes report.

A Trifle Ashamed

From the just-past Journalism Conference comes this "most embarrassing moment" tale:

One girl delegate from Idaho Falls was slated to appear in a panel discussion Saturday morning, but, taking the cue from the college atmosphere, slept through it and arrived as the group was breaking up.

Later in the morning, all 250 delegates gathered for presentation of awards.

Suddenly, Dr. Granville Price, chairman of journalism, read her name as a third place award winner. When nobody arose to accept it, he called the name two more times, then went on with the program.

A check later revealed that the sleepy gal was there, but was too embarrassed about the morning experience to accept the trophy.

Baby, It's Cold Outside

Coeds can stand the cold brunt of winter weather better than male students, according to research conducted by the Reserve Tribune at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio.

Clothing sported by the women—everything from "unmentionables" to cuff links—in the colder months weigh about 8 pounds, 12 ounces. However, the man student wears 15 pounds, 3 ounces—almost double that of the coed clothing.

Home Ec. Student Has Grooming Article Published

An Idaho sophomore majoring in home economics has combined her studies with writing. The result is an article on good grooming appearing this month in the Idaho Farmer.

The author is Lois Kathleen Seubert, French. Active in 4-H Club work, she was one of 25 Idaho 4-H achievement winners who went to the national club meeting in Chicago in 1955.

Miss Seubert is off in the right direction with the article fostering the idea that there is no time like the present for good grooming. She offers 22 check points on how to look and feel better along with clothes combination, diet and exercise tips.

Nine students were tapped for Alpha Zeta membership at a recent chapter meeting of the agricultural honorary.

Pledges are Gary Custer, Christian; Paul Jacobs, Gault; Robert Sampson, Willis Sweet; James Bivens, Kappa Sig; Herbert Gibson, McConnell; Lamont Anderson, Jerry Knapp, Richard Koster, and Arthur A. Swenson, off campus.

Grass-Root Level Study Of Europe Open This Summer

A chance for students to work in Europe this summer in order to study Europeans at grass-root level is offered through the American Student Information Service.

Under this plan students will be able to support themselves during an extended stay by working on farms, in factories or at resorts and other special industries.

Most of the jobs are in Germany and Scandinavia. Wages will be on par with the scale of the country where the student is employed.

Marriage-In-College Study Yields Interesting Findings

To marry or not to marry while in college is a big question for many students. A Seattle Pacific college sociology professor, Dr. C. Melvin Foreman, has done research on the subject, recording the views of many students.

The findings of the research show some interesting results.

Forty per cent of the married couples said they wouldn't recommend combining college and marriage.

Students who began their first serious dating in college were hesitant to advocate marriage. Dr. Foreman noted many of these "had been involved in a brief but intensive pattern of courtship."

Parents play a part in the success of the campus marriage. Men who were reluctant to recommend marriage came from homes where there had been strong parental opposition to the marriage in the first place. Parental opposition did not appear to be a factor in the lives of wives opposing college marriage.

Couples who financed marriage with just one partner assuming major financial support didn't recommend marriage. Those who had worked out what they considered a cooperative financial program were willing to advocate marriage.

Having children while a student did not significantly affect attitudes.

Burmese Marriage, College Customs Told By Edwards

By DON INGLE
How successful would American young men be at getting dates if they had to sing before the girls' house competing against three or four friends?

This is the way Burmese boys are selected by girls for conversations in her home which usually result in marriage.

Phil Edwards, FarmHouse, and 1957 graduate from Idaho, returned from Burma earlier this year on an International Farm Youth Exchange trip. He described the dating procedure in that country.

Edwards said a small group of boys will go by the home of a girl, age 15-16, and sing individually to her. She will come out and select the one she wants to talk to either in front of the home or inside the house.

"The parents politely go to bed," Edwards said, "and the couple is marked off by the rest of the people."

Marriage in Burma is similar to the ceremony in the United States with the two parties selecting each other. However when the parties get serious the parents of the man's family meets with the elected village headman or father and asks the woman's parents for permission to have the marriage.

Equal Rights
"The Burmese wife has equal rights with the husband," Edwards added, "She can own property, a business, vote, and can hold office."

After marriage the couple usually moves out on their own. However they keep very close ties with the family and often actually stay together.

Men outnumber the women eight to one in the two colleges in Burma. "The women's dorm on the college campuses has a wall eight feet tall around it with guards posted at the gates after 6 p.m. each night," Edwards said. "The gates are locked at 6 p.m."

The two colleges offer bachelor of science degrees. They specialize in fields of agriculture and have mainly a core curriculum. After two years of general courses the students are allowed to specialize to complete three more years of school.

Buddist Religion
Over 85 per cent of the Burmese citizens belong to the Buddhist religion. There are 20 million people in an area about the size of the state of Texas.

"Buddha religion is really a philosophy of life involving more personal respect than the Christian religions," he said. Every month the people celebrate seasons and events by big carnivals. Each one is different and quite elaborate.

"In April, or the new year festival, the festival consists of nothing more than a big water fight," he said. "It is tied up with the cleaning of the body before the rains come and the lenting season."

"In November the people have a carnival to give gifts to the Monks or Phogyie. They give them the orange robes and personal things because the monks have no salary and have to completely live on gifts by the people."

Edwards said the Buddha lent lasts for 3 months or longer. During the season the people do not move, change houses, have any good times, or marry.

Burma is the only country in the Far East which has a surplus of food. Last year 1.5 million tons of rice were exported.

Few Resources
The former student said the country has very few resources for industry except the possibilities that oil may be rediscovered. Oil wells were in operation before the second World War but the holes were filled with cement when the Japanese invaded the country.

Names of the Burmese people are long, often describing things or events that happened around the time of a child's birth. The name indicates the day of the week, position of the family in the community, sex and other some beautiful thing in nature.

Edwards was in the first group of US delegates to go to Burma on the IFYE program. Under the program, delegates normally live in the houses of families in the country to learn their way of life and culture.

Edwards said that he did not have the chance to live in the homes because it was the first year of the exchange program in the country. Delegates this coming year will live in the homes.

Students Becoming More Cautious, Conservative

Today's college student is studied almost as much as he studies. College papers are helping students better know themselves by telling the story of some of the research done on the current collegians.

The University of Chicago MAROON did the following story on a lecture by UC special scientist David Riesman.

"The college student of 1958 is in many ways an organization man. His response to his academic environment and curriculum often parallels the response of the junior executive to his corporation, thinks Riesman.

"In view of the great differences among colleges, it is hard to talk sensibly of the college student," explained Riesman. He cited a number of studies, from which some general impressions emerged.

Today's student is more cautious and conservative than the student of ten years ago. Toward much of the world around him, as international relations, he is apathetic. He can envision the future non-work side of his life with greater detail and enthusiasm than he can the career side.

Marital relations are important to students: almost all seniors are either married, engaged, or foreseeing marriage. Most expect good-sized families.

Students want a station-wagon type, college-educated wife, not the silent childbearer of other times. The men would make good husbands and fathers. They prefer an equalitarian, comfortable home atmosphere, and they are not playboys: most expect to work hard to achieve the standard two-car, four-child suburban situation.

But most of them do not expect to be lone wolves in their careers. A 1949 FORTUNE survey showed an ambivalence towards corporation life: students wanted security, but they also wanted to make an impact upon their places of employment. And they wanted the suburbs for their children, not themselves, Riesman said.

In 1958, this ambivalence has disappeared; the family is definitely first and career second. There is little identification with one's employer or vocation.

There is a loss of belief that work can be an end in itself when done for a large concern. Though some students have an intense interest in their vocation, on the whole this destiny is left in the hands of the corporations.

"These general impressions are not confined to the prospective business employees," according to Riesman. "Even prospective scholars, architects, and physicians are not immune to an ambivalence toward their future work. There is a general revolution against work,

New York Students Must Purchase Bike Decals

Brooklyn College in New York will soon be making available parking space for bicycles and scooters.

Students will buy identifying decals for the vehicles—$2 for bikes and $4 for scooters for four years space rental—to pay for the parking privilege and protection by college watchmen.

Office Aids Farm Watershed Study

Establishment of a regional project office at the University of Idaho for the analytical study of precipitation, runoff and sediment yield data from agricultural watersheds in the Pacific Northwest has been announced by Dean J. E. Kraus of the college of agriculture.

The study will cover both farm and range watersheds in Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California.

Salem Witch Trials Depicted In 'Crucible' Vividly Created

By Jim Flanagan
Arthur Miller's drama depicting the Salem witch trials, "The Crucible," set for production on the Ad Auditorium stage in late April, has a vivid background with real-to-life characters.

The people who participated in the Massachusetts trials of the 1690s are recreated by Miller in his play.

Howard Dorgan, director of the Idaho show, explained yesterday, "Miller has staked a great deal of liberty in giving us these historical characters who took part in the Salem trials."

However, Dorgan added, "He has not tried to recreate history as would a scholar-historian. He has simply used this setting, this time, these characters to write a highly theatrical and extremely dramatic play."

The Idaho drama instructor pointed out, "The Crucible" playwright has taken several of the actual historical characters and molded them into one individual for the drama.

Examples
A big example of this, he said, is Danforth, portrayed by Cliff Cook, who is the trial magistrate in the play. In history there were a number of judges.

Dorgan also gave a description of several other characters.

Thomas Putnam, played by Todd Oleson on the Idaho stage, was a man with many grievances. He was interested in the affairs of the parish and felt himself intellectually superior to most of the other people in the Salem community.

Following much the same pattern of his historical past in the play is Giles Corey, played by Bob Fee.

Proctor, taken by Austin Bergin, with the exception of his lecherous association with Abigail Williams (Diane Kail), is true to history, Dorgan said.

"Some ages have been raised or lowered," he added, "the main example being the age of Abigail who was 12-years-old at the time of the trials. For the purpose of his story, Miller has made her 17 in the play."

Dorgan pointed out the Salem community existed in a cultural period that prevented people from expressing all their social desires. The witch hunts gave them a greater chance to seek individual freedom than was nil.

The trials gave opportunities for people to express their guilts and sins publicly, shielding themselves with accusations made against their enemies or victims, he said.

Rehearsals are being held at the present time to ready the show for production April 25-26.

RICHARD MONTMEAT is a 1947 Industrial Design Graduate of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, New York. He joined General Electric's Television Receiver Department in 1948.

"A company that plans far ahead gives me the chance to work out my future"

"Pleasing design is no accident," says 32-year-old TV set designer Richard Montmeat. "It takes creative planning. At General Electric, we're constantly developing new product designs — including some for products which won't be on the market for several years. Ever since joining General Electric, I've had the opportunity and challenge of working toward the designs of the future. As I see it, a company which plans ahead gives me the chance to work out my own future, too."

The creative accomplishments of Richard Montmeat have already brought him widespread recognition. He was awarded design patents in 1950 and 1955; he won the Industrial Designers Institute Award in 1955; and his design for the 1958 General Electric 17-inch portable television receiver was selected for showing in an international design exposition in Milan, Italy.

Progress in pleasing design — making appliances more enjoyable to own and use — is an important factor in our nation's growing use of electricity and in our constantly rising level of living. Planning now to satisfy future customers is important not only to the continued growth of the electrical industry, but to individual progress as well. Opportunity for long-range planning is part of the climate for self-development which is provided for General Electric's more than 29,000 college-graduate employees.

Tunisia Crisis, Summit Talks Bother UN

Editor's Note: This is the last in a series of eight articles dealing with the United States and its relations with the rest of the world.)

WASHINGTON—Two current international issues—the Franco-Tunisian crisis and the question of a new East-West summit conference—have helped revive a perennial debate about the proper role of the United Nations in international diplomacy.

The dispute between France and Tunisia, the Western powers did all in their power to keep the issue off the UN's agenda. The pro-Western Tunisian government, in spite of its indignation, cooperated in early stages of the controversy.

The crisis had been precipitated on Feb. 8 when the French Air Force (flying U.S.-built planes) bombed and strafed the Tunisian border village of Sakiet Sidi Youssef, killing and injuring a number of Tunisians.

The raid was a military decision, connected with alleged Tunisian assistance to rebels in French Algeria.

Tunisia, experts agree, is culturally and economically tied to France and politically oriented toward the West. Yet its government strongly sympathizes with the Algerian nationalist government, which has fought nearly four years for independence from France.

Many observers concede there is a free flow of arms and aid to the rebels, from Tunisia.

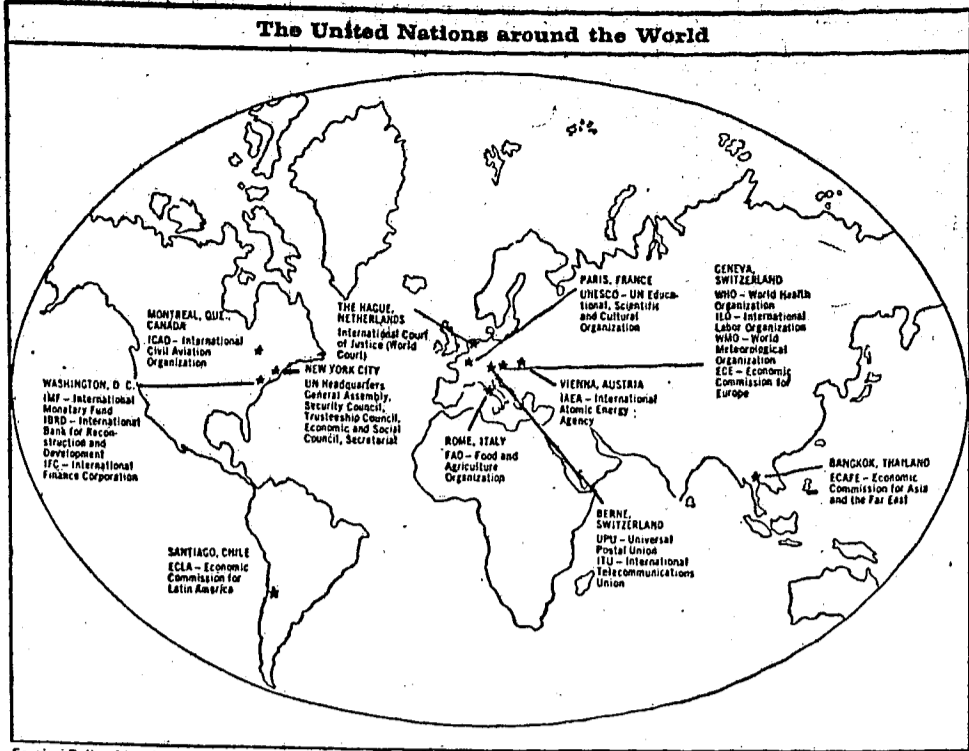

At All Costs
France wanted at all costs to avoid enlarging the dispute to include the whole question of the Algerian revolution. France considers the Algerian question an "internal" affair.

Tunisia, as most observers see it, favors a settlement of the rebellion on terms which would give Algeria political independence but would not cut economic and other ties to France. On the other hand, a public debate in the UN could become a propaganda exercise that accomplished little.

Thus, according to experts, the interests of all concerned in the Franco-Tunisian affair would be served better by private diplomacy than by public debate in the United Nations—as long as private diplomacy offered some hope of a solution.

With an emergency session of the UN Security Council already scheduled, both France and Tunisia accepted the "good offices" of the United States and Great Britain. Negotiators were appointed and the UN dropped the question—at least for the moment. On March 13, however, President Bourguiba threatened to return the issue to the UN unless the "good offices" team accepted Tunisia's basic position in the dispute.

Summit Versus UN
The proposal for an East-West summit conference raises a different kind of problem, observers say, in trying to define the role of the UN. The Franco-Tunisian question is relatively limited in scope. A summit conference, presumably, would deal with many of the basic issues which divide East and West including testing and banning of nuclear weapons, arms control, reunification of Germany and renunciation or neutralization of Central Europe.

Foreign Policy Association, Inc.

A discussion so broad in scope and so important to world peace ought, some commentators say, to be conducted in or through the United Nations. UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, in fact, suggested at one point that the UN might be the site for a meeting of heads of government.

Yet to date no step has been taken which would identify the summit meeting with the UN or its machinery. Correspondence about the conference has been mostly by letters between heads of governments. Preliminary negotiations (which, the West insists, must take place in order to assure some agreement at the heads of government session) would presumably be under taken at the foreign minister or other diplomatic level.

Heart Grant Deadline Set

Deadline for students who wish to apply this semester to take part in the Idaho Heart association undergraduate research scholarship program is April 4, it was announced today by Charles O. Decker, director of student affairs.

One or two grants may be made this semester, Dean Decker said. Individual awards will range in value to $200.

The primary objective of the new program is to stimulate interest on the part of undergraduate students in participating in scientific research.

The program is open to students majoring in the physical or biological sciences.

Applications for projects to be undertaken during the 1958-59 school year should be filed before May 15.

What, then, is the function of the UN in international negotiations?

Secretary General Hammarskjöld suggested in a Feb. 5 speech at Ohio University that the UN is essentially an instrument for "parliamentary diplomacy." The public debates help, he declared, "introduce democratic procedures in the field of international politics."

Hammarskjöld also pointed out "the unique opportunities for private diplomacy that exists in the United Nations."

"Public debates in the United Nations," he continued, "can just as readily be used to make a propaganda case for home consumption." But private diplomacy at the same time, sometimes "before a public debate, sometimes in the intermissions of debate, sometimes afterward, and often at all these times."

The UN's diplomatic functions, in other words, are not limited to formal debates in the Security Council and the General Assembly.

Seen from this viewpoint, the UN could well participate in private diplomacy that exists in the United Nations.

Equal Education Needed For Liberalism Says Adler

Furnishing every child an equal education was stressed as a method of changing the United States school system to adopt a liberal education program, by a noted educator before Idaho students yesterday.

Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, former faculty member at the University of Chicago, appeared on a public events assembly before 700 students and faculty members emphasizing the need of liberal education in today's developing society.

Adler said our present school and education system has not yet recognized the problem of how to emphasize techniques and materials to students for using time not used for working to achieve wealth and other necessary biological function in today's developing society.

should be developing and improving our civilization through working with the arts and broadening of the mind.

Mass Insanity Near
"During the next 100 years," Adler said, "if we do not solve the problem of teaching people to use leisure time for development of people, our society will be threatened by mass insanity."

"We must combat the internal force which is worse than forces outside the country. We must school and educate our population for a free life."

He called for treating all people in schools as equals by giving all students the same degree of schooling and quality of information.

He added that student's abilities and capacities are going to have to be furnished information to free use leisure work.

The educator described the present society as the second great revolution in the raising of a man's civilization. The first revolution lasted about 6000 years and ended at the close of the 19th century.

"During the first revolution," Adler said, "Man's civilization changed from the idea that man had only toil and work as part of his life, to the development of an upper class which decided they were going to be free and have leisure time."

Current Change
"In the 20th century we are changing from a few people who have the right to education to all people having the opportunity to participate in leisure."

Adler divided work by people into two classes, subsistence work and leisure work.

Subsistence work is work which is for the production of wealth and leisure work is work which is for the production of leisure.

Adler said that the present society is a "mass insanity" because it does not provide for the leisure time needed for the development of the individual.

Joint Military Band, Choir Concert Sun.

Six selections will be sung by the Military Choir in a joint concert with the Military Band at 4 p.m. Sunday in the University Auditorium.

Bob Whipple, off campus, organized the military choir last fall. The group consists of members from all three military branches.

Whipple, a junior in music, acts as director of the group.

Sunday's concert will be opened by the Military Band, under direction of Warren Bellis, assistant professor of music. It will be the first concert appearance of the band for several years.

Opening selections are: "Star Spangled Banner," "Prattone Regiment," a march by LeRoy Anderson; and selections from "Me and Juliet." The band will conclude the first portion of the program with "Del Ray," a Spanish march.

They will sing "Bless the Lord, Oh My Soul," by Ivanoff; "Siderspruch," Shubert; "Black is the Color of my True Love's Hair," Niles; and "Seeing Nellie Home," by Shaw and Parker; "Anywhere I Wander," by Lossor and "De Animals A-comin'," by Bartholomew.

The joint concert will be concluded by the 40-member band playing "Finian's Rainbow" and a salute to the three service branches it serves.

Westergren, Bloxom Check Beavers, 3-2

Converted shortstop Knute Westergren shut off the Oregon State Beavers for eight innings yesterday, then was bailed out by Jack Bloxom in the ninth, as Idaho downed OSC, 3-2, at Lewiston.

With the win, the Vandals successfully opened a three-game stand at Lewiston. Idaho will meet Montana today and faces Washington State tomorrow at 1 p.m.

The Vandals picked up all their runs in the first inning.

Jim Throckmorton opened with a double. Jim Chrisman was then safe on Twink Pederson's error. Ferman Pasold sacrificed the runners to second and third and Throckmorton scored on Wayne Rigg's single.

Chrisman and Rigg came home when Bob Dehlinger blasted a double off the left field fence. Dehlinger was stranded, however, when, after starting OSC pitcher Fred Paine was lifted, Bob Thomas and Larry McDonald both struck out.

The Beavers got to Westergren for three hits in the second inning but could not score.

Mason Singles

Jack Mason led off with a single but was thrown out at second base when he tried to stretch the hit into a double.

After Ted Bates had singled and Jerry Droscher had struck out, Kim Bradshaw banged one of Westergren's pitches off the center field fence. Both Bates and Bradshaw, however, wound up on third base at the same time, and in the ensuing scramble Bradshaw was tagged out.

Neither team threatened again until the final inning.

In the final stanza, Westergren walked both Dan Luby and Mason. Idaho coach Wayne Anderson then put in reliever Bloxom.

Bloxom got Bates to fly out to center field but both runners advanced a base. Droscher rapped a single to score OSC's first two runs.

Bloxom ended the Beaver threat, however, by getting Bradshaw on a fly ball and Jim Hanley on a ground out.

Westergren gave up three hits in his eight plus innings. He walked four and struck out five. Bloxom gave up one hit and neither walked nor fanned a man.

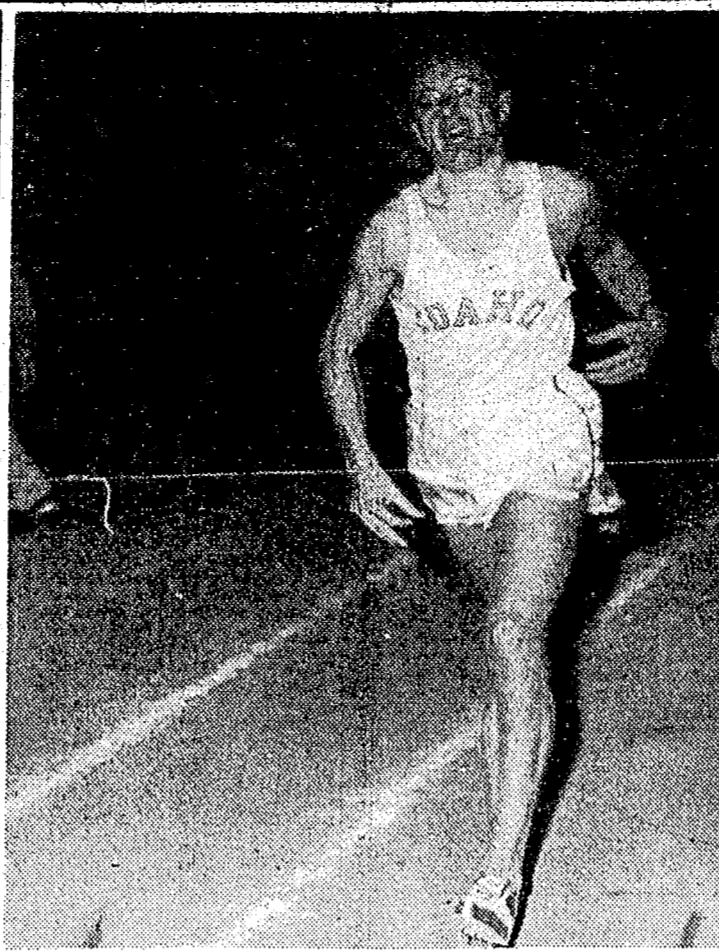

Second baseman Jim Chrisman topped Vandal hitters with two hits in four times at bat. Throckmorton, Dehlinger, Rigg, and Pasold got the other Idaho hits.

Anderson said he would probably start Clark Anderson on the mound today with Val Johnson getting the nod tomorrow.

In the first game at Lewiston yesterday, Montana's Charlie Moore blanked Washington State, 2-0. The Grizzlies tallied single runs in the fourth and sixth innings.

Moore struck out eight Cougars. WSC starter Dick Montee whiffed five Grizzlies in a losing cause.

Idaho's Dave Durham put on a last burst of speed in the 600 yard run at the WSC Invitational Saturday, but couldn't edge out Seattle Pacific's Ron Ohler, who won the event. Durham may help Idaho at the OSC relays at Corvallis next week.

Four Relay Teams Picked For Corvallis Invitational

Track coach Joe Glander selected four tentative Vandal relay teams yesterday for the Oregon State Invitational relay meet at Corvallis April 5. Powerful Dave Durham will be a member of each team.

Durham, who placed second to Ron Ohler of Seattle Pacific in the 600-yard run at the WSC Invitational Indoor meet Saturday, is scheduled to run on the Vandals' 880, 440, Mile, and Distance Medley relay teams.

The Vandals will have entries in every relay event except the two mile relay, which is made up of four 880-yard exchanges.

Coach Glander explained Idaho's absence in the latter event by pointing out that it came directly before the two mile run, which three of Idaho's top distance men will enter, and could tire Idaho's entries so that they would not perform at peak performance in the following race.

The two Vandals not planning to attend the meet, Dave Campbell and Dick Gilberts, should bolster the Vandals in their April 12 dual meet with WSC.

Aside from Gilberts and Campbell, the entire Idaho track team will travel to Corvallis for the meet, with the tentative lineup on events as follows:

880 and 440 relay — June Hanford, Dave Durham, Dick Shern, Hilmar Lunde. Named as probable alternate was Bill Overholser.
Mile relay — Durham, Milt Rigg, Javelin — Bob Elyer

Neutral Corner Pitching Staff Looks Good; Fan Sounds Off On Simmons

The Idaho pitching staff, which has come through magnificently so far this season, appeared to be the Vandals' weak point before play began this year. Now, however, it looks like it may become the squad's strongest point.

Doug Randall and Steve Hinkleley, who carried the Idaho squad last year on their strong right arms, were missing when the 1958 season started.

Randall transferred to Washington to further pursue his law studies. Hinkleley is on a mission for the LDS Church.

Coach Wayne Anderson started the season with two veterans who saw little action last year, two sophomores, and a converted shortstop available for mound duty.

The veterans, Clark Anderson and Val Johnson, were members of last year's Idaho baseball team but saw little action back of Randall and Hinkleley.

One of the sophomores, Denny Solt, had some measure of success last year with the Vandal frosh. The other, Jack Bloxom, had no previous college baseball experience.

The converted shortstop, Knute Westergren, was well known as a hitter. He led the PCC in hitting last season. But his only experience as a pitcher had come in a semi-pro league.

So far Idaho has won two of three pre-conference games.

In one, Anderson pitched a shut-out against Whitman. In another, Johnson lost to Whitman but threw a strong game, nevertheless.

Yesterday the Vandals, behind the pitching of Westergren and Bloxom, downed the OSC Beavers, 3-2, at Lewiston.

For a staff which looked makeshift at best at the season's start, the Vandal moundsmen have been coming through brilliantly so far. The staff may receive a further boost soon with the return of pitchers Jim Branon and Wendy Wolf.

Wolf has been on the injured list and has seen no action yet. Branon, who got a late start because of basketball, has been brought along slowly. He suffered a knee injury in the final hoop game against Oregon State.

It is not difficult to see that the Vandal slab corps is short on experience. But the untouted pitchers have been producing. And in the long run, touted or not, it's the results that count. So far, the Idaho Vandal pitchers have left little to be desired.

Vandal booster Bill Young of Twin Falls wrote this column Tuesday, concerning our note last week that Idaho's Gary Simmons was left off the Look Magazine All-Coast team.

"It isn't that Idaho doesn't rate," Young said in reply to one of our statements. "It's due to the fact that Dan Haefner, a Los Angeles Times sportswriter, picked the Coast team for Look."

Young added that it could be the Los Angeles reporter is still a little angry because of what Simmons did against USC (scored 38 points.)

Enclosed in the letter was a clipping of the United Press All Coast first five.

Simmons, named to the first team, received 115 votes. Only Oregon State's Dave Gambee and Seattle's Elgin Baylor received more.

Other members of the first team included Mike Farmer of San Francisco and Doug Smart of Washington, both of whom, along with Gene Brown of San Francisco, were selected ahead of Simmons by Look.

Perhaps Haefner did not witness Simmons in action this season. If so he may be justified in leaving the Vandal guard off the Look All Coast team.

But when the Associated Press and the United Press both pick Simmons on their first fives, it would seem that the majority opinion can't be wrong.

Which then is the greater honor: being selected for a team by one qualified observer or being selected by a number of qualified observers. We leave that decision up to you.

"There's a man outside with a wooden leg named Smith."
"What's the name of the other wooden leg?"

I wonder if my gal loves me? Of course, why should she make you an exception?

Town Men's Association took the League I intramural bowling title Tuesday night, despite suffering a 4-0 shut-out at the hands of Sigma Chi.

The Town Men's squad finished with a 15-5 won-lost record after the five rounds of regularly scheduled play. Playoffs for all four intramural bowling leagues will begin after final regular season play is completed Tuesday.

Bob Nusbaum, Lindley, bowled Tuesday's high single game, a 213. Jack Marek, Delta Chi, rolled the high series Tuesday, a 554 total in three games.

Upham Hall downed FarmHouse, 3-1, in team action, while Delta Chi was dropping Lambda Chi Alpha, 3-1, and Lindley Hall was blanking LDS, 4-0.

Glander Elected 1960 IE Olympic Track-Field Head

Joe Glander, Idaho track coach, has received word that he has been elected chairman of track and field tryouts for the 1960 Olympics in the Inland Empire.

The Empire, which covers the territory east from the Cascades in Washington to the Montana border in Idaho, and South to Grangeville, is among the most active of Northwest AAU groups, according to Glander.

All Can Enter
Glander is planning an "all-comers" meet sometime in the future, which will not require pre-registration to enter. Presence at the meet itself is all that is required.

The meet is expected to be divided into age groups. This was done with the Junior Olympics run here last year.

Coupled with the chairmanship disclosure, Glander announced that a plan is being developed whereby interested students may run in weekly track meets in Portland, Seattle, and Eugene this summer after the regular college term ends. The meets will be open to anyone interested, according to Glander.

Latest intramural bowling statistics show Dick Rene, Delt, pacing all bowlers with a 198 overall average. He is followed by Lew Oring, Phi Tau, with a 179 and Bob Johnson, Town Men's Association, with 178.
