This attempt to wrap up the year's activities and provide a summary of what has happened at Idaho in 1957-58 marks the last issue of Volume 62 and the end of a very eventful year.

So comes the time to survey accomplishments, convey tokens of end the issue usually turned out appreciation to many, give a few to be one that deserved the time wishes for the future and then get and consideration. You can conthe heck out of here.

portant single word for editorial writers of The Idaho Argonaut during 1958-59. Included in that one word were all the ramifications of Idaho's greatest year of material growth.

Throughout the year, the Argonaut took note of the significant improvements in the physical plant of the University and registered its approval. It also sought to remind students of their obligation to Idaho and to make them aware of their place in the over-all plan to make it an even better institution.

The Arg had criticism for irresponsible student actions that might stall that growth and called for changes in political policy, changes that were later car-

In brief, these were the issues and the comments as present in Argonaut editorials this year.

As the year began in late September, the Arg admonished upperclassmen to take the lead in improving student government and in impressing upon freshmen that student interest is of prime importance in maintaing the sovereignty of students.

... Young material must be constantly replenished," said the Arg. "Projecting into the future, it is apparent that even a 15 per cent drop in those participating in student government and activities in their freshman year would mean a complete loss of student government in three or four years.'

Water Fights, Student Politics

Turning to more specific questions, the Arg voiced its dissapproval of water, paint, and mud fights which become dangerous to persons involved. Basis for the editorial, called "Mud Throwing is a Poor Substitute," was a report that two coeds had been slightly injured in an early-fall

"All this," said the Arg, "leads to the basic fact that the students' main purpose here is not to mutilate each other, but rather to meet the people with whom they will eventually live or work and learn to understand them as the backbone of progress and productive living."

When the Exec Board was preparing to elect a new member to fill a vacated Board seat, the Argonaut maintained that "The problem facing the Board is not one of party supremacy, but one on selecting the best qualified student for the job.". The paper further declared that petty politics had never been a consideration in Exec Board decisions and never would

In early October, the editorial column carried the blunt statement that "The loaded question of where the mounting number of student-owned cars are going to be parked is now strictly a student problem." The newspaper went on to explain that President D. R. Theophilus had told the Moscow Chamber of Commerce that the school could not afford to spend much more for parking and had asked the city to do something about it. The Arg favored the placing of a fee on parking stickers to finance larger lots.

'Flu' Caused Troubles "An epidemic is a frightening thing to contemplate," said the Arg on Oct. 11 as the first seven cases of the ailment were

But, it was pointed out, the University was ready to handle the disease if it spread. Declared the Arg: "We are sure that this campus will accept any such outbreak for what it is—a passing thing of minor consequences."

"It's another step upward," editorialized the Arg as the new multi-milliondollar library was opened for student use.
"This new library," the paper continued, "is another example of this school's incessant attempt to provide quality education. . . . May we attempt to grow intellectually with it."

To the Taxpayers . . . Under the headline, "Some Flux, But Many Problems," the Arg reminded Home-coming visitors of the improvements that had been wrought by their tax money.

'If you are a resident and taxpayer in the State of Idaho, said the Arg, "you know this institution is costing you money each year.

"Where is that money going? "A partial answer to that is spread before you. One and one-half million dollars is in that new University Library and hundreds of thousands more in two new dormitories, a married students housing project and an improved Student Union Building. "This money has been spread thin. Improvements are needed in many areas. of the physical layout of this school.

The Arg went on to explain that many traditions started years ago were still being followed and that "We who populate it now have faith in Idaho's potentialities. We hope you will wholeheartedly help us and our superiors on the Hill achieve

Freedom of speech, a basic American right, became an issue at UCLA in November, and the Arg threw its support to a small band of so-called "Young Socialists" who were being prohibited from distributing their literature on the campus. "Looking at the situation with practicality," said the Arg. "it is plain stupidity to make martyrs of out of this handful of radicals. It would be far better to let the students at UCLA read, discuss and then 1.0.0

game looming, the Arg reminded students that the traditional rivalry would be ended summarily if any violence occurred.

Again, this time in late November, the Arg lauded students for the support to an Club drive to send a distance runner ito the PCC cross country meet.

The Argonaut pointed out that while it is not opposed to a harmless declaration of opposition, it was against using any atudent funds to push such a campaign. While most of us—we repeat, most of ds—deplore the problem that was so recently evident at Little Rock, Ark.," declared the Arg, "we are not ready to finance a drive to run the affairs of another

"Boiled down to essential elements, we ask the Executive Board this: what possible good can be obtained from supporting something which has little or nothing to do with us, especially when we have not cleaned up our own mess at home."

The Church Controversy Turing from the international scene, the Arg went to bat in December for the Young Democrats and Young Republicans in their fight to relax the rulings on political speakers.

In this case, it was Democratic Sen. Frank Church who participated the prolonged discussion, which eventually led to a reappraisal of a policy set down by the Board of Regents.

The Arg asserted, "We must entirely agree with statements of the Young Democrats and Young Republicans which indicate their fear that students are losing all interest in the functioning of our nation in government. It must also be said in favor of these two groups that they are in complete agreement as to the advisability of Sen. Church's appearance here in a Public Events assembly.

"They realize that only through discussion—perhaps highly partisan discussion -can an informed electorate make a decision. We here aspire to be responsible, educated citizens, capable of leading, not bowing before, the emotional bent of the mass of voters.

'But our hunger for an understanding of the issues of the day must be cultivated. It is not innate nor is it something we can start developing after we leave col-

Then, in January, came the announcement that two fraternities had been placed on social probation for serving liquor at social functions. While the campus boiled with controversy over this action, the Arg commented:

"... Both were caught (serving liquor) and in a sense convicted of serving liquor at functions they sponsored. Mere possession of alcohol is in violation of University and state rules.

". . . We must agree with the fraternities now on carpet that almost every campus function could be penalized in the same way if the rules were observed to the letter and if such violations could be detected.

The Arg was of the opinion that the students themselves should do something about the problem and suggested that a committee be set up to improve the situ-

Aid the Coeds

A month later, the Arg editorially supported the AWS, which was then pushing for the addition of a smoker to the library. In April, President Theophilus approved the request.

RE Week was the next important event deserving of comment and the Arg urged students to take the advantage of such an educational poportunity since the event 'was here to stay."

The Arg also applauded a revision in the unwieldly system of communications between student-faculty committee and the Exec Board, which required that reports of the meetings be presented to the Board.

Again, in March, the editorial page looked over a long list of plans by the University, sororities and fraternities to construct new buildings.

All in all, future growth looked good. "These new buildings and improvements," said the Arg, "will serve as reminders that the citizens of Idaho are investing in more than our comfort. They're making a long-term investment and want equally long-term results for not only their own state, but the nation as a whole.

And, asked the Arg, "Shall we decide to work a little harder to deliver the goods?

The SUB Question

Still on the subjet of improving Idaho, the Argonaut strongly supported the new addition to the SUB and pointed out students have "had it easy" in paying for a first-rate education so far.

"If students will stop to consider that their stay at Idaho is a short one," said the editorial, "and that some of their own children will benefit from this project, support for this student financed and planned building should be unanimous."

In the middle of May, the Arg again issued a challenge to student to prove that the charge of "apathy" on their part was incorrect. The paper urged heavy repsons-es to committee interviews.

Still . . Expansion When the Campus Club fire shocked the state and the campus a few days later, the Arg pointed up the fact that when the question of appropriations was placed before their elected representatives again.

Queens Ruled Social Whirl

Social highlights of campus life were found everywhere, from the suspense preceding the announcement of Ann Marie Berry, Alpha Phi, (top left) as winner of the Miss University of Idalio title to the approval voiced at the performance of the Four Freshmen (top center) at the Junior-Senior Prom.

Marilyn Crane, a brunette Kappa, (top right), reigned as Homecoming Queen to highlight a week of festivities for returning alums amid intermittant showers and sunshine. The sophomore class crowned Sharon Matheney, Alpha Phi, (bottom center) as queen of the annual Holly Week, which included a style show and all-campus serenade. Phyllis Weeks, Alpha Phi, and Weldon Tovey, Willis Sweet, (bottom left) reigned over Frosh Week, climaxing a full schedule of events which saw the freshmen rapidly pull the sophomore class into Paradise Creek during the tug-of-war.

Rush was successfully concluded (bottom right) as 24 living groups pledged new members following four days of intensive programming during Frosh Orientation Week.

Pom-pom girls and "Joe Vandal" added color to a successful football and basketball season (center). Winter never did come to Idaho though, as evidenced by the straw skiing in February (upper center). Installation of automatic pinsetters in the SUB bowling alleys (left center) provided more facilities for recreational opportunities on campus, one of many improvements added to the University during the

Vandal Line Power

Halfback Larry Norby vaults over a mass of humanity created by the Idaho line to score against Montana. Scenes like this were frequent during the 1957 Idaho football season. Line play by the Vandals predominated in most of the four team wins.

The probable return of Jim Norton, Paul Wagar, Theron Nelsen, and Bob Dehlinger should round out the rest of the backfield.

Basketball coach Harlan Hodges, while not losing over half of his starters as is Stahley, still will be plagued at the start of the season with in-experience.

Three Back

The return of three of last season's regulars, Whaylon Coleman, John Liveious, and B. J. Schaffer. along with the probable return of injured Hal Damiano, will keep next year's basketball five titleconscious however.

Damiano's return could make the difference to the Vandals, considering that the tall sharp-shooter, besides being an outstanding defenseman, was second in the PCC in field goal percentage at the time of his injury last winter.

Three sophomores, Weldon Wood, Rolly Williams, and Roger Watts held back last season to preserve a year of eligibility, are counted on heavily by Hodges to produce in the clutch.

Schedule-wise the team faces what Hodges refers to as the "best schedule we've had yet." The Vandals will take on such opponents as Kent State in pre-conference play, and the early season games are expected to give the team much needed game experience.

TRACK

For the second straight year, the Idaho track squad failed to win a single dual meet, but the Vandals had some of the better individual performers in the ND.

Coach Joe Glanders' team was strongest in the distance events, where Frank Wyatt, Dick Boyce, and Rod Adams showed exceptionally well at times.

The Vandals closed the 1958 season with a fourth place in the ND meet, finishing ahead of Oregon State.

Wyatt, who will be back next year, won the two-mile, while Adams, running the best mile of his career, was third in that event.
