Campus Club Faces Closure

By CURT MERRILL
Argonaut Staff Writer

Campus Club members are deep in financial troubles. They claim that the only men's cooperative dormitory on campus is functioning sluggishly and feel that if a solution is not reached soon, the hall will become defunct.

Parties Lay Foundations To Fix Split

Greek and Independent party members are taking steps to mend the so-called "split" on the Idaho campus.

A foundation was laid by the two parties in a meeting Wednesday night. Building on the program will start at another meeting scheduled in mid-January.

Three points were selected as a basis upon which to expand. They include:

1. Dinner exchanges should be started between representatives from both sides of the campus. This would give each side an opportunity to observe the other group's life in an informal atmosphere.

2. More social exchanges should be initiated between Greek and Independent living groups. However, more planning should go into exchanges in order to gain variety and interest.

3. Some means of clearing up misconceptions between the two groups should be sought. Rumor has too often caused wrong impressions among Greeks and Independents.

A committee of four from each party was also planned in order to draw up rules concerning elections and how they should be operated.

The committee's work will be drawn up into a report, to be submitted to the Executive Board for approval.

Both Bob Bernard, Delta, and Dan Watson, Lambda Chi, Greek and Independent party caucus presidents, respectively, have pledged their support to the proposed program.

They said the program will be worked out in conjunction with the Social Coordination Council. They believed the project would be successful if cooperation is gained from both sides.

College Agrees With Freshman

A Gamma Phi freshman wishes she had longer arms . . . to push herself away from the table. She came up to school trim and svelte from a summer's work.

But food has got the best of her. She's gained 17 pounds.

In the season of giving, residents of Campus Club are about to part with something . . . their home.

Problems of Campus Club residents, which began with a fire which destroyed their former home in the spring of 1958, have been compounded to the point of near futility, as far as they are concerned.

Things haven't been all honey and spice since the first day 60 men moved into the $220,000 unit last February.

They have many gripes, and in our opinion the great share of them are justified. The original purpose of Campus Club was to give those students who didn't have an over-fulfilling wallet a chance to complete their education, by living and working in a cooperative dorm.

Recent facts show that this basic principle seems to have been forgotten. Cold, hard figures prove that Campus Club members are paying nearly as much, for the privilege of living at the club, as are members of other University dorms.

This would be fine, except for that basic underlying sore point—money.

The residents of Campus Club have appealed to the University, and apparently have received only the cold shoulder.

If Campus Club is to be a cooperative dorm a re-appraisal is needed. The fine, new $220,000 structure may be a playground for mice and the west wind, if something isn't done soon.

When the dormitory was rebuilt as a replacement to the old Campus Club, destroyed by fire in the spring of 1958, several problems were in the making, according to the members.

Club members, informed that the University heating plant was already overloaded and could not possibly accommodate the burden of another building, were obligated to pay for their own heat.

The new building was supplied with a gas furnace.

Capacity Reduced
Capacity of the re-built Campus Club was reduced to half of the original building. Since the fixed expenses are divided among the members, each resident has felt the increased financial burden of the new building.

It was intended that the new Campus Club would be occupied by men who wished to save some cash by doing the work for which the University usually hires outsiders to take care of.

This has not been the case, however, for the cooperative dormitory members have been paying as much, if not more, than residents of other campus halls.

In other dormitories, the University charges $309.50 per semester for room and board. At the Club, rent is $113.50 per semester, $31 for heat, lights, and hall supplies, and $82.50 for room.

When this is added to the $193 outlay for board, the total is just $3 less than other dormitories.

Must Clean Hall
In order to save $3 a semester, each member is expected to spend at least 75 hours each semester hashing and cleaning the hall.

Club members have petitioned the University for aid in solving the problem, but report they have received no advice or help to date.

Proposals submitted to the administration are as follows:
1. A rent reduction should be offered Campus Club members so they pay a total amount of rent comparable to that paid by other students when the extra work requirements are considered.

2. The University should furnish heat and lights. The expense of the kitchen electricity is now borne by the Club. Rent should also be adjusted for the expense of a janitor and hall supplies.

3. The University should pay for heat, lights, a janitor, and janitorial supplies and charge Campus Club members rent comparable with that paid in other dormitories. The Club would operate the kitchen only and the rest of the dorm would be operated by the University.

4. A group of women from French House, accompanied by the house mother, should be allowed to eat at the Club.

Might Leave Dorm
About 30 men, representing more than half of the Club's residents, have expressed their intention to leave the dormitory if the expense of living in a cooperative dormitory is not decreased.

A final proposal will be submitted to the Board of Regents meeting this weekend, according to Earl Pederson, Club president. The proposal asks that the University give the Club two loans of $2,000 each at the end of the next year.

NSA, Campus Problems Are Topics At E. Board Meeting

Executive Board members became bogged down with campus problems and issues, including National Student Association and student recruitment, when they met for 2½ hours Tuesday night.

ASU President Laird Noh told the Board that one of the main problems brought out at a regional NSA meeting at Marylhurst last week was secondary school certificates.

He said that a teacher can teach in any field as long as he meets the general requirements, whether he has the training in the field or not.

Many at the convention felt requirements within specific colleges are redundant, he said. They decided that only history, philosophy, psychology, and methods are needed by teachers.

Methods of putting these ideas into action were discussed by Board members and they elected to follow through on improving the certification program.

Services Planned For Dead Snake

"Cuddles" is dead. The short, mixed up life of Dick Parr's eight foot boa constrictor terminated at 9 a.m. yesterday. The snake was a victim of double pneumonia.

Apparently the switch from the jungles of the Amazon to the cold of northern Idaho was too much for the Red Roost's mascot.

Funeral services will be held in the near future with Parr presiding.

Idaho Drops Math Student

The Discipline Committee this week suspended a University student who was caught cheating on an examination.

Dr. Edward Moore, chairman of the committee, said the student, a freshman in a mathematics course, was suspended for the remainder of the first semester.

The case was referred to the committee by the course instructor. The committee, after studying the case, recommended suspension and received approval from the President.

"We felt somewhat lenient because the student was a freshman, but won't in future, regardless of status in the University," Moore said.

Two Trees
The Queen's throne will have two Christmas trees on each side with an abstract snowflake directly above the pedestal. Old fashioned street lamps along with pine bows will adorn the bandstand.

Both entrances to the ballrooms will be decorated with pine bows while the ballroom walls will sport large scrolls in which "Merry Christmas" is written in different languages.

Gary Dossett's "Embers" will provide the music for the dance. The Queen will be crowned by Bob Schini, Delta, Sophomore class president. Steve Norell, Phi Tau and Bob Keller, Sig Chi, will emcee the show, which will feature singers Shirley Mitchell, Theta and Dave Pugh, Sigma Chi.

Keller, general chairman of Holly Week and Sophomore Vice President, had these remarks about the week's activities.

"We are sincerely gratified by the progressive enthusiasm displayed by the sophomore class." He added, "The large turnout of students converging on the SUB for the style show were rewarded by a beautiful and most effective performance."

Campus Club in the men's division and Alpha Chi in the women's took first place in the Christmas door decoration contest sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha. Campus Club won with a stained glass window display of two angels. A nativity scene won a first place for the Alpha Chi's in their division.

Sophomore Men To Select 1959 Holly Queen Today

By HERB HOLLINGER
Argonaut Ass't. News Editor

In ballots cast Wednesday by Sophomore males, five coeds were chosen Holly Queen finalist. One of the campus lovelies will be crowned Queen at the Holly Dance tonight from 9-12:30 p.m. in the SUB ballroom.

The finalists are: Dee White, Alpha Phi; Norma Pomponio, Gamma Phi; Camille Shelton, Alpha Chi; Pat Ord, Pi Phi; and Brenda Brown, French.

At noon today the Sophomore males will vote for one of the five finalists and the winner will be crowned at the intermission of the Holly Dance. The crowning of the Queen will cap a week's activities in which she has done everything from caroling to modeling.

With the Holly Dance the Sophomore Holly Week reaches its climax. The festivities included wreath laying on Monday, the Queen's Style Show on Wednesday, Christmas Caroling Thursday, and the Holly Dance tonight.

The dance is one of the biggest given during the year and women have 1:30 a.m. permission. Decorations for the dance consist of blue and white snowflakes overhanging the ballrooms with blue spotlights and blue and white Christmas trees complementing the scene.

The major acting trypouts will be held at 1 p.m. followed by the minor part trypouts at 2. At 3 p.m. there will be a general recall of all actors and singers.

Audition material may be picked up today. Harry S. Morrison of the music department has the audition material for the major singing roles.

Miss Jean Collette of the drama department has the audition parts for the major acting roles. Dancers should contact Edmund Chavez in the drama department.

The cast includes many weird and varied characters. Remember these from the Li'l Abner comic strip?

There are two non-speaking parts open for tall shapely girls.

Arg Will Publish 2nd Crossroads

The Argonaut will publish its second annual "Crossroads" edition Tuesday and is planning several other features of overall campus importance soon.

"Crossroads," begun last year, will point out the problems facing the University in the years to come, as well as plans for SUB expansion.

Also included Tuesday, in the last Argonaut before the holidays, will be a special Christmas page, plus regular Arg news and features.

Early next year, the Argonaut will begin a series of articles on the University Student Bookstore, currently one of the most controversial issues on campus.

Along With Santa

Vandaleers Christmas Concert Ready For Sunday Showing

Santa Claus, his reindeer and the Vandaleer Christmas Candlelight Concert all come once a year.

Santa Claus won't arrive until Dec. 25 but the Candlelight Concert is scheduled for Sunday night at 8 in Memorial Gymnasium.

The traditional spirit of familiar Christmas hymns will be mixed this year with a new idea in staging to bring an hour and 15-minute program to townspeople, faculty and students.

Vandaleer director, Glen R. Lockery, said the entire program will be presented from the main floor in an attempt to improve the tone presence and bring the sound closer to the listener.

The staging effect will cut the decoration problem about in half since the gold curtains will be used as a formal background.

Last year, when the choir was on the stage, the music quality was obstructed before it reached the audience. The attempt to improve the acoustics should give the audience something better to expect, Lockery added.

The singers will be on risers in front of the stage flanked by candle railings made of the specially-made candles the Vandaleers carry into the gym during the process-

South Feels Integration Won't Come

A prediction that the public schools of the four states comprising the Deep South "will not be integrated in my lifetime" was made Wednesday night by a former Southern educator.

Presenting the Southern view on integration in an AAUP lecture, Dr. William Hunter, head of the University Humanities dept., talked to 120 students and faculty in the Home Ec. building.

Economic Fear
He based the prediction on his belief that the white Southerner's fear of economic competition from an educated Negro population is so strong that the Dixie states will close their public schools, rather than integrate them.

Negro competition, Hunter said, would destroy the economy of an already poor section of the country.

Concerning the inroads school desegregation has made since the Supreme Court order of 1954, he said a distinction must be drawn between the Southern border states and the Deep South.

In the Deep South — Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Mississippi — school integration has not been attempted, he said.

Hunter, who lived in South Carolina for 11 years and served on a county school board there, said if he had attempted to express his personal feelings, which strongly favor integration, he would have lost his job, been socially ostracized and possibly been put in fear of his life.

He told of how he once secretly taught English and music to a Negro girl, who had an intense desire to learn.

"I could not have done this openly," he said. "People would have talked. Before tonight I have not told more than three people."

Incidentally, he added, though the girl had an MA degree from a Negro university, her knowledge would have compared with the average Northern sixth grader.

Sub-Standard Education
With few exceptions, Hunter said, the educational standards throughout the South, in the schools of both races, are sub-standard when compared with the rest of the nation.

He blamed this on public apathy toward education.

The one bright hope for the future, Hunter said, is the trend toward racial tolerance by the younger generation of Southern whites, most of whom don't harbor the prejudices of their parents.

KEYS AVAILABLE
A limited number of Campus Keys are still for sale in the ASUI offices of the SUB. Price to University students is $.50.

A Tough Job

As to why the program is necessary, Twiggs is positive. "Our weakest point is in the southern Idaho area, as far as recruitment is concerned," he said, "we have too many students who go to Utah because they think it's cheaper and better there, and because many of them are under the impression Idaho is a party school."

"We want to convince those students that the University is a much better institution than they think it is."

Set The Atmosphere
The brass ensemble will play familiar carols in the gym lobby to set the atmosphere before the program. Members are Steve Evans, Ronald Ray, Fritz Sprute, trumpets; Robert Goranson, Larry Judd, Tommie Jo Thomas, horns; James McDowell, Keith Newhouse, Neil Walters, trombones; and Joe Goss, tuba.

The string orchestra will play "Christmas Concerto" by Correll for the candlelight procession, and will also be utilized for the first number, "Magnificat," from "Vespers" of 1610 by Monteverdi. Lockery said he had no knowledge of this piece ever being done before in the West.

Soloists will be Billie Sommers, Kris Madison, sopranos; Joan Ward, alto; Barry Binning, Ardel Shockley, tenors; Norman Logan, Harry Morgan, baritone.

The committee, organized last year by Guy Wicks, associate director of Student Affairs; Charles Decker, director of Student Affairs; Lance Johnson, Beta; Laird Noh, Sigma Nu; and Twiggs, off campus, is primarily interested in the valedictorians, salutatorians and student body presidents in about 100 high schools all over the state.

Two Phases of Program
The recruitment program is divided into two phases: limited counseling sessions, and personal contacts.

The counseling sessions are on a trial basis, to see whether or not they are workable, and will be limited to participation in 20 high schools.

In these sessions, a member of the SRC will reserve a room in a high school, to talk to interested students as a group, answering questions on the University.

Each high school will be represented by a University student from that area, who will send out letters to the principals reserving rooms for his use.

"In our counseling sessions," said Twiggs at Tuesday's Executive Board meeting, "We will try to contact the schools which have not been let out for Christmas many schools have a harvest vacation, and as a result, go to school during most of the Christmas vacation."

The other phase of the recruitment program is the personal contact system, in which SRC committee members will individually contact high school students in their area.

Top Students Involved
Names of top students in Idaho high schools have been gathered by the office of Student Affairs from honor rolls in newspapers and by personal letters and knowledge.

"In the area, if possible," said Twiggs, "we want to have a University student talking to high school students in the field in which they are interested."

Cards indicating names, interests, and abilities, will be filled out by the high school students for further reference when the SRC committee members return after the vacation.

The committee is divided into eight major divisions, coming under Twiggs and his assistant chairman, Lance Johnson. Each of these divisions is in charge of recruiting a separate district of Idaho. Each division is divided into the area's high schools.

Traveling at their own expense to the high schools in their assigned zone, a group consisting of the zone chairman (a University student) an alumnus from the high school, and several other committee members, will visit outstanding students and their parents in their homes, explaining the benefits of the University of Idaho.

"SRC is a big job, and it has almost developed into a full time operation" as Twiggs puts it.

Jazz In Bucket To Star Sax

The soft sounds of Cec Hezek's subdued sax will accentuate Saturday's session of Jazz in the Bucket, held from 4 to 5 p.m.

His group, the "Four Notes," is composed of Jay Cline, Sigma Chi; and Ken Regnier and Frank Hunter, off campus. His specialty is contemporary progressive jazz sounds.

Balancing the hour of music will be the "Six Bo's" or the "Singing Sigs," the vocal group taking top honors in the recent Dad's Day Musical Quartet contest.

Suggestions for next semester's Bucket jazz sessions, which may be composed of non-local groups, are being taken by Dick Stiles, Delta Sig, committee chairman.

A Decade's Dreams And Death

A decade's days are dwindling to a precious few.

And the contributions that were made in the short, 10-year period known to mankind as the 1950s will soon be left for historians to judge.

But, before turning the job of evaluation over to that special group of experts, one hard look might be taken at the fabulous "fifties."

Americans truly were faced with a period that could only be described in terms of mythical, fantastic, and beyond the limits of belief.

Flipping back the calendar pages, this is what the record books show:

Mid-way through 1950, Americans were rudely introduced to a small, Far Eastern country called Korea. The name has not been forgotten, nor will it be for many years to come.

By 1951, a Senate Crime Investigating Committee was holding hearings in New York City. The work hasn't slowed down much. Labor was put on review; television was caught with its morals showing.

In England, a young woman took the throne for Great Britain on a February day in 1952.

Movies became better. Remember "The Greatest Show On Earth," "High Noon," and "Come Back Little Sheba?" A new innovation known as 3-D had a short life, while cinemascope came along to widen the movie screen's scope.

Another event across the sea played a great role in effecting public opinion here in 1953. Stalin was dead.

By 1954, the United States Supreme Court banned segregation in public schools. Little Rock, Ark., hit the headlines before the decade was completed.

At the decade's zenith, America's economy was an important factor in the overall picture. Personal income was at an all-time high—$272 billion.

Meanwhile, 1955 had started off with a bang. On a cold January day, the atomic-powered submarine Nautilus went to sea. Before the year was done, Churchill resigned and the United States made plans to build a tiny "moon" to circulate the earth like a satellite.

The romance of the decade was centered around a Hollywood actress that looked like the girl next door and a European ruler. Grace Kelly married Prince Rainier of Monaco.

In 1956, the FBI solved the Brink's robbery, Eisenhower planned to run for a second term, Margaret Truman was married, two airliners crashed over the Grand Canyon, the Andrea Doria sank, and the Republicans were back in the White House.

Mike Todd's production of "Around the World in Eighty Days" stepped into the spotlight. However, the producer did not stay around to enjoy the warmth of that light shining on the film's success.

On May 2, 1957, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wisc.) died, leaving another strange legacy to the period in review. A chubby character named Khrushchev was on the screen of that magic little box in the living room. An atomic explosion, set off in the wastelands of Nevada, shook the West, but another event in October shook the entire world. Russia had sent Sputnik I skyward.

Along came 1958.

America came back with a rabbit punch. Explorer I was placed in orbit. Before the year was out satellites were getting bigger and better.

The Middle East was in the newspaper columns, too, big and black. Pope Pius died in Rome. Discussions began on the banning of nuclear weapons.

Then it was 1959. A steel strike crippled a nation. An earthquake struck close to home. Quiz shows were being quizzed.

And so it went. In 20 days, the 1950s will be willed to history. How they will stack up with the 1940s, 1930s, 1920s, and so on depends only on the test of age.

But the job is now left to the historians. Time marches on.—J.C.F.

It's No Joke

When the shrill clang of a fire alarm wakes you out of your sleep, a person is apt to do some rather unusual things, as noted in a news story in today's Argon.

This little incident is good for a laugh but the ringing of a fire alarm on this campus is far from a joke. Many juniors and seniors who remember the fires of 1956 and '57 are not impressed with this sort of a practical joke.

The sound associated with the fire alarm should mean one thing and that is that there is a fire somewhere in the building. Any hesitation or consideration of whether the alarm is real or only another practical joke could have disastrous results.

The joker who persists in this sort of entertainment may not find it so funny to be the indirect cause of a fellow student's death.—B.C.W.

Fire Alarm Has Humorous Results

A mysterious ringing of the McConnell hall fire alarm Tuesday night caused some rather humorous actions by the hall's occupants.

Two of tenants of the third floor broke their alarm clocks trying to shut them off. One enterprising fellow thought it was his alarm radio working overtime and proceeded to put it out of commission.

In the room across from the alarm, a student, somewhat prone to sleepwalking, got the impression that his door was locked and slammed a chair against it in order to open it up.

He then proceeded across the hall where he stood in his pajamas with his hand over the horn trying to stop the noise. He retained this position for several minutes till he was awakened by his room mate.

Loyalty Oaths Ineffective, Objectionable In Principle

By BERNARD C. BORNING
Chairman of Political Science

Professors, whose primary academic field is political theory and ideology, have a professional concern over the current issue of loyalty oaths.

The loyalty oaths are specially imposed on academic people, and are exemplified by teachers and students as such. The so-called non-Communist oath provision is a part of the National Defense Education Act of 1958.

Two main contentions may be validly pressed against this type of specially-imposed oath: (1) it is ineffective; (2) it is objectionable in principle.

What Purpose

With regard to the first contention it is relevant to inquire as to what purpose or end the oath requirement is designed to serve.

Is it designed to expose Communists? Hardly a better technique could be devised to hide Communists. Surely no one supposes that a dyed-in-the-wool Communist would hesitate to sign a non-Communist oath if he thought he could thereby further his own ends.

Is the main purpose to lay the groundwork for a subsequent perjury trial against persons advocating the violent overthrow of the U.S. Government? Federal statutes on the books long before 1953 already make such advocacy a crime. It is not apparent that some imminent danger suddenly justified this added "perjury trap."

Insure Loyalty

Does it aim at insuring loyalty to "American" ideas and institutions? If so, to which American ideas and institutions? Loyalty to racial segregation or to racial integration? To "public power" or to "private power"? To traditions of internationalism or of isolationism? To the spoils system or to the merit system? The simple fact appears to be that the loyalty of free men cannot be coerced; if it is genuine it is freely given.

Is the oath requirement merely a safeguard which any "prudent investor" would seek before granting loans or subsidies. If so, the "investor" has been acting imprudently for some time.

Why single out certain persons in the academic world? Why impose special oaths not required of newspaper, sermons, farmers, air carriers, armament manufacturers, shipping companies, and a great many other groups and individuals in American life who benefit from public subsidies?

In short, the special academic

Greek, Independent Talks Hold Promise Of Sealing The 'Split'

During the last two weeks, Independent and Greek causes have had two meetings devoted to examining the "Split Problem," in an effort to reach some decisions which, if they will not serve as solutions, may at least contribute to better understanding.

This is good, because even if their efforts should prove futile, they are at least trying, which is the essential thing. Nothing is ever lost by talking things over.

It seems to me, (and I must emphasize that what is written here is my own opinion and not necessarily that of the meeting) that three things discussed are worthy of note.

The first is that there are several possible variations in existing social activities that might lead to understanding through personal contact. One possibility is more exchanges between Greek and Independent living groups.

Another is, that on nights of Panhellenic, IFC and RHC meetings, the Greeks who on these occasions would normally eat in other fraternities could have their meal in a hall, and vice versa.

Things might be done to smooth out conflicts arising from political campaigning.

Smokers could be quietened down and be used for reasonable talks rather than baiting the opposition. Combined rallies might also have a unifying effect.

The most touchy point of all arises from the moving of Greeks who have not maintained a satisfactory grade point into dorms.

From the Independent point of view these people are often dead weight, since they are sometimes very active in the affairs of the group among whom they now live, and at times do not wish to pay dues.

The reason for this is sometimes that they are still participating in "activities" with their fraternities.

Reasonable

To the Greeks, this is reasonable because they do not wish to break off all relations with the

TV OR NOT TV

The academic world has made its first tentative steps into television—a few lectures, a few seminars, a few lab demonstrations—but colleges have not yet begun to use television's vast capacity to dramatize, to amuse, to stir the senses, to unshackle the imagination. Like, for example, the following:

ANNOUNCER: Howdy, folksies. Well, it's time again for that lovable, laughable pair, Emmett Twonkey Magruder, Ph. D., and Felicia May Crimscott, M.A., in that rollicking, roistering fun show, American History 101 . . . And here they are—the team that took the "hiss" out of "history"—Emmett Twonkey Magruder and Felicia May Crimscott!

DR. MAGRUDER: Howdy, folksies. A funny thing happened to me on the way to my doctorate. A mendicant approached me and said, "Excuse me, sir, will you give me 25 cents for a sandwich?" and I replied, "Perhaps I will, my good man. Let me see the sandwich."

"What-um you-um want-um?"

MISS CRIMSCOTT: Oh, how droll, Dr. Magruder! How delicious! You're a regular Joe Penner! . . . But enough of badinage. Let us turn to our rollicking, roistering fun show, American History 101.

DR. MAGRUDER: Today we will dramatize the taut and tingling story of John Smith and Pocahontas. I will play Captain Smith and Miss Magruder will play Pocahontas.

ANNOUNCER: But first a message from our sponsor . . . Folksies, have you tried Alpine Cigarettes yet? Have you treated yourself to that fresh filtration, that subtle coolness, that extra-long, extra-efficient filter? Have you? Hmmm? . . . If not, wake your tobaccoist and get some Alpines at once! . . . And now to our grim and gripping story. Picture, if you will, a still summer night. An Indian maid stands by a moonlit brook. Suddenly she hears a footstep behind her. She turns . . .

MISS CRIMSCOTT: Oh! John Smith! You-um startle-um me-um!

DR. MAGRUDER: Howdy, Pocahontas. What are you doing by the brook?

MISS CRIMSCOTT: Just washing out a few scalps. But what-um you-um want-um?

DR. MAGRUDER: I came to see the Chief.

MISS CRIMSCOTT: You-um can't-um. Chief is leaving for Chicago.

DR. MAGRUDER: On what track?

ANNOUNCER: And speaking of tracks, stay on the right track with Alpines—the track that leads straight to smoking pleasure, to fun, to frolic, to sweet content . . . And now back to those two gassers, Emmett Twonkey Magruder and Felicia May Crimscott.

DR. MAGRUDER: Well, folksies, that's all for today. See you next week, same time, same channel.

MISS CRIMSCOTT: Stay tuned now for "William Cullen Bryant—Girl Intern."

ANNOUNCER: And remember, folksies, there was a time when you needed to smoke two cigarettes to get what you get from one Alpine—one cigarette for light menthol, one for high filtration. Today you can get it all in a single Alpine, which means you no longer have to go around smoking two cigarettes at a time, causing your friends to snigger, and violating the fire laws.

Holly Week, Holiday Events Sees Idaho's Campus Active

By MARSIA BUKOKER
Argonaut Society Editor

Christmas brings with it a festive two weeks of extra activities. The spirit of Christmas is shown on campus by "Holly Week" activities, door decorations, and many seasonal dances and exchanges.

Christmas spirit ran high in the ALPHA PHI house as the sophomores put up the tree Monday night. The following Tuesday a surprise party was held for Alpha Phi hushers and Denny Hague, Beta, as guest. Sunday will be filled with a Christmas party for alumni and a reception for the Vandaleers. "Silver Bells" and the music of Dave Tarola's band set the mood for the pledge dance last Saturday night.

A surprise Paddle Party was held for Alpha Phi moms. Exchanges of the week have been with Willis Sweet, Upham and SAEs. Nancy Vosika was awarded the gold pledge pin for receiving the highest pledge class grades. Guest: this weekend was Rose Marie Straven, Colfax. Dinner guests have been Sally Jo Nelson, Gamma Phi; Leitha Aherin, Theta, and Idonna Kellogg.

CHRISMAN hosted the Holly Queen finalists at dinner Thursday evening.

An alum Christmas tea and bridge party began the season for the DELTA GAMMAS. Guest for Sunday dinner was Glen Lockery and Wednesday dinner was Dr. Graue, who talked to the girls after dinner.

The 12-hour "House Party" of the KAPPA SIGS Saturday was highlighted by a banquet and dance. Pledges exchanged with French house Wednesday. Dr. Degener was guest speaker at Wednesday dinner.

Saturday night FRENCH HOUSE was decorated in pink and silver to present the winter formal dance, "Misty." Guests were Dr. and Mrs. Dumas and Dr. and Mrs. Kendrick. A Wednesday exchange was held with the Kappa Sig.

During the TEKE Apache dance Friday night, there was a strange disappearance of the red-head that adorned the roof of the house. After days of despair and sorrow, the Alpha Gams brought back happiness with the return of the poster, along with a serenade.

The Yuletide spirit runs high in FORNEY as plans are being made for a Christmas dinner and fire-side Sunday. Forney's annual Christmas dance was held Dec. 4 in the SUB ballroom. Theme of the dance was "Snow Frolic." Orinda Haimon was elected Forney's girl of the month for November. Exchanges were held with the LDS House and Betas.

SAEs held a formal tea last Sunday in honor of their housemother, Mrs. Reginald Coleman. Eight coeds were tapped into the Little Sisters of Minerva. They were Linda Bruce, Ruthanna Hawkins and Judy Hickman, Gamma Phi; Barbara Fowler, Alpha Phi; Katherine Koelsch, DG; Marilyn Voyles, Tri Delta; Georganne McDowell, Theta; and Lynne Shellman, Pi Phi. Ann Jacobs, Gamma Phi, affiliated with the Little Sisters at the University of Oregon, was also added to the membership list. An all-house exchange was held with the Tri Deltas. A visitor this week is George Kallusky, chapter advisor from the national headquarters of SAE in Evanston, Ill.

LAMBDA CHI will hold its Christmas house party and white elephant exchange Sunday.

A tree decorating fireside was held Sunday night at the ALPHA GAM house. Dinner guests the last week have been Mr. and Mrs. John Laut, Moscow; Deanna Huff, French House; Barbara Britt, Jays; Mr. and Mrs. Chavez and Miss Joan Collette from the drama department.

SIGMA NU entertained the Gamma Phis at their annual Christmas exchange Monday night. The "Pollatch function" will be held this Saturday night in the house. A western band has been obtained from Spokane for the function. The annual Sigma Nu Christmas serenade will be held Sunday night.

Two UPHAM HALL lumberjacks cut a 20-foot Christmas tree near Deary this week and installed it in the lounge. Upham's hushers staged a Christmas party in the dining hall at Wednesday dinner. An exchange with the Kappas was held after the meal.

Another big week end, which included two weddings and a dance, has gone by at the BETA house. A reception in honor of Saturday's marriage of Jim Gnechok, '50, to the former Dottie Wagner of Boise was given by the Betas and DGs Sunday afternoon. A Christmas exchange will be held with the Pi

Alpha Gams Win Pan-Hell Award

The Alpha Gams won their own scholarship award last week.

The Pan-Hellenic Scholarship Improvement Award, a silver trophy, was presented to the sorority at dinner by Pan-Hell officers for the 58-59 year.

The tray is given every year to the sorority which improves its grades the most from one semester to the next.

The annual Wassail Hour will be held by the PI PHIS Sunday. An all-house Beta exchange will be held Tuesday. A big fire in the fireplace and a decorated Christmas tree set the stage for a date fireside Sunday night. Guests the last week for dinner have been Patt Dunn, DG; Judy Petterborg, Gamma Phi; Larry Jefferies, Fiji; Mrs. Jewell, Boise; and Chuck Morris, Spokane.

2 HISTORICAL SPEECHES

Mark Anthony made two famous speeches. One was at Caesar's grave when he said, "I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him." The other was at Cleopatra's tent at midnight.

"I didn't come here to talk," he said.

Hallmark Christmas Cards Are Displayed On SUB Mezzanine

By KEITH GREGORY
Argonaut Staff Writer

With the spirit of Christmas upon the campus, students are thinking about sending greeting cards to their friends and relatives.

Unfortunately, many cards which were enjoyed by our parents and grand parents have been taken from circulation by manufacturers, and these have been replaced by cards with the designs of modern world.

However, they can still be seen by anyone wishing to take the trouble of climbing a single flight of stairs in the SUB to the mezzanine where the Hallmark display of antique Christmas cards is currently on display.

The display is composed of cards from the Hallmark collection. So, that as many people as possible may derive enjoyment from these cards, they are loaned to universities and colleges all over the nation.

First Christmas Card

One of the highlights of the collection is a reproduction of the first Christmas card. This card was etched by John Calcott Horsley for Henry Cole of London in 1843.

Spokane Students Plan Get-Together

A tea and dance for Spokane area college students will be held in the Marie Antoinette and Isabella rooms of the Davenport Hotel from 4-7 p.m., Dec. 22.

Idaho campus representative Brody Conklin, Delt, said the tea and dance are being planned, so that Spokane college students can hold a united get together during the holidays.

Tickets for the event, sponsored by St. George's School, are available at $1.50 per person from Conklin or the Davenport Travel Service. Ralph Dickinson and his Orchestra will provide music. About 400 students are expected to attend.

KELLOGG WINS DEBATE

Kellogg won first place in the practice debate tournament held last Saturday in the SUB, including fifteen debate teams from Northern Idaho.

Wesley Plans Caroling

The Wesley Foundation will carol for shut-ins throughout the city Sunday evening. DSF is planning a Christmas program Sunday night and a party for the Moscow Children's Home Wednesday.

WESTMINSTER FOUNDATION

The regular meeting of Westminster Foundation will be at the CCC Dec 13, from 5-7 p.m. The program will be a sacrificial meal, a meditation and dedication of Christmas offering to church world service.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

The Wesley Caroling Party will be held Sunday afternoon from 5 to 6:30 p.m. Carolers will meet at the Campus Christian Center and travel by bus to sing to shut-ins throughout the city. They will then return to the CCC for refreshments.

DSF

Sunday evening at 5, a special worship service will be held at the First Christian Church. Under the direction of Jean Long, the CYF and the DSF youth groups are presenting "White Gifts for the King," a musical narration of the Christmas story. Following the play, the members of the church will present their "gifts" for the Northwest Christian Home, Beaverton, Ore.

WEDNESDAY

Wednesday the college group is sponsoring a Christmas party for the Moscow Children's Home. DSF members will meet at the home from 10 to 12.

CANTERBURY HOUSE

A Christmas dinner party will be held at 5:30 Sunday with a film on skiing in the Canadian Rockies being shown. Canterburians will then adjourn to the Vandaleer concert at 7:15.

Members of Orchesis are Janice McCleskey, Coy Ann Ball, Margaret Johnson, Chris Peterson and Arlene Turnbull, all Tri-Delt; Beverly Bucklin and Sharon Neiland, Pi Phi; Sharon Griffiths and Linda Compton, Theta; Carol Hurley and Sandi Wright, Hays; Larry DeLashmutt, Chrisman; June Hanford, Sigma Nu; Heather Hill, Kappa; Bonnie Scott, Alpha Gamma, and Butch Foltz, Delta Chi.

Feature dancers will be Larry DeLashmutt, Chrisman, and Ann Tucker, off-campus.

Started With 18 Students

Idaho's Singing Vandaleers Uphold Rich 30-Year-Old Musical Heritage

While the world prepares to start a new decade, the Idaho Vandaleers will be looking back to almost 30 years of singing history.

Since a group of 18 students organized a small choir in 1930 and became quite popular touring over the state, the choral group has gained in fame, appreciation and size up to the present 70-voice choir that will present one of its most popular programs this Sunday night.

The first group was slow in starting, but after the campus realized and appreciated the choir's functions, the ASUI and the University saw it as a promotional asset and lent support.

The Christmas Candlelight Concert was begun shortly before World War II broke out and since then has outgrown its original home, the University auditorium.

Started Later
In the early years, the Candlelight Concert didn't begin till 11 p. m. This was probably a follow-up of the tradition of attending church at 11 p. m. on Christmas Eve.

The concerts were then held in the middle of the week and ran for two nights. One night was designated for townspeople and the other was reserved for students.

The outbreak of World War II forced the Vandaleers into temporary inexistence. In its place an all-women's singing orchestra was formed because of the lack of male students on campus. This group made several tours in the state, visiting high schools and adding "esprit de corps" at military bases.

The Vandaleers organization was incorporated into the ASUI in 1947 and student funds were used to help pay for tours and robes.

After the war the Vandaleers were reactivated and Glen R. Lockery joined the music faculty in 1947 to take charge of the group, and make a few changes.

He changed the concert time to 8 p. m. to appeal to more people and started the candlelight procession with chorus members bearing lighted candles as they entered the auditorium.

Changed Date
The date was also changed to one performance on a Sunday night and Moscow churches readily cooperated by arranging their services to accommodate the concert, Lockery said.

The more popular time and new ideas brought larger crowds — so large that the auditorium could no longer handle them, and the concert was moved to Memorial Gymnasium. This was in 1951.

HERE'S MORE ABOUT — Vandaleers . . .

of the music faculty; LeRoy Bauer, faculty, and Sally Maddocks, violins; Warren Bellis, faculty, and Ralph Strobel, oboes. Hall M. Macklin, head of the music department, will be on the concert organist.

Many Soloists
The last section of the program will include "Faptasia on Christmas Carols" by Vaughn Williams with Golden Arrington, tenor soloist, David Whisner, faculty, cellist, and Russell Crockett, pianist; "Five Narrative Carols" by Lloyd Pfautsch for women's chorus with Anne Lyons, soprano soloist, LaVonne Tarbox, flute, and Frank Grossman, top drum; and three Christmas songs arranged for male chorus with Binning and Sheokley, tenor soloists.

The evening will be climaxed by a candlelight serenade of seven traditional Christmas hymns with DeLance Franklin, bass soloist.

The 70-voice choir, larger this year than ever before, will wear their dark blue, silver-lined robes for the second time in the annual Christmas concert. The robes were purchased last year and arrived just in time for the concert.

Recordings will be made of the program for rebroadcast throughout the state, Lockery said. The concert has also been sold to a Spokane radio station for use on Christmas eve and Christmas day.

Euclid Lee, Lindley, and Judith Marineau, off campus, have been in charge of decorations and publicity, respectively, for the event. John Ensunda, Sigma Chi, is Vandaleer president.

These changes meant more work, too, for it necessitated special lighting arrangements, more decorations and more help from the singers. All the greenery and incidental decorations are now prepared by the choir—even to cutting the trees and boughs and tying ribbons on them.

"The event is fast becoming an all-University production," Lockery said, "since it not only involves the music department, but other areas such as forestry for the greenery, physical education for the gym, Building and Grounds for other decorations, the communications department for recording the program for broadcast throughout the state and the ASUI."

The short time allowed for decorations is usually one of the biggest problems. This year is an exception because there are no home basketball games this weekend. Usually, however, Saturday night ball games only leaves 24 hours to convert the gym into an outdoor Christmas scene.

Help Provided
Occasional help in cleaning up the gym after the concert is provided by faculty and staff members, Lockery noted. People start taking some of the trees and other decorations right after the program, he said. Some are even speaking in advance for a tree or wreath.

Wax candles were used in the first processions, but as a fire safety measure, these were done away with in 1951 and the choir now uses specially-built wooden candles. An increased interest in fire prevention that fall, spurred by a rushing party fire served as influencing factors.

The unique candles were made by Building and Grounds and operate just like a flashlight except that wires are used instead of direct contact.

The flames for the candles are also specially made with a penlight bulb covered with plastic foam cut to simulate a flame. Lockery said he has had several inquiries from other singing groups showing interest in this idea.

OATHS MISGUIDED
The University of Washington will accept student loans from the government under the 1958 National Defense Education Act but President Charles Odegaard stated he agreed with other colleges that the loyalty oath affidavit is "misguided."

SOUTH KOREANS SPEAK — Jai-Wook Koh, editor of Dong-A Ilbo, strongest paper in South Korea (second from the right) was one of two Korean newsmen who gave their views in an interview with journalism students Tuesday. Barbara Fowler, Alpha Phi, George Christensen, Delta Chi, and Chairman of Journalism Dr. Granville Price, listened intently. On the right is Koh's interpreter, Sang-tae Hahn.

South Korean Newsmen Give Views On U.S. For Student-Given News Press Conference

By NEIL LEITNER
Argonaut News Editor

The editor of the strongest paper in South Korea believes that "United States troops in Korea are playing the dominant role in the prevention of Communist aggression in my country."

Jai-wook Koh, editor of the Dong-A Ilbo, who, with his traveling companion Kyung-soo Wahn, chief of the planting section of another Korean daily, are currently in the U. S. studying newspapers and newspaper production, said that he had information that the North Korean army has notably increased since the armistice, and is watching for an opportunity to again invade South Korea.

"The only reason why they are not coming down," said Koh, "is because of the presence of the Republic of Korea and United Nations forces."

The two Korean newsmen helped by interpreter Sang-Tae Hahn, talked with members of two University journalism classes Tuesday, answering questions on subjects ranging from U. S. troops in Korea to Korean-Japanese relations.

Possibly the quickest question asked newsmen was why they were editorially opposed to president Syngman Rhee.

"Our paper is independent," said Koh, "but we support the Democratic party, because we believe that the development of democracy depends on a critical attitude toward Rhee."

Commenting on a divided Korea, Koh said, "The division is the most tragic event in our country's history, but the division itself is not something that the Korean people themselves have created, but the result of an outside force which we can't settle lastingly through war and which will have to be settled through international negotiations."

"It may, however, take some time," he continued, "this we realize. And even when unification may be complete, there will still be many problems to face. It will not be easy for us to stand alone."

Another current problem facing the South Korean republic is the repatriation of Koreans living in Japan.

North Korea is currently reaping a propaganda harvest by saying that the amount of Koreans coming back from Japan to its side of the 38th parallel lately is a sure sign of the benefits of their system.

"The problem is worsening Japanese-Korean relations," said Wahn, "and can be solved only through negotiations. The Korean League, a communist club, and the North Korean government are combining to repatriate these 100,000 Koreans."

Arrangements for the press conference were handled by Sigma Delta Chi, national men's journalistic fraternity, and the University journalism department.

Koh's paper has a daily circulation of 300,000 and Wahn's Yuhap Shinmun prints 120,000 daily.

Koreans Look At Old Paper

During the visit of the Korean newsmen on campus this week, they were taken on a tour of the campus.

While in the library they paused at the collection of old newspapers in the basement and fished a certain one out.

Contrary to what might be thought, they did not choose one from the Korean War era. They chose one of much more importance in their minds . . . Dec. 8, 1941.

Dec. 8, 1941, the day after the beginning for them. Pearl Harbor marked for the Koreans the beginning of the end of 40-year occupation of their country by the Japanese.

Vandalettes Name Officers

New Vandalette officers were elected for the ensuing year at last week's meeting.

Officers are: Drill Leader, Pat Brogan; DG; President, Sue Livingston; Kappa; Sec.-Treas., Kay Sanders; Alpha Chi; costume chairman, Bonnie McGough, off campus; and publicity chairman, Margaret Assmusen, DG.

The Vandalettes will next perform Dec. 16, at the basketball game, when Idaho plays Colorado State.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

Mark Dollard (center) discusses an impending customer service problem with two of his supervisors.

There's a message for you in Mark Dollard's progress story

Mark C. Dollard earned his B.A. degree in English from Yale University in June, 1955. He joined the New York Telephone Company the following July 13th. Three and a half years later, he became a District Manager for the company in New York City—with a staff of 87 people reporting to him and responsibility for 49,000 customer accounts.

Mark's choice of a telephone career came after numerous job interviews in a variety of business fields. "What sold me," he says, "was the telephone company's reputation for solid managerial training, stability and growth. And I was impressed by the high caliber of people I met during my visit to the company."

And those are the things to which Mark credits his rapid advancement. His training during his first two years covered a wide range of activities . . . including the handling of customer contacts in the business office, selling communications services to businessmen and supervising a business office.

"It was the company's vigorous growth that created the opportunity for me to become District Manager in January, 1959," Mark points out.

"What I like most about my present position is the variety of managerial responsibilities I have," he says. "It's interesting, stimulating work. I deal with sales and marketing programs, handle personnel problems and make a lot of public relations contacts."

* * *

The message for you? Stability, growth, systematic training and genuine advancement opportunities all add up to rewarding careers with the Bell Telephone Companies. Be sure to look into the opportunities for you. Talk with the Bell interviewer when he visits your campus—and read the Bell Telephone booklet on file in your Placement Office. You'll like what you learn.

David Brothers Contribute Rich Heritage To Idaho

This is the third in a series of Idaho Greats in the Past. F. A. David would be proud of his sons. And the University of Idaho should be too, for they are the type of men this institution tries to mold.

F. A. David had found a place for himself in the midwest. He had served mankind as a farmer, merchant, druggist. But there were new horizons. People were moving west.

In 1890, David decided to join the throng moving into this new country. So he pulled up his stakes in Wisconsin and headed for Moscow, Idaho.

At the time, his daughter Verna was 13. His oldest boy, Homer, was 9; Earl was 5; and Howard 1. Donald K. was to be born six years later.

David liked community projects. He liked the University of Idaho and what it stood for. So he translated his feeling into aid and friendship.

When his children became old enough he made sure they enrolled in the University.

Verna was the first to enroll at Idaho when she joined student ranks in 1896. Homer entered in 1897 and was graduated in 1901 in pre-medical studies.

Earl was graduated in 1904 in mining engineering, Howard was graduated in electrical engineering in 1909, and Donald K. was graduated in 1916 in education.

The three older brothers, despite their varied majors in the University, elected to enter the department store business with their father.

Donald K. went another way, but he, too, found success. F. A. David retired in 1916 and died in 1929. After his death, his sons continued to support "their University."

On Jan. 30, 1959, the three brothers sold their business, Davids, Inc., the largest and oldest department store in the Palouse Empire.

The sale of the 62-year-old firm brought about the retirement of two of the brothers, Earl and Homer. Howard still is at the store in an advisory position.

Donald K., youngest of the brothers, has served as dean emeritus of the Harvard school of business and is on the board of several of the country's largest enterprises.

His career spans that of a scholar, author, educator, and businessman.

While at Harvard, he helped to introduce the famous case-study method and was dean of the school of business there from 1942 to 1955. He authored two books dealing with retail store management and retailing and became a member of the boards of companies such as General Electric and Ford Motor Co.

But he still had thoughts of his alma mater. He was awarded a doctorate degree from Idaho in 1941. A fellowship in his name is given to a University of Idaho graduate annually to attend the Harvard business school for graduates.

Since the University opened its doors, there has been a David going to school or closely connected with it. Their contributions and efforts have played an important part in making this institution one of the finest in the United States. They truly can be placed among Idaho's greats of the past.

U. Professor Has Solved Euler Square

A mathematics professor who will join the University faculty in January has had a part in what Scientific American magazine calls in its November issue a mathematical event of the first magnitude — the solution to the classic Euler Square problem.

The professor is S. S. Shrikhande. With E. T. Parker of Remington Rand Univac and R. C. Bose of the University of North Carolina, Shrikhande has completely demolished Euler's conjecture.

Euler, an 18th century Swiss mathematician, believed that squares of certain orders could not exist. Shrikhande and others have found methods for constructing an infinite number of squares of the type that experts, following Euler, for 177 years had believed to be impossible.

The solution, involving use of two different squares, surprised mathematicians attending the American Mathematical society meeting where the paper was read recently. Concepts employed in the solution were not even close to the frontiers of deep modern mathematics.

The refutation of Euler's conjecture, which is depicted on the cover of Scientific American, calls for the use of Graeco-Latin squares, which provide a method for designing experiments that involve a number of variables.

Even though the uninitiated in the field of mathematics may not be able to understand how it works, they will be able to appreciate the colorful pattern the Graeco-Latin square makes on the magazine cover.

Runyan-Schnider Get PBK Awards

The Phi Beta Kappa awards were given to two students in the college of Letters and Science because of high scholarships for the past two years.

Students receiving the awards were Thora Runyan, Chemistry, and Shirley Schnider, off campus, Bacteriology.

The awards were technical books in their field to be selected by the two winners.

Lights Fail; Lindley Hall In Disorder

Lindley Hall students literally ball in Fullerton, California at the day night in order to complete their studies.

The reason for this unusual method of lighting was the failure of their power transformer. The transformer burned out at 8 p.m., throwing the building into total darkness, with the exception of a few basement lights, until 3:30 Thursday afternoon.

The morning schedule of the Lindley dwellers was disrupted by the absence of electricity to run their clocks during the previous evening. Tardiness and absence to classes and exams was not uncommon.

CSC Looking For Qualified Research Help

The Civil Service Commission is searching for qualified scientists in the fields of chemistry, mathematics, metallurgy, and physics for research work in various Federal establishments.

Persons appointed will work with some of the nation's foremost scientists in attractive and promising assignments and will have outstanding opportunities for advancement. Entrance salaries range from $4,490 to $12,770 a year.

Candidates must have completed appropriate college study leading to a bachelor's degree. In addition, graduate study or professional experience is considered.

Application forms may be obtained at post offices or from the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

Gault Receives Station KUOI

Gault Hall has been added to the list of living groups now receiving KUOI, a station spokesman said. Only the Thetas, Pi Phi, SAEs, Sigma Chi, Shoup, McConnell and women's halls remain to be wired.

The station will leave the air Dec. 16 until after Christmas vacation. New services allowing from scheduled news broadcasts are hoped for soon after the first of the year.

two semesters on the $16,000 kitchen equipment, which belongs to the Club, Pederson explained.

Pederson said that after June, 1961, the cooperative dormitory would then close and sell the equipment to the University at a depreciated rate. The money derived from this sale would go into a fund.

"If this proposal is not considered and answered by Dec. 16," Pederson said, "Club members will assume the University is not interested in their financial problems."

To Mortgage Equipment "They will mortgage the kitchen equipment in order to meet some of the excessive expenses and to be able to charge members a reasonable rate."

"At the end of the spring semester, the equipment will be sold, the money put in a fund, and the Club vacated."

"Club members can hardly be expected to continue paying the current cash and expend energy demanded, when they can move into Lindley Hall and save about $20, while being relieved of hating and janitorial duties."

"Or they can move into one of the other men's dorms and pay $3 more to have this work done."

"None of the Club members wants to see the Club close," Pederson declared, "but unless some help is received, they may have little choice but to fold up."

Play To Be Given Tonight

The play, "Arms and the Man," will be presented for the last time this evening at 7:30 p.m. in the U. Hut.

Reservations are needed and may be obtained by calling 6463 or calling at the office in U-Hut 103. No admission fee is charged.

The three-act play by George Bernard Shaw has been divided into three separate casts, with a different cast taking each act.

Student directors—Jo Ann Reese, DG; Sally Wilbanks, Pi Phi, and Ed Vandevort, off campus, are each directing one of the acts.

Vandal Gridders See Football Futures In Professional Ranks

PRO PICKS — Burly Jim Preston and lanky Jim Norton, draft choices of National Football League clubs Cleveland and Detroit, are slated to report to training camp in the middle of July to battle for squad spots.

Norton, Preston To Join Pros; July 15 Set As Report Date

Idaho's 170-pound "Flamingo" end, Jim Norton, and 245-pound powerhouse tackle, Jim Preston, head for the pro football ranks next July 15, early draft choices of the Detroit Lions and Cleveland Browns in the National Football League.

Preston, unavailable for comment on his plans for a grid future, was drafted with his graduating class last year by the Browns. Norton received a seventh round bid from Detroit and a second round bid from Dallas in the newly formed American Football League.

Following a pro career, if he survives the cut, Norton will pursue a business career, graduating with a B.C. degree in business next spring.

At Detroit, indications were that Norton would be groomed for a defensive back position, while Dallas counted on the "flamingo" for offense.

"I'd rather play defense," Norton remarked, then added that he also would enjoy playing ball with Walker.

Norton planned on weighing in at the start of the pro training season at around 185, but added that he did not consider weight as much a factor as speed for a professional carrier, a view shared by several other slightly built professional defensive backs.

COWS SAVE LABOR One of the best labor-saving devices on the modern dairy farm is a high producing cow, says D. L. Fourt, head of the University dairy department. One cow producing 500 pounds of fat in a year makes almost as much net above feed cost as two cows producing 300 pounds each.

No Decision Yet Norton planned to take several more weeks to make up his mind as to which contract he would sign, but indicated strong interest in the Lions. Two Canadian clubs, Vancouver and British Columbia, have also expressed interest in the rangy end, but Norton planned to stay south of the border.

Biggest Vandal Gains Goal; Fanning Eyes Pro Grid Offers

By DWIGHT CHAPIN Argonaut Editor

Idaho's biggest football player is ready for a professional paycheck. Big 6-6, 250-pound Stan Fanning, views pro football as a distinct stepping stone in life.

Fanning, drafted by both the Chicago Bears of the National Football League and the Houston Oilers of the new American Football League, wants to butt heads in the play-for-pay ranks four years, if he can make the initial cut.

"I know it'll be tough, especially getting used to the tremendous overall size of nearly every player. I guess the two main hurdles will be seeing just how much I can increase my strength and quickness," Fanning said.

Fanning, who lettered four years at the hometown of Washington State University, Pullman, before coming to Idaho, says he's always wanted to be a pro football player.

Aimed at Pros "I never cared too much about making all star or all league teams, but always really wanted to make an impression on the guys who would give me a chance to play pro ball," Fanning said.

"I've always looked on football as one of the best character builders in life and the pro game should give me a chance to make contacts which will go a long way toward making my future secure," he added.

Fanning played both center and tackle at Idaho, where he lettered three years after playing a year of fresh ball. He was a traveling man here, and isn't just quite sure where the pros are going to use him.

Both clubs who picked him in the draft have indicated they are interested in him as an offensive center and a defensive end.

American Team Only Fanning is sure of just one thing

Stan Fanning If he makes it, which he definitely is setting out to do, he says it will be largely the result of two men.

They would be his high school coach, Ray Hobbs, who guided Pullman to two undefeated years while Fanning was playing, and his college coach, Skip Stahley.

Fanning, an agriculture major, wants to go back to farming eventually.

But first he wants to see the bright lights of the city and challenge the behemoths of professional football.

Varsity, Frosh Hoopsters On Weekend Basketball Jaunt

MOOSE — Ken Maren, Idaho's 6-7 hoop center, is slated for action tonight as the Vandals will match "Moose" Maren's height against Washington's 6-8 sophomore Bill Hanson.

Vandals Face Washington, Portland In Hoop Action

The Idaho varsity and frosh hoop squads left for the coast yesterday, bound for weekend contests with Washington and Portland University in Seattle and Portland.

The senior squad, holding a 1-2 record, faces the Washington Huskies tonight, fresh from a weekend opener with Brigham Young. The Huskies lost their first clash, but won the Saturday night return bout, 60-52.

Washington was paced by 6-8 sophomore Bill Hanson and senior guard George Grant, both with 14 points, in the Saturday win.

Hanson and Grant are both expected to be in the lineup tonight against the Vandals, along with Roger Niva and Lyle Bakken, both sophomores.

Babes Travel With Varsity; Down WSU

Idaho's come from behind frosh hoopsters, fresh from a hair-raising 81-76 victory over the Washington State frosh Saturday, journey with the varsity to Seattle and Portland for contests with the Washington Pups and the Portland yearlings.

The Idaho babes made two rallies Saturday, pulling from a 25-21 deficit with three minutes left in the first half to a 31-28 halftime lead.

Coubabes Lead Again

With three minutes left in the game WSU was again in front 67-58, and Rich Porter, Don Hoag and Ron Pike went to work on the Coubabes lead, finally cutting it to 71-69 with 1:40 left on the clock.

WSU managed another basket, but Hoag matched the Coubabe tally, leaving Idaho down 73-71 with one minute left.

Porter tied up a Washington State yearling, tipped the jump to Hoag and Hoag tied the score at 73-73 with a foul shot coming to the Coubabes.

Porter Hits for Two

Washington State hit the gift shot for a one point lead with 50 seconds left but Porter, evidently nerveless in the face of crowd heckling, pushed through another two pointer for a 75-74 Idaho lead. WSU converted two free throws, countered by two gift shots by Hoag, and WSU called for time out.

Pike tied up the Cougar inbound pass and tipped the ball to Porter who was promptly fouled and converted both shots.

With five seconds left the Cougars, trailing by three points, took an unhampered shot at the basket, missed, and fouled Porter as the gun sounded.

Porter's two post-gun gift shots left the Coubabes well down, 81-76.

Murphy Hurt
Senior guard Al Murphy, one of four returning veterans on this year's Washington ball club, will be sidelined with a twisted knee for tonight's clash. Murphy injured the knee in practice last week and is expected to be out at least two more weeks.

Washington, like Idaho, operates under a new coach this season, John Grayson replacing Tip P. Dye as head hoop mentor.

Vandals Fall to Cougars
Against the Cougars last Saturday night the Vandals had their expected height problems, but almost made up the difference with speed and ball hawking.

Idaho lost the ball under the Washington State basket often in the first seven minutes but kept the Cougars close with a fine defensive showing, down by only three points, 8-5 with 55 seconds left in the first quarter.

Flashy Joe King started Idaho out right, hitting a quick basket to give the Vandals their only lead of the game, then joined Coach Dave Strack's defense specialists in holding Washington State, paced by sophomore Dwight Damon, to eight first quarter points.

Washington State struck back in the next ten minutes, moving in front 18-8 with 6:55 left in the first half.

King led the Vandals back, joining guard Gary Floan in the scoring ranks and Idaho moved within three points at 24-21 before the Cougars exploded again for a 30-21 halftime lead.

Floan and Baxter cut the WSU lead to 32-25 before towering Charlie Sells finally found the range and began hitting the first of his 15 second half points.

WSU Stays Ahead
The remainder of the second half found Idaho battling back, WSU maintaining a 6 to 10 point lead until the waning seconds when Vandal forward Dean Baxter potted a netter to pull Idaho within five points at 58-53.

INJURED — Al Murphy, one of only four veterans on the Washington hoop squad this season, injured his knee in practice last week and is definitely out of action for tonight's clash with the Vandals.

Tall Pilots Face Short Vandals

The Portland Pilots lost five players off the top seven that carried the team to a 19-9 season's record last year, but 6-9 sophomore Bill Garner may be more than enough to make up the gap, according to early season scouting reports.

The Pilots, who face the Vandals in Saturday night's contest, have height to spare on their team, with 6-5 junior Jim Altenhofen and 6-6 junior Chuck Rogers probable starters at the forward positions.

Club Continues Work On Projects

Work on club projects are the main effort put forth by the "I" club as the organization met Wednesday evening and continued its labor on these jobs.

President Steve Symms appointed Kent Valley and John Kyle to check into the possibility of getting or purchasing a refrigerator to be used in the training room in the gym.

Tom DiNuovo was put in charge of seeing that high school, junior college, and other athletic sweaters and numerals are not worn on the Idaho campus with only Vandal "I" sweaters allowed.

Rolly Williams, club secretary, announced that the hats to be sold to the students should arrive about January 15 and then will immediately go on sale on campus.

Chairman of each sport was chosen at the meeting to assist Bob Pierce and Ray Kowallis in research work on Idaho's past great athletes whose pictures will be placed in the Memorial Gym.

INTRAMURALS

Town Men's Association 2 took two straight games, 15-9, 15-9 from Willis Sweet 2 last night to breeze through its intramural volleyball season undefeated and qualify for the Independent run-off with League I champion, Upham Hall.

In the Greek leagues, Tau Kappa Epsilon bounced back from a late season loss and dumped Sigma Alpha Epsilon 15-10, 15-5 in a league III play-off game.

Delta Sigma Phi will meet the Tekes for the Greek title on the strength of a 15-8, 16-14 victory over a strong Delta Tau Delta squad yesterday afternoon.

TMA2 and Upham will clash next week with the winner meeting the winner of the Teke-Delta Sig game for the campus title.

Bill Hill and Jess Tilden sparked the Teke victory, spiking the ball with authority to down the shorter SAE group.

The Deltas pulled even with the Delta Sigs at 13-13 in the second set, but fell behind as Ron Zwitter sparked his squad to victory.

TO CARRY GAMES
Radio stations KRPL and KOZE will carry both Vandal road games this weekend, broadcasting the Idaho-Washington clash at 8 to-night and the Idaho-Portland game at 8:55 tomorrow evening.

THE ARGONAUT

Gary Randall's SIDELINES

Idaho's traveling hoopsters took to the road yesterday morning, bound for Seattle and Portland and what might be the start of a new era in Idaho basketball.

Portland, as you might remember, was one of the teams mentioned in a proposed new hoop league last winter as were Seattle and Gonzaga, two other teams on the Vandal basketball list this season.

Just for fun we'll try to keep the Idaho standings with the teams they would play under the proposed setup. At the moment we can't recall the complete list but we'll dig it out to keep records with.

Over Washington way, little is known of the Husky hoop squad except that they almost certainly won't be as strong as last year. The loss of Bruno Boin, Doug Smart and Earle Irvine, to name only a few of last year's Husky team, will leave a large gap in the Washington lineup, but the Vandal hoop squad's loss of John Liveious, Whaylon Coleman, Jim Prestel, B. J. Schaffer and Hal Damiano balances the picture.

Like the Washington State Cougars, the Huskies rely heavily on sophomore material. Unlike the Cougars, the Washington team has a new coach, John Grayson, whose charges split a weekend opener with Brigham Young, notching a 60-52 win.

Idaho, riding a 1-2 record into the Washington-Idaho game, boasts a split with Montana State University and a four-point loss to the sophomore laden Washington State squad.

Track Coach Calls Initial Meeting

Track coach Bill Sorsby called a meeting yesterday of all frosh and varsity track prospects for Tuesday, Dec. 15 at 12:30 p.m. in the Memorial Gymnasium.

All athletes who intend to participate or compete are urged to attend the meeting, according to Sorsby.

The meeting will be devoted to a discussion of frosh and varsity meet schedules, prospects for the coming spring track season and other general information.
