Magic Number Student Enrolls

Student registration passed the "magic number" Friday afternoon when Ronald Rourke, a junior in education from Boise, went through the line as No. 4,000. (See picture, Page 3.)

Late yesterday afternoon 4,011 resident students had enrolled at the University and the count is still climbing.

Last year's record number of 3,916 was surpassed September 23 during regular registration in Memorial Gym. Since then the number of resident students has been steadily climbing. The 4,000 mark came as no surprise, for Registrar D. DuSault predicted it would be reached either Friday or yesterday.

The University, showing steady growth throughout the years, has thus doubled its enrollment in a little more than a generation. On September 19, 1933, Margaret Pence of Payette registered as student No. 2,000 to set a record at that time.

"If numbers of students, instead of quality education for Idahoans, were our primary objective, the University could have a much larger enrollment today," said President D. R. Theophilus. "We feel that our out-of-state students exert an important broadening influence on our Idaho students, but we are holding down the number by requiring that out-of-state students be from the upper 50 percent of their high school graduating classes."

Rourke, who has suddenly found himself in the limelight, says he likes the University of Idaho very much. A transfer student from B.J.C., he now lives in room 217, Gault hall.

"No one in the hall knew I was the 'magic number' except the headmaster," he said, "until last Sunday dinner. He announced it to the entire group and to the visiting Homecoming queen finalists."

"It sort of took me by surprise," Rourke said modestly. "But I am certainly happy to be the one."

Rourke, explained that late high school transcripts caused his late registration. The timing, he said, worked out just right.

"I was a surprised young man," he recalled.

Asked if he would try to register as student No. 4,000 next fall, he said no, he guessed not.

"4,000 once is enough," he laughed, "next fall I am coming up here on time and go through the line as just another student."

Commenting on differences between Boise Junior College and the University, Rourke said that the big difference for him was a change in living facilities.

"As anyone will know, its quite an adjustment to switch from home to living among 150-or-so guys. I didn't live in a dormitory at BJC."

Late registrants such as Rourke and other students enrolled in correspondence courses and adult education classes will bring total University enrollment to about 8,000, Registrar DuSault reported.

Major Harry E. Todd was named as an assistant professor of military science in the Army ROTC. As a transportation authority, Major Todd served as an instructor and also as an executive officer in transportation school and in the 36th Transportation Battalion at Ft. Bragg. He was awarded his college degree by Kansas State University.

The Navy will have Commander Elbert M. Barton, Jr. assigned to them as an associate professor of naval science. Cmdr. Barton graduated from Oklahoma A and M, studied at the U. S. Naval War College, and taught at the U. S. Naval Academy before succeeding Cmdr. C. P. Worman in the Idaho NROTC Staff.

ROTC Units Have 3 New Replacements

New assignments for three members of the University of Idaho Army and Navy ROTC units were announced recently by President D. R. Theophilus, following Regents' approval.

Serving as the new professor of military science is Colonel George W. James, a veteran of five major invasions in the Pacific Theater during World War II. He replaces Colonel Glenn B. Owen who is currently stationed in Germany.

Col. James has a broad background and a diversified experience ranging from graduation at the University of Utah to being an administrative officer with the U. S. Army General Staff at the Pentagon.

Idaho students needn't concern themselves about the Colonel's ability as a commander. He has been director of research and doctrine at Ft. Sill's artillery school and base commander of the 29th field artillery of the 4th Infantry Division in Germany.

Books from the famed Jerome J. Day Library for the University of Idaho collections were the largest item among gifts which received formal Board of Regents' approval at their Boise meeting, it was announced recently by President D. R. Theophilus.

The 28 volumes presented by Mrs. Lucy M. Day, Coeur d'Alene, join 526 other books from the Day collection on the University Library shelves. They include books on the historians of Greece, works of the literary giants of England, France and the United States and biographies of famous Americans.

Mrs. Kendrick Johnson, Reno, Nev., and Mrs. Charles Deto, Pasadena, Calif., gave the Law Library 104 volumes of Idaho Reports, Sessions Laws, the Revised Statutes of Idaho Territory, 1887, and Idaho Compiled Statutes of 1919.

The Law Library also received copies of Sessions Laws of Idaho from attorney Alvin Denman, Idaho Falls, and John L. Edwards, Fairfield.

A selection of eight books on business cycles, financing and business administration was given to the University Library by Ralph J. Comstock, president of the First Security Bank of Idaho.

The Homecoming Queen, to be named by an all male vote, Oct. 10, will receive her crown and title from Harold T. Nelson, president of the Idaho alumni association, during the half time activities.

Open house in campus living groups after the game will keep students and alumni busy until the annual Homecoming Dance at 9 p.m. in the Memorial Gymnasium. Norm Thue's eight piece band from Spokane will play.

Department Has Packaged Meat

Bachelors, meat buyers, hungry dogs and cannibals are now assured of food through the cold winter. The Animal Husbandry dept. offered recently a terrific special in packaged frozen meat. Everything from seasoned pork sausage to lamb breasts and shanks was sold.

The meat was auctioned on a "first come" "first serve" basis this morning in the Ag Science building. In addition to the above bargains, a few half or whole pork carcasses will be available in October, selling at the current live hog prices. Call the Dept. of Animal Husbandry for hogs.

Frosh Should Makeup Tests

Entering freshmen and transfer students below junior standing who missed all of their tests during Freshman Orientation Week should report to room 104, Administration Building, Saturday, Oct. 8 at 8 a.m.

Students should report promptly at 8 a.m., C. H. Bond, Student Counselor, suggested, since four tests will be administered during the morning.

Entering students should report to the Student Counseling Center if:

- 1) they have completed their guidance tests and wish to go over the scores with a counselor. Come in after Oct. 5 to arrange a conference time.
- 2) they missed part of their tests during Freshmen Orientation Week. Come in and arrange a time for making up the tests.
- 3) they are entering the College of Engineering or Mines for the first time, but failed to take the Pre-Engineering Ability Test of Sept. 30. Come in and arrange a time to take this test.

Open House Well Received

"The SUB Open House held Friday was an entire success," said Miss Charmaine Tourville, ASUI program director. Susan Giersbach, Tri-Delt, was chairman for the week.

The 202 seats in the Borah Theatre were filled to capacity all four times "Kismet" was shown and the game room was active all night long.

The various bands: Dick Stiles, Delta Sig, and his Stylists; Ken Regnier, off-campus, and the Swingettes; Gary Dossett, Sigma Chi, the Key Notes, and John Rider, off-campus, Frank Kasunic, Delta Sig, and their bands were tremendous, added Miss Tourville.

All students who have not either picked up their books or money from the IK book sale, should do so as soon as possible.

Campus Leaders Eye Problems At Retreat

By NEIL LEITNER
Argonaut Editor

Talking of broad and specific issues and of the correlation between students, faculty, and the administration, some 60 student leaders, faculty and administration people spent the weekend at a look at the joint aims and goals of the University community.

The day and a half long meeting was held at church Camp Lutherhaven, a children's summer camp area on the southern end of Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Rather than a policy-planning and administrative gathering, the attendees talked of ways to improve the ASUI government structure, how the three main University groupings of Students, Faculty and Administration can get along better together by the increased emphasis on the interchange of ideas, and how best to get the word out that the University has changed from the "country club" atmosphere it had ten years ago to the considerable better institution it is today.

Welcome
The Retreat got under way with a welcome by ASUI president Bruce McCowan, and a keynote address by Executive Dean H. Walter Steffens.

Steffens told the group that a student government was essential in that it could act as a voice of the student body. He compared it with countries where a student body has no voice and resorts to violence to make its wishes known. The Retreat was run on the principle of breaking the assembly into five different units, giving every unit the same general topics to discuss, reassembling, and comparing ideas.

The small groups, or "buzz groups" as they were called, consisted of about an equal amount of students and faculty members, who, in the course of discussions brought out what was on their minds.

Effective ASUI
Discussing "Effective ASUI," Neal Newhouse, Beta, back for his fifth retreat said "a student government should really represent the students — be a place where any student can find anything he wants connected with the government. It should be available to everybody."

"Perhaps a student government could really get down to the level of the student," said Dr. Francis Seaman, assistant professor of philosophy, "Perhaps it could have a deciding voice in areas like women's regulations, regulations on cheating, and other areas of student rulings."

During the first plenary, or general get-together which followed, each group reported on their discussions.

"Student government has spent too much time in modification issues of government structure," said Gordon Chester, Phi Delt, speaking for Buzz group three. "We had the Student Representative Assembly last year, a revision of the structure; the Board of Selection and Control the year before, and Coordination Council mixed in somewhere. We should take what we have and make the most of it."

The problem of communication was also brought up. Bob Alexander, Sigma Chi, thought that the problem was the roughest that the Executive Board would have to face this year.

In the evening a panel-forum was held featuring Guy Wicks, associate director of student affairs; Harry Caldwell, professor of Geography, Neal Newhouse, Beta, and Bob Young, Lindley.

Main point of the evening was the conflict between McCowan, John Fitzgerald, ASUI veep; and Caldwell over what the goals of the Executive Board were this year.

Caldwell questioned whether or not the Board's "areas of concern" were specific goals that the government would try to attain.

McCowan replied that while the "areas," (which are Admissions Counseling, Public Relations, Finance, Student - Faculty and Academics, Student Representation, Legal, and Engendering School Spirit) are not yet concerned with specifics, a basic groundwork of material must be built up before specifics can be dealt with.

The Buzz groups continued after a meditation service Sunday morning, and the groups split into different groups of about 9 each.

"Smart to Be Smart"
In one of the groups, Dean of Women Marjorie Neely remarked that the educational intolerance of the past was rapidly declining, and that now it was becoming "smart to be smart," and was not the tribulation it once was to be taken for an egghead.

The conference wound up before 1 p.m. Sunday with a session of individual reactions to the Retreat in which each delegate told what about the weekend conference impressed him most, or gave him the best ideas, and the selection of the theme, "An Atmosphere of Creative Thinking."

One of the marks of a well read controversial columnist is the amount of irate readers he manages to incite.

Obviously Lee Townsend is rather good at this, because in two columns, he has received two letters from irate readers, who obviously disagreed with him, latest being on page two of this issue.

In sifting out the mildly sarcastic comments from what the Committee really had in mind, we find that the main gripe concerned Mr. Townsend's failure to check with Executive Dean H. Walter Steffens about "coordination."

In this, Townsend may have erred, but his primary purpose was to do a straight reporting job on what the other side of the fence had to say after being somewhat attacked by members of the Student Recruit Committee.

Which side is ultimately right is of little concern to us, we just hate to see Townsend taken to task for merely trying to get the other half of the story.

CUP -- A Political Revival

In a year of deepening political thought on the national level, there seems to be an awakening and revival of constructive political activities on the Idaho campus.

In the September 30th edition of the Argonaut there appears a political announcement paid for by the Campus Union Party. This notice concerns no campus political issues and probably will not benefit the campus organization in any direct way.

The advertisement is a plea for University students to support a proposed change in the Idaho constitution, which will raise the state's bonded indebtedness. The CUP party believes that this change will benefit the University, and is therefore supporting it.

For the last three years, the Argonaut has seen campus political organizations, within their tightly knit caucuses, devote time and money only to those activities which helped to elect their candidates to office or helped fly the party banner. As soon as campus elections were over, these organizations became dormant, renewing activity only when another election approached.

It is encouraging to see political groups taking an interest in subjects which are genuinely important to Idaho students and which will benefit their lives directly. Instead of making a game of politics which is played by make-believe politicians, the Campus Union Party is attempting to fulfill a wide gap in our political system—namely educating students on political issues, on the state and national level as well as the campus level.

It is the sincere hope of the Argonaut editorial staff that this spirit will be strengthened this year, and that the political systems will become more than an institution for pushing candidates into office and criticizing officers elected from the opposition party.—S.L.

Barbarism At Idaho?

Probably over 100 years ago on the hot, dry deserts of the Middle East and in the jungles of Africa there was a custom among the tribesmen and natives to buy young and beautiful women for their housemaids and wives, on the auction block, presumably against the wishes of the women.

Today, in modern times, it seems the Spurs of Idaho are reviving this custom, which supposedly died out with literacy and progress, under the disguise of the Nickel Hop. Whereas the males of the University don't buy Idaho coeds they do buy a certain amount of their time for dancing.

There is much discussion as to whether the coed should be subjected to some of the indignation that is sometimes attendant when any person can buy 15 minutes of her time dancing. This activity is strictly enforced by the women's living groups.

It would seem that since the Spurs are so money hungry, they could at least find a project that would entice the Idaho coed to be herself and not necessarily the personality required by her living group. H.H.

Blue Key Blanks Are Still Available

Application blanks are still available at the ASUI office for men desiring entrance into Blue Key, National Honor Fraternity. All applicants must be male undergraduates who have completed two years of college work, while maintaining a grade point average above the all men's average at the University.

He must be of good character and personality and a recognized leader in scholarship and campus activities. All applications must be in the ASUI office by today.

Dear Jason

Dear Jason

Lee Townsend in the last "Nostalgia Around" concluded that Student Recruitment lacked co-ordination with the Administration.

We would like to point out that the program was co-ordinated through:

Dean Decker, Director of Student Council

Mr. Frank Young, Director of Admissions.

Mr. Rafe Gibbs, Publications Department

Mr. Jim Lyle, Alumni Secretary
Bruce McCowan, President, ASUI

Townsend obviously did not check with Dean Steffens, Dean Decker, Mr. Rafe Gibbs, and Mr. Frank Young. If he had searched competently, he would have found that the program was co-ordinated with the Administration.

We also would like to suggest that Dean Cook and Dean Janssen check back through proper channels before making unfounded accusations.

Perhaps this stems from the dog eat-dog competition which keeps this biggest of US cities going. This helps to hide the wide racial variances, which might explode into a terrible wave of bigotry were not the desire for self-advancement so great and overriding.

Former Arg Editor Tells How Westerner Feels In New York

Dwight Chapin, one of last year's Argonaut editors, has journeyed to Columbia's Graduate School of Journalism from whence he gives us his views of life in the Big City from a westerner's viewpoint.—Ed.

By DWIGHT CHAPIN
Former Argonaut Editor

The stock phrase about New York City is something like this, "It would be fun to visit, but wouldn't it be murder to live there."

Well, I visited New York City once, and now I'm living there, and I haven't shouted "murder" yet.

There are times when it is tempting, though.

New York can be described, perhaps, as like a big cloud, sometimes ominous, sometimes serene. Like a cloud, it's right there in front of you, but yet you can't quite put your finger, or your soul, on it.

The biggest trouble for a Westerner, at least this one, has been communication, hampered mostly by the must-get-ahead pace.

"No Seat, Lady!"

As an example, a man wouldn't think of getting up and giving his seat on a subway or bus to a woman, even if she were heavily burdened with packages. If you stop to ask advice of a passerby, they usually bolt for fear you have a hot fur to palm off on them, or a football ticket to sell for double price.

Its the same story in restaurants. The object there is to serve as many people as possible, even if the hamburger is raw or the coffee spilled all over the saucer.

Perhaps this stems from the dog eat-dog competition which keeps this biggest of US cities going.

This helps to hide the wide racial variances, which might explode into a terrible wave of bigotry were not the desire for self-advancement so great and overriding.

Faculty Members Find Idiom True

Here is an item for the shrinking world department.

It happened at an orientation meeting for new faculty at the University. New journalism instructor Tom Cooper looked over his cup at a coffee break in the proceedings and saw a semi-familiar face.

It turned out to be Robert E. Tostberg, new assistant professor of education, whom he had last seen 16 years ago in high school at Quincy, Ill.

After the sessions on the state of Idaho and its university, teachers Cooper and Tostberg oriented one another on their activities since 1944.

Students May Study Abroad

For those students wishing to study abroad at the expense of a host country, tomorrow's 7 o'clock meeting in conference room A of the SUB will be of pertinent interest.

Dr. W. J. Brockelbank and Prof. of English, W. B. Williams Jr., will explain the procedure by which one applies for Fulbright, Rhodes, Marshall, and other such scholarships. Also included will be an explanation of how to obtain a graduate scholarship to domestic universities.

Hunter declared that there are far too few Idaho applicants for these generous scholarships. Two college students, for example, are chosen from the state of Idaho to study abroad under the Fulbright plan.

Failing to win a berth in the state competition, however, does not eliminate the applicant. He is then placed in the "at large" competition which supplies scholarships to a thousand would-be vagabonds.

SUMMER DEATHS

Edwin Clark, an associate professor of Forestry, died during the summer months in a hospital in California. A student, Ron DeChambeau from Boise died from sugar diabetes also during the summer.

Home Ec Major Gives Report On Summer Research Work

"I dare you to stand tall, think tall, smile tall, and live tall."

Anita Townsend, off campus, a senior home economics major, heard these challenging words for one month this summer as the delegate from Idaho on a Danforth Fellowship in St. Louis and Michigan.

Mrs. Townsend, who was then Anita Howell, Ethel Steel, spent two weeks doing research at the Ralston Purina Farms in St. Louis and two weeks in leadership training at Camp Miniwanca, on the shore of Lake Michigan.

While in St. Louis, Mrs. Townsend and 48 girls from nearly every state, Canada, and Puerto Rico, did extensive touring of several manufacturing firms. They were given lectures on every phase of the companies' operation.

"For instance, at the Purina Dog Chow plant," the Idaho delegate explained, "we saw continuous and exacting research being done to keep the food at certain specifications."

"I am ready to eat dog chow from now on," she said, "it is so scientifically wholesome."

During her stay in St. Louis, Mrs. Townsend and her 48 companions saw several operas, attended a major league baseball game, explored St. Louis' 700-acre zoo, and tried shopping in one of the country's largest department stores.

In Michigan her time was filled with activities designed to "help students make decisions, to enlarge their horizons, to broaden their contacts, and to render guidance and assistance in attaining the fourfold way of living—stand tall, think tall, smile tall, live tall," as the late William H. Danforth, Purina's founder, put it in 1929 when he originated the program.

Beginning as a program for senior boys in agriculture, it was opened in 1936 to senior girls majoring in home economics. Being a land grant school, the University of Idaho is invited to send one delegate each year.

Included in the many hours of training and study at the camp was an extensive interdenominational religion program in which advisors gave the girls thoughts to consider.

"We were introduced to many ideas which we discussed as a group and meditated upon during quiet periods," Mrs. Townsend said. "I think the most important single thing I gained from the discussions in religion is the significance of being tolerant toward other peoples' ideas and beliefs."

During the course of the month, which began July 15 and ran through August 15, Mrs. Townsend compiled a red-and-white check-board covered scrap book measuring nearly one foot thick and numbering several hundred pages.

Students Expect Busy Weekends

By KARLA SIEVERT

Students at the U of I are busying themselves in anticipation of the trip to Boise this weekend and with future plans for the Idaho-Oregon State Homecoming game, Oct. 15.

HAYS HALL will be building their float with Lindley Hall. This week excitement was high as freshmen experienced their first fire drill. Also on the agenda was a water fight with the Tekes and a Wednesday night exchange with Willis Sweet Hall. Sunday dinner guests was Dean Larson.

KAPPA SIGS started the school year in their newly remodeled house. All the work on the new rooms will be finished in another two weeks. Bookshelves and drawers are the only big items remaining on the remodeling list. New pledges of Kappa Sig elected: the following officers Tuesday: Frank Odum, president; Gene Lightfoot, vice president and Jim Zander, secretary. Buzz Buffington was selected to be house boy for the coming year. An all-house exchange with the Gamma Phis was held Wednesday, with dancing in the K-Sig new multi-purpose room. Mr. Bill Sorby, the University track coach, acted as chaperone. John Finks was a dinner guest Wednesday.

A frosh exchange was held between the men of WILLIS SWEET and the coeds of Hays Hall Wednesday night.

THIETA pledges were presented with their big sisters at Wednesday night dress dinner. A football game with the Sigma Chi pledges Saturday afternoon proved to be a rough 12-0 victory for the coeds. Serenading recently have been the Sigma Chis, SAE's, Deltas, Delta Sigs, Phi Deltas, and the Six O's.

TRI DELTS and Lambda Chi's went oddball for their exchange Wednesday. Formal pledging and sponsor announcements were held Thursday. Initiation ceremonies were held Saturday for Sharon Miller, Bonnie McKay, Vickie Sealey, and Lois Axtell.

The week's activities included a football game with the Delta Chi

Audition Draws 32 Students

KUOI station manager, Jerre Wallace, off campus, has reported that the stations second audition during the past week looked very promising. Approximately 32 students have auditioned and almost all of them will be contacted this week.

Wallace stressed that experience is not needed in any phase of radio to join the staff. Positions are still open for students that are interested in working only two or three hours at a time, working on the remote crews.

"Everyone on the staff is looking for another production year," he said, "as the station enters its sixteenth year."

Air time has been set for October 10.

Although the IKs have made almost no profit this year, according to Grossenbach, the purpose of this project was served, that is, to enable the students to buy books at a lower price.

The book sale ends at 4:00 p.m. on October 4. Anyone unable to pick up their books or money may contact Dean Grossenbach at the Phi Tau house.

Students Get Code Booklets

During the past summer the office of Student Affairs re-edited and re-phrased the University Code booklet.

The booklet was first placed in the hands of the students in mimeographed form as the first step in a long range program. It is now in a black cover and printed form.

AWS has been placed in charge of distributing these booklets to the women students. IFC and the officers of the respective halls will soon begin to distribute them to the men students. Each new student received a copy in the mail this summer.

"This booklet is a guide and holds helpful advice for every member of our University community," said Dean Decker, Director of Student Affairs.

SAE Grid Squad Win; League II Action Close

By MIKE GWARTNEY
Argonaut Sports Writer

Last Thursday's touch football action saw the SAE's take their second step along the road to the championship with a convincing 36-0 win over the Phi Kappa Tau team.

Led by Arnie Yager with 19 points the SAE's rolled up five first downs and five penetrations. Others contributing in the scoring were Bill Hart with two, Dave Stephenson with one, Al Underwood with 12, Mel Anderson with one, and Noble with one. The defense of the SAE's also played a tremendous game, not giving up a first down.

In other games Lambda Chi Alpha and the Delta Chi's played to a scoreless tie but the LCA team picked up the win on penetrations with two, while the DC's were only racking up one.

The Sigma Nus sent the Kappa Sig's down to their second straight defeat by an 18-6 score. The Kappa Sigs had an edge in the statistical department with four first downs to three for the Sigma Nu team.

The Delta Sigma Phi sent the Sigma Chi to defeat, 13-7, behind Ron Zwitter, Jack Kocker, and Leonard Benner. Zwitter and Benner each picked up a touchdown while Kocker added a conversion. Doing the scoring for the Sigma Chis were Gary Johnson with six points and Pat Lynch with one. The statistics were very close in the game with penetrations equal and the Delta Sigs team gaining an advantage of one in first downs.

League II action was close with a total of one point separating the scores of the teams. The Phi Delta Thetas and the Beta Theta Phis played to a scoreless tie and were equal in the penetration department. The deciding factor in the game was the number of first downs with the PDT team having four to their opponents two for the win.

The ATO's were able to squeak by the TKE's 15-14 with Hal Gustafson and Macks scoring touchdowns and Dean Lundblad picking up three points for the victors. Scoring honors for the TKE's went to Frank Nelson and Mastenbrook each with a touchdown.

The Theta Chi's forfeited to the Phi Gamma Delta's and the LDS forfeited to the Delta Tau Delta team.

Future Vandal Foes Do Well

The future foes of the Vandal football team fared well last weekend against some tough competition.

The ever-dangerous Utah State Aggies, soundly whipped the University of Denver 31 to 8 in a game played in Denver. Utah State is the Boise grid game opponent.

The battling Beavers of Oregon State defeated the University of Houston team by a score of 29 to 20. The Beavers will be the visitors for the Vandals in the annual Homecoming game on Oct. 15.

Two future foes played a game in Stockton, California, last weekend with COP defeating the Rainbows from Hawaii 28 to 20. COP plays the University of Villanova in a game at that school.

Following the game with COP the Vandals trek to Tucson, Arizona, for a game with the University of Arizona Wildcats. The Arizona team defeated the Skyline favorite, Wyoming, in a game in Tucson last weekend 21 to 19.

The Washington State Cougars were defeated again last weekend, this time by the Arizona State University team in a game played in Tempe.

The Vandals last opponent for the grid year, San Jose State, was idle last weekend and is scheduled to play the coast favorite, Oregon.

Idaho Skiers Offered Jobs

Skiing enthusiasts at the University will be able to earn part or all of their skiing expenses for the coming season.

Merle and Fred Craner, owners of the North South Ski Bowl, 40 miles north of the University, are starting a program Oct. 1 which will provide reduced skiing rates and at the same time complete recent improvements on the bowl. The work will consist of painting, cleaning the lodge, manuring the slope and various other jobs.

Those participating will receive credit at the rate of $1 per hour which can be applied to all purchases, tow tickets, or rentals.

FEWER FULLBACKS — Idaho's strong fullback slot suffered a double jar last week, with both of last year's veterans missing from the line-crashing spot. "Jarring Judd" Worley, top, is out for the season with a persistent injury, and powerful Mike Sheeran, bottom, has been shifted to a halfback position.

Grizzlies Tip Vandals; Ten Win String Broken

The scrappy Montana State Grizzlies started fast in the first quarter and clawed their way to the top by defeating the Idaho Vandals, 18-14 in the game played at Missoula Saturday. A capacity crowd of 8500 witnessed the Montana victory under cloudless skies and 74 degree temperature.

It was the first time since 1950 that the Vandals had bowed to MSU. The loss forced Idaho to relinquish the "Little Brown Stein" trophy which had called Memorial Gym its home for the past nine years.

Montana drew first blood in the game when Bob O'Billovich, the big gun for the Grizzlies, intercepted an Idaho pass mid-way in the first quarter and Gary Smith went into the end zone for the TD. The try for extra point was unsuccessful and the score was then 6-0.

With only a minute remaining in the first quarter, Sil Vial on a quarterback sneak plunged over to make the score, 6-6. The extra point was made good by Ron Ismael's kick. The Vandals then led, 7-6.

Montana's running attack in the second quarter was checked very well by Idaho. Pat Dodsens, Montana's little speedster, was especially well controlled. Dodsens is ranked eighth in the nation in yardage gained by running.

Idaho was battling both the Grizzlies and the clock in the attempt for their second touchdown. Approximately three minutes remained in the half when Idaho's top ground gainer, Mike Mosolf, rolled out to the right for a 17-yard run and the second Vandal touchdown. Ismael again kicked the extra point to raise the score to 14-6.

14-6 At Half Time

Trying to get back on the scoreboard before halftime, the desperate Grizzlies penetrated deep into Vandal territory. But they were unable to "beat the clock" and the score remained 14-6 in favor of Idaho.

The second half was a completely different picture, however, as the determined and enthusiastic Grizzlies held the Vandals scoreless.

Montana's second effort paid off after a 72-yard drive with an 11-yard pass by quarterback O'Billovich to halfback Pat Dodsens. The ball was placed on the eight and halfback Terry Dillon rushed over from the 1. Montana went for a two-point conversion; but the pass was incomplete so the score was 14-12 with Idaho on top.

The Polishing Touch

The polishing touch to Montana's victory came late in the third period when O'Billovich ran into the end zone to make it 18-14, which was the final score.

Even though Idaho came through many times on their crucial third down plays, they were unable in the second half to capitalize on them. The Vandals recovered two Montana fumbles in the final period — one on the Grizzly 44 and advanced to the 10, and the other on the Montana 20.

Four plays later Montana took possession on the 27. On Idaho's last chance for victory, O'Billovich intercepted a pass on the 59. Idaho was then assured of a loss.

The Vandal's top ground gainer, carrying nine times for 60 yards and a 6.6 average was Mike Mosolf.

In the first half Idaho managed 12 first downs to Montana's 5, and had 106 yards rushing to 61. Vial completed nine of 16 passes in the half. Time and time again, Idaho got its first downs on third down passes to Reg Carolan.

U. Baseball Team Holds Practice

Members of last season's varsity baseball team are working out on their own at the Field House for a fall practice.

Idaho had an overall record of 17 wins and 13 losses last spring. The Vandals posted a 14-2 pre-season record, but followed through with a 2-11 mark in conference play.

Organized baseball practice under baseball coach Wayne Anderson will start the first part of next semester.

Vandals Lose Steam At MSU Reason—Lack Of Attention?

Jim Herndon

The Little Brown Stein has left the Idaho campus—at least for this year. With the Stein also goes any more whims this columnist has of picking a winner, even one that seems to be a sure bet.

The news that Montana had beaten Idaho 18-14 last Saturday afternoon was taken with mixed feelings around the Idaho campus. Many were shocked, some disgusted, and some just didn't believe it had happened.

How the Grizzlies beat Idaho is easy to explain. The Montana crew just scored four more points than the Vandals. But, the question why the Grizzlies scored more points is not so easy to answer—if it can be answered.

It was obvious to everyone that observed the game or listened to it on the radio that after Montana scored the first touchdown in the opening minutes of play Idaho dominated the remainder of the first half. Reg Carolan played outstanding ball as he stretched his pass receptions to those precious extra yards by a good exhibition of broken field running. The team in general seemed to click at the time when a few yards meant first downs.

Idaho Loses Steam

The Vandals outplayed the Grizzlies both in the field and on paper in the first half. Montana came back from the second half with fire in their eyes while the Vandals seemingly rested on their first half laurels. The Idaho attack had run out of steam.

This was Montana's homecoming weekend and the Grizzlies were "up" for an upset, and while Idaho could do no right, Montana could do no wrong. Jim Deeko recovered a fumble for the Vandals, but the Idaho team had bogged down. Montana took the ball and started their drive which eventually ended up in a score.

The occasion where Idaho has slowed down the second half isn't new. Last season the same happened. Also though last season there was the excuse of the Vandals being undermanned. However, Idaho has the best material and depth this year that has been available in many seasons.

The Vandals do not seem to suffer from the lack of team practice, as was witnessed by the Argonaut Sports photographer Ray-Schmidt who was chased away from practice by Coach Skip Stahley who remarked that they (the team) were too busy.

More Attention Needed?

But are the players—the reserves particularly—getting the attention necessary for the Vandals to use the total capabilities of their ability? A little more strength on the bench would give the regulars a chance to get a much needed rest so that they would have reserved energy to fall back on in the closing periods of the game.

An example of player material not used up to his full potential is reserve quarterback Rick Dobbins. Dobbins played a season for Utah State setting the Aggies record for the longest completed pass. He even started against Idaho in 1957.

Why isn't he playing now? Not because he has been overlooked by Stahley but because he can't keep his passes from being intercepted in practice. A fact which was very obvious when this writer watched the Vandals practice.

Stahley's dual role as athletic director-head coach takes time from his coaching schedule. Time which has been spent in past years with football. True, his coaching assistants are men with prior coaching experience, but they are new with Idaho and to certain extent need to be directed.

Harriers Open Season With Start Against WSU, Zags

The Vandal harrier team opens their crosscountry season this weekend against Washington State and Gonzaga in a two mile run at the YSU gold course in Pullman. The following week there will be a return match during the half of the Idaho Homecoming game.

In both events the Idaho frosh runners will be entered as a separate team.

Don Bertora, returning from last year's Cougar squad, will be the backbone of the Washington State squad. The short distance of the race is expected to go to the Cougars because the majority of the WSU team is comprised of converted middle distance runners.

The team from Gonzaga will be the Zag's first attempt at cross-country. Before, Gonzaga has held its track events to the shorter distances.

The Homecoming race will start with the gunshot which ends the first half of the football game. The course will consist of a lap around the track, followed by a run across the golf course, down through the arboretum, and finishing in front of the bleachers on the track.

Dick Douglas leads the Vandal five-man squad for the Varsity, while Gunder Atman, Gary Michael and Chuck Smith are returning from last season's reserves.

The freshmen who are eligible to compete for positions on the Varsity team will run as a frosh unit for the first three meets. Louie Olaso and Martell Stover seem to be the outstanding first year runners.

"I shall now illustrate what I have on my mind," said the professor as he erased the blackboard.
