

Debaters 2nd In Idaho Meet

The Idaho forensic team continues its verbal battles this week at an Invitational meet at Linfield College, McMinnville, Ore. The Idaho speech squad combined three first, four second, and three third places to grab second in the All-Idaho Debate Tournament sweepstakes at Caldwell last weekend.

Town Group Tries To Deter ISC Name Bill

The Idaho Senate State Affairs Committee sent to the floor of the Senate Saturday a House-approved bill changing the name of Idaho State College to Idaho State University despite the efforts of a delegation of Moscow businessmen.

The Moscow group asserts that the change might "endanger the status" of two institutions (U. of Idaho and ISC). The delegation was led by Chamber of Commerce pres. Everett Will and Harold Cornelison, chairman of the Moscow Chamber's Ways and Means Committee.

Sen. R. H. Young Jr., R-Canyon, chairman on the Senate committee said his group voted to send the bill to the floor without recommendation.

"We recognize," Will told the committee, "the quality of students being graduated from both the University of Idaho and Idaho State College."

Cornelison commented, "We do not have anything but kindly feelings for Idaho State College, but we do not feel we are ready for this. The pressures it will create to bring the institution into a university in fact, if it is made a university in name will be tremendous."

Mills said he thinks the Legislature should wait to consider the name change until after a survey of higher education in the state is completed. A resolution authorizing such a study has been approved in the House and awaits action in the Senate.

And so, campus politics heads into the last week before election week.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party, repudiate those that would stand against them, castigate the party's enemies, and plan long and well on just what "loaded" questions they can hurl in the forthcoming Smokers. The stage is set.

There is one difference this year as against prior elections. This year, for the first time in recent student-politics history, the voters are going to be left with the choice of voting for a man and/or his party, rather than whether he happens to be a Greek or an Independent. It has to be that way when "Independent" opposes "Independent" for student body president, and "Greek" opposed "Greek" for the Veep slot.

So the Smokers this year should have more effect on the outcome than was previously the case. This year, more than ever, the asset of a fine speaking voice and the talent of a fine appearance will count heavily. There is an excellent chance that the candidate who best survives the Smokers, loaded questions, and cutting remarks, will find himself in the ASUI president's chair.

It may be that the day of Greek versus Independent is over, on the political level. If this is the case, and of course it is still too early to really tell, then CUP has already accomplished one of its prime objectives.

Remember? Cross-campus politics.

Idaho State College won the traveling trophy and the College of Idaho was third in the six team meet. Boise Junior College, Ricks College, Nampa Nazarene, were the other participants.

"We have had more success at Linfield than in any other tournament," Dr. A. E. Whitehead, team advisor, stated yesterday, commenting on the Linfield meet. "In the past, three Idaho teams have been picked at the meet to represent the Northwest at the National Debate Tournament held annually at West Point," he added.

The Linfield tournament is considered the largest in the West with 30 to 35 teams entering and 500 individuals participating.

Tough Competition
The College of the Pacific is the defending champion. Redlands College, Redlands, Calif., and the Utah schools, along with Pacific, usually present the toughest competition, Dr. Whitehead stated.

Three coeds led the Idaho team with three first places at Caldwell. Sue Arms, Pi Phi, won the upper women's division in interpretive reading; Karen Smith, Tri-Delt, was first in lower division women's of impromptu speaking and Vivian Dickamore, took top honors in upper division women's impromptu speaking.

Besides a first place, Miss Dickamore was second in upper women's division extemporaneous speaking.

In other individual events Don Stephens, Upham, couped second places in upper division men's oratory and upper division men's interpretive reading.

Roger Barr, Kappa Sigma, was third in upper division men's impromptu speaking.

Debate Results
The debate results found the team of Smith and Linda Kinney, Hays, second in lower division women's; the Stephens-Bob McFarland, Upham team, third in upper men's division and the Tom Lynch, Chrisman-Marv Helleson, LDS, team third in lower division men's.

Helleson, Lynch, Kinney, Smith, McFarland, Stephens, Arms, Ronnie Rock, Pat Matheny, Alpha Phi, and Sheila McDevitt, French are making the Linfield trip. The team leaves Wednesday morning by private car.

Segregation To Be Aired At Club Meet

Five different aspects of segregation will be presented at a panel discussion sponsored by the National and World Affairs Club tomorrow night at 7 p.m. in the South Ballroom of the SUB.

Dr. William B. Hunter, head of the humanities department, will tell why the Southern white population is opposed to integration. This will be a moderate view.

Mae Kind, off-campus, formerly from Arkansas, will tell why the Southern Negro is urging integration and what the non-violent movement is attempting to achieve.

Bob Hemmat, off-campus, an exchange student from Iran, will present how segregation in the United States appears to persons abroad.

Dr. Stan Thomas, of the Idaho Institute of Christian Education, will discuss why he tried to start a chapter of the NAACP on the Idaho campus.

Following these views the entire panel will be presented with the question - How does this problem affect the individual student at the University?

Capt. Ed Sayre will moderate the panel. Following the panel discussion the meeting will be open to general participation by the audience.

Bob Scott and Morris Erickson, both Delta Sigs, are general chairmen for the discussion.

United Releases Platform

Campus politics stepped up a somewhat unusual slow pace yesterday with the rather belated release of the United party platform.

Both platforms were released simultaneously last year, appearing in the February 26 issue of the Argonaut. Campus Union party released its platform last week in the Tuesday edition.

Two smokers are due this week, according to present tentative plans, with one 9 p.m. public get-together of candidates scheduled for Lindley Hall tomorrow night, and another 7:30 public smoker set for Thursday night at a yet-undetermined location.

Next week the ASUI-sponsored events begin, with a SUB ballroom debate set for Monday night at 7:30 in the Bucket. Elections will be held Thursday, with results expected late Thursday night.

CUP lost one of its eight Executive Board candidates yesterday, with the announcement that Larry Hicks, Gault, does not expect to attend the University next year, and consequently will not run for office.

According to a CUP spokesman, no new candidate will be put up to replace Hicks.

UNITED PLATFORM
We, the United Party, realizing the role of student government at the University of Idaho to be: administration of the activities and organizations of the ASUI, encouragement of students in their academic endeavors and throughout the state - are dedicated to the following platform:

1. Recognizing the importance of Public Relations emanating from the student level, we pledge our full support toward development of this area.
2. Recognizing the importance of adequate communications in the University Community, we propose specific modification to better effect the efficient operation of the following organs of the Communications Department: (a) KUOI (b) SRA.
3. Understanding the inadequacies of the existing structure for dealing with ASUI constitutional disputes and recognizing responsibilities the students have to themselves and the University in the field of discipline, we propose a Student Judicial Council.
4. Recognizing that an understanding of state, national, and international affairs is of vital importance to an informed student body, we promise to encourage the activities of existing campus organizations such as Citizenship Clearing House, Young Democrats, and Young Republicans, as a media for expression of student opinion on these issues.
5. In an effort to clarify the allocation and expenditure of ASUI funds, we promise continued analysis and promulgation of current (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Public Events Program Sets Dr. Mead Soon

Internationally known anthropologist, psychologist, writer, lecturer and teacher, Dr. Margaret Mead, associate curator of entomology at the American Museum of Natural History, will lecture at a public events program here Mar. 16, it was announced yesterday by Professor W. E. Folz, head of agricultural economics and chairman of the University public events program.

Dr. Mead's investigations into cultures, both modern and primitive, have resulted in a vast number of books and scientific monographs. Her contributions to science and education have gained her many honors and awards from colleges, universities and scientific honoraries.

Dr. Mead is currently a member of the Macy Conference on Group Processes and the World Health Organization Study Group on the Psychological Development of the Child; secretary of the Institute for Intercultural Studies, a past president and present secretary of the Society of Applied Anthropology.

She is a member of the executive board of the World Federation for Mental Health and a fellow of the American Anthropological Association, the New York Academy of Sciences, the American Orthopsychiatric Association, the Society of the Psychological Study of Social Issues, the Society of Women Geographers and Polynesian Society. She recently became a member of the Inter-University Committee on the Superior Student.

The far-flung field work began for Dr. Mead in 1925 on the Samoan Islands with a study of adolescent girls and has since taken her to many countries around the world doing research and lecturing.

YR's Condone Legislators

The University Young Republicans, at an officers meeting last Saturday, condoned the Idaho Republican Senators for their part in appropriating the funds for the state institutions.

The Idaho Senate, meeting in regular session at Boise, voted to appropriate $7,365,000 for the building of facilities at the State institutions, including the badly needed Physical Science building at the University of Idaho.

The vote was 25 to 19, with Harold Lough, Democrat from Latah County, home of the University, and Nellie Seensen, Democrat from Bannock County, home of Idaho State College, voting with the 23 Republicans to defeat the 19 Democrats who opposed the appropriations. The group agreed that education is one of the chief defenses in the cold war, and when it is turned into a political football, the results can be disastrous.

BLUE KEY MEETS
Blue Key men will meet en masse Thursday at 12:30 p.m. in the trusty old SUB mezzanine, where they have met before, and where they will meet again, and so on ad finitum.

Citizens Request Firm Issue Stand

Idaho citizens participating in the University Borah Foundation's Great Decisions discussion series overwhelmingly favor an uncompromising stand by the United States on German reunification and the Berlin crisis, Executive Secretary Clint Grimes announced.

In ballots checking the way each participant in the series feels about the questions involved, over 90 per cent of those taking part feel our country should maintain a firm stand on the issues, Grimes said.

Talent Show Auditions Set

Auditions for the Blue Key Talent Show will be held Saturday in the Borah Theatre, according to co-chairmen Jim Okeson, Beta, and Bud McDougall, Delta.

Okeson said 20 applications were received by deadline time yesterday. After auditions 12-15 numbers will be selected for the Talent Show, March 24. The program will last approximately one and one half hours.

Joe McFarland, Gault, who is in charge of the auditions, said information concerning the auditions will be distributed by Friday noon. Applicants with questions should contact him.

Divisions to be included in the show are all house acts, vocal ensembles, solos, and novelties.

U. Orchestra Sets Concert This Saturday

The University Symphony Orchestra, in its second performance of the year, will present its annual mid-winter concert Mar. 4 at 4 p.m. in the University Auditorium.

Directed by LeRoy Bauer, the group will feature student soloists for the first time. Both violinists, they are Molly Banks, and Gay Russell, Tri-Delts.

"We will have an extremely varied program," Bauer said. "It should have great audience appeal."

The program, Bauer added ranges from selections from the well-known opera, Carmen, to music by Alan Hovhaness, an outstanding American contemporary composer.

The complete program is as follows: Prelude and Quadruple Fugue, Op. 128, by Hovhaness; Suite No. 3 in D major, by J. S. Bach; Smetana; (Intermission); Concerto Grosso, Op. 3, No. 8, by Vivaldi - for the two violin soloists and string orchestra; Carmen Suite No. 2 by Bizet.

TV SERIES OFFERED
"Meet the Professor," aired each Sunday noon over Spokane's KREM-TV, Channel 2, is a program spotlighting outstanding educators throughout the nation.

Four of the programs in the series have already been offered.

much the golf course expenses exceeded its income," Pasley remarked. "The ASUI must make up the deficit, which we are currently trying to reduce by considering a raise in the semester ticket prices."

The Argonaut also came under the finance area, with expenditures exceeding advertising and subscription income of $12,000 by another deficit. The general fund, again, made up the difference. In effect, Idaho's four thousand students paid slightly over two dollars apiece for their copies of the newspaper.

Along with the golf course and Argonaut, the ASUI also subsidizes the Agriculture Judging department, Debaters, Dramatics, Vandaleers, WRA, KUOI, Artists' Series, Class Budgets, and a general group, Varsity band, on the ASUI tab until last year, is expected to regain its position as a subsidized department again this year.

Pasley Comments On Finances; Says E. Boards' Duty Is To Students

Executive Board member Bill Pasley has a fairly narrow "Area of Concern," he's simply the one that follows ASUI finances.

The "Areas of Concern," as drawn up by this year's ASUI governing body, delegate certain duties to different individuals. Mr. Pasley drew one of the more touchy ones.

There's one thing about finances that always appeal to students - they deal with money, and what student isn't interested in where his money goes and why? Pasley has the answers.

Out of the $6.50 student fee that every registered student shells out while going through registration line each semester, virtually all ASUI-sponsored activities draw a major share of their income, according to Pasley. The Gem is the major exception.

Currently Pasley, a senior from Caldwell majoring in marketing, has been working on reducing the Golf course deficit. The difference between income, as paid for by student fees for a semester ticket or individual green fees, and the expenses, amounted to some $9,000. The deficit came out of the general fund.

Assault Charge Faces Student

Last Friday's grand opening of Shakey's Pizza Parlor was marred by an incident that sent a WSU student to the hospital overnight and an Idaho student to jail.

Pete Moffett, Teke, is being held on $1,000 bond after a fight with WSU student Henry Robledo, which sent Robledo to Gritman hospital to be treated for cuts around the head, face and neck that required 74 stitches to close.

Moffett was first charged with aggravated assault and held for $300 bond. The bond was raised to $1,000 yesterday.

The fight occurred about 9:30 p.m. Friday night, and the police were called to the place by the manager who said there had been a disturbance.

Officers said Moffett had attacked Robledo with a beer pitcher.

Prosecuting Attorney Len Bielenberg questioned Moffett and witnesses, then charged him with aggravated assault. Justice Melvin Alsager heard the charges against Moffett, then ordered him over to District Court first under the bond of $300, which was later increased to $1,000.

He was arraigned Monday morning at 10 p.m., and pleaded not guilty. His trial is set for April 24.

According to attorney Bielenberg, Moffett may be charged either with a felony or a misdemeanor, the test being which type of sentence is imposed.

The difference between the two would include items like malicious intent, extent of injury, and the reasons for the assault.

If he is charged with a felony, and found guilty, he could receive a prison term for not less than three years or a fine not to exceed $1,000.

If Moffett is charged with a misdemeanor, and is found guilty, he could face a fine of not less than $100 or a jail sentence of not less than three months, or more than a year.

Later on the same evening at Shakey's, John Rossmisell, another WSU student, slipped on the floor at 11:38 p.m. and put his arm through an already broken window in the front door.

Police took Rossmisell to the hospital where he was treated for a cut on his left hand and forearm, then released.

Foreign Land Contribution Is Smaller

There has been a surprisingly small increase in the number of foreign students attending the University during the past years, with the number remaining almost constant, according to records of D. D. DuSault, registrar.

There is no apparent reason for the lack of increase, as there are no definite assignments made by the federal government of foreign students wanting to attend American universities.

Most of Idaho's foreign students are naturally from Canada, with 28 of the 82 registered foreign students coming from our northern neighbor. India is second with 17 students, and Norway is third with 9.

The rest of the 22 countries represented on the Idaho campus have four or less students. They include: Afghanistan, Argentina, Austria, Belgium, China, Columbia, Cuba, Ecuador, England, Germany, Hong Kong, Iran, Jordan, Korea, Panama, the Philippines, Thailand and Turkey.

A few of these students are not actually foreign students but have foreign address because their families live overseas.

Engineering majors account for the biggest share of foreign students with 31 of them seeking various engineering degrees. The others are distributed among all the major fields, the majority being in agriculture, business, and forestry. Of the 61 students seeking bachelor's degrees, 53 are working towards a Bachelor of Science.

There are 21 foreign graduate students, 18 working for a master's degree and three seeking their doctorate.

The foreign enrollment is predominantly male, 73 men to nine women.

READY TO DISBAND?
The local chapter of national honorary Phi Kappa Xi is in serious financial difficulties, announced the Grand Vizir for the University of Idaho, yesterday. Plans to make a calendar with semi-nude coeds gracing the pages left through when chapter officials forgot to check with the Hill before spending the chapter's money.

Seaman Thinks Student Newspaper Is Prime Mover For Improvements

By FRANCIS SEAMAN Philosophy Department

Some students seem to have complaints about the way the Administration handles its student relations. Also, some students seem to have complaints about the way in which certain courses, especially sectioned courses, are handled.

While no human institution is perfect, complaints can lead to improvement. But if something is to be done, the prime mover in both cases may well have to be the Argonaut; after all, the Arg is the student newspaper.

Now almost every educated person who reads newspapers soon become aware of the differences that exist between commercial papers as the New York Times, and, say, whatever paper may be published in Dubuque. Two of the most significant differences between such papers are that the Times has a professionally trained staff to do the research for its stories and that the Times has room for "all the news that's fit to print."

But a school paper, designed in part to give students journalistic experience and in part to inform the student body, has only a staff composed of students who are normally carrying a full academic load and the paper is further severely limited in coverage because of budget restrictions. But even with these handicaps, the Arg could prove of much greater value to the students, if, besides printing the facts of a story, it would seek to do more with the issues that arise in student-administration and student-faculty relations.

I now wish to explain what I think is the proper way for a student paper to handle the stories arising out of these relations. I will make use of two stories that appeared in the Feb. 21 issue of the Arg, the day on which my invitation to participate in this forum arrived.

Bob Young's Case

Consider first the case of Robert Young. There were and continue to be references made to Mr. Young's "bad checks." Now a reporter whose sole concern was to report the facts as he gets them, would find no quarrel with the Arg's handling of this story. But always in a discipline case, more than the bare facts are involved; indeed, one probably cannot understand or even properly name the "facts" without some understanding of the nature of the case. Surely, a phone call to one of several sources might well have revealed the difference between a check written with the intent to defraud, and a check written in good faith. Even though both checks are returned marked "insufficient funds," there remains a vital distinction between them.

Of two such returned checks, the former is generally known as a "bad check," and laws have been passed to punish the culprit. The latter is generally known as a check that "bounced," and the handling of such a check varies.

A check may bounce for such non-malicious reasons as: the writer's poor bookkeeping; a filing error by the bank; a parent who did not put into an account as much as he had intended to, or who possibly did not put the money into the bank as soon as he had said he would.

Any member of the law school, the local police force, the sheriff's office, a bank, as well as most staff members are aware of the distinction between a bad check and a check that merely bounces.

Act A Felony

Any one of these individuals might also be aware that the present Idaho Senate has voted to make the writing of a bad check again a felony. Two years ago, the Idaho Legislature decreed that the writing of a bad check was to be a misdemeanor; prior to that time, it had been a felony. One might wonder if Mr. Young's case should have been handled as similar past cases were handled.

It appears that Mr. Young's case involved a series of checks that bounced. But do these indicate an intent (subconscious?) to defraud? The Idaho courts have held that so doing, in some cases at least, does constitute an intent to defraud; but I am told that these cases also demonstrate that a valid decision is not a simple matter. Of course, Mr. Young was warned that his behaviour would get him into trouble; but how did the business office happen to get Mr. Young's checks?

I read in the Argonaut that these checks were "cashed in the Student Union Building." Do students who cash checks in the Student Union Building make these checks payable to the University of Idaho? If the ASUI runs the SUB, can it not do so by itself, without running to the University whenever it has a problem. It might be of general interest to know how the Faculty Club handled a related matter; i.e., how it handled the problem of IOUs.

If the ASUI must refer all of its problems to the University, the Arg should report the role of the University Discipline Committee in such matters. It should report the membership of this committee as well as the legal credentials of that membership. Finally, the Arg should report on the issues that this committee found in the Young case, as well as the issues the committee found in earlier cases.

Not Inflexible

Whatever the procedures in Mr. Young's case, the present University procedures are not inflexible. In this connection, it should be mentioned that shortly after the present administration took office, it became involved in a long policy "discussion" with its faculty about faculty self government and dismissal proceedings. In each case, after a considerable investigation of the issues involved and after considerable discussion, the administration significantly altered its policies.

While the administration-faculty relationship is not fully analogous to the administration-student relationship, the important point here is that the administration is willing to be flexible. It only insists that the University's legal and moral obligations to the State be met. Certainly no administration can take pleasure in having its student newspaper speak of the "Hell" as if the newspaper was composed of a bunch of bully boys.

Final Remark

One final remark; I do not know how the Young case was handled, nor who made the final decision. Nor is it any of my business. But if my guess is correct, those who made the decision to put Mr. Young on probation, did so without any knowledge that Mr. Young had been called a communist. As I understand the events leading up to that charge of communism, it was part of the aftermath of the "Operation Abolition Story."

Even though the disputes which that film aroused were among the most vigorous I have ever heard on this campus, the Arg very early announced that it would no longer discuss the subject. Prior to the Feb. 21 issue of the Argonaut, most staff members and most administrators were completely unaware that such a charge had ever been made.

"... that gave the definite impression that if the United Party won again, the earth would open up and swallow the University of Idaho." (this "definite impression" was again that of the reporter, not an actual news fact. How about some facts that could lead the reader to an impression of his own.)

Sample To Meet With Journalists

Earl Sample, editor of the Independent Enterprise, Payette, will meet with Idaho journalism students April 19-20-21 to discuss current practices in the newspaper business, Dr. Granville Price, professor and chairman of journalism announced yesterday.

Sample received the Idaho Press Association Master Editor - Publisher award at the association meeting in January at Boise. He was appointed by the committee on journalism education to fill the three-day advisory position.

Arg Attacked

DEAR Jason, What is a front page story of a newspaper supposed to do, Does it report the event concerned in an unbiased manner, or does it bother the reader with the reporter's personal prejudices. I would think a clean, concise report is for the front page; leaving editorial comment to the editorials.

In last Tuesday's Arg there is a story reporting the political activity on its campus that appalled me with its biased attitude. May I point out a few excerpts I have taken from the story and comment on some of them; they are examples of what I think should not appear in a news story. "... crossed party lines with a vengeance."

... the Campus Union Party's convention went off surprisingly well." (I witnessed very little surprise among the circles of the convention it must have just surprised the reporter and his party.)

Speaking of Moe's keynote address - "... who was obviously CUP all the way..." (I give the reporter credit for observing the obvious but he might have known it before the convention began. In other political action, unmarred by speeches, emotionalism, and sentimentality..." (I would here observe that any person or party that looks on speeches as a marring political activity has a good deal in common with a dictator.)

Well, Jason, that's enough of that to shine a light on this poor, poor, piece of writing; why do you, as editor, accept such as this? If this is the destiny of Arg reporting, may the Lord be with you, because your readers won't.

Elton Johnson Mr. Johnson's points are based on one of two theories of reporting. One theory, the line he follows, suggests that editorial comment of any type be reserved for the editorial page. The other line, as was stated in the Fleece of Feb. 7, follows the idea that limited comment, the reporter's own impressions, be worked into major news stories. This is the main reason for the Byline. The present editor of the Argonaut believes this system when used in connection with both political parties, results in the ultimate aim of unbiased coverage and added interest. The United party missed such "slanting" entirely because they have as yet failed to do anything of lasting significance, out of the ordinary. In other words, the editor stands by his reporter's actions entirely.—Ed.

Dear Jason

With this background, Mr. Mullen now wants to represent the Idaho student body in its dealings with the Administration and the people of the state of Idaho!

The way things look now maybe the people of south Idaho are right when they refer to the University as the "Country Club of the North."

Forgery

Dear Jason, Yes, I have something else. We have been duped. I did not write that slanderous, libelous letter printed in Dear Jason, Feb. 24. You have been tricked into crying "Smear" and championing a biased cause, and I have been momentarily discredited.

I am not a smear writer, I have never mentioned names, I am not campaigning for any candidate (or against any), and I do not criticize Dean Decker personally, as he is very much for the betterment of the U of I.

I have just one purpose for writing and that is I want a more liberal, progressive University of Idaho, which includes airing of all issues without censure, and consequently a more informed and better educated student.

Therefore I champion Bob Young, who is the most dynamic character on campus and who is capable of initiating this movement, even if forced behind the scene. I also criticize the Administration which combats this movement.

I repeat, I am not a smear writer. I confess only to being a CUP member.

Man, Family From Korea Are Reunited

Strains of Korean folk music drifted from a Phoenix, Ariz., banquet room last week as Sam Kim and his family expressed their appreciation to the Western Jurisdiction of the Methodist Women's Association for reuniting the family in America.

"This is the first time in Korean history that a Korean student's entire family has come to the United States," said Kim, a University of Idaho junior mining engineering student from Korea. "And my family is here because of an invitation to provide a program for the WJMW."

Sam Kim, his wife Yung Soon, 30, their 6 and 9-year-old sons, and their 3-year-old daughter sang favorite Korean folk songs for the women's society. "My wife Sarah—that's her American name—danced to Korean classical music, and Henry and Charles played piano duets and solos," Kim related. The boys' Korean names are Se Kiun and Se Choul. The daughter is He In, which is Grace in English.

The Kim family, who have just returned from the long bus trip, said they were "impressed that such a large group of women were working together to bring love and peace to the world and to witness to God and Christ."

For three years Kim searched for a way to have his family with him while he attended the University of Idaho. Last October his goal was reached when his family stepped into their new home on the University of Idaho campus.

Scholarships, including a no-tuition scholarship and the Hecla-Bunker Hill Scholarship to cover registration and books and a part-time job as janitor of the Campus Christian Center have helped Kim to support his family and pay his way through school. During the past two summers and Christmas vacations, Kim has gained practical experience by working at the mines in Kellogg and Wallace.

Kim received a bachelor's degree in business administration from a Korean University and did some graduate work before starting as a mining engineering freshman here.

The Kim family has presented musical programs for organizations throughout the Moscow area. He teaches Sunday School and is active in church choir.

Elections Here Like Elsewhere, Follow Time-Honored Pattern

At last, the campus spotlight has finally come to rest on a subject that so many people have been waiting for, campus elections. . . . Anywhere else campus elections are just about the same also. Let's look at one example . . .

"Hey Lucille, guess what I am going to do?"

"Elwood, how in the hell would I know what you are going to do? You keep me in the dark most of the time anyway."

"Lucille, I am going to be a politician!"

"You're going to be a what?"

"I am going to be a politician. For heaven's sake, take the dental floss out of your teeth so you can hear."

"I am perfectly capable of hearing with this dental floss, I was just a bit shocked when you said that you were going to be a politician."

"What is so shocking about being a politician? All the big guys want to do it."

"What ever gave you the idea that you were a politician?"

"Oh, I applied for one of those courses that you find on the inside of a match book, and the people said that I should go into politics instead of art. They said that I did not quite have the talent for art and that I should try politics."

"Well as they say in old Thiland, rolsa ruck."

"I can hardly wait for the elections coming up, I'm going to jump in the ring and throw in my hat."

"If I am any forecaster you will be throwing in your head not your hat. Don't you know politics are dangerous?"

"The campus elections are not dangerous. How could anyone get hurt in a simple little campus election?"

"Oh you poor boy, I just don't have the heart to tell you."

"Elwood, what possible reason do you have for going into politics?"

"Lucille don't you see the possibilities? If I win, I will be famous and popular. I would make you proud of me if I were a popular guy?"

"Oh yeh, I would be so proud, I would probably never see you again. All the other girls would be beating down the door. I think that is why you are going into politics."

"Oh you are so wrong. I want only you. I want you to be my first lady."

"Elwood just what do you know about politics? Do you realize that there is quite a bit of time involved? Do you know that you have to be a good speaker? Do you know that your shoe is untied, tie it."

"My dear Lucille, I am quite well aware of the facts that you mentioned. I have the time, I think that I am a fairly good speaker, and I have loofer shoes on. What else do you have to know to be a politician?"

"Don't you think that some of the opposition will try to make you look silly?"

"What kind of a person would do that? Its just a little ole campus election. It's just supposed to be fun."

"Fun, shum, you simply don't grasp the idea. Some campaigns and elections are cut-throat. People try to make you look sick. I just hope you know what you are doing."

"I think I know what I am doing. I even have a list of things I am going to campaign for."

"This should be good. Let me hear them."

"Well, first there is the problem of fire extinguisher inspections. I think they should be inspected at least once a year not every other year like some of them are. Second, I think that every man under 27 years of age should have to live somewhere on campus, unless he is married. This could be a boon to single women. Third, I think that every abled bodied man should join the Ground Observer Corp. You know like keeping alert. And fourth, every one who drinks coffee at the SUB should wash their own cup. How is that for some political points?"

"I am transferring schools, Elwood."

Idaho Ski Team Finishes Regular Season With Victory At Portland State Meet

It was a grand way to close the season. The Idaho ski team coasted to its second victory of the season in the 15-college Portland State Winter Carnival at Mt. Hood last weekend.

The Idaho skiers are rated tops in the Pacific Northwest by the "Northwest Skiing" magazine. The Portland meet was the final meet for the Vandals unless the team enters the NCAA meet.

The first two days of the meet were stormy and snow hampered the slalom race which was the first day. The relatively flat course was set by Toni Sialor's brother. Since it was so stormy the course was only run once.

Thinlads Improving

Improvement was the word for the second practice meet between the Idaho and Washington State cindermen last Saturday. Nearly every man on both the varsity and frosh levels, showed great improvement over their first practice session held a week earlier in the WSU field house.

In the mile and half run, frosh runner Paul Henden, defeated varsity distanceman Dick Douglas in 6:53. Henden's time was 5.7 seconds better than the frosh indoor record and only 1.3 seconds off the varsity record.

James Leads Vandals To Washington Upset

By HERB HOLLINGER
Argonaut News Editor

Idaho's scrappy Vandals, after blowing a 19 point lead in the first half, came strong in the fourth quarter of the basketball game to defeat the University of Washington Huskies, 70-63 in Memorial Gym Saturday night.

Led by the Pendleton flash, guard Dale James the Vandals tried a vicious full court press on the slow Huskies near the start of the first quarter. When Washington

Head Coach John Grayson, former ISC basketball head, solved the Idaho press the score stood, Idaho 35 and Wash. 16.

With six minutes left to play in the second quarter the Huskies began to move and, with four Idaho starters on the bench, pulled within eight points of the Vandals at the half, 39-31. Coach Joe Cipriano seemed to have diagnosed the Husky attack perfectly when Idaho's press brought the big lead, but a flurry of Idaho fouls at the start of the second quarter caused him to rest his big guns until the second half.

Hanson Gets One Rebound
Big Bill Hanson, center for the Huskies and mainstay of the Washington squad, was held to one rebound during the game by Reg Carolan and Ken Maren. Hanson was so bottled up that he could manage only 12 points and fouled out with four minutes gone in the third quarter.

The second half saw the Washington attack chip away at the Idaho lead and with 12 minutes left in the game the Huskies tied it up at 48 all. The lead then changed back and forth and Washington found a three point lead short lived. Senior guard James once again led the Vandal attack and they managed to hold a slim lead into the waning minutes of the game.

Free Throw Accuracy
The free throw accuracy of the Vandals paid off towards the end and when the Huskies had to come out and get the ball from and Idaho salt, guards Rich Porter and James dazzled the Seattle players with a fascinating show of ball control. Washington's only hope was to get the ball and the only way to get it was to foul which sent James Porter, and Maren to the free throw line in the last minute to notch a hard-earned victory.

James grabbed scoring honors with 24 points and was a dead-eye at the free throw line with eight points out of eight tries. Maren was second with 18 points while Names had 17 for the Washington team.

Idaho Swimmers Close Out Seasons On Losing Notes

The varsity and frosh swim team closed out their regular season on losing notes last Friday against the Washington State swimmers, 65-29 and 56-36, respectively.

Idaho now goes into the conference meet at Oregon State College this weekend with a 4-7 record. The yearling finners from Idaho could not find the victory column this season and ended on a 4-0 mark — all losses at the hands of the Washington State Couababes.

All was not bleak for the Vandals in Pullman, however. Vandal backstroke, Paul Breithaupt, set a new varsity record for the Idaho finnen and Cliff Lawrence, Idaho's diver nosed out the Cougar boardman, Bill Young, to nab first place in the diving event.

Breithaupt's record was set in the 400 medley relay when he swam the backstroke in 1:07.3.

"He feels confident that he can get down to 1:06 by next week for the conference meet," swim coach Clarke Mitchell said.

Mitchell noted that this will be his "last chance" to better his time.

"The conference meet will be an incentive in itself," Mitchell concluded.

Washington State did not fail to have its standouts in the meet.

Varsity swimmer, Gary Chase, set a pool and conference record with a time of 2:06.8 in the 200-yard event. His time ranks in the top ten in the nation.

In the frosh meet, Idaho swimmer Mike Free won the 220 free style by posing a 2:32.1 time.

Jim Cobble was second in the 50 yard free style with a :26.9.

Coubabe Chris Marker took first in the event with a :23.2. Marker also set new pool records in both the 50 and 440.

Byron Stauffer, the other WSU frosh student, set a new pool record in the 100-yard backstroke.

Tucker Cole placed second in the 100 butterfly with a time of 1:32.0. John Kelley took the top spot with 1:09.9.

"We are tapering off this week and will be polishing for the weekend," Mitchell said about the coming time meet at Corvallis this weekend.

Seven Teams Vie In Tourney

Idaho high school tournament play got underway last night in the Memorial Gym.

District 2 Class "A" teams battling it out for a berth in the state championships at Lewiston, Mar. 16-18 include: Troy, Deary, Weippe Elk River, Pierce, Genesee, and Kendrick.

Weippe's Gorillas are tourney favorites with an 18-2 record. Troy is the state class "A" defending champion of 1960.

Babes Stopped By U.W. Pups

The Idaho freshman, looking for win number 13 of the campaign, were stalled Friday by a tall and talented University of Washington yearling club, despite a 19 point performance by Tom Whitfield.

Lowell Scott, Steve Wilson and Clint Peoples, all former high school adversaries of Whitfield, provided the punch which enabled Washington to pull away from the Vandalbabes in the final quarter.

Washington ran up an early 9-0 lead when they combined some good offensive play with brilliant defensive work. Three times during this period the Vandal Babes had shots batted back down their throats by the towering junior Huskies.

Idaho managed to come within two points of Washington by halftime, 30-28.

Six For Six
Instrumental in keeping Idaho in the game throughout this period was Whitfield, who hit six of six from the floor.

Washington lengthened its lead immediately after the intermission causing Idaho to go into a pressing defense. The Babes pulled to within two points once again behind this press.

At this point a discrepancy was noted in the score and the score board was changed to give Washington a 4 point lead. A free throw immediately stretched this to 5 points.

After this the Idaho press began to somewhat backfire as Washington was able to move the ball downcourt quickly, to pile up a final 65-55 margin.

Tom Ballantyne, who scored 11 points for the evening, and Bill Mattis, who scored 10 points, were the Idaho scoring mainstays during the second half, along with Whitfield.

Idaho played largely without the services of Jim Scheel, who was sidelined by a bad leg which has been giving him trouble in recent games.

Coach Wayne Anderson commenting on the game said that his team "played a good game against a big, strong and tough team" and that "they should not be ashamed to lose a game that they played that well." He felt that if the two teams should meet again Idaho would have a good chance to emerge the winner.

Sam Jones pitched a one-hitter and a pair of two-hit games for the San Francisco Giants last season. He had three three-hitters.
