THE GOLDENFLEECE by Jason

There's a real cute picture on this page, a sample of some of the more common occurences of election day. We find a bewildred student receiving assistance from a close (very close) friend who obviously plans to stay just that clos until the ballot is finished.

Undoubtedly, we have some people on this compus more versed in political matters than others, but does that give his own party, took advantage of them license to help out their friends in the booths? Doubt-

> In fact, you could almost make damn sure just how your pledges, or Hall freshman voted by this particular tactic, couldn't you? Perhaps there should be a bit of police action taken by the Election board in cases of this type...one to a booth kind of thing. The board pointed out that with the ballot rush on, there > usually just isn't time to check out individual occurences of his type. Perhaps extra board members would solve this problem.

Jason doubts if this practice is going to be forgotten, at east not if the political parties on this campus have the energy and ambition to try to put an end to it. Assistance by invitation or not, this sort of thing smacks just a little too much of "Big brother is watching you."

Or is it already 1984?

Rather than appeal to the campus politicians to heal their annual post-election split and hard feelings, and walk hand in hand down the Hello Walk, perhaps better a simple suggestion that they do a little teaming together to improve life around here. Both parties have some good ideas, both parties have some capable people.

Now, let's see what they can do.

Traveler's Gold

President Kennedy's proposal to limit duty-free purchases by American tourists to $100 is an expedient but unimaginative means to stanching the flood of U.S. gold into foreign banks. Although the reduction from the present $500 to $100 will save the U.S. millions of dollars, it bypasses a more pleasant and efficacious solution: attracting foreign gold through stimulation of domestic tourism by foreign visitors.

Europeans, like most Americans, were unaware that 1959 had been proclaimed "Visit the USA Year" by President Eisenhower. The sagacious, ambitious proclamation disintegrated in the halls of our slow-moving bureaucracy. One airline executive called it "a colossal flop." Though not even a qualified success, "Visit the USA Year" was a qualified improvement. Any movement from inertia must be considered improvement.

The very year Eisenhower signed the proclamation, though it required more money, the International Travel Office took a 40 per cent cut in federal funds. Amidst the flappy, overlapping bureaucratic departments, the Commerece Department set up a committee to study the problem and possibilities. It met once and nothing else was heard.

The U.S., which helped rejuvenate the moribund European Travel Commission after World War II, foundered ruefully in the first attempt to promote its own tourism. The failure of "Visit the USA" does not lie in our ability to advertise and promote, especially when it's ourselves, our country, we are selling. (Look at TV! Rather, it seems that the project lacked enthusiasm and organization from the very beginning. Short-sighted, conserving conservatives refused to allocate the necessary money. Begun half-heartedly, Visit the USA" ended with a faint plop. Last year's failure could be this year's lesson, by which the U.S. could launch an organized, financially sound, creative project to entice foreign nationals to our shores and their gold into our banks. Freespending American tourists yearly leave more than a billion dollars overseas. The U.S. is a country many foreigners merely dream of visiting. Europe's burgeoning economy enables millions of Europeans the possibility of a sojourn in this country. Why don't we make a concentrated, enthusiastic effort to tap this wealth of marks, pounds, francs, kroners-even rubles?

Tourism is big business today. And those people who believe that the mighty USA can afford to pass up foreign business opportunities, that "we don't need the rest of the world," are not only silly anachronisms but dang America can no longer a shally around. We are in other nations: this is the economic smugness.

WÉRE LOOKING FORWARD TO MEETING

Last year we had the pleasure of meeting many engineering and science seniors during our visit to the campus. As a result of our discussions, a gratifying number chose to join our company. We'll be back on the dates below, and this notice is your invitation to come in and see us.

If you're interested in joining a company that's a leader in fields-with-a-future, you'll be interested in the advantages Boeing can offer you. Boeing is a major contractor on the advanced solid-fuel ICBM, Minuteman; on the boostglide vehicle, Dyna-Soar, and on the BOMARC defense missile system. Boeing's Vertol Division is one of the country's foremost builders of helicopters.

Boeing is also the nation's foremost designer and builder of multi-jet aircraft. Production includes eight-jet B-52G missile bombers, KC-135 jet transport-tankers and the famous Boeing 707, 720 and 727 jet airliners.

Research projects at Boeing include celestial mechanics, solid state physics, nuclear and plasma physics, advanced propulsion systems, and space flight.

Expanding programs offer exceptional career opportunities to holders of B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in aeronautical, mechanical, civil, electrical-electronic and industrial engineering, and in engineering mechanics, engineering physics as well as in mathematics and physics. At Boeing you'll work in a small group where individual ability and initiative get plenty of visibility. You'll enjoy many other advantages, including an opportunity to take graduate studies at company expense to help you get ahead faster.

We hope you'll arrange an interview through your Placement Office. We're looking forward to meeting you.
