

READY FOR FIRST CONCERT . . . Kathleen Merewether, Hays, Lynne Patton, Hays, and Carol Gray, McConnell, get instructions from Prof. LeRoy Bauer before the first campus performance of the University Symphony Orchestra Sunday at 4 p.m. All three are appearing with the orchestra for the first time.

Concert Will Be Presented Sunday By University Symphony Orchestra

A symphony that was never heard by its young composer will be performed for the first time in the Inland Empire by the University Symphony Orchestra at a pair of concerts Dec. 3 and 5.

Opening the 1961-62 orchestra season, the concerts will be performed at 4 p.m. Sunday in the University Auditorium, and next Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Coeur d'Alene. LeRoy Bauer, professor of music, will conduct.

The featured composition, to be played by the 60-piece Idaho orchestra, is "Sinfonia Piccola," by Heikki Suloahiti, proclaimed one of Finland's greatest musical talents.

The young composer died at the age of 17, just two months after completing his symphony. He never heard any of his many works performed; the first public performance of his works was at his funeral.

Describes Composition
Describing the composition, Bauer said, "It is refreshing music, full of beautiful melody, much in the same style of Sibelius who was Suloahiti's idol. It is certainly a fine addition to the orchestral repertoire."

A rarely heard composition by four solo instruments and orchestra, "Symphonie Concertante" by Joseph Haydn, will also be featured.

"This music is unique among the works of Haydn," Bauer said.

"It resembles in some aspects the older form of concerto grosso, but organizes the music thought in a way inescapable for the man who made so much of the thematic development feature of the symphony," he added.

Soloists will be Ralph Strobel, oboe, music faculty members, Warren Billis, bassoon, David Whisner, cello and Bauer, violin. Philip Coffman, graduate assistant in the department of music, will conduct the number.

Some students will be appearing for their first time in the University Symphony, Bauer said. These are the following:

Carol Gray, Lynne Patton, Marlene Barnum, and Brian Sack, violins; Kathleen Merewether, viola; Wallas Brat, cello; Nita Bock, string bass; Norma Hagerman, flute; Bertella Burke, oboe; Dennis Lindahl, and Annette Torrence, trumpet; and Robert Running, trombone.

Fourteen Candidates Chosen For Sophomore Holly Queen

Activities for the annual Sophomore Holly Week got off to a big start Tuesday with the selection of 14 Holly Queen candidates. The list of candidates will be narrowed to five Wednesday when male members of the sophomore class vote on the semi-finalists.

The fourteen candidates: Judy Anderson, Alpha Gamma; Doris Hatfield, Alpha Phi; Donna Hamlet, Tri Delta; Jeanne Marshall, Delta Gamma; Patsy McCullough, Gamma Phi; Ann Spiker, Theta; Carol Rigby, Kappa; Jan Thompson, Pi Phi; Carol Thornack, Epsilon Sigma; Karen Wightley, Forney; Karen Bohman, French; Jo Milholland, Hays; Marilyn Rowland, McConnell; and Jackie McConnell, Alpha Chi.

"Wonderland by Night" has been chosen the theme of the Holly Dance which will be held Friday in the Student Union ballroom. The Holly Queen will be crowned at the intermission of the dance. Presentation of the outstanding sophomore awards will also be made during the intermission.

Music will be by the Dave Trail quartet.

The wreath committee will build the wreath in the SUB Monday night. The week will officially get underway Tuesday night when the sophomores present each living group with a wreath to decorate their doors.

The 14 queen candidates will each model two outfits in the fashion show in the SUB Bucket Wednesday afternoon.

The sophomores will don their mittens and scarves Thursday night, and with song books in hand will go from house to house caroling. Friday at noon the Holly queen will be chosen.

Door Decorations Begun For Contest

It's that time of the year for the campus living groups to start decorating their doorways for the annual Lambda Chi Alpha Christmas Door Decoration contest.

Trophies will be awarded to the first place winners in both the men's and women's living group divisions. Rules call for each house not to spend more than $15 for their decorations. The decorations will be judged Dec. 7, on appropriateness for the Christmas season, originality and color.

Terry Egan, LCA president urges all living groups participating in the contest to have their decorations ready for judging by noon on Dec. 7.

Trophy Spurs Debate Teams In Intramurals

Women debaters battle for the intramural trophy tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. at the Student Union Building.

Last Saturday an Upham Hall team, Richard Beebe and Arlen Marley defeated a Beta Theta Pi pair, Bob Robinson and Bill Longest, in the men's intramural debate.

The topic for both men's and women's debates is the national debate question: "Should Labor Unions be Under the Jurisdiction of Anti-Trust Laws?"

According to Dr. A. E. Whitehead, chairman of the Speech Dept. and director of the intramural tournaments, four women's living groups have indicated that they will enter a team.

Hays Hall, Gamma Phi Beta, Delta Delta, and Alpha Chi Omega have said that they have teams ready for Saturday's contest. Gamma Phi is the defending champion.

Both the Beta and Upham Hall teams were defeated, going into the finals last Saturday. Four other teams also were entered—Delta Sigma Phi, Lindley Hall, Willis Sweet Hall, and Campus Club.

Gault Hall, last year's winner, did not participate.

Dr. Whitehead said that all debates were close, and that the competition was the best that it has been for several years. The intramural tournament is an annual event.

Prof Tells Of New Device In Lecture

No longer will the scientist struggle to a snow-capped mountain top on snowshoes with a pack-sack full of technical measuring instruments strapped to his back. A time-saving device for predicting the water content in the mountain snows has been developed.

Prof. George Hespelt, assistant professor of electrical engineering at the University, explained the modern method of measuring the mountain snows to University professors and students Tuesday night in his lecture, "Measurement of Our Vast Natural Reservoir—The Snow." This was the second of three in a series of American Association of University Professors' lectures.

Since July, the engineering department has been receiving temperature and weather data from a transmitter located on the west twin butte of Moscow Mountain. This relatively small "telemetering" device can relay to a master-control station such information as total precipitation, air temperature, and ground temperature within a fraction of a second.

Such measurements manually would take hours. With the electronic system of gathering this information it is much easier and cheaper to predict the total amount of run-off from melted snow in the spring, Hespelt pointed out.

Provide Info
"The largest reservoir we have in the area is snow which falls in the mountains," Hespelt said. "We would like to predict how much water we will have in a certain season." The engineering professor said that it was the main duty of the "telemetering" device to provide us with this information.

He said that under the "on-call" system this information is at the fingertips of anyone operating the main control room, which is located in Kirtley Engineering Lab. By transmitting an audio signal from the main station to the remote station on Moscow Mountain at any time, the required information will be transmitted to the main station within one-tenth of a second. The measurements are repeated 20 times after one call.

Will Be Converted
The pulses which radiate from the oscilloscope (a fluorescent screen which carries a beam of rays, showing the changes in a varying current) will then be read and converted into meaningful terms.

Besides aiding in the prediction of the total water content in a snow measurement, the electronic "telemetering" will provide the air temperature, percentage of ice to water in the snow and ground temperature, Hespelt said.

The final AAUP lecture will be Tuesday, in room 6 of the Home Economics building. Jan Brunvand, assistant professor of English, will speak on "Folklore or Fakelore."

SRA Again

Exec. Board Stands Fast—No Legislative Powers

A student faction which has been seeking to obtain legislative powers for the Student Representative Assembly (SRA) received the second slap in the face Tuesday night when Executive Board voted to keep provisions limiting SRA duties to communications between the board and the student body.

The board, however, reversed a decision that the SRA chairman be an elective ASUI official. A provision was substituted making the chairman elective from the assembly itself.

The SRA provisions passed by the board will be included in the revised ASUI Constitution. The board earlier passed on the structure for SRA, but the matter was reopened when ASUI President Jim Mullen asked for reconsideration of the method of choosing the chairman.

The vote to keep the SRA structure as passed earlier was taken after an open discussion with 18 living group presidents. The eight living groups favoring legislative functions for SRA were Willis Sweet, Gault, FarmHouse, Tau

Throwing Snow Nets Last IK Pin

Anyone wanting more advice on this subject should contact Bruce Trowbridge, Delta Sig. Following IK initiation last Tuesday he was walking home when a great urge to throw a snowball possessed him. In the process he somehow lost his pin. He would be most happy if anyone finding the pin between the SUB and the Delta Sig house would return it.

Exec. Board Okays Merger Of Two Clubs

Executive Board Tuesday night unanimously sanctioned the merger of National and World Affairs Club and Cosmopolitan Club. By this action National and World Affairs Club was authorized to keep a $25 ASUI appropriation.

The $25 was appropriated for the National and World Affairs Club last year because that group did not have adequate finances with which to operate.

ASUI President Jim Mullen said last year's Executive Board made the appropriation because it did not have time to promote discussions and other events of international and national significance, but wanted to support this type of activity.

Bob Scott, National and World Affairs Club President, told the board that several business meetings were called this year with the intention of organizing his group.

He said the percentage of attendance at the business meetings was from 2-10, and there was no binding force to hold the group together.

"We decided that we had better make some changes or else disband," he pointed out.

Scott said the club decided the best solution would be to merge with Cosmopolitan Club, which was similar in organization and functions.

National and World Affairs Club, he explained, will function as a committee within Cosmopolitan Club.

"The club will perform the same functions as before, but will be attached to a large permanent body," he said.

Phi U's Sell Holly Wreaths

Members of Phi Upsilon Omicron, home economics honorary, will meet Dec. 2 at 9:30 a.m. in the home economics building to make wreaths for their money-making project.

The wreaths made from Idaho greens and pine cones will be sold for $3.

Those wishing to order wreaths should contact the home economics office, 632, Mary Etta MacDonald, 6357, or Jo Ann Tatum, 2-8021.

Science Building Plans OK'd By State Council

By LARRY ROBY
Argonaut Associate Editor

Another major step in the proposed construction of a new $2.1 million dollar physical science building for the University of Idaho was made this week when the State Building Advisory Council authorized the preparation of the building plans.

According to University President D. R. Theophilus, the action taken by the council "has confirmed the authority that the architectural firm of Dropping, Kelley and Finch, of Boise, would complete the final plans and specifications for the science building."

Dr. Theophilus said the next step in the planning process of the new building would be for state officials to determine when sufficient monies are available for the advertising of bids.

Created By Legislators
The State Building Advisory Council was created by an act of the 1961 Idaho Legislature after strong recommendation by Gov. Robert E. Smylie. A permanent building fund was created at that time for constructing needed buildings, and making renovations and repairs at Idaho's state institutions and agencies.

A total of $7,415,000, was designated for these construction purposes. These priority state construction projects were broken down into 15 separate units. The University of Idaho was designated $2.6 million and its little sister institution, Idaho State College at Pocatello, was appropriated $2.2 million for construction projects. Included in the University appropriation is $500,000 for a new 40,000 pound boiler to be installed in the heating plant.

For Physics and Chem
The new science building, as planned, will be built on the campus between the library and the agricultural science building. The new structure will house both the physics and chemistry departments. Plans call for the present science building to be remodeled to accommodate the botany, zoology and bacteriology departments.

Dr. Theophilus said that planning of the science building will be undertaken in such a way that if funds are unavailable for the completion of the structure, portions of the upper floor would be left unfinished.

The ISC appropriation of $2.2 million was made for the construction of a new science building and an education building.

The State Building Advisory Council as created by the Legislature is composed of a Senate member, a member of the House of Representatives, a contracting business citizen of the state, a citizen engaged in the contracting business, and an Idaho citizen of a business community not engaged in either.

Physical Educators To Discuss Positive Directions For Fitness

A two-day annual conference of the Idaho Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation is being held at the University today and tomorrow in cooperation with the Idaho Recreation Society.

About 150 recreation superintendents, principals and physical education teachers from Idaho schools are meeting to propose next year's plans under the theme "Positive Directions For Fitness." Eric Kirkland, associate professor of physical education at the University, president-elect of the Idaho AHPER, is heading conference arrangements.

The program began with registration in the Student Union lobby this morning. Ron Rutyman, president of the Idaho AHPER, was scheduled to preside over the opening session at 9:30 a.m. in the Borah Theater. Delegates will be welcomed by Dean J. F. Weltzin of the College of Education. Dr. D. R. Theophilus, president of the University, will address the group on "The Challenge of Fitness."

A panel at 10:45 a.m. is to discuss cooperative planning for fitness. Panelists will include Arnold Halpern, chairman, Coeur d'Alene recreation superintendent; Ernest Craner, Twin Falls recreation superintendent; Bill Everts, Boise recreation superintendent, and Harvie Walker, Lewiston junior high school principal.

A luncheon and business meeting will be at 12 noon in the Frontier room. A student luncheon and meeting will be in the South Ballroom, co-sponsored by the P.E. Majors' club and Phi Epsilon Kappa, physical education honorary. The recreation directors' luncheon will be in the Pine Room of the SUB.

Discussion will resume at 1 p.m. in Conference Room A of the SUB at a recreation directors' meeting. Charles Kremenek, Lewiston rec-

Vandaleers Annual Concert Is To Be Heard Nationwide

The 70-voice University of Idaho Vandaleer choir has been preparing for the past few weeks for their annual Christmas Candlelight Concert to be presented Sunday, Dec. 10, in the Memorial Gymnasium.

Through the services of the University radio-television center, portions of the yuletide program will be heard over a nation-wide radio network during the holidays. Some radio stations throughout the state will also carry the recorded program.

Prof. Glen R. Lockery will direct the choir at the 8 p.m. concert. Vocal and instrumental soloists will add to the program of music devoted to the Christmas theme.

Excerpts from "Childhood of Christ" by Berlioz will make up the first half of the program. Benjamin Britten's complete "Ceremony of Carols" will follow in the hour and 15-minute program. The concert will be concluded by a group of traditional Christmas carols and hymns.

Prof. Hall Macklin, head of the department of music, and Angela Sherbenou, Hays, will accompany the mixed-voice honor choir.

Linda Smith, Pi Phi, soprano, and Gary Whitmore, off campus, baritone, will sing the roles of Mary and Joseph in the "Childhood of Christ" selection. Noel Blum, off campus, will sing the part of Father of the Family and Ardell Shockey, off campus, will narrate.

YAF Speaker Gets Audience Disagreement

Some 120 students and faculty members, sometimes in heated disagreement with the speaker, heard a representative of the Spokane Freedom Fighters, Inc., talk on Communism and show a film strip, "Communist Encirclement," in the Student Union Borah Theater last night.

"The Communists are literally rolling up the world right before our own eyes," Rudi Gruhn told the gathering. His appearance and the showing of the 40-minute film strip was sponsored by the University of Idaho chapter of Young Americans for Freedom, Inc.

The film dealt with the history of Communism and of its present and past tactics of aggression and subversion in various parts of the world.

Statement Brings Reaction
The speaker's statement that "socialism since the very beginning of time has always deteriorated into a totalitarian government" brought a muffled reaction from several members of the audience.

When a member of the audience leaped to his feet and disagreed with the speaker's placing of communism and socialism under nearly the same label, Gruhn replied, "Don't you believe that any state in the past that has been socialist has ultimately gone totalitarian?"

"Ultimately may be tomorrow, but I don't believe Great Britain to go totalitarian tomorrow," the member of the audience angrily countered.

Gruhn emphasized during the question and answer period that the purpose of his organization was not necessarily to teach about Communism as much as it is to encourage the study of the movement.

Communist Aim Stated
"A study of Communism will show you beyond a shadow of a doubt that the Communists mean to conquer the world," the speaker said, adding that "Communists today control more people in this world than all the other people who have ever heard of Christ."

In speaking of the subversive activities of the Communist Party, Gruhn warned: "The Communist Party is like an iceberg; five percent is above ground and 95 percent is underground."

THE GOLDEN FLEECE

by Jason

If the controversy over the Student Representative Assembly continues much longer, Jason may have to change the name of this column to "What's With SRA This Week?"

The growing antagonism between the increasingly active Campus Union Party and the United-controlled Exec. Board seems to find its most effective outlet in the SRA issue, and this is exactly where it has been centered.

In a special meeting for house presidents prior to the Executive Board meeting Tuesday night, 18 living groups were represented. Of those attending, seven groups openly favored changing the SRA structure to include legislative powers, and six of those were members of the Campus Union Party.

Jason is wondering if the obvious attack against the United-controlled board's decision to keep SRA a communicative body only is part of the true party philosophy or if it is an organized Attack-The-United-Board-Decision-And-Make-Ourselves-Look-Better campaign.

It is rather coincidental that CUP showed little interest in increased powers for SRA during ASUI elections, and suddenly it has become the prime political sore spot.

The proper function of the so-called "Out" party in a democratic government is to criticize the "In" party, thereby keeping both parties on their toes. This leads to a healthy political system, but carried to an extreme can destroy the very system it seeks to improve.

Jason does not mean to condone the handling of the SRA problem by the Executive Board. The decision to reconsider the method of election of the chairman opened the whole SRA problem to criticism again. And the second airing of the problem by the board last Tuesday night revealed even more explicitly the board's own confusion on the matter.

However, Exec. Board's decision will probably stick this time—that is until it goes on the ballot for student approval.

Public threats have been made that if the SRA is not given legislative powers, active opposition and student petitions will fight it "all the way."

If the group pushing for more SRA power really feels that a representative legislative body is necessary, which well it might be to the student government, it has every justification for carrying out a campaign against the board's decision.

But if this group, apparently spearheaded by a campus political party, is just looking for something to attack, they could find other issues which would create just as much publicity, and serve more useful ends.

SDX Chapter Elects Kellogg

LeRoy Kellogg, Sigma Chi, was elected treasurer of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic society, Wednesday evening. Kellogg's election came after the resignation of Walt Johnson, off campus, who was called into the AF according to organization president, Herb Hollinger.

Final arrangements were made for the selling of basketball programs at the Idaho home games. Neil Modie, program chairman, told members that programs would be sold for 10 cents a piece at the game. Idaho will have two games this weekend with Whitworth College and Gonzaga University. Members of the journalistic society will do the selling.

Offsets Lead Price Drop

Silver Price Rise Will Boost Northern Idaho's Economy

By JIM METCALF

President Kennedy's order stopping the Treasury Department selling silver at a fixed price has caused the price of silver to rise over ten cents in two days and will definitely bolster Northern Idaho's economy.

The Coeur d'Alene mining district produces over half of the nation's silver from 3 mines, Bunker Hill, Sunshine, and Galena. The mines have been hurt recently by a strike and a recent drop in the price of lead. Earl F. Cook, Dean of the College of Mines, said that the silver boom would probably compensate for the loss in lead plus a little more. He felt that it had received a little more publicity than it deserved from the standpoint of the state's economy.

If the rise in price holds, it will mean a profit of over a million dollars during the next year. Idaho mines are now producing approximately 16 million ounces a year.

Cook said that he doubted the rise in price would result in any startling increases in employment or exploration. It is hard to determine the end results of this because it is not known how much silver from China will be put on the world market. He did feel that a general solidifying of the mining economy would take place.

The fixed price, 91.5 cents an ounce, was too low to pay for sufficient output, according to miners. Idaho mining interests and legislators have been working for the removal of the fixed price for some time.

Now the output may increase slightly since the mines will be able to make a profit from a cheaper grade of ore than formerly. Cook pointed out that the change had been inevitable since the treasury would have run out of silver by next January anyway. Also commercial use of the metal has been rising in the last few years while production has been dropping.

Foreign Students Encounter Campus Difficulty, Says Dean

ED. NOTE — The following article, reprinted from the Nov. 14, issue of the New York Herald-Tribune, points out the plight of foreign students on American university campuses. An editorial in a recent issue of the Argonaut pointed up the same problem. After the Argonaut editorial appeared some students and faculty members denied such a problem exists.)

By The Associated Press KANSAS CITY

More than 50,000 foreign students are studying in this country and there is danger that many of them may become anti-American, a group of educators reported yesterday.

They said the selection of these programs must be drastically overhauled if the United States is to meet "the greatest educational challenge of the age."

The report, five months in preparation, was given to the annual meeting of the American Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities by Dean John McConnell of Cornell University, chairman of the eleven-man study group.

"All evidence points to increasing numbers of foreign students coming to the United States," the report said. "There is mounting evidence that with many of these students we are failing to make and two dollar bills cannot be replaced with reserve notes unless an act of Congress is passed. This the mining industry would probably fight, Cook said, because it would mean the loss of a big customer to the industry; Uncle Sam.

The Treasury Department now uses over $34 million a year in coinage. If the reserve they have now backing the silver certificates were converted to this use it would last for some time. Cook said that the government would almost have to do this: If they dumped this reserve silver on the market all at once rather than using it for coinage a catastrophe would result, Cook said.

The gap between the production and use of silver has been filled by the government selling silver at bargain rates for the last few years. This has hurt the mining industry. Now that the Treasury Department's supply has virtually run out, commercial users of the metal will have to look to the world markets. This will stimulate production somewhat.

The price rise may also eventually raise the retail price of commercial products using silver also. Ending the interview, Cook re-emphasized that the drop in lead price was quite important and that it would minimize the effect of this new silver rise. Very few of the northern mines produce only silver.

Holly Week Confusion

Despite a good deal of confusion, a lack of foresight and a few re-schedulings of dances, the annual Sophomore Holly Dance will be held next weekend, but not on Saturday night as is posted on the Campus Calendar. Instead, it will compete next Friday night with a Vandal basketball game, an ASUI drama production and an Orchesis and Pre-Orchesis Christmas program.

The dance was set for next Saturday night, but no one reserved the Student Union Ballroom for the event. As a result, the faculty was able to reserve the ballroom that night for its Holiday Ball, leaving the Holly Dance without a location.

Complications arose. Because of the Holly Dance, Saturday night was to be a closed night and Friday wasn't. Two house dances thus were scheduled for Friday night, as already had been the basketball game, the play and the Orchesis event.

Despite the other events set for Friday night, the Holly Dance had to be scheduled for that night. Friday night was declared a semi-closed night, and the two living groups with dances that night were given the option of keeping them on Friday night or changing them to Saturday night. Both houses decided to switch to Saturday night, thus slightly relieving Friday's crowded list of events.

Who is to blame for the labyrinthian mixup? It was caused in part by a lack of communication between ASUI and SUB organizational bodies, and the faculty probably knew when the Holly Dance was scheduled and might have set another night for their dance. But the fact remains that nobody had reserved the SUB Ballroom for the student function.

The blame, therefore, probably falls on the sophomore class officers, who could have reserved the ballroom as early as September to prevent another event from being held there. Since the faculty reserved the ballroom about the same time as new sophomore class officers were being elected, the outgoing officers could have saved their successors some trouble by using a little foresight.

But since the problem has been remedied without any serious complications, the situation isn't grave enough to bother trying to pin the blame on anyone. Everyone is more or less satisfied with the result, rearranged as it is.

At least no student will be able to complain that there is nothing to do next Friday night.—N. M.

Dear Jason

Young GOP Leaders Attacked

Dear Jason:

After reading and laughing at the latest collection of drivel concocted by Messrs. Bennett and Woodbury, I can't resist this small roadblock in their path to the outer space of knowledge and reason.

Instead of restricting themselves to problems confronting the University or state, or problems of local and regional interest where a legitimate airing of different views might produce conclusions mutually beneficial, these knights in Goldwater armor, on bull elephants drawn for them by Shaw McCutcheon and with spending money supplied by Robert Welch, continue on their merry dash from the ridiculous to the preposterous, presumably to slay any Harvard dragon that is found straying along the left side of the road.

The United Nations, as a body, cannot agree on what to do with Katanga but this does not phase the partnership (in demagoguery) of E. J. W. An anti-communism, pro-western stand is, perhaps, secondary in the eyes of the world to Tschombe's inability to wash blood off his hands.

Can you imagine little Caroline talking up to her daddy... "Now listen, Pops, you cut out that there communism business in Southeast Asia or I'm going to call Francis and ask for a "you-know-what." What can he say except that "I'm trying, little girl," and then turn to Dr. Spock. Let it also be made clear what Clifford Case, a liberal Republican, has lost in the past decade through "intellectual decay," these shining knights will never, never know.

A stop to this ranting and raving, carried to its loftiest heights by the above named partnership, is long overdue. Perhaps as a start the more enlightened members of the Young Republicans should ask for certain resignations.

Sy Kolman

several conservatives were not there to vote thus lending further strength to the above contention. Secondly, Mr. Tracy was not at the meeting. Mr. Tracy apparently feels that his views are the "responsible" views while all others are against the majority.

The Arg should have noted that only 4 members walked out of the meeting and there were no democratic principles violated. Those who walked out had been allowed discussion time just as had the rest and they were also recalled for a second opportunity to explain their ideas to the group. The "liberals" knew these resolutions were to be considered, because they, themselves, voted to discuss them at this last meeting.

Furthermore, the second vote on the resolutions was not 10-9, but an overwhelming majority vote as was the first vote. The 10-9 split was over the proposal to reconsider the motion of all five resolutions together or separately.

Since the proposal again passed to consider the resolutions in a group, the second vote on passage was still overwhelmingly in favor.

Moreover, the statement attributed to me by Mr. Modie that both sides packed the meeting is out of context. I said that the conservatives asked other conservative YR members to attend but we did not bring in outsiders as the "liberals" have been doing.

The conservative faction has bent over backwards to accommodate the "liberals" in going through these many reconsiderations, yet all I have heard from the "liberals" to date is threats of more packing. I may not like Nelson Rockefeller, but I can still call myself a Republican. But must the "liberals" always have their own way — even when they are a minority?

Sincerely

Privacy Violated

Dear Jason:

A professor on this campus should have the right to a private life without the sniping of a morally righteous student body and administration.

A few days ago, the morals of an Idaho professor were put under question by students who were directly benefiting from his service to them. They arrived at his home or a conference. Without permission they proceeded to examine his personal property and because of this took it upon themselves to question his morals. As a result of talk, the matter was taken to the department of Humanities which has put the professor under what we feel is unwarranted and unfair scrutiny.

This professor who we both feel is one of the best ever to teach here, should have a right to his own time and his own interests away from the classroom, regardless of whether these interests be right or wrong.

This is an academic community in which tolerance of others' ideas and interests should and must be maintained. To consider censure of a professor over so trivial a matter is negligent. To question his rights in the matter is criminal.

ALD Offers Scholarships For Members

Three different fellowships are being offered by Alpha Lambda Delta, National freshmen women's scholastic honorary, for 1962-63 graduate study.

Each fellowship is worth $1,500 and may be used at any college or university where there is an Alpha Lambda Delta chapter. Applications may be obtained from Dean Marjorie Neely's office.

Any member of Alpha Lambda Delta who was graduated in 1959 or 1960 and who maintained a 3.5 scholastic average throughout her college career is eligible. Graduating seniors may apply if they have maintained this average to the end of the first semester of this year.

Offered are the Marie Leonard, the Alice Crocker Lloyd, and the Adele Hagner Stamp Fellowships. Applications must be in by February 15, 1962.

"Primitiv," "Candyland" and other themes will be spotlighted this weekend when members of campus living groups present dances. The Tekes have elected and installed officers, and several housemothers names appear in the news.

JUNGLE WELCOMES MEMBERS
The men of the Sigma Nu Jungle announced this week that a new member, Fulton Girith Gale III, has been admitted.

Tony Bellamy, on leave after graduation from paratroopers' school, has been visiting the brothers.

Guests at the Sigma Nu Thanksgiving dinner were Mrs. Richard Farnsworth, DG housemother; Diane Fawson, Kappa; and Kathy Phillips, McConnell.

GAMMA PHI'S ADOPT
The Gamma Phis have initiated a new tradition. They will have an open house fireside every Friday, Saturday and Sunday evening. Popcorn, conversation, and a fire are the constituents.

SIGMA CHI HONOR
Nancy Yount, Sigma Chi Sweetheart, was honored at a birthday celebration Wednesday evening.

Tuesday night dinner guests were Olay Christensen, off campus, and Gary Creer, Lewiston.

Snowball fights with the Alpha Chis and sledding with the DG's kept the recent snow in good use.

TEKES ELECT
Newly elected officers were installed Monday night. They are Roy Schmidt, president; Frank (Butch) Nelson, vice president; Dick Mastenbrook, treasurer; Roger Gamba, scholarship chairman; Darrel Purcell, secretary; Ike Griner, publications; Dick Williams, sergeant-at-arms; and George Hiram, pledge trainer.

Pledge pins were extended to Tony Gould, Jack Grady, Alan Kjelland, Erik Nordenson, and Robert Plumb.

KAPPAS HAVE VISITORS
Guests present for Thanksgiving dinner included Mrs. Mary Coleman, SAE housemother, who substituted in Mrs. "O's" absence.

Weekend visitors were Judy Olin College of Puget Sound; Margaret Little, ISC; and Barbara Doll, Ogden, Utah.

ESH HAS "CANDYLAND"
A sugar-plum tree, hundreds of stars, and red and white Christmas decorations will supplement the theme of "Candyland" Friday night at Ethel Steel.

Guests during the week were Helen Nortman, Boise; Bill Kibble, C of I; and Bob Giden, Campus Club.

CLUES GIVE WHEREABOUTS
Mrs. Mary Geary, Pi Phi housemother, disappeared last week. A search of the campus turned up many clues which led to the Phi Tau house.

After redeeming her, the Pi Phi honored her at a fireside. Cake, cookies, and punch were served after entertainment was presented.

TRI-DELTA OBSERVES
Idaho Tri-Delts recently observed Founder's Day with the WSU chapter.

Pledges have scheduled the annual Christmas Fireside for this Sunday evening. Dates were serenaded Tuesday and Wednesday evening and taught the secret pledge grip, necessary for all those in attendance to know.

Pledges exchanged with the ATO's Wednesday evening.

CROSSFIRES TO PLAY
Secret preparations are under way for the Theta Pledge Dance, "Primitiv," Friday evening. The Crossfires will provide music.

Members of the "Ranch" and various other Sigma Chis staged a drama Tuesday evening after dress dinner. Sharon Lance was honored as Pansy Girl of the month.

ALPHA CHIS HOST
Recent guests at the Alpha Chi house have been "Ace" McLeod, "Bird" Southcomb, and Dick Seely, off campus, and Dick Monahan, 600 University Ave.

In a recent snowball fight, Mrs. Palmer Soderberg, housemother, received the unmeaning blow of a snowball, and wound up with a black eye.

Steve Batt, Sigma Chi, was the energy behind a well-calculated snowball that added a new ventilation system to the house.

CCC Calls Joint Meeting; Newmans Serve Dinner

UNITARIAN
T. H. Kennedy, of the WSU staff, will speak at 10:30 Sunday morning at the Unitarian Fellowship, 500 Oak St., in Pullman.

Channing Club, the Unitarian student group, will meet at the Junius Morris home in Pullman at 5:30 Sunday afternoon. Dr. Edward Moore, of the Idaho philosophy department, will lead the discussion. All interested students are invited to attend and may call Bruce Andrus at 6351 to arrange transportation.

NEWMAN CLUB
Newman club executive board met Tuesday night prior to Novena. It was decided to require job folders from each elected officer along with a continuous report available to other officers to coordinate activities.

The Bible study group which will meet at 6:40 Tuesday will discuss the first half of the book of Genesis.

After Novena Tuesday, members attending the convention last week will give short summaries of the panels they heard. The meeting will then be open for general dis-ussion on any subject.

Those attending the Northwest Province Convention in Eugene, Oregon, over the Thanksgiving holidays were Tony Schneider, Mike Schwager, Dave Collins, Julian Perez, Joyce Staley, Kurma and Ginger Durfee, and Father Schmidt. Those from Idaho elected to offices for the new District of Montana and Idaho were Kurma Durfee, secretary, Dave Collins, vice chairman in charge of internal affairs, and Tony Schneider, vice chairman in charge of educational aids.

Sunday dinner will be served from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. in the Center at a cost of 50 cents per plate for all you can eat. Everyone is welcome.

JOINT MEETING
There will be a special combined meeting of six student religious groups at the Presbyterian Church Sunday at 6 p.m.

The meeting will bring together Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, Baptist, Christian, and Nazarene students. These groups are involved in the program and facilities at the CCC.

ESQUIRE GIRL
The Esquire Girl is chosen annually by a special board of selection of Esquire Magazine, which reviews pictures featuring the finalists in swimming suits and evening dresses.

Decorations for the dance will be done by the four individual classes. Dress is semi-formal.

ANNOUNCEMENT AT INTERMISSION
Winner of the Esquire Girl contest will be announced at intermission during the ATO dance Saturday evening.

Finalists who were serenaded Nov. 13, include Karen Anderson, Alpha Chi; Bev Arehart, Pi Phi; JoAnne Croy, Gamma Phi; Paula Reinmuth, Alpha Phi; and Bonnie Smith, DG.

AWS Asks Gift Donations For Hospital

The AWS legislature is sponsoring two drives for voluntary Christmas gift donations for the State Hospital North, Orofino.

Students or living groups may give inexpensive gifts of cosmetics, bright scarves and jewelry for the patients, or donate money to an AWS philanthropic fund which will be used to buy more expensive items for the hospital.

AWS passed a resolution for the philanthropic fund at their Wednesday meeting. The institution of the fund stemmed from the lack of AWS finances needed to buy suitable gifts for the hospital.

Anyone interested in donating gifts or taking them to Orofino is urged to call Ladessa Rogers, Kappa Phi, or Donna Tunnicliff, Hays.

"HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY"

I have asked the makers of Marlboro—an enterprising and aggressive group of men; yet at the same time warm and lovable; though not without acumen, perspicacity, and drive; which does not, however, mask their essential great-heartedness; a quality evident to all who have ever enjoyed the beneficence of their wares; I refer, of course, to Marlboro Cigarettes, a smoke fashioned with such loving care and tipped with such an easy-drawing filter that these old eyes grow misty when I think upon it—I have asked, I say, the makers of Marlboro—that aggregate of shrewd but kindly tobaccoists, that cluster of hearty souls bound together by the profit motive, and an unflagging determination to provide a cigarette forever flavorful and eternally pleasing—I have asked, I say, the makers of Marlboro whether I might use today's column to take up the controversial question: Should a coed share expenses on a date?

"Yes," said the makers simply. "We all shook hands then and squinted at each other's shoulders and exchanged brave smiles, and if our eyes were a trifle moist, who can blame us?"

To the topic then: Should a coed share expenses on a date? I think I can best answer the question by citing the following typical case:

Poseidon Nebenzal, a student at Oklahoma A and M, majoring in hides and tallow, fell wildly in love with Mary Ellen Flange, a flax weevil major at the same school. His love, he had reason to believe from Mary Ellen's sidelong glances and maidenly blushes, was not entirely unrequited, and by and by he mustered up enough courage to ask her the all-important question: "Will you wear my 4-H pin?"

"Yes," she said simply. They shook hands then and squeezed each other's shoulders and exchanged brave smiles, and if their eyes were a trifle moist, who can blame them?

For a time things went swimmingly. Then a cloud appeared. Mary Ellen, it seems, was a rich girl and accustomed to costly pleasures. Poseidon was bone-poor and he quickly ran out of money. Unable to take Mary Ellen to the posh places she fancied and too proud to tell her the reason, he turned surly and full of melancholy. Soon their romance, so promising at the beginning, was headed for a breakup. But at the last moment, Poseidon managed to blurt out the truth.

"Oh, beloved agrarian!" cried Mary Ellen, grasping him close. "Oh, proud husbandman! Oh, foolish reaper! Why have you not told me before? I have plenty of money, and I will contribute according to my ability."

Poseidon, of course, protested, but she finally persuaded him of the wisdom of her course. From then on they split all expenses according to their incomes. Rather than embarrass Poseidon by handing him money in public, a joint bank account was set up to allow him to write checks. Into this account each week they faithfully deposited their respective allowances—35 cents from Poseidon; $2300 from Mary Ellen.

And it worked fine! They were happy—truly happy! And what's more, when they graduated they had a nice little nest egg—eight million dollars—with which to furnish a lovely apartment in Lubbock, Texas, where today they operate the local laundromat.

So you see? You too can salvage your failing romance if you will only adopt a healthy, sensible attitude toward money.

Conflicting SUB-ASUI Events May Be Coordinated By E. Board

By JIM METCALF
Arg Political Editor

A plan which would bring the activities of the ASUI and the Student Union committee under one activity council has been submitted to the Executive Board. The Board will take action upon the plan within a few weeks.

Reasons for the proposed change were summed up by Charles Decker, Dean of Men, who said, "Everything that both groups are doing is pointed towards the same objectives." Both the ASUI and the Student Union have been sponsoring programs designed to add to the cultural and educational background and to provide campus-wide entertainment.

At present there is a duplication of operational functions which could be eliminated with the institution of a single activities council. ASUI veep Dick Stiles said this council would take over the duties of the present SUB program council, the board of selection and control, and the Student Directors Assembly. These would be combined into one large operation headed by the vice president of the student body.

All student activities have been tentatively grouped into six areas. Included in the grouping will be the traditional ASUI activities such as Homecoming and Dad's Day, the SUB programs such as Jazz in the Bucket, films, and the various class activities. A student director will be appointed by the Executive Board to direct each area. Each will choose his committee chairmen who will in turn choose its committee members.

The activities council will include these five student directors, the ASUI veep, and the class presidents. The SUB Program Director and a faculty member by presidential appointment will act as advisors. The council's duties will be to develop programs for total campus life, to review and evaluate present programs, to make up budgets for each committee to be approved by Executive Board, to coordinate and implement programs, and to select committee chairmen.

Some Problems
Some problems have developed which will take some work to solve. The financial budgets of both the ASUI and SUB will have to be combined with all the programs coming from one fund. This will eliminate the duplication now made in the bookkeeping department.

Mrs. Charmaine Fitzgerald, SUB program director, said in a meeting yesterday morning that this new organization would offer more opportunity for good student leaders to serve their school during their senior year.

This would also relieve the Executive Board of some of its problems. However, the ultimate responsibility will remain with the board.

These changes according to ASUI President Jim Mullen, would be helpful as the Student Union and the student body grows; the job will be too big to handle by one general manager, he said.

In a report to the Executive Board Dean Decker said, "Most of the ASUI-sponsored events have some connection with the Student Union facilities. The ASUI Executive Board, being an over-all student board, is definitely interested in the kinds of programs being sponsored by the Student Union Program."

"I would like to recommend a restructuring and redefinition of responsibilities of the presently named Student Union Board," he added. "The change would separate program planning and operation from over-all management and operation of the building."

The change will not involve a constitutional change but will merely entail changes of an administrative nature. Some changes in ASUI regulations will be made.

Stiles also pointed out one other example of how the new organization would eliminate problems. He said that the recent conflict with the Holly Week dance and all-faculty dance would have been avoided had there been coordination between the Student Union and the Calendar committee.

Proposed Science Building—Vision Of The Future

University Prefers That Greeks Own Their Buildings, Grounds

The University of Idaho prefers that Greek living groups own their own buildings and grounds rather than rent from the University, Kenneth A. Dick, financial vice president, said yesterday.

The rumor that the University is trying to buy up old fraternity and sorority property to get control of it, and then lease it is untrue, Dick said.

"We prefer not to have the responsibility of the property," he said. "We believe that one purpose of a Greek living group is to help the members be self-sufficient. Owning and running their own house is one aspect of becoming self-sufficient."

The reason the University usually buys or offers to buy an old fraternity or sorority house is to help the living group build a larger house, Dick said.

"The University considers the Greek living groups part of the campus housing program," he said. "We try to assure them that they will have a buyer for their house, when they decide to build."

Dick named several instances when the University either bought the property outright or assured the living group that a buyer was available. Moves by the Sigma Chi, Pi Beta Phi, and Alpha Chi were Dick's examples.

"The University had a contract with the Alpha Chi to buy their old house on Severt St., when the Theta Chi said they would like to buy the house," Dick said.

"We told the Theta Chi that we couldn't violate our contract, but that it was all right with the University if they wanted to deal directly with the Alpha Chi."

"We were happy that the Alpha Chi and Theta Chi were able to work out an agreement," Dick said.

Lack Of Housing Prevents Idaho's Bidding For MUN

Dave Tracy, Idaho Model United Nations chairman, announced yesterday that the University of Idaho delegation will not bid for the 1964 MUN convention site due to a shortage of housing facilities on the campus.

The Operations Council would not approve University housing as requested.

According to Tracy, over 1,500 delegates would attend the MUN conference if it were held at Idaho. At present 100 schools and 1,300 persons are signed up for the 1962 session at San Diego, he said.

Tracy petitioned the council several weeks ago to have the convention at Idaho, and asked for University housing.

The council voted unanimously not to approve any plan to house delegates in University housing, according to ASUI General Manager Gale Mix, who presented the request for Tracy.

Executive Board Member, Jim Okeson, who investigated the matter for the board, said in a special report that there were only 400 spaces in hotels and motels in this area.

At Least Seven
Tracy told an Argonaut reporter that at least seven delegates were needed from each participating school to make the three and one-half day session a success.

"Four hundred persons is definitely not enough," he said. "To allow only that many would defeat the MUN purpose. There is no use having a MUN convention unless we can make room for between 1000 and 1,500 persons."

Okeson said in his report that the council would probably okay a proposal to hold a convention with 400 delegates.

Tracy said that he had planned to invite the MUN delegations at this year's meeting. Invitations must be extended two years in advance, he added. "Idaho had a good chance of getting the convention," Tracy commented.

Each year the convention spot is rotated among the four MUN districts. In 1964 the convention must be held in the Northwest area according to Tracy.

In refusing the request, the Operations Council said that with increased enrollment there would be no University vacancies for delegates. The council also said that it does not feel that students who live in dormitories would want other students in their rooms while they are away on vacation.

The conference would be held during Idaho's spring vacation.

According to a statement issued by Mix, the fraternities and sororities that were contacted seemed to have the same feeling.

When asked if he would like to petition again, Tracy replied: "I would love to try again, but what can you do? It is killed as far as I'm concerned."

Tracy cited the publicity that the University would receive and the money that the delegates would spend in the Moscow area as advantages for holding the convention here.

According to Tracy, the delegations pay $35 per person for room and board. The total income from 1,000 delegates is around $31,000.

In addition, each delegate spends some of his own money, Tracy said.

Included in the budget estimate is $8,600 for meals, $6,650 for operating expenses, $1,500 for physical facilities, $900 for housing, and $8,150 for miscellaneous expenses.

Home Economics Dining Room Displays Alfred Dunn Pictures

By JOY HENSLEY
Argonaut Contributor
The latest addition to the Home

Economics Building is now being displayed in the dining room on first floor. Beautiful, inspiring and creative, this addition adds much to the room and the entire building.

First, a little background. Everyone has heard of the Alumni fund but many do not know exactly what purpose it serves. The new accoutrement of the Home Economics Building is an example of what happens to the gifts that various alumni send back for the benefit of their departments.

With gifts from home economics graduates, the committee chosen by the faculty purchased two water colors done by Alfred Dunn of Idaho's Art department. These were chosen from a group of 20 shown by Mr. Dunn for their fresh quality and their true depiction of the mood of Idaho scenery. One is a view from near McCall, Idaho, and the other depicts a scene at Redfish Lake near Sun Valley.

Anyone who is from those areas and gets homesick, or anyone who is just interested in viewing exceptional art work is welcome to come and see these pictures.

Interlibrary Cooperation Is Approved

Inter-Library cooperation between the University of Idaho and Washington State University has received formal approval of regents of both institutions, it was announced today in a joint statement.

Administrative officials of both schools were encouraged to continue and expand interlibrary "togetherness" which in effect provides two large libraries for use of students and faculty of each institution.

Directing the programs are Lee Zimmerman, University of Idaho Librarian, and G. Donald Smith, WSU Director of Libraries.

The faculty and students of both institutions, just nine miles apart, have free use of both libraries. The additional available material is an adjunct to study, teaching and research.

Starting with joint staff meetings to discuss mutual problems in 1947, the two schools have had an active program of library cooperation which has saved considerable money for each state.

"Although both schools must have the basic collections for instruction in all fields, duplicate purchases of expensive library resources are avoided whenever possible," said Zimmerman.

Purchases
When big purchases are contemplated, such as back files of journals, expensive reference and bibliographic sets, each library checks with the other on holdings and the intent of the other institution. The decision to purchase or not is then made by the librarian.

As an example, WSU acquired the microfilms of English Books, 1475-1600, while Idaho is subscribing to the Microprint edition of Early American Imprints, 1639-1800.

A cooperative agreement on the maintenance of local newspaper files was reached in 1950-51. Under this agreement, the University of Idaho Library assumes the responsibility of maintaining files of the Idaho papers and WSU assumes maintenance for those of Eastern

'Bumbleheaded Jock' Myth Blasted By Former Player

By Dwight Chapin
Former Arg. Editor

The popular conception of the college athlete is that of a tall, large and jolly bumblehead who gets through college only through the good graces of professors and the persistent urging of his coaches.

But a tall, large and jolly young man who is anything but a bumblehead spoke out a couple of days ago to effectively blast that conception.

He is Jim Branom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Branom of Tammany, and a man who was involved in athletics most of his growing up years — first as a basketball center at Lewiston High School and later in the same capacity at the University of Idaho.

Branom no longer plays competitive basketball, but he still burns when people talk about the less-than-outstanding skills of the athlete in the classroom.

He sprawled his 6-7 frame over a chair at the University of Idaho's Student Union Building recently, dipped into a piece of coconut cream pie, and began talking, slowly and purposely.

"I got to thinking about that freshman basketball team we had in 1955," he said. "Off hand, I'd say they've done pretty good."

Pretty good is this. Of the first 12 men on the team, eight have master's degrees or are working on them.

Four are teachers and coaches and three others are continuing their education. And two who don't have master's degrees are doing well in private business.

The team's leading scorer that year, Jack Mitchell, is an insurance salesman at Coeur d'Alene. Mitchell started at forward along with Branom, who is working toward a master's degree in agricultural engineering.

The starting guards were Gary Simmons and Jerry Jorgenson. Simmons, who later went on to become perhaps Idaho's finest player ever, is working toward an advanced degree in dentistry at the University of Southern California. Jorgenson, who has a master's in physical education, is head basketball coach at Caldwell High School.

Starting center Bob Gould, who left Idaho after his freshman year, obtained a master's degree in Mississippi, and is currently teaching and coaching at Kimberly, Idaho, High School.

A reserve guard, Billy Wilson, is employed by an engineering firm in the Portland area and another reserve guard, Brent Thomson, is working on a master's degree in chemical engineering here at Idaho.

Gary Sather, a guard, has a master's degree and is coaching at Maupin, Ore. Forward Bob Prestel obtained a master's degree in mathematics and coached for a time at Genesee High School. He is now a lieutenant in the Army at Ft. Meade, Md.

A reserve center, Mark Cole, is farming at Grangeville.

Another member of the team, Gary McEwan, who later played standout ball at center for the Idaho varsity, laid out in 1954-55, but graduated with that entering class. He is working on a master's degree in educational administration at Idaho.

"Some people might get the idea that we didn't play good basketball because we were studying so much," Branom said as he finished his coconut pie. "But that wasn't quite right."

The Vandal frosh team of 1954-55, in addition to turning out scholars and serving to blast a myth, also won 12 of 14 games.

WINNING TICKET — Moscow barber Bud Binkley has standing room only when Idaho football players come to collect their free haircuts after posting a 16-14 victory over Montana. Binkley promised a haircut to players for each win of the season. James Decko is in the chair. Waiting their turn are varsity players Ron Kulm (left), Michael Jordan, and Gary Gagnon.

This Weekend Hendon-Douglas Try For National Championship

This week-end, Idaho's Paul Hendon and Dick Douglas will be going after the Canadian National Cross-country Championship in Vancouver, British Columbia. The Idaho pair are co-favorites with two runners from Canada.

Bruce Kidd, from Toronto, is the fastest junior age runner. Kidd ran the two-mile in 8:48 and won the United States National AAU Championship. The other favorite from Canada is Doug Kyle from Alberta.

The race this week-end will be a 10,000 meter race or 6 and 3/4 miles. The winner of this race will automatically qualify for the New Year's Eve Race in Sao Paolo, Brazil.

Idaho's season this year has been considered a successful season by Coach Bill Sorsby. Sorsby says that the team this year compares favorably with the 1959 Harrier team. In 1959, Idaho Harriers won the West Coast Championship in a combined total time for the five man team on a 4.2 mile course of 1 hour 46:03.2. The 1961 Champs of the West Coast, again from Idaho, ran the course last Saturday in 1 hour 46:03.6.

Vandal Hoopsters Are On Television

Watch for the Vandals on KHQ-TV news tonight!

The basketball team took a few minutes out from their usual toil last night to have a brief drill filmed by the Radio-TV department.

The films will be shown with a news story in preparation for the Vandals' opener against the Whitworth Pirates tonight.

WRA V-Ball Finals Near

In last night's Women's Recreation Association house volleyball competition, the action looked something like this: The Kappas defeated Forney, the Thetas won over the Alpha Chis, Alpha Gamma Delta defeated McConnell, the Alpha Phis took one from the Pi Phis, and in a second game, Forney defeated the Alpha Chis.

Double badminton will start tomorrow. All participants are requested to be at the Women's Gym at 1 p.m.

Co-recreational volleyball, played with both men and women, has been a big item in the intramural schedule.

Volleyball Nears End; Leagues Tighten Up

By Rod Higgins
Arg. Asst. Sports Editor

As the race for the volleyball championship runs down to the wire, the respective leagues begin to tighten up. In League I, the ATO's have command with a 6-0 record, followed very closely by the Betas with a 5-1 count.

League II finds last year's Greek Champions, the Deltas on top with a 7-1 slate, with the Fijis close behind sporting a 6-1 record.

Leagues III and IV find Upham Hall and Upham Hall 2 on top, both with 6-0 records. It looks like a repeat for Upham in the Independent race, and possibly for the Campus Championship.

League I action for November 27 looked like this: The Betas took an easy one from Farmhouse by a forfeit. The Phi Deltas fell before the Sigma Nus, 15-13, 15-13.

The ATO's took two from the Phi Taus, 15-11, 15-8. Theta Chi gave the Kappa Sigs a start but couldn't maintain the pace as they went down, 15-12, 11-15, 16-14.

Nov. 29 action took this form: The ATO's showed their winning style by taking the Lambda Chis, 6-15, 15-5, 15-5. The Kappa Sigs put away the Phi Deltas rather handily, 15-9, 15-5.

Beta Theta Pi stayed right up in second by knocking off the Sigma Nus, 15-12, 15-10. Farmhouse and Theta Chi met to decide if the cellar was to be a two way affair their chess set? Wire Paladin, San 15-9, 15-12.

League II play for the 27th went something like this: LDS forfeited to the Delta Sigs. The Tekes defeated the Sigma Chis, 15-5, 8-15, 15-11. The Dells kept right on winning, knocking off the SAE's, 15-10, 12-15, 15-4. The Fijis literally shut out the Delta Chis, 15-0, 15-2.

LDS forfeited

Nov. 29; the Dells over LDS, forfeit. The Fijis knocked the Tekes out of a second place tie, 16-14, 15-13. The SAE's took the Delta Chis, 15-9, 11-15, 15-7. The Sigma Chis knocked off the Delta Sigs, 13-15, 15-13, 15-6.

League III action for the 27th.

PE 55 Offered In Night Class

A body mechanics course for women, P.E. 55, is being offered at the Women's Gymnasium. The course, running eight weeks, started at 7:30 last night.

Sponsored by the division of adult education, the non-credit course is taught one evening a week by Linda Polite, instructor of physical education. Prospective registrants can contact her at 6273 or TU 2-5741. The registration fee is $10.

The course is designed to develop physical efficiency and poise through contemporary dance instruction, postural exercise training and participation in various recreational sports areas.

S. Claus To Visit Students Children

Children of married students will be able to visit with Santa Claus at the annual Christmas Party for them at the SUB, Dec. 10.

The party will be held in one of the ballrooms at 2:30 p.m. Married students are asked to call the ASU office if their children plan to come.

PHONY ID

Anyone interested in purchasing a phony identification card is asked to meet with Darren Good at their earliest convenience.

Clever Way To Publicize Dance

The football season is over and many students have become alarmed to see an effigy hanging from a tree along Hello Walk.

No, it's not another Stabley effigy. It's just a stuffed dummy representing a pirate for the Delta Chi Pirate Dance Saturday night.

A real clever attention-getter!

Vandals Open Season With Pirates, Bulldogs

By Herb Hollinger
Arg. Sports Editor

Two seniors, two juniors, and one sophomore will start for the Idaho Vandals tonight when they tangle in the season basketball opener with the Whitworth College Pirates in Memorial Gym at 8. Saturday night in Memorial Gym the Vandals will test the Bulldogs of Gonzaga University.

Senior center and captain, Ken Maren, will lead the Idaho quintet composed of forwards Chuck White, junior letterman, and Tom Whitfield, sophomore. Starting at guards will be Rich Porter, junior letterman, and Gary Floan, senior letterman.

Others who Coach Joe Cipriano says will see a lot of action are former football star, Reg Carolan, who just turned out for basketball this week after hanging up his college grid suit for good; Jim Scheel, a sophomore who has a knee injury that has been plaguing him but still has looked good in practice; and Lyle Parks, junior letterman who might possibly start at one of the guard positions.

"We have a chance to use more ball players in the opening game this year than last," Coach Cipriano said, indicating that his reserve strength is good and available.

This strength is found in Bill Mattis, Fred Crowell, John Penney, and a returning junior from last year's squad, Tom Gwilliam.

The Vandals will open the season against the team that last year won the Evergreen Conference championship with a 17-win 9-loss record. They will have three starters back from the team. They play a ball control-type offense.

Gonzaga Saturday

Saturday night the Gonzaga University Bulldogs invade Memorial Gym bringing with them a highly respected squad but without the services of Frank Burgess, national scoring champ last year. The Bulldogs use more of a breaking offense, somewhat like the Vandals have used.

"The spirit is good and there is a lot of hustling on defense," remarked Cipriano in respect to the opening game tonight.

Asked if the Vandals will employ the fast break against Whitworth, Cipriano replied: "I hope that we can control our fast break to the point where we're not using it all the time."

Idaho plays a 24-game schedule, counting the Far West Classic in Portland Dec. 27-30. The Vandals will have a psychological advantage this year over last, however, as they play 12 of these games in Memorial Gym as against 10 last year. Idaho's next opponent after this weekend will be Montana State College Friday night here, and then on Saturday, Seattle University at Seattle.

The Chieftains from Seattle U. are ranked 10th in the nation by the country's sports writers.

12 Meets Set For Swimmers

Idaho's swimmers will compete in 12 meets this year starting with tomorrow's Far Western Relays at Eugene, Oregon. The following is the complete schedule for the firmen.

Dec. 2, Far Western Relays—Eugene, Oregon;

Dec. 9, Washington State University—Pullman;

Jan. 12, Western Washington College of Education—Bellingham, Wash.;

Jan. 12, Central Washington—Ellensburg, Wash.;

Jan. 19, Eastern Washington College—Moscow;

Jan. 20, University of Alberta—Moscow;

Feb. 9, Oregon State University—Moscow;

Feb. 10, University of Oregon—Moscow;

Feb. 16, University of Washington—Seattle, Wash.;

Feb. 17, Eastern Washington College—Cheney, Wash.;

Feb. 24, Washington State University—Moscow;

Mar. 1, 2, 3, Far Western Championships—Pullman, Wash.

There are still a few faculty season tickets left for both series "A" and "B" according to Tom Hartley, ticket manager.

Yesterday was the deadline for faculty tickets on "Will Call." Those not picked up are to be released for sale.

According to Hartley, there are several single seats in good locations left.

A season series ticket for faculty costs $7.50. Students are admitted free on their student card. A portion of the students' registration fees pays for their ticket.

In The Spotlight by Herb Hollinger

It seems as though in athletics there are always a lot of pre-season predictions before the season ever begins. Sometimes these predictions are as far off base as can be, and other times they come pretty close to describing the season effort.

And so it goes in basketball. I suppose Coach Joe Cipriano is tired of hearing how well his Vandals are going to do this year, since it seems to be the consensus that they will have one of their better seasons. There are real good reasons why everyone seems to feel this way, too. Cipriano has back almost all of last year's good squad, even though he did lose Dale James. He has back Ken Maren, a stalwart on three Idaho varsity squads, who no doubt will again turn in a fine season.

Maren is hardly noticed in a ball game because he is so busy pulling down rebounds that all the dead-eye shooters grab the spotlight. This rebounding in itself is of major importance and Maren does a whale of a job. But, if "Moose" has one fault on the floor it is that he doesn't shoot enough. Sound astonishing? It is because Maren is a better-than-average point man—if he would shoot more. Not that he should shoot every time that he gets the ball, but several times in a ball game he has open shots around the key hole and passes off. This year Cipriano has been working with him to shoot when he has that chance. Especially when a guy around six foot is guarding the "Moose," then this is the time when Cipriano wants him to "pluck" it in. Why?—Maren is 6'7".

Maren, Rich Porter, Chuck White, Tom Whitfield and Gary Floan are going to start tonight. Potentially, there are four double figure scorers starting, and possibly Maren. White has looked real good at times in practice and give him a hot night—he will score 25-30 points. Porter, of course, can also score and will.

Floan will be fighting to keep his starting position, since Lyle Parks will be right behind him if he falters. Whitfield, a sophomore, has to be good or he wouldn't be starting, but being a sophomore he won't have the experience and may make mistakes. However, by the middle of the season he will probably have the needed play and confidence.

If it's reserve strength you're worried about, you can rest a little easier. With Reg Carolan rounding in shape, he'll see a lot of action; Jim Scheel, a sophomore, looked good in practice but is nursing a knee injury. Bill Mattis, Fred Crowell, and John Penney need some experience. However, they are sophomores and will no doubt see a lot of action later, maybe this season. Tom Gwilliam will add good reserve strength for Vandals, also.

The ingredients are there for a real successful season but the real key to such a season is the coach. This can be "bloody" well proven by the many coaches over the country who were supposed to have the stock but couldn't produce expected results.

Personally, I feel that Idaho is very fortunate in having Joe Cipriano. Here's hoping that Idaho can keep him.

Wondering what the frosh basketball squad will look like? This is the $64 question right now and you can't really tell how they will look. They haven't played together before this year and it might take a while to get onto the type of ball played here. Tonight, when they clash with Whitworth J. V.s., and tomorrow night against the North Idaho Junior College, will probably give some indication as to the future. Be there about 5:30 p.m. both nights and see for yourself.

Track Team's Turnout Good

The first meeting of the track team was held Tuesday with 65 men turning out. For the first meeting this was a good draw but coach Sorsby expects close to 85 men to turn out. Forty of the men at the meeting Tuesday were freshmen and Sorsby expects about ten more to turn out later. The Varsity team should have about 35 members.

Official workouts for track won't begin until Jan. 4, but quite a few of the men are already working out. The first meet is expected to be some time early in the second semester.

Coach Sorsby said that this year's team should be strong in the running events, shot put and discus, and could pull a few surprises in the broad jump. The javelin, pole vault, and high jump look to be the main weaknesses of the team at this point.

The team cannot be accurately judged at this point but all signs show the making of a good team, said Sorsby.
