Student Judicial Council Another SRA?

Shades of the Student Representative Assembly. It hasn't even been born yet and it looks as if there is a very good possibility that the new Student Judicial Council will fall into that same category of vain ASUI projects as the Student Representative Assembly.

Why? Because the Executive Board is living up to its reputation by refusing in any way, shape or form to relinquish any of the precious powers delegated to them by the ASUI constitution.

Last week at the meeting of the Executive Board it was moved and passed that the "Executive Board should have final approval over decisions made on cases under items A, B, C, and Item I under jurisdiction." Items A, B, C, and Item I include all questions arising out of the ASUI constitution and other major judicial disputes arising in student government.

So now not only does the Executive Board have final approval of any decisions that the new council may make, but it also has been previously passed that the cases of this nature shall be referred to the Council by the ASUI president.

It may also be noted that the Executive Board must unanimously approve the appointments the ASUI president will make to the Council.

It ultimately results in the Executive Board saying who shall be on the Student Judicial Council, what issues they shall consider, and whether or not any decisions they may make are valid or correct.

The question then comes logically to mind-why even have a Judicial Council if they are so restricted . . . why not let the Executive Board take care of such matters? It is true that the council will be given other matters to consider by the Office of Student Affairs. Dean of Men Charles Decker said yesterday morning: "I intend to use this," in reference to the council. Naturally, he pointed out, that it was in the experimental stage and that it would take some time to determine what cases it could handle and what ones would have to be handled by the existing disciplinary

But he does intend to use the council and seems to have faith in it becoming a valuable entity within student government.

The Executive Board from all appearances doesn't. During the Executive Board meeting at which the proposal under discussion was passed, member Fred Warren said that if the Board didn't have final approval over the power to change the constitution and council's decisions it would have the student government.

Now perhaps all the political science texts are wrong, but this seems to have always been the job of the judiciary bodies in governments . . . to interpret the laws for the benefit of the people. As much care as is seemingly being taken to select a council composed of qualified students, it seems that they should be granted some power or in actuality at least some reason for existence rather than being just another committee to make reports to the Executive Board for them to consider, which will take more time and prevent them from achieving any long-range goals in student government because they are so busy attending to daily busi-

The Executive Board, it seems, has two choices in this matter: to rescind some of the handicapping restrictions imposed upon the council and let someone else have a little of the power; or to perform an abortion now and kill the council before it is born deformed—only to live the life of another SRA and die young, having lived only to serve as a political issue for a couple of elections and then be submitted to a mercy killing by another power-hungry Executive

Progress can be a terrible thing. In order to keep up with the rest of this complex world, various ASUI organizations have felt from time to time that their names just aren't as modern and complex as the names they see elsewhere. So they change

Take the Student-Faculty Retreat, for example. President D. R. Theophilus, speaking at that conference last weekend. felt the retreat might be called by a more appropriate name. Said he: "Where are you retreating from? You aren't retreating; this is a positive action of review."

Nobody denies it. But "retreat" doesn't necessarily denote a regression. In this case, the word means what the American College Dictionary, to quote one source, says it can mean: "a place of refuge, seclusion or privacy." Nobody really interprets it as a negative action, and it doesn't seem to me to be worth the trouble to replace it with some unfamiliar, more highfalutin' title.

But the fear that someone might think the retreat's purpose is to set the University back ten years has frightened some people. Executive Board Tuesday night had moved to recommend the name be changed to something else—anything else; E-Board had no idea of what new name to call it but it wanted it changed. However, someone thought that maybe the motion should be defeated just in case they couldn't think up a new name, so it was.

The retreat topic alone isn't that important, but there are so many other examples. There has been talk of changing the name of the Student Union Building, for instance. "SUB" is easily pronounced, easily remembered, immediately identifiable and probably the most familiar piece of jargon on the campus. Washington State's Compton Union Building is called the "CUB," and the University of Washington's Husky Union Building is called the "HUB." They're familiar.

But some people feel the name doesn't adequately and speifically tell each of the building's functions. And some others even fear (honest) that the word "union" in the name gives it a connection with labor organizations.

What if "SUB" doesn't have a ring of far-out originality? It seems that every campus has an "administration building:" good taste be followed in the now. This degradation, I feel, what's it hurt if a few others also have a "SUB"? We could call it the "Associated Students of the University of Idaho Managerial, Governmental, Recreational, Social and Refreshmental Coordination Center," but who'd want to go down to the ASUIMGRSRCC for a cup of coffee?

Too many names must be changed to ones with a suggestion of more pomp and importance. Mysteriousness apparently denotes complexity, and complexity denotes importance. Hence Student Recruitment is now Admissions Counseling; Citizenship Clearing House is now the Idaho Center for Education in Politics, and so on.

And don't call that place the Arboretum; it's the Center for Nocturnal Social Experimentation.

This resolution was modified from the original version which urged that water fights should be banned. The office of Student Affairs disapproved of such a resolution because they said they did not want spontaneity destroyed. Grade Point For Queens

In other action, AWS passed a resolution requiring all women's living groups to nominate girls with a minimum 2.2 accumulative average for queen contests.

This resolution only applies to those girls nominated by women's living groups. However, Miss Dalton said "that the only queen contest that this rule would not be applicable to is the Gault Hall Sno Ball Queen contest. All other contests ask that the candidates be nominated from within the living group, and we feel that the precedent that will be set up by other living groups will be carried through here." The grades of entering freshmen and new students will be based on their first nine weeks average. For contests earlier than nine weeks, Miss Moore said, "On out what the frosh averages are, we feel it is us to the living group to make sure that the grades of queen contestants are high.

Service Fraternity To Hold Meeting, Seeking Members Alpha Phi Omega, national Also included on this year

men's service fraternity, will hold Also included on this year's interested in pledging in the Student Union Building.

Alpha Phi Omega is the world's largest fraternity, with the national offices in Kansas City.

The local chapter, Gamma Nu, was formed on the Idaho campus in 1949, but was deactivated in 1956 because there weren't enough activities for the existing service organizations.

National Executive Secretary Joseph Scanlon reactivated this chapter last May, because there are enough activities for another service honorary.

The fraternity's objectives are to serve the campus, state and nation in any way possible. This year they will perform various work projects, among which will be operation of the on-campus ski lift behind Neale stadium, with the supervision of Buildings and Grounds Dept.

Foreign Student Program

They will also sponsor such programs as the Foreign Student Program, on which they are currently working in conjunction with Bill Bowes and the ASUI. Next year the organization expects to run the program by itself.

Other activities are being planned, for service possibilities on campus are practically unlimited.

Alpha Phi Omega is open to any man who desires to work and serve. There are no restrictions as to year in school, nor is a high grade point or great list of activities required, although the fraternity is selective.

"All we want is interested people who are willing to work," said Bob McFarland, president.

Other officers are Jim Judd, tary; Gregg Holt, activities chairman; Bob Cameron, alumni sec-Activities Advisor.

READ THE WANT ADS!

A midwestern college audience recently heard this answer in a talk by A.T.&T. Board Chairman, Frederick R. Kappel

"To us this is an important question because we hire nearly 3000 college graduates yearly. To get an answer we went to our own files and examined the records of nearly 17,000 people. We checked each man's comparative success against what he achieved in college.

"As a group, the scholars won handily. Of the men who stood among the top third in salary for their level of experience, more than half were also in the top third of their college class. Only a quarter were in the bottom third.

"And contrary to age-old beliefs, extracurricular activities proved a lesser indicator unless the individual had an outstanding achievement. Mere 'joining' was not enough.

"The study indicates, at least as far as the Bell System gues, that there's little opportunity for college students who practice 'diplomaship'-the belief that a diploma automatically leads to job success. Such thinking will not make telephone service what we know it can be. MO

"The men we want are men with intelligence plus those other attributes that give you the feel, the sense that they will make things move and move well—men who want to excel and are determined to work at it.

"Nothing short of excellence will do." FREDERICK R. KAPPEL, Chairman of the Board American Telephone and Telegraph Company

Larry McBride's SportShop

Idaho's game with San Jose State tomorrow could be the most important contest the Vandals will play all eason. At least SportShop feels this way.

We think that the Vandals need this one for morale if nothing else. Coach Dee Andros' team lost a bad one last week to Montana—a game that they were rated to win. A win over San Jose would help to regain some of Idaho's prestige, an attribute that Idaho seldom pos-

Another loss could raise the "here we go again" crv. Idaho students have thus far backed the Vandals real well, but the loss to Montana caused some to begin to lose their spirit. Another defeat could destroy it. Basketball season is just around the corner, and the expression "wait till basketball," coupled with an attempt to write off the football team, has been prevalent in the past. Another loss could revive it.

We believe that the Vandals need a win to brace themselves for the rest of their progressively difficult chedule. Another defeat could get the players so down" that they could never really regain their spirits.

Don't get us wrong. We feel that the club's spirit and attitude has been, to say the least, tremendous. The Vandals seem to be holding their heads high for the first time in several years. However, they will have to keep their spirit as high, if not higher, with teams such as Arizona, Oregon State, and Washington State coming up.

We feel that an Idaho win could greatly aid football ecruitment in the California area. The state of California probably produces more quality football players than any state in the West. With the requirements for admittance to the "big" California schools as high as beating the Fijis 6-0. Sigma Chi, they are, many athletes go elsewhere, in particular to the Northwest. A loss to the Spartans in their own terthe Phi Delts, bounced back to ritory won't build up Idaho's name. It won't impress many potential college football players either.

We feel that the Vandals are about due to eliminate their fumbles and mental errors, play top ball for four quarters, and give someone a beating. SportShop hopes that it happens tomorrow.
