Univ. TV To Broadcast New Program

Campus television sets must be adjusted to receive the new University closed circuit television "channel seven," Clif Eldred, chairman of the ASUI Educational Improvement Committee, stressed vesterday in reminding students of the halfhour broadcast "Probe" over the network Wednesday at 7:30

The broadcast will be a 10 minute talk on the Cuban situation by Fred Winkler, professor of history and political science, and a twenty minute discussion by a panel of three students. The program, sponsored by the Educational Improvement Committee of the ASUI Executive Board, will be the debut broadcast of a proposed weekly series dealing with current topics. Eldred said.

Student members of the panel will be Joan Walker, Dave Tracy and Harold Schillreff.

An Argument is Tragically Disproved

The main reason why University of Idaho students have classes the day after Thanksgiving was put to its annual test last weekend and it failed.

Although there are other reasons for its doing so, the University began scheduling classes after Thanksgiving a few years ago to keep students from traveling icy highways to spend a 41/2-day weekend at home. The Friday classes would keep students in Moscow, safe from auto accidents, it was

This year it didn't; a coed was killed and two students injured in one auto accident Thursday, and two more were hurt in another.

Idaho students think wistfully of their Washington State University counterparts, who are released from classes Wednesday noon, the same as Idaho students used to be. But a high percentage of U of I students go home, too, preferring to risk the usually negligible consequences of skipping Friday

There Are Classes But No Students

Forty-nine out of 80 students showed up in one of my Friday classes. In another I heard about, about 25 out of 80 came, and in still another, 20 out of 40. Probably no class had perfect

Students who travel as far as Boise have to skip Friday classes because of the great distance. And the rule designed to keep students off the highways can actually cause students living fairly close to Moscow to travel twice as much as they would without the rule.

Students living in Lewiston or Orofino, for example, live close enough (30 to 75 miles) to Moscow to go home for Thanksgiving and return for Friday classes. But because they want to spend the holiday weekend with their families, many of them drive home again after Friday's classes are out. Thus the Friday classes cause them to make the trip home twice instead of once.

College Bowl But as I said, icy late-autumn roads aren't the only reason why the University ended its long Thanksgiving weekend a that the committee is considering a few years ago. Before the change was made, students had inviting "outside challengers" to no week-long spring vacation. Instead, they had a four-day compete against the selected (Friday through Monday) Easter weekend.

One fact that might surprise present Idaho students is that the administration made the change from a long Thanksgiving vacation to a longer spring vacation after the proposal had been requested by part of the student hody and approved by the ASUI Executive Board.

So the people who made the change in 1955 had reasons for it—reasons which still exist today. Last weekend, however, one of them was eliminated.

Time For Decision

It's time the people of our state make up their minds on the status of higher education in Idaho.

State Sen. K. C. Barlow of Burley. chairman of the pre-legislative budget committee, summarized the issue. He listened to Idaho educational institutions present their budget needs and then commented:

"I think we are getting a little bit ridiculous in some of these things. You are requesting a budget of $76 million for education in the state of Idaho. 'Say we have about $90 million to spend (the committee finally recommended $96 million). Education is asking for 80 per cent of the general fund. Education's total request was over $70 million. The University asked for slightly over $13 million as compared to $9.8 million for the last biennium or a 33.8 per cent increase. Idaho state asked for a 55 per cent increase over the last biennium. The committee recommended a 12.48 percent for the University. ISC had to settle for a 14 per cent increase.

Idaho educators, relying on experience and their professional training in the educational field, determined what Idaho needs in the way of educational facilities in the next bienniem and geared the educational budgets accord-The pre-legislative budget committee slashed millions of dollars from the requests. The legislature possibly could delete another chunk. Sen. Barlow and others termed the requests "ridiculous." If you believe that the state does not need highly trained and highly educational personnel to grow and expand economically, then the request was ridiculous.

But if you believe, as we do, that modern methods and research are nesessary for growth and development of our state, the request was not ridiculour. Education is worth 80 per cent of the budget; and higher education its full share. As Perry Swisher, publisher of the Pocatello Inter-Mountain, amply puts it: "Higher education is going to 'make or break' in Idaho in the two years for which the Idaho legislature will be appropriating this winter. This priority should be honored.

"... Lack of strong action now will start . . . the human erosion of opportunities lost, of young people leaving the state or giving up the careers they

... Not only is our attitude toward training our young a prime consideration when decisions are made as to whether a project lands in Idaho or goes elsewhere. It affects an industry's ability to staff a new venture. People whose training earns them higher incomes than the Idahoan enjoys are, in turn, unwilling to rear their families where their own children cannot readily attend college.'

Institutions of higher educations in Idaho must expand and grow to be able to provide high quality education and not mediocracy to students seeking knowledge in the future. Higher education needs money to accomplish this

The people must decide if higher education is worth the price.—J. H.

FOR BRAVE MEN ONLY

Every year a stout band of brave young men march off to the jeweler to buy the engagement ring-unaided. We at Artcarved, makers of the world's most treasured rings for over a hundred years, salute them. More to the point, we help them. Here's how.

IN STYLES. Styles in engagement rings change over the years. To keep you abreast of the best, Artearved quizzes College Queens (like the one above) from all over the country. You'll find their choices at your Artearved jeweler. IN VALUE. Unless you're majoring in diamonds, your chances of discerning the true value of any particular diamond are small indeed. To safeguard your investment, Artearved gives you a written guarantee of your diamond's true value, a guarantee that is respected and recognized by leading jewelers everywhere, and backed by a 110-year reputation for quality.

So, go on and buy the ring yourself. She'll love you for it-especially when it's an Artcarved.

Larry McBride's SportShop

As the coming snows chase away the final vestiges of fall, once again SportShop pays tribute to coach Doug Basham and his cross-country team and the ho ors they have brought to Idaho this year.

As the paper went to press, word was received that the Vandal Harriers had finished ninth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Cross-Country Change onship held on the University of Michigan campus East Lansing, Michigan.

Considering the distance traveled, the quality of competition and the fact that Basham was able to take but five runners with him, this is indeed a superior preformance. Up against powerful Ore. gon State, San Jose State and other teams with vastly larger cross-country budgets with which to operate with, the Idaho harriers neverthless refused to fold and surprised a good number of har.

Paul Henden once again led the Idaho effort, fin shing tenth in the grueling test. The British athlete had the distinction of being the number-one Vandal runner in every meet this year.

The harriers performed creditably in previous meets this past season. Their only other losses were to defending NCAA champs Oregon State and the seasoned experienced Vancouver AAU team. The Idaho team lisposed of rival WSU on every occasion.

The amazing fact is that there was not a single senior on this team. It is remarkable that a group of sophomores and juniors and a rookie coach were able to do as well as they did.

For Henden and Dick Douglas, the season is far rom over. The two aces hope to compete in some of their country's meets. SportShop wishes them the best of luck. Looking toward the future, the '62 team will return next fall intact, barring unforseen difficuties, To envision what they may be able to do next year staggers the imagination.
