Concert Set For Sunday

A number of firsts will be presented by the University of Idaho Symphony Orchestra in its opening concert at 4 p.m. Sunday in the University Auditorium.

With LeRoy Bauer conducting, local audiences will hear for the first time in this area a performance of the "Symphony in D" by Dr. John Vincent, professor of music at UCLA.

Originally commissioned by the Louisville Orchestra and premiered in 1955, the symphony was revised at the suggestion of Eugene Ormandy and the new form premiered by the Philadelphia Orchestra in 1957. The symphony has been widely acclaimed with more than 50 performances to its credit in its first three years.

"One of the finest," Ormandy has stated, "John Vincent's symphony is one of the finest compositions created by an American composer during the past decade."

Vocalists will also share the concert spotlight. Well-known Northwest soprano Dorothy Barnes, wife of Prof. William Barnes of the engineering faculty, and tenor Charles Walton of the music faculty will make their first appearance together with the orchestra.

Mrs. Barnes has just returned from a year of study and performance with the University of Illinois Opera Group. While there, she sang the leads in Strauss' "Ariadne auf Naxos" and Verdi's "La Forza del Destino." She was last heard with the University Symphony in 1960.

In Many Operas Walton, who joined the faculty last year, came to Idaho from the University of Michigan. He has performed in numerous opera presentations in the Detroit area.

University To Honor Alumni

An evolving alumni hall of fame will be established with the first twelve members to be selected by the first of next year, Jim Lyle, alumni secretary, announced yesterday.

Pictures and information about each of the nominees will be displayed in the new addition to the Student Union Building near the alumni secretary's office.

Eight of the twelve will be selected by the colleges of the University, two by the alumni association, and two by the students. Every two months a new member will be chosen so that there will be a complete change every two years.

Pictures and records of the alumni selected will be filed in the library permanently after their period of display is ended.

Lyle said that the "University has a lot of outstanding alumni," which is the reason for the evolving display.

He hopes to have the display up when the new offices are opened next month. Already several nominations have been made.

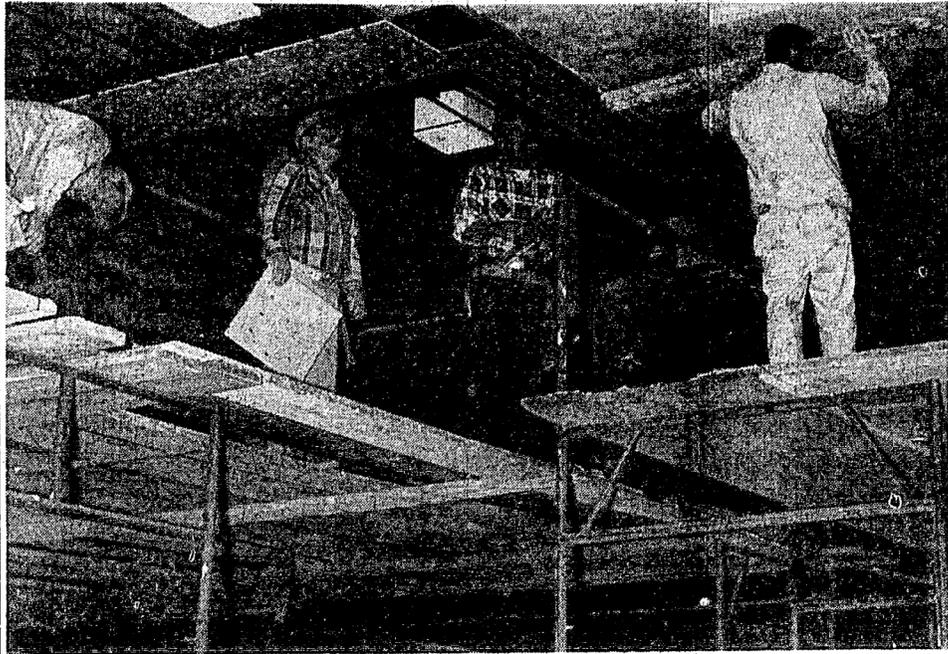

Alumni will be selected on the basis of their accomplishments and a varied selection will be obtained by having each of the colleges, the students, and the alumni, taking part in the selection.

Lyle said that this is something new for this University but that it is done by a great many other colleges and Universities.

ALD Will Honor Frosh With Tea

Alpha Lambda Delta will hold its annual tea for freshmen women Sunday in the Home Economics Building.

All freshmen women with a 3.0 grade point average or above are invited to attend the tea which will be held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

SUB CEILING GOES IN — Electricians and plasterers were busy installing ceiling equipment in the new Student Union Ballroom on the second floor of the SUB addition yesterday. When completed next February, the ballroom will have floor space larger than that of the Memorial Gym's.

Friday Last Day To Drop Courses

Friday is the last day students may drop courses. If they don't drop the course, and don't attend classes, it will mean a flunk.

Friday is also the last day for the removal of incompletes. Any incompletes not removed by Friday will also mean a flunk in that course in which the incomplete was taken.

Class Officers Discuss Problems

Class officers met Thursday to discuss their purpose and to evaluate how well they have been keeping campaign pledges and platform promises.

This meeting, the first of its kind in several years, was called by John Ferris, Executive Board member in charge of student government improvement.

The purpose of the meeting, Ferris said, was to find out what the class officers are doing and whether or not they are following up on campaign platform planks. The purpose of the class officers was also discussed, although the group did not make any decisions about the reasons for continuing the offices, he said.

Another meeting similar to the one held Thursday will be held before Christmas, Ferris said.

Coordinate Platforms Dick Harris, senior class vice president, had this to say about the efforts of the class officers to coordinate the platform pledges of both Campus Union Party and United Party:

"We have been looking at and evaluating the ideas brought forth by both parties, and plan to present these ideas to the senior extended board and leave it up to their discretion which ones are actually used."

Presidents of the other three classes said that they are doing about the same thing with their extended boards.

Senior class plans, at present, include the Junior-Senior Prom, graduation activities and, possibly, the purchase of a gift for the University with any money left over after the prom costs and other expenses are paid, Harris said.

At tomorrow's junior extended board meeting, the members will decide if they are going to handle the publicity for the chartered bus ride for Christmas, Jimmy Olson, junior class president, said. The major project now is the Junior-Senior Prom, he added.

Sophomore Holly Week is the sophomores' class project at present, Rick Beebe, sophomore class president said. After Christmas, extended board will begin work on WSU mixer and all-campus mixer plans.

Bill McCann, freshman class president, said that the freshman class is currently working on a recruitment program and a mimeographed booklet of campus activities. The booklet will be a main topic at their extended board meeting tonight, he said.

Nominations for Holly Queen must be turned in to the ASUI office before 5 p.m. Friday, Mark Brown, Holly Week publicity chairman, said yesterday.

Nominees must be sophomore girls, have a 2.2 grade average, and turn in a head and shoulder wallet size photo of themselves with their applications.

Advance ticket sales for the "Holly-Daze" dance Dec. 15 began yesterday, Brown said. Tickets are available from sophomore extended board members in all living groups.

Student Union Building will be partitioned into two parts in which the two bands will be playing slow and fast music. Bands for the dance will be the Monarchs and the Stylists.

Queen candidates will be on display for prospective voters at the

ROTC Program Changes Scheduled By Air Force

If a bill to go before Congress in January is approved and if the University approves, a new program will go into effect at the Air Force ROTC detachment here involving scholarships and a minimizing of time spent in ROTC.

A bill which has currently been approved by the Department of Defense will be presented at the next session of Congress forming what will be called the Air Force Officers Education Program.

Students enrolled in the AFROEP will receive a scholarship of approximately $1100 per school year. Basic AFROTC as now exists will be eliminated depending upon the University's desire to maintain the program.

Colleges and universities having AFROTC units will ultimately have to decide how to implement the program. The Morrow Act which provides for the current program will not be eliminated.

Cadets will attend two summer camps in this new program: one between their sophomore and junior years and one immediately after graduation. These two camps will provide leadership training and the current leadership laboratory program in effect will be eliminated. The academic requirement of four hours per week will be maintained.

If the act is passed it will probably go into effect here next fall

Major Charles House, AFROTC, stated yesterday. Sophomores currently enrolled in the program will be eligible as well as the juniors in the advanced corps. The juniors will receive half of the $22,000 scholarship.

This scholarship compares now to the $27 per month given to advance cadets.

The goal of the program is to produce nationally around 5,200 officers annually. The current Officers Training Program for college graduates will be reduced to a great extent.

The program will involve recruitment of candidates at the end of their freshman year and administering a revised version of the current Air Force Officers Qualifying Test. Those passing this test will be given physical examinations and background checks during their sophomore year and a group will be chosen for the summer camp that year.

Those passing the requirements for the camp will enter the program that fall and receive their scholarship.

Arg, ASUI Open New Offices Soon

The Argonaut and the ASUI officials will be doing business from their new offices in the Student Union addition after Christmas vacation. Jan. 7 is the official opening of the basement and first floors.

Most of the moving will be done during the 18-day vacation period. The contractors will be moving in and starting renovation of all of the first floor of the current building except for the food area, on the seventh also.

In the basement will be the new Argonaut offices, the Dipper, a television lounge and an arts and crafts room plus the bowling alleys which are already open. The Jan. 8 issue of the Argonaut will be put out from the new expanded offices which are designed after and are comparable to a modern newspaper office. It will be a special feature issue.

On the first floor will be the ASUI president's office, the Executive Board room, the organization room where files of all campus organizations will be kept, a lounge area, a music listening room, and information desk, alumni offices, meeting rooms, offices for other ASUI and SUB officials including the General Manager's office.

Gale Mix, ASUI General Manager, told the Argonaut yesterday that practically all the new furniture is here with the rest scheduled for arrival this week. Installation of the carpeting will begin December 17. Draperies will be installed during the vacation.

The new Argonaut offices will be larger than the news offices of most of the papers in the state with the exception of the Lewiston Morning Tribune and the Idaho Daily Statesman in Boise.

An Associated Press wire will be installed in the news room as well as a modern news editor's desk for efficient flow of copy from the reporters to the editors. A darkroom is in the offices as well as an editor's room.

The Dipper is being modeled after the Stork Club in New York with the same type of decor being followed. There are booths around the sides with a raised platform containing more booths and tables in a nightclub type atmosphere. There is a movable platform for combos and indirect lighting is used. The room is larger than the present Dipper on the second floor of the SUB.

ICEP Workshop Begins Saturday

Idaho students will have a chance to assess the issues confronting the Idaho Legislators at the Legislative Workshop at the Legislative Workshop this Saturday sponsored by the Idaho Center for Education Politics.

The workshop will begin this Friday night with an informal coffee hour and reception at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Union Building.

The coffee hour, sponsored by the Coffee Hours and Forums Committee of the SUB, is intended to give the students a chance to meet the legislators and discuss issues informally.

Saturday's session marks the first workshop of its kind at the University. Last year ICEP, then Citizenship Clearing House, sponsored a political workshop in the spring and invited candidates for all state offices from throughout the state.

State political structure and campaign problems were discussed at the political workshop last spring, with about 30 state candidates attending.

This year's workshop will discuss only the issues confronting the 1963 Legislature. Panels will be filled by students of political science courses and state legislators. Political and Social Science instructors will moderate the panel sessions.

Dr. Bernard Borning, head of the Political Science Dept., and advisor for the organization, said "the workshop is for the students, put on by the students and is an educational venture I hope everyone will attend."

"This is not the first workshop put on by this organization," Borning added. "As Citizenship Clearing House, the organization sponsored a small workshop a few years ago with only a handful of politicians in attendance."

"Four years ago CCH sponsored a mock political convention on campus before the presidential nominations." The mock convention included participation by all campus living groups on campus.

"Of course last year was the big workshop," Borning said.

This year's workshop is to be a course-related session in the study of the legislature, Borning said. Not as many politicians will be participating on the panels. Instead, the students will take part as well.

"Bowl" Aspirants Take General Test

All but 11 of 50 applicants for the 12-person college bowl team have taken the first hurdle — a three hour general culture test.

The remaining eleven — and all others interested in competing for a place on the nationally televised Sunday program — will take the examination at 8 a.m. Thursday in the Reading Room of the Library, T. J. Prichard, acting dean of the College of Letters and Science, and chairman of the faculty selection committee, said.

Charles Decker, dean of students, said that the University probably will be on the program the latter part of April or early May.

Prichard's committee was formed to pick a team. Prichard said the committee hopes to cut the team to 12 by Christmas vacation. Four finalists and an alternate will be selected to participate in New York City.

Members of the faculty selection committee are Robert Hosack, head of social sciences; Eugene Giles, professor of psychology; William Hunter, head of humanities; Lorin W. Roberts, associate professor of botany; George H. Roberts, assistant professor of art; Gordon Law, acting head of communications; R. A. Postweiler, associate professor of economics; Agnes Schuldt, associate professor of music; Harry Caldwell, associate professor of geography; and Decker.

Prichard said "ground rules weren't established yet," but that the committees would select the team on the basis of the written examination and subjective analysis by the faculty committee.

Fifty students attended the first meeting and scheduled to take the test. Results for the first two groups are expected this week.

Those taking the test last Thursday were George L. Alberts, Sandra Clark, Judy Conklin, Patricia Finkle, Marlene Finney, Arnie Friling, Jon Harms, R. Ray Hart, Marvin Heilesen, Jon Hollinger, Linda Kinney, Donna Leaverton, Barbara Lumpkin, John R. Martin, Darlene McDonald, William McDonald, Lorenzo Nelson, Karen Siverly and Jaima Youngblood.

Fourteen students took the test Friday morning. They are Jim DeFree, Mary Dobler, Fred Hartwell, Burton Douglas Hunter, Dick Jennings, Tom Lynch, Idora Lee Moore, Karen Miles, Barry Nelson, Joan Heller, Ann Leah Ingebritsen and Linda Talbott.

The following will take the examination Thursday: Jim Batsford, Ann Jewell, Corder Campbell, Sharon Talbott, Marvin Davis, Jim Olson, John Fox, Wally Swan, Jim Metcalf and Skip French.

SNOWMAN SEASON — Three freshman coeds were quick to take advantage of the rapidly falling but quickly melting snow that covered the campus Sunday. Assembling the first snowman of the season were (left to right) Paula Spence, Lodi Stemmler and Gwen Tolmie.

Communications-A Problem

In conversation with the ASUI vice president the other day one of the most pressing problems of student government was brought out—lack of communications between the student leaders and the student body in general.

This results in a great many more problems: primarily apparent lack of interest by the students in the many activities outlets available but probably more accurately lack of participation because of lack of information.

Ideas are currently being tossed about now to correct this situation. One of the best brought forth is publication of a complete booklet listing all organizations and all ASUI committees and jobs, their function, their responsibilities, the opportunities available, and how one may enter these activities.

Another possibility would be a preface to the book with the philosophy behind the establishment of extra-curricular activities. This would be a combination of student government and student union philosophies primarily. Now a small minority on the campus, probably not more than a few dozen students are aware that even such a thing as student union or student government philosophies exist.

This booklet would indeed be an aid, but it certainly isn't the entire answer. As the saying goes,

"You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink." Too many students are content to merely exist. Those that are looking for the chance to participate seek out the opportunities present anyway and catch the small announcements in this paper concerning interview times. Possibly the booklet would inspire a few more to be aware of these opportunities. If it affected only a few it would be worth the investment.

In essence, however, it is doubtful that truly effective communications will ever be effected between the student leaders and their constituents. Those making the decisions usually end up making them without benefit of an accurate analysis of student opinion on the matter.

All that can be done is to make the information available and hope. If more interest is to be raised it must be done on a lower, more compact level, such as in the living groups.

In summation then, the setting up of communicative bodies is a waste of time if poll taking is the purpose of these bodies. However, a little more could be done (and looks like it will be with the reorganization of the Activities Council) in making the information available.—J. M.

Activities Council Is To Be Revised

By JIM METCALF Argonaut Managing Editor

Now that the Activities Council has been in operation almost a year, some revision has been called for to make it more efficient and productive. Bill Boves, ASUI vice president, told the Argonaut explaining the planned revision.

Last year when the Council was set up, five area chairmen were selected and committees assigned under them on the basis of the area chairmen's personal experience with various committees.

The new revision will group all the various committees according to areas of interest and common problems. A sixth group has been added now. The areas are: cultural and educational, recreational, services, social, events and publicity.

Each of these areas covers an aspect of the activities on campus.

In an interview with Boves Sunday, he stated that until now each of the chairmen were able to talk individually with their committee chairmen but never could meet as a group because of a lack of similar interests and problems. "The chairmen actually didn't have much of a job," Boves said.

Stating the main reason for the reorganization Boves said, "I think more important than the substance of the programs that we are planning is the procedure that we follow. We must, through our procedures, be training people to accept the responsibilities of leadership in the years following graduation."

The new area added is publicity.

Boves said this has been a major problem in student government. "We are all aware that getting students out to interviews involves more than just poster-making," he said, but went on to add that very little else had been done. Committees in this new area will be SUB decorations for special events, a poster committee, and a personnel recruitment committee. "I think that definitely there is a lack of awareness of what activities there are, how one can apply for them, and what benefits may be derived from them," Boves stated.

One possible remedy for this program Boves said would be the publication of an activities booklet delineating all of the committees and activities on campus, their functions, benefits of participation, and how one may enter these activities. This is currently being done at WSU.

Philosophies

Although some people resent the change being instigated in "mid-stream," Boves said, "we feel that by changing now we can actually set up a philosophy for each of the areas, and unlike in the past when student government has been hampered by having one year's group planning something on paper and not actually carrying it out, we will be able to adequately orient the new Council."

The new area director will be selected before Christmas. The current Council members will take over the following areas: cultural and educational, Bob Carlson; recreational, Paul Kelly; social, Keith Huettig; events, John Gamble, and services, Mary Lynne Evans.

Some more committees will be formed, Boves said, especially with the opening of the new SUB and its facilities. Possibly some existing committees will be deleted, he added.

The facilitation of the orientation of the new Council, will be one of the biggest benefits, Boves stated, adding that when the present Council took over they were working from a paper plan only with little experience to guide them.

THE GOLDEN FLEECE by Jason

Lots of Candidates Around The Table

When the ASUI Executive Board goes into session, seated around its table are probably all the strong contenders for next year's student body presidency.

Because of the public's previous acquaintance with them, their extra governmental experience and the prestige of the office, juniors on Exec Board usually have the inside track in running or being nominated for ASUI president the following year. Last year's president, Jim Mullen, had served on E-Board as a junior. And, although he was defeated in the general election, Paul Kroge was able to win his party's presidential nomination the previous year with the help of his Exec Board experience.

This year's board has three members who will be back next year. Cliff Eldred, a United Party member, will be a senior; as will Bill Frates of Campus Union Party. Carvel Whiting, also a CUP man, will be around all next year to complete his senior year and possibly begin graduate work.

There has been some talk about the possibility of two other Exec Boarders, one an ex-officio member, eyeing the chair at the head of the table, too. Skip French, a senior this year, plans to come back for law school next year and is a possible dark horse. Phil Reberger, ASUI public relations director, is a junior who also might decide to run.

Eldred, Whiting and Frates, however, must be called the top contenders. Eldred has the lead in seeking United's nomination, but Whiting and Frates will be closely matched in going after CUP's bid.

Beneficial Or Not?

How might next spring's elections affect these members' present work on Exec Board? In one way, the upcoming election might be beneficial; no candidate-to-be will want any blotches on his Exec Board record, so each will probably be careful not to goof up or slack off.

On the other hand, each could also use his place on E-Board as a campaign platform, from which to spout off nice-sounding nothings which might help win votes next spring. And each might try too hard not to make enemies by shying away from anything controversial.

Exec Board may have all the likely presidential candidates, but the unlikely ones shouldn't be ruled out. This year's ASUI president, Ron Houghtalin, popped up to run against a better-known opponent and beat him. That, of course, could happen again.

Dear Jason

Architecture?

Dear Jason, Two weeks ago, a letter appeared in this column acclaiming the arrival of a new building on Nez Perce Drive; a true and lasting monument to posterity; a breathtaking testimony to excellence in architecture. Namely, the TKE house. Further sarcasm, though possibly warranted, is unnecessary and additional descriptive adjectives would be redundant. The aforementioned letter pretty well covered the hapless inadequacy of the building. It is not the intention of this writer to deride the persons of that living group.

I am aware that acceptance of the design was not a group decision, though it should have been. I can't think that such complete blindness to aesthetics and function could encompass so many. It is, however, my intention, and my responsibility as a student who takes pride in his university, to voice indignation and embarrassment.

This is the extreme example of what can result when an architect is not employed to design and supervise the construction of a public building. I hope we learn something from it. For a comparatively small fee a functional, comfortable, pleasing structure would have graced the now sadly poor utilization of building space. Nowhere is the influence of atmosphere and environment more closely felt than in man's immediate habitat. That so little thought is given its creation is a paradox.

Turkey Here
Dear Jason, The administration feels that it is wise and good to have "business as usual" on Friday after Thanksgiving, and I heartily agree. Among other values, perhaps this might be a good time for young adults to partially free themselves of parental ties. Must college students return to the bosom of their families for Thanksgiving? I understand that a very delicious traditional turkey dinner is served at the halls. The responsibility for attending classes has been the sole drawing card for staying here and it has not been an effective deterrent to a mass desertion of the campus for the entire weekend. No organization or living group on the campus makes it desirable to stay.

What happens to the students who, through a feeling of responsibility to their course work, or lack of money or family or because of distance, cannot go home? The campus is deserted, there are no social activities of any kind, and the poor student who must remain has no place to go. I suspect that many students who might have stayed leave just in order to escape the deadly vacuum here.

Why is no responsibility taken for carrying out the spirit as well as the otherwise meaningless letter of the campus-centered weekend? Could not one of the multitudinous dances, parties, contests, etc., which vie for scheduling for all of the other weekends of the school year, be held on that Friday and Saturday, and why not schedule the last home football game on Thanksgiving weekend?

Evelyn Monague
Sophs Active
Dear Jason— I was pleased with the Sophomores' response to Holly Week applications. Since the committee memberships had to be limited, many well-qualified individuals were turned down. The committees are planning adequately, but now we need the enthusiasm and support from the Sophomore class as a whole in effecting a successful Holly Week.

The best opportunity to participate would be decorating for the dance and caroling. Further information on these Holly Week functions will be published.

Dobler To Be Faculty Guest On TV Panel

Clifford Dobler, associate professor of political science, will be the faculty guest on this week's "Probe" discussion "Our U of I and the New Legislature" Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 7. Serving on the student panel will be Jim Herndon, Karen Smith and Lynn Hossner. Cliff Eldred will be moderator.

This program is the second in a series to appear on the University closed circuit television channel 7. It is sponsored by the ASUI Education Improvement Committee.

Next week's topic will be "Our Athletic Future" with J. Neil "Skip" Stahley answering the questions as the faculty guest.

Anyone wishing to appear on the "Probe" panel discussion on "Our Athletic Future" should come to the Student Union Building Pine Room at 4:10 p.m. tomorrow. Athletic Director Skip Stahley will be the main speaker for the program.

Borning Leads Discussion On Beard And Isolationism

Dr. Bernard C. Borning, chairman of political science, led a Faculty forum discussion on "Charles A. Beard and the Fate of Liberal Isolationism" last week. About 25 persons attended the discussion.

Dr. Borning, author of a recently published book on Beard, "The Political and Social Thought of Charles A. Beard," noted that Beard was a man of strong principles.

In 1913 Beard created a stir with his book, "The Economic Determination of the Constitution." At this time, he was serving on the faculty of Columbia University, a position which he later resigned over the principle of academic freedom, Borning said.

Beard is well known for his activities in the field of municipal reform and for his isolationist views on foreign policy, Borning said.

"When the United States entered World War I, Beard was imbued with 'Wilsonian idealism'—the belief that the war would be a war to make the world safe for democracy," Borning said.

"Disillusioned with the war, Beard became an isolationist, but different from others who held isolationist views, Beard did not change when the European and Asian dictatorships rose to power in the 1930's. "During the 1940's he published several volumes on isolationism, and in 1948—the

CUP Tells Stand; Elects Officers

Campus Union Party went on record last week in favor of making the parties, rather than individual candidates, responsible for infractions of campaign regulations presently under consideration by Executive Board.

Newly elected CUP President Rick Wischkaemper explained the CUP motion: "Ultimately, the party is responsible for the actions of any candidate they present for the approval by the student body. However, I don't feel that any individual campaigning for office can neglect his responsibility to abide by the election rules."

Other officers elected by CUP are Arlene Marley, first vice president; Gerald Huettig, second vice president; Diane Williams, secretary; and Merrily-dawn Freuchenicht, treasurer.

Gerontology Is Discussed

A four-man traveling team of gerontologists Friday emphasized that "the aged are a problem," but "universities have been slow in becoming interested in aging as an appropriate area of research."

The gerontology team serving northwest colleges and universities, discussed current trends and problems of the aging, along with university programs, special committee work on the aging and various community plans at a one-day seminar Friday at the Student Union Building.

Aged Problem Unplanned

"In a sense, the aged are another unplanned consequence of planned change," said Dr. Marvin J. Taves, chief, division of field services, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and one of the team's four members.

He said, "Much conscience effort has gone into extending physical existence of the individual. As a result, more than 17 million living Americans have now reached traditional retirement age, many without the resources to enjoy and benefit themselves or anyone else with their added years."

High Schools Debate Before UI Students

Thirteen University students judged and gave critiques at high school debate last Saturday which ended in a tie between Kellogg High School and Coeur d'Alene High School.

Kellogg and Coeur d'Alene had the only undefeated teams in the annual University high school debate.

Twenty teams from ten Idaho high schools and two Washington high schools attended the annual affair supervised by Dr. A. E. Whitehead, chairman of speech.

The debate topic was "Should the United States establish a policy of free trade with non-Communist nations." The debates were held in the Administration building.

"The high school coaches said they were pleased with the debate tournament," Whitehead said, "especially with the criticisms and suggestions the judges gave after each round of debate."

Universities' Role

Dr. Wilma Donahue, chairman of gerontology, Institute for Human Adjustment, University of Michigan, outlined the role universities are taking to advance the new field of gerontology.

"However, universities have been slow in becoming interested in aging as an appropriate area of research and training," Dr. Donahue said. "The battle is not yet won, but there is an increased interest, and once this interest is started, it is likely to gather momentum with the passage of time."

Others appearing on the program were Irene A. Kohl, mental health psychiatric consultant, and Sterling K. Peterson, regional representative on aging. Both are from the regional office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare at Denver, Colo.

Blue Bucket Is Next Week

Blue Bucket Inn will be held in the Student Union Building next Sunday, Ann Spiker, chairman, said. The second Blue Bucket Inn was originally scheduled for last Sunday, but was postponed because of lack of time for preparation, she said.

Blue Bucket Inn features four kinds of pancakes served by student waitresses. The Bucket of the SUB from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Sunday becomes Blue Bucket Inn. Pancakes served are plain buttermilk, blueberry, Swedish and strawberry. All are served with assorted syrups and toppings, Miss Spiker said. Side orders of ham, bacon, sausage or eggs may be ordered, or the Special which consists of ham, bacon or sausage, egg and pancakes, she said.

Vandals Shake Long Beach 85-68 In Opener

Gus, Charlie Provided What 3,700 Fans Wanted

Looking a bit ragged in their opening game of the season, the Idaho Vandals showed flashes of brilliance, though, as they gave a capacity crowd of 3,700 what they came to see — an 85-68 victory over the Long Beach State 49ers.

The crowd came to see big Gus Johnson, the Vandals' highly touted transfer this year, and the team that Associated Press rates second in the Northwest. Gus didn't disappoint them as he stuffed baskets, rebounded, and passed with an ease that made it look simple. He was supported by a hustling first five that fast-broke the 49ers to their doom, and the smooth shooting of Chuck White who dumped in 25 points to gain high scorer honors for the evening.

ISC Set To Join Proposed League

POCATELLO — Idaho State College joined the University of Idaho, Weber College, and Gonzaga University last Tuesday in voicing official approval of a proposed athletic conference.

The announcement of the trustees' approval was made by ISC president, Dr. Donald E. Walker.

Current varsity sports at ISC are football, basketball, swimming, tennis, baseball, track, wrestling, cross country, and golf.

John Vesser, ISC athletic director, said, "the conference should mean a great deal to our over-all athletic program and I see no reason why it would not be successful. The league consists of schools of comparable size and aims which should result in more interest and improved gate receipts."

Three Records Set As Finmen Are Fifth At Far Western Relays Meet

Powerful, depth-laden Oregon amassed 89 points to walk off with the annual Far Western Relays held Saturday afternoon at Pullman, Washington.

The Ducks took five firsts in gaining their victory. Washington was second with 70 points, with Washington State, Oregon State and Idaho trailing with 46, 36 and 34 points respectively.

Washington also captured five first places, but were weak in depth, according to Idaho mentor Clarke Mitchell.

Praises Vandals "Considering that it was the first meet of the season for the team, I felt that we did a good job. I was very pleased with the performance they turned in."

The Vandal finmen captured a second and a third: out of the eight events they entered. The Idaho squad was not able to enter the diving events because of lack of depth.

Even in finishing last in the five-team meet, the Vandals nevertheless broke three old varsity records. The 400 medley relay team composed of Charles Edwards, Dave Katsilometes, Gary Baker and Carl Von Tagen finished in 4:05.8, breaking the old mark by nearly 20 seconds.

Smashes Mark Von Tagen set a new record in the 100 freestyle when he toured the distance in 52.9. In addition, Edwards set a new mark in the backstroke with a time of 1:00.6, smashing the old standard by over seven seconds.

"I was most pleased by the performances of Von Tagen and Katsilometes," commented Mitchell. Katsilometes turned in the finest times of his career, while Von Tagen set one new record and had a hand in the smashing of another mark.

Cole Elected Captain According to Mitchell, Dan Cole a junior letterman, was elected captain of the Vandal team before the meet took place.

Next action for the Idaho finmen is Saturday when they tangle with Washington State and University of Puget Sound in their first triangular meet of the season. The meet will begin at 2 p.m. on the WSU campus.

Babes Beat Yakima JC 56-51 To Gain Second Win

The Vandal Babe basketball team pushed their record for the young season to 2-1 with a hard-fought 56-51 win over Yakima Junior College last night in the preliminary to the varsity game.

Yakima proved a hard nut to crack, particularly in the first half when the Babes were unable to get untracked. The Idaho team shot a frigid 26 per cent in the first half of play. The score was 9-9 at the nine minute mark.

The Babes warmed up in the second half, however, shooting at a 42 per cent clip to finish at 34 for the game. Yakima shot a cold 26 per cent from the floor.

Ed Haskins led the Babes in scoring with 18 points. Mike Everett was second with 13.

Mike Havnar and Lex Heim were the big guns for the Yakima club.

Halftime saw the Babes in command, 25-22. The score was once tied in late in the game, but coach

Ken Maren's team pulled away to win.

The Vandal Babes and the Boise Junior College Broncos split a pair of games last weekend at Boise. Idaho won 57-56 Friday night, while BJC triumphed 59-48 Saturday.

In the Friday contest, the Vandal Babes led at halftime, lost their advantage and then stormed back to down the Boise team in an overtime.

The frosh outscored the Broncos 8-7 in the extra period to gain their win.

The Babes had a 38-3 lead with ten minutes to play, but BJC scored eight points in the last seven minutes to Idaho's two go tie up the ball game 49 all.

However, the Broncos caught the Babes cold the next night to even the score. Goodwin scored 23 points, 15 in the second half to pace the BJC effort.
