Frosh Days Near End

Frosh week ends tonight in a dance and show by the Four Preps at 8 p.m. in the new Student Union Ballroom.

The week of freshman activities has included the naming of the shapeliest and most masculine legs in the class.

Jim Wohrer, Kappa Sig, was named the winner of the most masculine legs contest and Linda Bithell, Pi Phi possesses the shapeliest legs of freshmen coeds. This afternoon a rally will precede the annual freshmen-sophomore tug-of-war at Paradise Creek. (See challenges and reply, pg. 4.)

Noon yesterday frosh cast their votes for frosh king and queen. They will be crowned by last year's royal freshmen couple at the dance. Finalists for queen are Ann Thompson, Alpha Phi; Kathy Wood, DG; Margie Irwin, Gamma Phi; Mary Ann Yoden, Kappa; and Delora Cook, Pi Phi. Freshmen king will be one of the following: Mike Evert, Sigma Nu; Bob Dutton, Delta; John Boisen, Beta; Rick Hicks, SAE; and Chuck Bierchimer, Fiji.

A treasure hunt that has been going on all week ended yesterday with the last clue. The winners will receive five-dollar gift certificates at the dance tonight. Trophies for the best house decorations will also be presented at night. (Continued on page 2, col. 6)

During intermissions, the orchestra pit in front of the stage was visited by groups of children and students who talked with the members of the orchestra.

Simple orchestration for the opera complemented the voices of the singers without covering the shadings of tone and lyrics. The company performed the English version of Giuseppe Verdi's opera which was done by Boris Goldovsky and Sarah Caldwell.

English lyrics, simple orchestration and a synopsis of the opera in the programs, contributed to the audience understanding of the opera.

Applause for the first act was light, but increased in volume through the four acts. Spontaneous applause broke out four times in Act III and three times in Act IV.

J.B. To Be Tonight And Tomorrow

"J.B.", the story of a modern-day Job in the present society, will be presented tonight and tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Administration Building Auditorium.

A two-level set is used for this Pulitzer Prize winning play by Archibald MacLeish. A crowd's nest represents heaven and the platform area below represents earth.

The play gives the grim story of a man trying to solve the timeless problem of his guilt. Like the Biblical Job, J.B. relies on his faith to solve the problem.

Written in verse, the play is run with no breaks. Many lines have been quoted directly from

Latah Rep. Fights For More Funds

BOISE — A fight for a bigger appropriation for the University has been initiated by Latah County Representative George Brocke. He has attempted to delay action in the House by forcing a reading of all appropriation bills.

This will slow down the action of the legislature which is trying for a Saturday night adjournment. They are in their seventh day of over-time now.

Brocke's arguments have been that if Idaho State College is receiving a 22.4 per cent increase over a past biennium allotment, then the University should also. A bill passed yesterday in the Senate provided for a 14.6 per cent increase for the University.

Brocke has called for either an increase in the University's budget or a cut-back in the Idaho State allotment. He told his cohorts, "I will use every means available to delay the law-making process until my demands are met."

Regents Approve Dorm Fee Raise

The University of Idaho Board of Regents has approved the raising of the dormitory board rate from $20 to $25 per semester, effective for the 1963-64 academic year, reports Robert F. Greene, director of dormitories.

The fee will be paid in three monthly installments of $35 and one of $60 per semester. With approximately 1,400 dormitory students, the $5 increase will net about $14,000 more annually to help meet increasing costs and to support payments of total indebtedness bonds. The indebtedness will not be entirely paid off until the year 2002.

47 People To Be Awarded Merit Citations By E-Board

Forty-seven people were selected by ASUI Executive Board Tuesday to receive merit citations for service to student government and activities.

All but five recipients are students. The remaining individuals are people employed by the ASUI or performing services for the student body.

The awards differ from "first class" citations, which are signed by University President Donald R. Theophilus and are given to regular and ex-officio members of Executive Board. First class awards are given to students for "service to the University as a whole," Houghtalin said.

The recipients are: Pom-Pom Girls Honored Pompon girls Jackie Johnson, Jo Milholland, Jamie Modie, Barbara Blair, Diane Fawson, Bev Arehart, Wilma Anderson and Nicki Dahmen; Activities Council area directors Bob Carlson, Patt Keyly, Keith Huettig, John Gamble, Mary Lynne Evans and Mark Brown.

Activities Council committee chairmen Jamie Morfitt, Dad's Day; Jim Judd, Homecoming; Pat Killien Campus Chest; Dick Jennings, New Student Days; Willard Swenson, Hospitality; Jody Wiegand, Open House and Seasonal Decorations; Ann Spiker, Blue Bucket Inn; Sherrie McGuire, Dances; Lorenzo Nelson, Art Exhibits; Kris Wales, SUB Films; and Ted Burke, Off Campus programs.

Stevenson, the first Idaho resident to become its governor, kept the Idaho territory from being split in two.

The announcement was made today by President D. R. Theophilus, following Regents approval.

100th Year Observed

As part of its Territorial Centennial observances, the University had planned to honor Idaho's first three territorial governors with names for the new $3,750,000 dormitory complex now under construction. The complex, which includes a cafeteria to serve 900 students, was early designated as the Wallace Residence Center.

The name honors William H. Wallace, first territorial governor serving from 1863 to 1864. Then the two dormitory units, each housing 212 students, were to be called respectively Lyon Residence after Lyon, territorial governor, 1864-1866, and Ballard Residence after David W. Ballard, territorial governor, 1866-1870.

Some debate was sparked by a few of the award candidates before they were approved by Exec Board. Other names were brought up and rejected. Among those were Activities Advisor Dick Stiles, whom some members said it wasn't necessary to include, and the yell kings, whom, it was stated, hadn't done as outstanding a job at games as the pom-pom girls had.

Exec Board decided last year not to award the citations to faculty, Reberger said, "because they ran into the problem of deciding which faculty members are outstanding and which aren't."

Now Stevenson Stealing Charge Changes Name Of New Dormitory

Old charges never die, at least charges of absconding with Indian affairs funds, the University has found.

So instead of naming a section of the new Wallace dorm complex after Territorial Gov. Caleb Lyon, the University will give the honor to Territorial Gov. Edward A. Stevenson.

Senate Okays Budget

The building fund for the University has passed both houses of the Idaho Legislature and an $11,285,000 general fund appropriation passed the Senate late Wednesday.

House action is expected soon on the appropriation which is the same figure that was recommended by Governor Robert E. Smylie. It is $2 million less than the University's original request.

The appropriation passed the senate by a vote of 26-10. It is a 14.6 per cent increase over the previous biennium's budget.

Earlier in the week the Senate passed $2-10 and the House $1-10 a $7 million permanent building fund appropriation of which $1.25 million will go to the University for three major projects.

The University funds are allocated to build a new art and architecture center, $475,000, a new dairy science center, $475,000, and to renovate the present science building, $350,000. Also included is $145,000 for two new greenhouses and several minor capital improvement projects.

The Building funds were allocated after a move to decrease the size of the permanent building fund by cutting the "head tax" from $10 to $7.50 was defeated. This proposal backed by Sen. William J. Dee (D-Idaho) went down 17-21 last Tuesday.

The legislature is currently trying to find a taxation program that will provide the needed revenue for the proposed expenditures. Increases in most taxes are being forced with the defeat of the sales tax by the Senate last week. A proposed $102 million budget is the aim of part of the legislators but they are being opposed by an "economy block" led by Dee who would like the budget to be around $93.2 million.

Action today will probably see House action on the appropriation. The Legislature, now completing one week over the 60-day limit, is attempting to adjourn by tomorrow night.

Activities Council Holds Interviews

Activities Council members interviewed 26 students Wednesday evening for the six new area directors of the Council but were able to choose only three tentatively, Bill Bowes, ASUI veep, said yesterday.

They will meet again Saturday morning, Bowes said, to select another three names and will present the six candidates to Executive Board Tuesday evening.

Bowes declined to name the three students tentatively accepted. He did say that he was pleased with such a large turnout of "outstanding and very well qualified" students.

The six students selected will form the Activities Council for the following year. They will be under the chairmanship of newly-elected ASUI veep Carl-veep Whiting.

The Council has charge of all Student Union and ASUI activities throughout the year.

Each council member is chairman of a specific area and has several events chairmen under him. The council is just finishing its first year of operation. The present members were selected last year by the outgoing Executive Board. Originally only five were selected, but during the year, an additional member was added to manage the budget.

Members this year are Bowes, chairman, Keith Huettig, Delta Sig, Mary Lynne Evans, Alpha Phi; Patt Kelly, Pi Phi; John Gamble, Beta; Bob Carlson, Delta Chi; and Mark Brown, Beta.

Who's Really To Blame?

A member of the State Legislature surprisingly criticized the Board of Regents Wednesday for not doing something which legislation he sponsored had made impossible.

The cry came from Edward V. Williams, freshman representative from Nez Perce County, after the Regents dared to criticize the Legislature's passage of a bill giving Lewis-Clark Normal School four-year status.

The Board had stated Tuesday that the legislators, in passing Williams' pet bill against the Regents' recommendations, thereby "continued to subject the school to the ebb and flow of Idaho politics." The LCNS change "will jeopardize the integration of junior colleges into the system of higher education in the state and decrease the possibility of obtaining adequate appropriations for the University of Idaho and Idaho State University," the Board correctly warned.

To Williams, this was "an absolute confession of failure by our state board." They admitted, he charged, "that they are unable to set policy by themselves."

The Board tried to set some policy. It recommended that LCNS become a partially state-supported junior college to be integrated in a state system of like institutions. But the Legislature disregarded the Board's recommendation and voted in four-year status.

It must have been surprising to the Regents, since the statement came from the LCNS bill's most vociferous supporter, to further learn that they have been "playing one institution against another and consequently county against county in the race for tax dollars."

This game of cat-and-mouse is being played—but not by the Regents. Legislators from the home counties of the U. of I. and ISU are forced to do it to look out for their pet institutions—even more so now that the ill-timed and ill-afforded passage of the LCNS bill reduced even lower than before Idaho's ability to pay for all its educational needs.

Instead of causing any rivalry between universities or counties, "the Board should rather be leading all of the institutions along a road where all could live, grow and prosper together," Williams orated further.

Granted, the Board certainly should. And no doubt it would—had it not been for Williams and the other legislators who made the Board unable to do so. For Representative Williams and his cohorts first blindly disregarded the financial dilemma of the state's educational institutions by creating a school the state cannot afford, and then made sure it couldn't be afforded by turning down a bill to establish a sales tax.

Williams also called for formation of a separate Board of Regents, apart from the Board of Education, to supervise only Idaho's higher education. As simply as that, he concluded, the Legislature could dispense with its "biennial hassle over appropriations for our institutions," which is something "we should not have to subject ourselves to."

Splitting up of the overworked Regents' varied and numerous duties might very well be a sound idea. But it wouldn't, as the legislator from Lewiston hopes, eliminate the squabbling over school appropriations. The blame for that hassle doesn't rest upon the Regents, but upon the state's inability to afford all its educational needs—and the inability of Mr. Williams and other legislators to realize that such financial yokes as a four-year LCNS will result in a more frantic money scramble than ever. — N.M.

Jim Metcalf's Campus Perspective

All but the last touches have been put on our money for the next two years by the legislature. The Senate has passed an appropriation totaling $11,235,000 for the University general budget. In addition a bill providing the University with three major building projects has been passed by both houses and now goes to the Governor.

Approval was given to build a new $475,000 art and architecture building, a $475,000 new dairy science center, and $350,000 renovation of the present science building.

These were the three top items on the University's priority list of needed buildings and is really as much as the school could hope to get with the present circumstances prevailing. In reality, even these items caused conflict as the Governor originally recommended other items first for unknown reasons and then changed his mind back to the University's wishes for still unknown reasons. We stand satisfied in this area.

In regards to our general appropriation, which has yet to be acted on by the House, not quite as much can be said. It is difficult to tell yet how we will fare. But this fact is known. The figure approved by the Senate is exactly $2 million less than the University asked.

The $13 million and some requested by the University was the result of a paring down here by administrative officials who had reportedly trimmed over a million of Department and College requests. So we will, in actuality, be given, if this bill passes, over $3 million less than the total officials and faculty at the institution feel they need.

But this is the way it is usually done and it is admitted that we will be able to accomplish a great many of our goals on the $11 million figure.

All important, of course, is the success of the attempt to raise teacher's salaries. This is almost an absolute necessity if the University is to continue to offer the quality of education needed in this state. A 25 per cent increase has been proposed. If this is achieved, and neighboring universities don't get all that they have asked from their legislatures we will be on a reasonably competitive level with them. They are now currently about 12 per cent higher than we in salaries paid.

If this has to be cut, a poor future indeed may be ahead for the school. The denial of the $2 million the Senate bill doesn't provide will cause some cutbacks but they will probably be in the area of new programs necessitating new personnel.

These are some of the problems that the Regents and the Administration will have to face in the next biennium if we don't receive the $13 million in our budget request. And it may be said almost positively that we will not receive that. No one is predicting that the House will do anything to change the $11 million figure passed by the Senate, and recommended by both the pre-legislative budget committee and Gov. Smylie.

Thus time passes. By next week we will know what the legislature considers our proper perspective — at least financially. There is serious doubt that they are entirely correct.

KUID Begins New Series After 'Probe'

The radio-TV department will sponsor a new television series, "The World Around Us," beginning Thursday at 7 p.m. following "Probe."

The series will be a travelogue similar to the Bob Farrelly show which has been broadcast for the last three weeks.

"We have had such a favorable response to the Farrelly shows that we decided to begin a series featuring faculty members, exchange students and students who have traveled abroad," James Crockett, instructor of radio-TV, said. Farrelly will continue on the show as host, he said.

On the first program in the series, Dr. Harry Caldwell, associate professor of geography, will introduce Farrelly and tell what the program is about. The show will be a weekly feature on KUID-TV, the University station.

Bookstore Down

The original Idaho Student Union Building, the old Blue Bucket, is coming down—down—down.

More recently known as the University Student Bookstore, the building was constructed in 1924.

"We expect the building to be completely demolished in three or four days," said Gale Mix, SUB general manager.

"It will take about a week more to excavate the basement for the new bookstore," he said. The new building is scheduled for completion by mid-August.

"Hilarious?"

Dear Jason:

I was delighted by the comment in the March 5th issue of the Argonaut wherein Mr. Bob McFarland, Managing Editor of the I Magazine describes my play A Self Evident Truth as "being hilariously different." Previously, two other works of mine, The Shortest Distance Between Two Points and Bodies in Motion, had been similarly characterized in the terms "delightfully refreshing" — this offered by an erstwhile member of the faculty of the University of Idaho who makes his livelihood by teaching literature.

I was deeply flattered then and even fancied myself a bar of perfumed bath soap, or perhaps a tube of peppermint tooth paste, or perhaps a tall glass of highly carbonated soft drink, or perhaps better still a medicated foot bath. As critically valid as "delightfully refreshing" was then, it is Mr. McFarland's description "hilariously different" which has completed absolutely my personal critical vocabulary.

Frankly, however, I blush to admit that I do not know what these terms and phrases mean. Perhaps when I achieve the ability to think in a mature fashion, as has Mr. McFarland, he will deign to explain his usage to me. Whatever his meaning, I am certain that I can rest comfortably, knowing that Mr. McFarland has based his remarks upon unique understanding, magnificent magnitude of mind, splendidly sound scholarship, readily remarkable recall, accurately adapted acumen, and vividly logical language.

Congratulations are due Mr. McFarland. His description of my work, if correctly recorded (and it must be, of course, since it appears in print), indicates his ability to think in the "casual style." His views as implied remove unnecessarily academic standards from the field of criticism, making of it a practice that is delightfully different and refreshingly hilarious.

Got an Alumni Hall of Fame Suggestion?

Alumni Secretary Jim Lyle is gathering background for nominees to the University of Idaho Hall of Fame. Lyle is taking his work seriously and is moving cautiously. "We've never picked an Alumnus of the Year," he said, "because such a selection only represents the opinions of a few individuals."

But now that a show case has been provided in the new Student Union Building, it's Lyle's task to select individuals to fill the four-section picture case.

Lyle said the Alumni Board of Directors will make the final selections. Twelve 7 by 5 pictures will be placed in the show case. Lyle said he plans to have the pictures up "within the month." The first 12 selections will hang in the showcase for six months to give this year's and next year's students a chance to see the exhibit.

Next year a picture will be replaced every three months. Lyle hopes to keep the nominees from being picked by a minority group. He has asked the faculty, Administration, ASUI Executive Board and the Alumni Association to nominate persons for the honor. He plans to place a story in the Alumni Roundup asking for nominations at large.

So far returns have piled in. Lyle said nominations have been made by all of the colleges.

The ASUI E-Board recommended three persons. The Board nominated Jesse Buchanan, '27, MS '29, a former University president and present president of the Asphalt Institute at College Park, Md.

Also suggested by the Board were Dr. Thomas C. Galloway, '07, who devised methods to combat bulbar polio, and David K. David, '16, a former dean of the Harvard graduate school of business administration and now director of the Ford Foundation. The University honored Dr. Galloway with an honorary doctorate in Science and David with an honorary doctorate of laws.

"There's no secret about these selections," Lyle said. It takes work and considerable time to dig up the background information necessary to make some of the selections.

E-Board expressed that it didn't know the qualifications of enough people to make many selections. Lyle said that a limited knowledge of qualified alumni is a common difficulty faced by those making selections. Lyle hopes that selections from numerous sources will overcome this problem.

A Well-Rounded Selection

Although not arbitrarily set, the attainment of a top position in education or financial success seems to be a basic qualification.

For example, some of the names on the suggested list include Dr. Lawrence Henry Chamberlain, '30, a former dean and now vice president of Columbia University, or Dr. Dwight J. Ingle, '29, M.S. '31, head of the department of physiology at the University of Chicago.

Financial greats include Darius Davis, '29, president of the Wynn-Dixie grocery store chain in Florida, and others. Some alumni still living in Idaho also are named. For instance, J. Randall, '33, president of Hecla Mines, living in Wallace, and Emery T. Knudson, '21, present chief justice of the Idaho Supreme Court.

And men with accomplishments in literature, such as Talbot Jennings, '24, and playwright MacKinley Helm, '17, are mentioned.

First Members Named Soon

Businessmen, judges, playwrights, scientists, educators, military personnel and government officials are represented. Obviously, lacking is the Idaho graduate who lives in Idaho, contributes to his community's well-being, adds to the state's growth and actively supports his University. The nominees form a formidable list—one which any University could be proud in honoring. The first 12 to be selected will be announced sometime next week.

Keep Up The Good Work

A great deal of building is currently underway on campus. And now, almost assuredly, much more will be undertaken in the next two years. This is as it should be. Certainly it is indicative of the growing college population of the state and the growing realization of the need for improved facilities at our University.

The Idaho Senate and House of Representatives have both passed a bill allocating funds out of the permanent building fund for three University structures.

A new art and architecture building, a new dairy science center, and a complete renovation of the old science building have been approved. This is $1.25 million dollars for University structures.

Originally the administration submitted a list of 10 structures needed. The top three on the list were the ones given to us after some conflict over the Governor's recommendations which differed originally. For unknown reasons he changed his mind to our way of thinking. This is, perhaps, "not for us to reason why." For in actuality, we received as much as could be hoped for, and in the order we wanted.

We are satisfied with the action of the State legislature on this matter and wish to say so. They probably did as much as possible after considering the state's total needs and resources. We hope similar reasoning and action follows on the general fund request. — J.M.

Kip 'n Karen's Kommentts

How closely are AWS rules adhered to? Rules concerning closing hours are followed very closely. But there is one that comes to my mind that is broken often.

The rule concerns men visiting in women's living groups during the week. Until last year it was illegal for men to visit in women's living groups at any time during the week except to pick up a date.

Last year the rule was amended to allow men to visit in women's living groups, for purposes of studying or calling from 4 to 7:30 p.m.

I have visited many women's living groups in my three years at the University where men have been present in the living room studying with a coed, for mutual benefit, during the week.

Last year, AWS tried to amend the rule to allow men to call in women's living groups at any time during the week as long as a housemother was present.

However, the Office of Student Affairs, disapproved of the amendment because they felt it was an inconsistent policy.

Because of the floor plan, three living groups would be unable to allow the men to visit. The girls would have been unable to go from one floor to another as they pleased if men were present.

However, these three living groups gave their consent to AWS to go ahead with the ruling, despite their inability to carry it through.

Nevertheless, the Office of Student Affairs said they could not give their consent because the policy was inconsistent.

How inconsistent is the policy as it stands? Many living groups would find it easier to have the gentlemen callers go into the living room or dining room instead of waiting in the entrance room. As it stands, the women are not allowed as much freedom with the gentlemen in the waiting room as they would have if men were allowed in the living room.

Other living groups have reached another solution to the problem. They just disregard it. For them, men are able to visit on the ground floor, with a housemother present, until closing hours.

Norwegian Father Visits University

A father traveled 6,000 miles to see his daughter on the University of Idaho campus last week.

Leif N. Jargel, who hadn't seen his daughter Janike for nearly two years, traveling from Oslo, Norway on business, met Janike's Tri Delta sorority sisters and housemother.

Arriving by plane in New York, he had visited various other cities during his three week business trip. He had spent time with Janike in Portland and returned with her to visit the U of I campus. This was the fourth time Jargel, who is on the import-export business in Oslo, in his travels the United States. In his travels he has seen 43 states and visited Northern Idaho twice.

After being shown the campus he commented, "Marvelous, but unusual." He explained his statement by saying, "The University of Idaho is much different from the university in Oslo. The students attending college in Oslo do not live in houses or dormitories as on this campus. The students live in apartments which are a 20-minute walk from the campus. The university itself is located in the center of the city and is made up of classrooms and laboratories."

SUB To Present Alan Ladd Film

The Student Union Films Committee will present "Paratrooper," starring Alan Ladd, in the Borah Theater Saturday at 7 and 9 and Sunday at 8 p.m.

The movie, originally scheduled for Friday night, was changed to Saturday because of the Frosh Week dance.

"Paratrooper" tells the true story of the training of paratroopers who took part in the North African raids of World War II.

Commenting about some of the differences between Norwegian and American education practices he said, "It is unknown for a young person to stand up and give a speech in Norway." He felt this was a very good idea because it helped the person in later business and social life.

"There is more social life in the American colleges than Norwegian colleges, but social life in America is a part of American education," he said. In Oslo, students begin college at age 19. The Norwegian father felt that the Norwegian girl of 19 was as mature as the American woman of 21 because Norwegian girls take life more seriously.

"Girls who go to college in Norway are interested seriously in getting an education," he said. Janike, a general business major, has attended college in both the Northern and Southern parts of the United States. Last year she attended Valdosta State College, Valdosta, Georgia, on a scholarship.

During her year in Georgia she became acquainted with segregation and the race conflict. Wanting to attend a northern college, she became interested in the U of I. Her father's secretary, Mona Olsen-Nayen had attended the University and lived at the Tri Delta House on a scholarship.

Miss Naven wrote the Tri Delta's asking them if they would like to have another Norwegian girl live at their house.

The sorority offered a scholarship to Janike, or Nicki as her sorority sisters call her, and Janike came to the University of Idaho to finish her college education in America.

Gov. Robert E. Smylie signed House Bill 81 Tuesday converting Lewis-Clark Normal School into a four-year institution.

The action was followed by controversy as no corresponding raise in appropriated funds for the school has been passed. This action, according to Lewiston Morning Tribune Editor Bill Johnston, "was to be expected."

The State Board of Education issued a statement Wednesday criticizing the Legislature for not appropriating enough public school funds and for passage of the LCNS bill. The Board had originally recommended that the school be converted to a partially state-supported junior college.

The bill was passed through the Senate only after a two-hour debate and a tie-breaking vote by Lt. Gov. William Drevlow. Rep. Ed Williams, (D-Nez Perce) issued a statement yesterday criticizing the Board for criticizing the legislature on their action on LCNS.

He said their criticism was, "in my mind an absolute confession of failure by our state board. They in effect admit that they are unable to set policy by themselves. They are actually playing one institution against another and consequently county against county in the race for tax dollars."

The Board had stated, "By this action the Legislature continued to subject the school to the ebb and flow of Idaho politics." They further characterized LCNS as a "monster" responsible for "jeopardizing the integration of junior colleges into a system of higher education in the state and decreasing the possibility of obtaining adequate appropriations for the University of Idaho and Idaho State University."

The Regents granted student government its power when they approved the Student Constitution," he said. Student government functions at the blessing of the Regents.

After the 40-minute discussion period, the old executive board went through a short agenda. Cliff Eldred asked for a report from French on the status of Alpha Epsilon Rho's funds. An old Alpha Rho account with the ASUI lists $57. French said a study was being made about how to transfer the funds back to the radio honorarium.

Merit citations for worthy individuals were discussed and 47 citations were approved. The University Concert Band was given $600 of ASUI funds to help offset expenses for a tour of north Idaho high schools in April. The money was appropriated from general reserve funds.

Forestry's New Name Is Descriptive

Reflecting more than a half-century of progress, the College of Forestry will become the College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences on July 1.

President D. R. Theophilus announced that the Board of Regents had approved the change at its Pocatello meeting this week so the name of the college would better describe its academic mission.

"The new name does not change the program of the college, but merely catches up with it," explained Dean Ernest Wohletz. "The college has long offered training in wildlife and range management. The initial curriculum was forest management. Wood utilization was added in 1914, range management in 1917, wildlife management in 1942 and fishery management in 1951.

"The word 'sciences' is also significant. Originally, our curriculum was designed to meet only vocational and professional needs. Years ago, however, the emphasis was changed to give students a liberal scientific background," Wohletz said.

The change of name for Idaho's forestry college is in keeping with a trend throughout the nation. Wohletz said that to date no other college has been given exactly the same designation as that of Idaho's.

200 dash: Armstrong holds this one at :21.5. The mark was set in 1947 also.

440: Don Miller's :48.0 time is good enough to hold onto this one. Miller's record was made in 1951.

Held By Boyce
880: This is one of the more recent ones. Dick Boyce holds the record with a time of 1:51.6. The record dates from 1957.

120 high hurdles: Bill Overholser owns this one with a :14.6 clocking. The mark was set in 1960.

220 low hurdles: This one belongs to Bruce Sweeney and was set in 1953. The time is :23.7.

Mile: Phil Liebowitz set this one way back in 1941. His time is 4:09.3.

Two-mile: British runner Ray Hatton holds this record with a time of 9:10.4. His mark dates from 1957.

Reg Holds Shot Record
Shot put: Reg Carolan, currently a member of the San Diego Chargers, set this one in 1961. His was 54, 3/4.

Discus: Duane Taylor holds this mark with a toss of 162 feet. The throw dates from 1951.

Javelin: This is the oldest record of them all, dating clear back to 1938. Don Johnson's 212 throw tops them all.

Broad Jump: Vandal footballer Wilbur Gary has this one with a jump of 24 1/2. Gary set the record in 1956.

High Jump: This is another old one, going back to 1940. Al Fletcher has the record with a 6-5 1/2 jump.

Pole Vault Record
Pole vault: Dave Martindale possesses this one with a vault of 14 2/4. The record was set in 1952.

Mile relay: This is the second newest record, having been set last spring. John Pasley, Nick Carnes, Curt Fisher and Bob Johnson turned in a 3:16.4 clocking to set the standard.

Sorsby Quits Coaching Job

The re-hiring of Doug Basham as Idaho track coach was announced today by President Donald R. Theophilus.

Coach Bill Sorsby, who is now on leave in Cambodia, announced his resignation and Basham was officially given the post.

Basham has been acting as track coach for Sorsby, who had been expected to stay in Cambodia for a single year.

Theophilus said that Sorsby wishes to continue for another year under the U.S. State Department program in which he is coaching the Cambodian national track team, and that he then plans to return to academic studies, working on his doctorate.

Sorsby was granted a year's leave of absence for the current academic year. Basham was named to take his place.

Under Basham's leadership, Idaho's cross-country team finished ninth at the NCAA finals at Lansing, Michigan this past fall.

Some of the other losses for the Vandal squad are Gene Novotney, catcher; Dick Mooney, short stop; Gary Riebe, infielder; and Bob Vervaeke, outfielder.

Infield Losses
Hartley pointed out that the loss of these men took out the pitching staff and the whole left side of the Vandal infield.

However, the return of several hitters could help a lot. Mike Stowe was the leading Idaho hitter last year and returns to hold down first base.

Outfielders Chuck White and Herb Dehning could supply additional punch. Both were .300 hitters last season.

Catcher Jeff McQueeney hit with authority as a sophomore in the previous campaign and his big bat will be needed.

Anderson is hoping for help from a number of transfers and sophomores, but it is too early to evaluate their potential as yet.

Eying CBC Game
He also said that the team is down to about the right size now, and they are preparing for their first game of the season, March 23, against Columbia Basin Junior College in Pasco, Wash.

"The team hasn't won down there (Pasco) for a long time, and I hope they put on a good show for their first outing of the baseball season," Hartley said.

Idaho, the defending Banana Belt Tournament champion, will defend its title March 28, 29, and 30, in Lewiston.
