for living-group reasons." In what he thought was an offthe-record comment. he said that he felt it was his duty to promote group voting efforts in order to keep his party in power.

Wishywashy rambled on to some length about the accomplishments of his party. He said that they had been responsible for the "awakening of culture through our literary magazine, the promotion of free thinking with our anti-Negro speaker, the furtherance of the University through the construction of a new dormitory, and science building, the establishment of a student court system, and the activation of the Activities Council." He explained that they could logically claim these since they had the majority on the E-Board, "and any fool can plainly see that the majority party decides how much can be done and will be done.' Speaking practical politics Wishywashy admitted that the ideals his party kept spouting were actually a cover-up. He said, "We'll keep winning because we have the votes and for no other reason." One IFC delegate, when queried as to why IFC voted to discourage publication, said, "we don't believe in opening ourselves up to any more avenues of attack then possible." This is the epitome of short-sightedness. As long as they express a reluctance towards publicizing their accomplishments, the public is going to be reluctant to accept their claims.

Pan-Hellenic president Barbara Clark said Thursday evening in explanation of the group's action, "It was the consensus that such publicity would overemphasize the importance of house cil this week will be more mature and grades and de-emphasize individual scholarship." Our contention is that if fraternities and sororities are not doing what they claim, if they are not living up to their claims, and if they are failing their members, then they fully deserve whatever criticism might come their way if the results were published. Golden Fleece By Jason

No Trade Now . . .

We get a break next week . . . seven days away from classes (but not away from term papers).

We don't hear much from those campus politicians, who only a week ago, were calling for a day off after Thanksgiving. I might point out to them that the Administration is willing to make a trade—the day after Thanksgiving for one or more days of spring vacation. Anyone want to trade?

President Thophilus says "one or more days" would be needed if the Administration made Thanksgiving a fourday holiday because some students would want to leave Wednesday-or even Tuesday-to get an early start home to Mom's turkey dinner.

Speaking of starting early . . . a young lady I know asked her instructor if she could take her test early. She said she didn't mind waiting until Friday afternoon and taking it with the rest of her class, but the only ride home she could find was leaving Wedneslay.

Another friend wanted to take a test early, too. He can't. He's not so cute.

Actually, the Administration is probably more concerned with student being on the road rather than whether he leaves early or at the regular time.

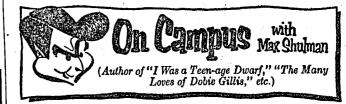

Traffic accidents like the one-car smash up last Thanksgiving which took the life of Barbara Elmquist, an 18-year-old frosh from Burley, and more recently the two-car collision which killed University senior Bruce Dunn, make the Administration hesitant in creating any more long holidays which will give students an opportunity to use the open highways.

HOW TO GET EDUCATED ALTHOUGH ATTENDING COLLEGE

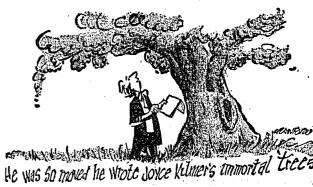

In your quest for a college degree, are you becoming a narrow specialist, or are you being educated in the broad, classical sense of the word?

This question is being asked today by many serious observers—including my barber, my roofer, and my little dog Spot—and it would be well to seek an answer.

Are we becoming experts only in the confined area of our majors, or does our knowledge range far and wide? Do we, for example, know who fought in the Battle of Jenkins' Ear, or Kant's epistemology, or Planck's constant, or Valsalva's maneuver, or what Wordsworth was doing ten miles above Tintern

If we do not, we are turning, alas, into specialists. How then can we broaden our vistas, lengthen our horizons—become, in short, educated?

Well sir, the first thing we must do is throw away our curricula. Tomorrow, instead of going to the same old classes, let us try something new. Let us not think of college as a rigid discipline, but as a kind of vast academic smorgasbord, with all kinds of tempting intellectual tidbits to savor. Let's start

We will begin the day with a stimulating seminar in Hittite artifacts. Then we will go over to marine biology and spend a happy hour with the sea slugs. Then we will open our pores by drilling a spell with the ROTC. Then we'll go over to journalism and tear out the front page. Then we'll go to the medical school and autograph some casts. Then we'll go to home economics

And between classes we'll smoke Marlboro Cigarettes. This, let me emphasize, is not an added fillip to the broadening of our education. This is an essential. To learn to live fully and well is an important part of education, and Marlboros are an important part of living fully and well. What a sense of completeness you will get from Marlboro's fine tobaccos, from Marlboro's pure filter! What flavor Marlboro delivers! Through that immaculate filter comes flavor in full measure, flavor without stint or compromise, flavor that wrinkled care derides, flavor holding both its sides. This triumph of the tobacconist's art comes to you in soft pack or Flip-Top box and can be lighted with match, lighter, candle, Welsbach mantle, or by rubbing two small Indians together.

When we have embarked on this new regimen-or, more accurately, lack of regimen—we will soon be cultured as all get out. When strangers accost us on the street and say, "What was Wordsworth doing ten miles above Tintern Abbey, hey?" we will no longer slink away in silent abashment. We will reply loud and clear:

"As any truly educated person knows, Wordsworth, Shelley, and Keats used to go to the Widdicombe Fair every year for the poetry-writing contests and three-legged races, both of which they enjoyed lyrically. Well sir, imagine their chagrin when they arrived at the Fair in 1776 and learned that Oliver Cromwell, uneasy because Guy Fawkes had just invented the spinning jenny, had cancelled all public gatherings, including the Widdicombe Fair and Liverpool. Shelley was so upset that he drowned himself in a butt of malmsey. Keats went to London and became Charlotte Bronte. Wordsworth ran blindly into the forest until he collapsed in a heap ten miles above Tintern Abbey. There he lay for several years, sobbing and kicking his little fat legs. At length, peace returned to him. He looked around, noted the beauty of the forest, and was so moved that he wrote Joyce Kilmer's immortal Trees... And that, smart-apple, is what Wordsworth was doing ten miles above Tintern Abbey."

Ag Depts. Consolidate Says Prexy

Four of the College of Agriculture departments will be consolidated into two, according to President D. R. Theophilus.

The department of agricultural chemistry; and soils research and teaching, in the department of agronomy, will be merged into the new department of agricultural biochemistry and soils.

The departments of plant pathology and horticulture, as well as all crops work in agronomy, will be organized into the new department of plant sciences. The consolidation will become effective July 1.

The consolidation program, explained Dean J. E. Kraus of the College of Agriculture, follows a trend for colleges of agriculture at land-grant institutions throughout the nation. The program is not new at the University, however. In 1947, the 15 departments of the College of Letters and Science were consolidated into eight.

Kraus listed three primary objectives of the streamlining: 1. To afford an opportunity for closer coordination and operation of research programs in the plant sciences and in soils and plant nutrition. 2. To provide for possible con-
