Nothing Halts Walk To WSU

By JIM FAUCHER
Arg Sports Editor

Blowing its horn and waving a cold, nor the Washington State Police nor railroad trains could stop the 125 Vandal fans from walking to Washington State yesterday afternoon.

Muttering such sayings as "I think there is a slight drizzle in the air," the Idaho fans walked into the WSU CUB at 4:35 p.m. The group left the Navy parking lot on the Idaho campus at 1:15 p.m. The walk got off to a fast start with some people running part of the way. The weather was less than poor, it was terrible.

There seemed to be less cheering and talking than in the past years. The temperature was hovering around 45 degrees and the visibility for the walkers and the cars coming up the road was poor. Due to the poor visibility, the Washington State Police escort, who had been complaining about the manner in which the people were walking anyway, said that the walk would have to be stopped. Stop! Who wanted to stop? So the whole group switched over to the railroad tracks which run next to the road.

The Idaho walkers were met at the mid-way point by hot chocolate and donuts and then they proceeded on their merry, but very wet, way. Walking on the tracks wasn't too bad, but one girl commented that "I think I'll be seeing railroad ties in my sleep." The true test of courage was yet to come. A train running from Pullman to Moscow decided to make a run. Blowing its horn and waving a red flag, it headed down the tracks. The valiant Vandal walkers didn't have much of a choice as they let the train pass, but it would have been nice had it been heading the other way.

The group was met at the Washington State CUB by the ASWSU Vice President Bud Rothgib. He led the group into the CUB with the Idaho students yelling certain cheers such as the Idaho spelloot, and "I don't give a . . . for the whole State of Washington!" They then proceeded down to the bottom floor of the CUB for apple cider and donuts. The annual ritual of the feet-washing then took place with Rothgib washing the feet of ASUI President Bill Frates. A few more introductions and some more cheers, and the event was over.

Rothgib gave the Idaho students a little sympathy when he said that he was sure that the WSU students wouldn't turn out on a day like Thursday for a walk to Moscow. Frates, after thanking all of the Idaho students, summed up all of the Idaho feeling on the subject when he said, "We'll plan a blizzard for you when you walk next year."

Editorial Writer To Speak

Last year's winner of the Thomas L. Stokes award for editorial writing will speak in a public meeting Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Student Union Building Kullyspell Room.

Donald A. Pugnetti, managing editor of the Tri-City Herald, will discuss his editorial series on the Hanford, Wash., Atomic Energy project for which he won the Stokes award last year. In addition to the Stokes Award, his editorials have earned for him two first places in Washington state press contests and last year he was recognized by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society, for outstanding public service and investigative reporting in Washington.

SMILING BEFORE — BUT AFTER? — Preparing for the nine-mile soggy trek taken by 125 U of I students to WSU Thursday afternoon were Carvel Whiting, ASUI vice president, holding the loser's trophy from the Battle of the Palouse; Dave Soper, ASUI public relations director; Mary Bjuström, Spur representative; Bob Hofmann, IK representative; and Jim Faucher, Arg sports editor.

Rally Problem Argued, Tabled By Exec Board

A motion to place the controversial Rally Committee under Activities Council was tabled until next week by Executive Board Tuesday night.

Discussion about where the committee fits in the ASUI structure — whether it should be placed under an E-Board member, in the Activities Council, given back to the Office of Public Relations, or allowed to remain virtually independent of the ASUI structure — was started by Bill Frates, ASUI president, who said:

"Supposedly everything is ironed out." He mentioned that the Rally Committee was meeting with the Cheerleaders and Pompon girls Tuesday night.

Under E-Board Member? Frates said that Dennis Wheeler, Rally Committee chairman, suggested that the newly formed varsity pep band, Pompon Girls, Cheerleaders and Century Club be placed under an Executive Board member, who would have the committee as his area of concern.

A Century Club cheering section composed of 100 freshman girls was suggested last spring by Steve Arnt, a former cheerleader.

Re-placing the Rally Committee under the Office of Public Relations was suggested by Marlene Finney. Last spring ASUI Public Relations Director

Dave Soper asked E-Board to remove the Rally Committee from his office because this type of activity is not a legitimate public relations function.

Still Not A P.R. Job "I don't think it is any more in the field of public relations than it was last spring," Soper said.

In reply to Miss Finney's comment "I can't see any reason why the Rally Committee shouldn't be placed under the Office of Public Relations," Frates replied:

"Because the Office of Public Relations is doing a hell of a lot more work right now than many of the E-Board members."

Carvel Whiting, ASUI vice president and chairman of Activities Council commented:

"I think it should be either under an E-Board member or under Activities Council and I would prefer to see it under an E-Board member."

Just Leave It Alone? In reply to members Jim Scheel and Dave Lindsay's comments that the committee should be left as it is — not directly connected with any ASUI line of command — and that heading Rally Committee isn't E-Board's job, Whiting said:

"As it is, the president and vice president are in charge, and they have too much to do already. If it doesn't go to an E-Board member, it should go under Activities Council."

He further suggested that if E-Board passes a motion making Rally Committee part of Activities Council, the chairman of the committee might be made an area director.

Not Enough To Do "Area directors on Activities Council right now don't have enough to do and we're thinking about eliminating one of the old directors."

Miss Finney suggested that she and Mary Lynne Evans (who was absent by excuse) present a report Tuesday night before a vote is taken.

Executive Board members voted to accept the recommendation of Soper that Bob Hofmann, Delta Sig, be accepted as assistant public relations director.

First Tried Oct. 15 Soper originally presented Hofmann's name to the Board Oct. 15. Miss Finney objected to Hofmann's selection on the grounds that Soper had not announced interviews — to which Soper countered that persons interested in public relations shouldn't have to be sought through formal interviews, and that these people should have the initiative to volunteer to work for the public relations program.

City Churchmen Testing Constitutionality In Suit Filed At Moscow Today

By KAREN SMITH
Argonaut Editor

A group of from 15 to 30 Moscow churchmen filed suit in the Federal Court at Moscow this morning to test the constitutionality of the Idaho statute requiring mandatory daily Bible reading in the public schools.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction D. F. Engelking, the Moscow School District and members of the Idaho State Board of Education were named defendants by plaintiffs, the Rev. Jack Adams, First Christian Church minister, the Rev. Richard A. Lundy, Presbyterian minister, the Rev. Chad Boliek, campus Presbyterian minister, and the Rev. Lee Davis, campus Episcopal minister, and others who are all members of the Moscow School District or residents with children in public schools.

The plaintiffs maintain that daily mandatory reading of the Bible is a discriminatory act in a pluralistic society, is in contradiction with the national Supreme Court decision and therefore is unconstitutional.

Attorney General Comments: Attorney General Allan G. Shephard told the Argonaut last night:

"I am pleased at the indications of the personnel who are filing the suit because I feel they are a thoroughly responsible group of people. This to me would indicate that the litigation, if filed, would clear the air and remove the question the people of Idaho have in their minds regarding the constitutionality of the United States Supreme Court case."

The statement by Shephard was in agreement with a statement made earlier by the churchmen in which they said:

Church On The Right Side "We feel the Church should be on the right side of the issue. Why should teachers, atheists, etc. have to fight the issue for us? We feel we are the most fitted to challenge the constitutionality of this law without seeming to be against the Bible," they said.

The United States' Supreme Court declared last summer that the mandatory reading of the Bible in public classrooms was unconstitutional. The Idaho statute requires reading of the American Standard Version of the Bible daily in Idaho public schools, but prohibits discussion or questioning of Biblical passages.

Philip A. Peterson, dean of the College of Law, said that if the suit is awarded, it will hold that the statute that requires daily mandatory reading of the Bible is unconstitutional, but that it will not limit discussion, questioning or study in the public schools. Teaching of religion is still unconstitutional, however, he pointed out.

"What we're after in doing away with limitations on discussion and mandatory reading of the Bible," Adams said. "However, a teacher should be able to read the Bible if he or she so desires."

"The present law makes the Bible a book to be worshipped — but not to be understood," he said.

Turkey, America Share Customs

By LEO JEFFRIES
Argonaut Staff Writer

Turkish and American cultures share many features commented "Frankie" the 19-year-old son of the chief supreme court justice of Turkey who is attending the University.

"Frankie" was the name given to Husnu Oktulmus by members of Phi Delta Theta, where he is a guest during his four-year stay.

He applied to some 30 American colleges and universities and received scholarship offers from ten. "Frankie" is majoring in electrical engineering.

Some Schools Harder He finds that American schools seem to be about as hard scholastically as most of Europe's with the exception of the French and Turkish school system, which is a little harder. "Frankie" attended Ankara College (high school), a school of approximately 3,000 students, in Turkey's capital city.

When asked of his impression of fraternity life "Frankie" replied that "students between the ages of 17 and 21 are in a dangerous age and must learn the difference between right and wrong. The fraternity life can be responsible for them and teach them how to solve their own problems and be responsible for themselves."

Turkish-U.S. Morals Similar Turkish and Idaho students' are much alike but there are some differences when compared with those of New York and other eastern students, said "Frankie."

"Most American dances are popular in Turkey. When I was there, we had the 'Twist,' but the 'Bird' hadn't arrived as yet." Another favorite entertainment in Turkey — motion pictures — are much like those in the United States. Approximately 35 per cent of the films shown are American made.

Smoking in Turkish high schools is illegal and presents a problem since many students smoke in violation of the national law, according to "Frankie." Drinking in America is much more common than in Turkey.

Rugby Most Popular Sport Except for football and baseball all other American sports are played in Turkey. While football is a big sport here, rugby is the most popular sport in "Frankie's" home country.

Although many American students still believe that polygamy is practiced, "Frankie" said that this has been illegal for many years. The average marriage age is 20 to 22 in the large cities and 18 to 19 in the villages and rural areas.

Adjusting to the American teaching system has been "Frankie's" biggest problem. The Turkish program places emphasis on different areas.

Gals Surprised "Frankie" American college girls were "Frankie's" biggest surprise. "When I went to a foreign country, I thought I'd find differences, but I didn't. The girls have the same character but different habits and speech.

Bilge Kuranel, a girl friend of "Frankie's" from Turkey, will also be attending the University second semester on a scholarship. She is the daughter of a former Turkish senator.

"American food is a little bit plainer and has fewer kinds," but "Frankie" does enjoy it. In his spare time he enjoys acting and modern and classic oil painting.

Kampus Keys On Sale Monday

Kampus Keys, student directories, will go on sale by the first of next week, according to Steve Edwards, Fiji, project chairman.

They will be sold for 75 cents each by members of Blue Key, upperclassmen's service honorary.

This is 25 cents more than they have been sold for in the past. Additional cost in compiling the keys is the reason for the higher price, Edwards said.

APPLE FOR THE TEACHER — Dr. Robert Wyatt, president of the National Education Association, spoke to more than 200 future teachers at a recent Student Idaho Education Association convention on the campus.

NEA President Desires Tax System To Be Altered

If there is to be more equity in taxation for school needs, the entire tax system must be moved to larger areas, — to state and nation," Dr. Robert Wyatt, National Education Association, said here.

He spoke to an educational conference sponsored at the University by the Student Idaho Education Association. The conference drew several hundred future teachers from northern Idaho high schools and colleges.

"Even the state is incapable of reaching certain taxable areas. Only the Congress of the United States is," the educational leader declared.

"At this time of bursting school enrollments, the persons with small holdings of property are getting more and more taxes heaped upon them through town and county systems," he said. "We must study our entire tax system — must use powers to tax which we have not used to prevent heaping our burden on the few."

Wyatt referred to young men and women as national resources, and stressed the responsibility of the nation in developing them. He said that the nation as a whole has in the past shouldered significant educational burdens "only when we have been in trouble."

He pointed out that the land grant college movement was spawned in the Civil War when mechanics were desperately needed. World Wars I and II led to other federal aid programs.

The National Defense Education Act of 1957, Wyatt added, was sparked by the Russians' Sputnik when we saw a sudden and great need for more scientists and mathematicians.

"As a free nation with responsibilities for that freedom, we should not look to educational needs only in time of trouble. We should look to them with a long-range view," Wyatt said.

Dr. John A. Green, University professor of education, spoke on "Opportunities in Teaching" at the Conference.

"Teachers today aren't paid as much as they're worth; they are paid better than they used to be; they will be paid still better when you, the high school students, are ready to teach," he said.

Green said the greatest shortage of teachers is in elementary schools. He said that twice as many college students today are preparing to become secondary school teachers and the ratio should be the reverse. In high schools, he said, the greatest demand was for teachers in science, mathematics and foreign languages.

"I have taught for 20 years," Green said. "No other work for me is more challenging, interesting and rewarding."

Elmer Crowley, Boise, executive secretary of the Idaho Education Association, was scheduled to speak at the one-day conference but could not keep the appointment because of fog conditions at the Boise airport.

Sue Solomon, state and campus SIEA president, was general chairman of the conference.

Now History, Too, Is TV-Taught

A University history student watching television may actually be doing his homework.

Educational TV is now being used to supplement reading in out-of-class work, explained Dr. William S. Greever, chairman of history. The selected films are required viewing for students in two upper division classes, The Westward Movement, and Social and Cultural History of the United States.

Films to be shown over the University's television system for the first course are "Wabash Foot-hold," "Indian Valhalla," "British Keystone," "Early Toll Roads," "Pioneer Bank," "Steamboat Landing," and "Porkopolis." For the second course are "Frontier Campus," "Prairie Utopia," "The Broken Plow," and "Prairie Village."

The University station, operating on Channel 5 in town and Channel 7 on campus, will show the films during November, December and January on varying days at 4:10 p.m. and every Thursday night at 7 p.m. Moscow residents on the cable will also be able to view the historical films.

While films will never replace library reading, they may prove to be a satisfactory additional means of instruction," said Dr. Greever. "Students at the end of the semester will be asked to give their views on the films as aids to understanding the subject matter in the courses. This will help us determine whether we should use them again next year.

Examinations will be given on the contents of the historical films.

The Golden Fleece

By Jason

The suit filed this morning by Moscow churchmen is a step to be commended.

It took a lot of courage for persons in the religious field to bring a court testing the constitutionality of daily mandatory Biblical reading because they will undoubtedly be criticized by members of their own congregations and people throughout the State and nation.

But we can only agree with Attorney General Allan Shepard that these were the people who should file the suit—only they can be respected by other churchmen. Only they can be regarded as people who know what they are doing rather than as a group of crackpots.

How Far Will It Go?

However, we have only one question. How far will the interpretation on constitutionality go? Will declaring Bible reading as being unconstitutional also set a precedent for abolishing "In God We Trust" from our coins and "Under God" from our pledge of allegiance as well as oaths taken in court, and statements opening legislative sessions?

As Attorney General Shepard said, it could open a Pandora's box affecting baccalaureate services for State institutions, such as the University of Idaho, high schools, and Christmas or Easter programs. There is no logical stopping place.

It seems, however, that the Supreme Court only had in mind the restrictions on religious readings in the public schools — they did not intend to abolish pledges, affirmations of loyalty and public oaths.

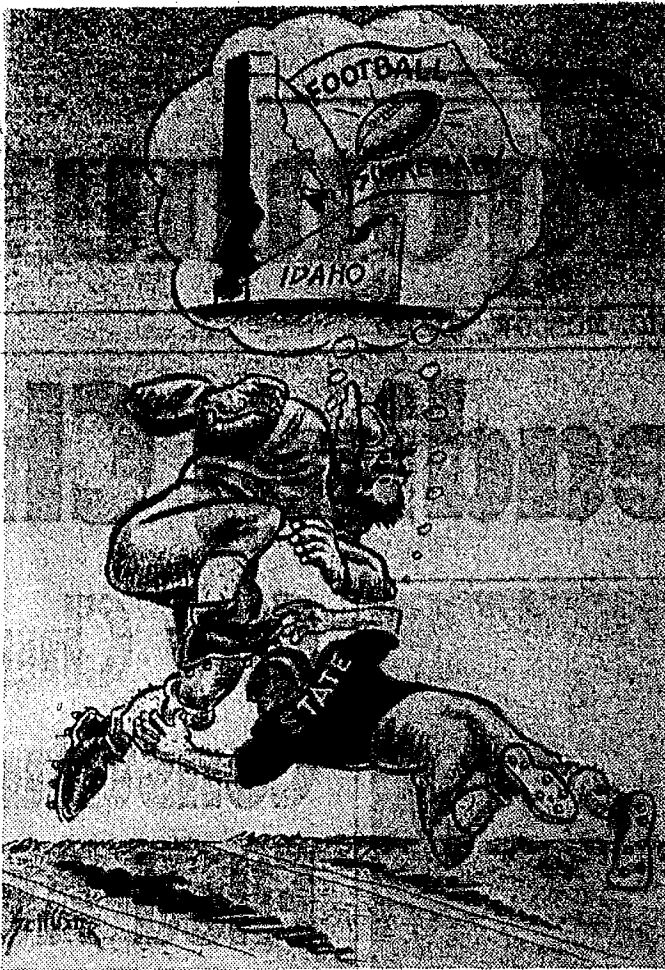

There Is No Doubt

Regardless of the implications of this question, there is no doubt in the mind of Jason that the Idaho law is unconstitutional with the United States Supreme Court's decision.

Jason also agrees with the churchmen that reading the Bible in the classrooms is discriminatory to those people who do not believe in God.

America was founded on the theory of religious freedom. This not only means freedom of religion but freedom from religion.

Jason is pleased that a responsible group of people, who do believe in God and are not against the Bible, had the courage to test the question that is in the minds of many Idahoans.

Dear Jason!

Set Straight

Dear Jason: In reference to the letter to you, "Baby Baby Cui," which was published in the Nov. 12th edition of the Arg, I would like to set a few facts straight.

1. Contrary to that letter, Mark Brown was not kicked off Activities Council. His resignation was voted on and accepted at the Activities Council meeting of Nov. 12th. The minutes of that meeting will verify this.

2. Also contrary to that letter Ray Rocha did not call the brothers down to sign as donors for the blood drive so the Beta House would have the highest donation percentage. Computation of winners was fairly carried out by a sub-committee under Rocha. Verification of this can be obtained from Arlene Ullman who was chairman of the competition committee.

I write this letter not as a Beta Brother but as an independent member of Activities Council who only wishes that the truth be known, that the students of Idaho not be misled by an ill-informed individual, and that the two persons mentioned above not be degraded by fictitious, slanderous statements.

Brown and Rocha have worked long and hard in activities on this campus and deserve praise for their efforts, not slander.

Johnston, Johannesen Cite Exec Board Work

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles about the accomplishments of each Executive Board member. The basis for each article is the progress report submitted by each member.

Next in line in order of report number are Jim Johnston, FarmHouse, who submitted progress report 40 on Oct. 24 and Carl "Ingo" Johannesen, Campus Club, who submitted report 42 on Nov. 4.

By KIP PETERSON
Argonaut Associate Editor

The usual hue and cry of "let's dispense with elections" usually comes to the surface only during elections, while the work of the elected goes on all year.

Last spring a petition was circulated advocating the abolishment of class officers, but the students voted in the election to continue them.

After that, it became the job of Executive Board Member Jim Johnston, FarmHouse, to find something for them to do after he was assigned the area of concern of student government improvement.

Minimal Duties Established

In his progress report, Johnston notes that he assisted in the establishment of minimal duties for class officers and is currently working with the officers.

This class advisory capacity involves more direct work with the freshman officers than those of the other classes and indirectly with Nancy Grubb, Activities Council area director, during the time of the individual class projects.

Johnston suggested last spring that a varsity rifle team be established, and last summer ASUI President Bill Frates worked with ROTC rifle team sponsors, to establish a rifle team independent of the ROTC

Fair Booth Project

Last summer, Johnston cooperated with the College of Agriculture in the sending of a U of I booth to five fairs throughout the state.

Approximately 120 students worked in the booth during the five fairs, Johnston said. At one, the Blackfoot fair, the booth won first prize in the educational division.

This fall, Johnston took over development of a pep band from E-Board Member Jim Scheel. Since then, a 15-member jazz pep band has been established with Dave Wells, off-campus, as leader.

"Ingo" Retreat Organizer

Carl "Ingo" Johannesen was assigned the area of student-faculty relations — which includes the task of organizing the annual Student-Faculty Retreat.

Johannesen doesn't claim credit for the new ideas implemented at this retreat — just credit for putting them into action.

New ideas included revolving discussion groups to permit as many delegates as possible to attend three groups, inviting Moscow Chamber of Commerce leaders, and including foreign students.

"Way Back Then . . ."

April 23, Johannesen started assembling a delegate list of more than 55 persons and inviting them.

"Way back then (with invitations) I started this idea of full participation and group togetherness. It was a closer group (during Retreat this fall) than it ever was before. There were no cliques, no noticeable Greek-Independent split, no personality clashes and nobody left it to go party in Coeur d'Alene," Johannesen said.

Part of Johannesen's area of concern involves checking on student-faculty committees (12 of them, to be sure the committees are functioning.

Try To See If Effective

He commented that he will try to evaluate the effectiveness of each committee before the spring elections to be sure "they're accomplishing something, and if they aren't, I'll recommend next spring that the student participation be dropped. I can't see wasting the students' time if the committees are worthless. If the faculty want to keep the committees going, that's fine."

Contacts between new faculty members and the E-Board members were to have been accomplished through luncheons, but "thus far we've been too tied up with activities, so I have not approached the Board yet. I don't think it's too late to get benefit out of it yet," Johannesen said.

ASUI BEGINS

The Associated Students were formally organized in 1916.

Hike Saturday?

After those who "like to hike" trekking down railroad ties Thursday afternoon — and some of them cutting classes to do it, an idea came along.

Since the administration disapproves of either dismissing or cutting classes to go, why not try on Saturday?

The idea is too late for this year, and we hope it won't have to be implemented next year, but still . . .

On Saturday there are no tests, no classes. And how many of us can honestly state that the three hours it would take on Saturday afternoon are always used for study?

The turnout you might get for a Saturday afternoon trek might be larger than the number who turned out this year — and, again, it might be less.

But at least Arg editors couldn't abstain from going because a newspaper has to be published, student leaders couldn't excuse themselves with activities and "study," and challenges could be made between living groups to see which could get the most students out. Might even help turnout.

Again, we hope this won't have to be discussed next year — except by Moo U. students.

Dear Jason

Be Atypical!

Dear Jason: Upon looking through a notebook in which I keep notes on lectures which I have attended, I caught sight of those taken at a speech given here on November 1, 1962, by S. L. A. Marshall, General, U. S. Army (retired). At that time, he expressed his belief that 75 per cent of leadership is anticipating the results.

While this is an excellent way of putting it, I would divide leadership into four equal parts:

1. Natural ability
2. Anticipating the results of what you do
3. Anticipating the results of what others do
4. Anticipating the results of what is not done.

Other Quarters

Dear Jason: Upon looking through a notebook in which I keep notes on lectures which I have attended, I caught sight of those taken at a speech given here on November 1, 1962, by S. L. A. Marshall, General, U. S. Army (retired). At that time, he expressed his belief that 75 per cent of leadership is anticipating the results.

Leadership is essential to the members of these organizations. To me, it appears that the members of these other organizations have not paid enough attention to what I call my second and fourth part of leadership. Their actions have resulted in injury to the spirit of the members of ASUI.

There should be a cure for this which would prevent a relapse. May I suggest, Jason, that while the members of these other organizations appear to fulfill the first quarter of my division of leadership, they should make use of some other quarters, constantly.

Short Staff Hurts Stations

The main problem with all the television, FM and AM equipment is that there are not enough radio and television majors to staff the stations, said Buzz McCabe, manager of KUOI.

Warren Board, president of Alpha Epsilon Rho, addressed the 30 announcers and 5 engineers on the KUOI staff at an incorporated meeting held between KUOI and Alpha Epsilon Rho, and talked about the potentials of radio and television in the University.

He spoke about the new $48,000 video tape recorder that had been purchased and the two new sound studios for the television and FM stations.

Board explained to the KUOI staff the authority that AER now has in running the station.

Rings N' Things

ENGAGEMENTS
Emily Bamesburger, Kappa, announced her engagement to Ron Rainey, a law student, on Oct. 30. Each girl placed a candle on the edge of the heart shaped cake and Emily rushed in to blow out the flames.

ASUI Secretary Position Is Open
The ASUI office in the Student Union Building is now receiving applications for an ASUI secretarial position, paying $1 per hour.

Secretarial duties would include covering Executive Board meetings, writing the minutes, typing all E-Board members' reports and being responsible for all secretarial work involving the Exec Board.

Chess Plans

Efforts to organize a chess club were made in the 1930's.

FIRST GRADUATE DEGREE
The first graduate degree was awarded in 1897 which was 28 years before a Graduate School was formed at the University.

No, about getting old.

Not at all. I've reached a milestone today. I'm 21. The days of my youth have flown.

4. You should be celebrating not brooding.
The age of responsibility is upon me.

5. How come you're not a member of the Drama Club?
Already my father's talking about my being "self-supporting." I see responsibilities all around me—wife, children, lawn, leaves.

We're looking forward to meeting you

We'll be on the campus on the dates listed below, ready to give engineering and science seniors and graduate students information on space-age careers in a dynamic industry.

If you are looking for a company offering assignments on programs of unique interest and career potential, you'll be interested in the advantages Boeing can offer you.

Boeing, for instance, is a major contractor on such advanced programs as NASA's S-1C Saturn V first-stage booster, the X-20 Dyna-Soar manned space glider, and the solid-fuel Minuteman ICBM. Boeing is also the world's foremost designer and builder of multi-jet aircraft, including the eight-jet B-52H missile bomber, the KC-135 tanker-transport, the C-135 cargo-jet, and the famous Boeing 707, 720 and 727 jetliners.

In addition, Boeing's Vertol Division is one of America's leading designers and builders of helicopters. Research projects at Boeing are under way in such advanced fields as celestial mechanics, solid state physics, nuclear and plasma physics, flight sciences, space flight and propulsion.

Expanding Boeing programs offer exceptional opportunities to holders of B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees.

At Boeing you'll work in a small group where individual ability and initiative get plenty of visibility. You'll enjoy many other advantages, including an opportunity to take graduate studies at company expense to help you get ahead faster. Boeing is an equal opportunity employer.

Drop in to your Placement Office and arrange for an interview. We're looking forward to meeting you!

BACK OF THE WEEK — Gary Mires, quarterback for the Vandals was selected back of the week at the Boosters' Club meeting Tuesday night. Mires was given the honor for his offensive work against the University of Arizona Saturday night.

Vandal Men Given Honors
 Gary Mires and Denny Alquist were voted the outstanding back and lineman of the week by the Moscow Vandal Boosters after watching the films of Idaho's loss to Arizona. The Booster meeting was highlighted by a report from track coach MacFarlane on Idaho's win in the Big Sky Conference Cross Country championships in Moscow last Saturday. Clem Parberry reported to the group on the Idaho State football team, Idaho's opponent tomorrow. He emphasized their big line and speedy backfield. Coach Andros then reviewed the Arizona games and talked about plans for tomorrow's game before showing the film. Has Long Run
 Gary Mires, who valiantly tried to move the Vandal club, spent most of his time trying to make the loss on the play at a minimum as the hard-charging Arizona line stormed through. One time he managed to get away from the rush and make a beautiful run to the Arizona eight. The play covered 40 yards. He then carried the ball over, himself, for Idaho's only touchdown of the game. Denny Alquist, who won the lineman of the week award, was chosen for his fine all-around play against the rugged Arizona line.

Six Teams In Close IM Race

A close race has developed in the overall intramural point standings as the top six teams are within twenty-three points of each other, after three sports; football, cross country, and tennis. The SAEs are currently in first place with 359 points and were expected to increase their lead over the second place Phi Delt last night as they had clinched at least second place in intramural swimming. The Phi Delt is trailing by 2 1/2 points with 356 1/2.

The ATOs are a strong third with 354 points, and Willis Sweet is not far behind with 346. The Betas are fifth with 343 and the Kappa Sigs are the only other team above 300, with 336 points.

Beta Lead Slim
 The Betas entered the finals of intramural swimming last night with a meager three point lead over the SAEs who were favored to overcome the deficit and take the championship. The point totals saw the Betas first with 110 points to 107 for the SAEs. The other top teams were the Phi Delt with 82, Lindley with 80, and the Fijis and the ATOs with 75.

The SAEs were favored to take the swimming crown on the basis of their five men in the individual swimming finals to only four for the Betas. Two SAEs were favored in the finals compared to one for the Betas. Lindley was favored to take third, and the Fijis were expected to overcome the Phi Delt lead and finish fourth. A close race for fifth was predicted between the ATOs and the Phi Delt.

The Idaho Vandals will shoot for their fifth straight win on Gem State soil this Saturday when they resume their intrastate war with Idaho State University in Pocatello.

The Vandals have won four straight in Moscow and Boise to hold a 4-4 record and have never lost to the Bengals, current Big Sky conference champions. Although both schools are in the new conference, the Vandals do not play enough games with conference teams to earn a shot at the title. ISU is undefeated in Big Sky play.

The Vandals will call on their varied attack this weekend. Idaho has been effective both on the ground and through the air this season so Coach Dee Andros said that he would wait and see what sort of defense the Bengals threw up before outlining a plan of attack. Rich Naccarato, the little junior halfback from Spokane, continues to lead the Idaho rusher with a net 346 yards and a 4.5 average. With two games to go Naccarato has already passed his team-leading total of 329 set in 1962. Quarterback Gary Mires is within one pass of a 50 percent completion mark with 31 strikes in 63 tosses for a 49.2 percent and 508 yards. Vern Leyde, the team's top receiver in '62 is still leading the team with 13 catches for 208 yards. In leading the team in receiving last season he caught 15 for 208 yards.

Rice Leads Big Sky
 Mickey Rice is not only leading the team in punting, but the Big Sky conference as well. His 39.8 average is one of the tops in the Northwest. Saturday's fourth meeting between the two schools will mark the fourth different name under which the Bengals have played. The series started in 1916 with Idaho "beating" Pocatello Tech, 32-0. In 1929 the Vandals defeated Southern Branch 41-7. Last season Idaho defeated Idaho State College, 9-6. This season it will be the Vandals against ISU.

Each year the stands are repaired to some degree. From the looks of things, the "repairing" has already been accomplished. The backstop has a hole in it; some of the steps have completely collapsed, and some of the boards on which you are supposed to walk look like open elevator shafts.

Where is all the money that is to be spent on University improvements? At the present time it is planned to have a new baseball field North and West of the new Wallace Complex. Due to the leveling of the ground and the time it will take for the ground to settle, the project should be completed in three to five years. This amounts to 1095 and 1725 days before the project is done. By that time many of us should be out of this institution, and we won't care if the stands are repaired or not. Will we? And maybe that time someone else will be behind this typewriter talking about the same thing.
