CUP Chooses `Ingo' For Prexy Nominee

The Campus Union Party nominating convention picked Carl (Ingo) Johannesen, Campus Club, over Jim Johnston, FarmHouse, as the CUP candidate for ASUI president Sunday. After three recesses, Johnston agreed to run for the vice presidential nomination and won after 10 delegate groups of the 22 at the convention had been polled on the roll-call vote. Delegates from the 11th group on the roll, Hays, then moved that Johnston be accepted unanimously by the convention.

The following day Johnston decided to withdraw from CUP's ticket and run independently.

Argonaut Managing Editor For the second year in a row, a candidate for ASUI vice president has forgone his party nomination to run for ASUI president independently. Jim Johnston, FarmHouse, announced yesterday that he would decline his nomination on the CUP ticket for the second spot to run for ASUI president against Carl Johannesen, Campus Club. (See candidates statements on page 2.) Both candidates denied the similarity to last year's elections when Clif Eldred, off campus, declined his nomination for ASUI vice president on the United ticket to run for president.

Johnannesen noted that Eldred did not accept the nomination and that Johnston accepted the nomination before the CUP convention Sunday.

A second candidate running independently for a position on Executive Board filed a petition to be placed on the ballot today.

Dick Smith, off campus, issued this statement to the Argonaut:

"The image of the University of Idaho to many people outside of this academic community leaves much to be desired. It is the duty of the student leaders to remind the students that they, as well as their student government, have an important role in projecting the University image.

'I believe academic excellence and intelligent, aggressive opinions on the part of the students and their ASUI government are the best ways to improve the image of the University in the minds of the people."

Johnston also stated that he was concerned with the University image. Specifically, relations with the incoming University President.

"Next year we will probably have a new President of the University. If we don't have a strong student government when the new President takes over, we may lose student government entirely as has happened on many campuses that consider themselves progressive."

Asked why he decided to run independently, Johnston said that he had received telephone calls from many friends of his on campus encouraging him to run for the presidential office.

"Some of these people are members of CUP," he said.

Arlen Marley, Upham, CUP president, questioned Johnston about when he reached his decision to run independently.

ECONOMICS CAN BE CHUCKLES

Many of you have been avoiding economics because it is so widely known as "the dismal science." Oh, good friends, stop cheating yourselves of many a laugh and cheer, because economics is a positive riot! True, it is called the dismal science, but that is only because it was invented in 1681 by Walter C. Dismal.

It is easy to understand why Mr. Dismal's discovery of economics is today almost forgotten, for the fact is that he himself only stayed with the subject for two or three days. After that he took up embonpoint, which means fatness. It is said that at his apogee, Mr. Dismal reached 1200 pounds. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.

It was not until 1776 when Adam Smith published his Wealth of Nations (or Ozymandias, as it is usually known as) that the world came to realize what a rosy, twinkly, fun subject economics is. As Mr. Smith showed in his jocular little treatise, there is nothing complicated about economics.

With only one recognized political party on campus, what happens to Election Board?

This question was thrown out by ASUI Vice President Carvel Whiting. Good question.

The ASUI Constitution provides that the Election Board shall consist of 15 members (last fall there were 16). It further provides that 10 of these shall be evenly divided between the recognized political parties on campus.

Two points: first, between. Why not among to denote more than two? Second, what if there's only one recognized party

With only Campus Union Party remaining as a recognized party (until and unless another party becomes a reality) what happens to the United Party members on Election Board?

As Carvel suggested, there are two things E-Board can do.

1 It can overthrow the Constitution and allow them to remain on the board for this election.

2. It can kick them off and either give the five spots to CUP as the only recognized party or, if the other party gets going, give the five spots to them

This could be interesting—will E-Board do as it did last week and bypass the Constitution, or will E-Board uphold the Constitution it functions un-

I don't know. I'm not even sure I want to know. Last week E-Board agreed to allow the election to go on March 12-a Thursday.

To quote the Constitution:

The election date for the ASUI general Election shall be the first Monday in March.'

About all they got right was the month.

My compliments for the day go to Washington State University's Associated Women Students organization. This group has succeeded in passing a proposal to allow senior women any hours they please—thanks to the "key privilege" system. (See story, page 1)

Under this system, each senior woman who has her parent's permission may get a key to her living group. It's some progress toward liberalization of the archaic rules which exist in virtually the same form on WSU's campus and ours.

The proposal has only one temporary hitch-the administration has to aprove it, and the coeds have to vote for it in the next election March 11.

So far, the Religion in Life Conference is a success. However, lasting effect-or any effects-of something of this nature cannot be determined by sheer weight of numbers.

Sheer weight of numbers were impressive at the keynote address yesterday morning. Equally impressive were the numbers of students in the Bucket, the adjoining cafeteria, the Nest, the Perch-

However, nothing can detract from the success of this year's conference compared with last year's. Last spring the keynote speaker faced a dismally small audience, and participation in all aspects of the conference was poor.

This year looks like a good one. Reasons for this year's conference's success, from the standpoint of those who were not directly concerned with the physicial details of its organization seem to be the change in date and better organization-especially in the publicity department. Last year the conference conflicted with the spring elections—fell right at a time when the major topic of conversation was politics and when the number one story in the Arg was elections.

This year, the conference came at a more opportune time-less static from politics (although the past couple of days have been very political) and more space available in the Arg. We're pleased that RILC has gained strength this year. In our opinion planning ahead was the chief reason.-K.P.

When there is a great demand for a product, a great supply is placed on the market. When there is a small demand, there is a small supply. Take, for example, castanets. You walk into any average American town today and I'll wager you won't see more than eighty or ninety castanet shops. That is because the demand is small.

For Marlboro Cigarettes, on the other hand, the demand is great. Thus, you will find Marlboros-with all their yummy rich tobacco flavor and pure white Selectrate filter and pliable soft pack and unpliable Flip-Top box-at any counter where cigarettes are sold in every one of our fifty great States and Duluth.

To Adam Smith, I say, belongs the distinction of popularizing economics. Mr. Smith was followed by David Ricardo. In fact, everywhere he went he was followed by David Ricardo. Mr. Smith finally got so annoyed that he summoned a bobby, as British policemen are called, and had Mr. Ricardo arrested. This later became known as the Louisiana Purchase.

Upon his release from gaol, as a British jail is called, Mr. Ricardo reported to his parole officer, Thomas Robert Malthus. They soon became fast friends, and one night over a game of whist they invented the stock exchange, or chutney, as it is called in England.

Well sir, with the British having, you might say, a corner on economics, the French decided that they wanted some economics too. Being, however, a proud nation, they refused simply to borrow British economics, but insisted on inventing their own. At first they tried using the truffle hound as a medium of exchange. When this proved less than satisfactory, they switched to pomade. Discouraged by this second disappointment, they finally shrugged and said, "Oh, who cares about economics anyhow?" and returned to the guillotine and Maurice Chevalier.

America, I am pleased to report, had much better success with economics. Our early merchants quickly broke down economics into its two major categories-coins and folding money-and today, as a result of their wisdom, we can all enjoy the automatic toll station.

Well sir, I could go on and on about this fascinating subject, but I know you're all in a tearing hurry to rush out and sign up for Econ I. So I will leave you now with two kindly words of farewell: Gresham's Law. © 1964 Max Shulman

We, the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, are tobacconists, not economists. But this much we know about supply and demand: you demand full flavor in a filter cigarette; we supply it--Marlborol
